

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at http://books.google.com/

BX 9055 .K59.

#

L

•

•

. •

.

.

•

.

1				, † .
•
		· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·		•
	*!
	•		•
••			•
•
.,	2	•
		•		*

Kirkpatrick, James 5, 2, 73.

AN ## HISTORICAL ESSAY

Upon the

LOYALTY

Of

PRESBYTERIANS

In Great-Britain and Ireland from the Reformation to this Present Year 1713.

WHEREIN

Their steady Adherence to the Protestant Interest, our happy Civil Constitution, the Succession of Protestant Princes, the just Prerogatives of the CROWN, and the Liberties of the People is demonstrated from Public Records, the best Approv'd Histories, the Confession of their Adversaries, and divers Valuable Original Papers well attested, and never before Published. And an ANSWER given to the Calumnies of their Accusers, and particularly to two late Pamphlets viz. 1. A Sample of true Blue Presbycerian Loyalty &c. 2. The Conduct of the Disserters in Ireland &c.

In Three Parts.

with a PERFATORY ADDRESS to all her Majesty's Protestant Subjects, of all Persuasions, in Great-Britain and Ireland, against the Pretender, on behalf of the PROTESTANT Religion, the CUEEN, the Hease of HANOVER, and our LIBERTIES.

Printed in the Year MDCCXIII.

4 . • • . • • •

A

PREFATORY ADDRESS

To all her Majesty's Protestant Subjects of all Persuasions, in Great-Britain and Ireland, against the Pretender, on behalf of the Protestant Religion, the Queen, the House of Hanover, and our Liberties.

HE Flaming Divisions of Protestants have no where been a greater scand-dal to Religion, nor more dangerous to the Civil Liberties of any Nation in the World, than amongst us in Great-Britain and Ireland: All Europe knows it, and all the Contending Parties Confess it. And yet alas! the fatal Disease continues: This makes us appear to the sober thinking Part of Mankind, as if we had a mind to dispute our selves out of our Religion and our Liberties, as if we scorn'd our Deliverance, and courted our Ruin, while Unity amongst our selves (the chief, if not the only means under God, of saving us) instead of Meeting with a due Regard, is treated with Insolence and Contempt: And Moderation and Moderate Men loudly Decry'd, and Redicul'd both from Press and Pulpit; And now we are brought to that Pass, that those who wou'd cure our Divisions, can't in and they who can, won't.

If we search into the unhappy Causes of these continued Divisions, we'll find ensual Reducible to Two General Heads.

1. The different Sentiments that are mongh Protestants, about Church-Government, Lituingies and human Ceremonies in Divine Weiship, and about the Terms both of Ministerial, and Riverte Christian Communion with respect to these Things. I. Their nor Exercing themselves according to the Common Principles of the Protestant Religion, where in they are all agreed, and the true Interest of British Subjects. As to the sixty. Its neither the Design of this Book nor of this Address, to touch the Merits of the Cause, or to enter upon the Controversies that are Azitated amongst British Protestants upon obose Heads. Bat the SECONI Cause is what I am resolv'd to lay open, and to offer my bumble Advice for the speedy and effectual Cure of it. And I am confident that all Pious and Good Prorestants will find from Experience. shat wou'd we all do what she Common Principles of the Protestant Religion we are egreed in oblige us to do, our differences about the debated Points wou'd either insensibly dwindle away, and be Compromis'd; or, if continued, would be Manag'd with that Charity and Mickness that would allay our Heats, and prove the Gloriwas Harbinger of the Peace of Jerusalem, as well as a Rroug Piller fer she suppere of our bappy Civil Constitution. While any Protestant, Episcopal, Presbyteriun, or independent stands Musing with himself what can be the reason why all the Defires and Endeavors of good Men for the Union of Protestants bave met with no better Success; it wou'd very well become him, to make an Enquiry whether Protefroms of all Denominations have not provok'd an Holy God to permit a Spirit of Discord o rage amongstem, as a punishment for their not Practising the Matters shey are agreed in, which are the Substantials and Vitale of Religion, It is certain. that the (hining Beauties of true Holiness are Astrastive of the Love and Reverence of all good Men, it Unites their Affections, and links'em into a Harmony of Monsures.

Brotherly Love and Meekness, the Essential Ingredients of true Religion, bave So much of the Temper of Heaven in 'em, that they would soon make us all easy. Charity wou'd put the best Construction upon the Principles and Practices of one another. It wou'd not strain Consequences, nor insuse groundless Fedensies, nor witfully misrepresent Matters of Fad, nor use bitter Scurrilous Expressions, to alienate the Affections of Protestants and keep em at a distance from one another. It would cover and forgive real Faults, instead of Raking into Imaginary ones. make all good Men Honor Men of worth and real Goodness, tho' of a different Persuasion from themselves, much more than the Debauchees of their own Porsuasion. A Charitable Churchman wou'd esteem a pious Presbyterian much mme than a Profligate Wretch of his own Communion, who thinks to recommend himself by Curling, Swearing, Drinking and Mobbing for the Church; and so would a Charisable Presbytenian have a real value for the Image of God in a Churchman, and despise a Prophane Presbyterian, let him profess what Zeal he pleases for Presbyte-wy to the highest Dogree. This would make Men Impansial in their Judging of Principles and Persuasions, and not load a Community with Reproaches upon the Account of the Faults of some Knayes and Fools which belong to it. In a Word, ist wou'd make us all abandon every base Party-Interest; it wou'd sure Bigotry on all sides, and keep Men from running Matters to Extremes. And as the Angels rejoyce over one sinner that repenteth, whether he hath obtain'd that Repentance by the Gospel Preach'd in a Parish Church or a Meeting House; So wou'd this Heavenly Quality of Love to God and the Souls of Men, make us all rejoyce in the real Good that is done or got by any of another l'ersuasion, and renounce and bewail the sin and folly of any of our own.

This Holy Religion which all of us profess, and which teacheth us all these Divine Lessons I have been mentioning, ought to be inviolably maintain'd, by uniting our best Interests and Endeavors against the Common Enemy. It can't be unknown to discerning Protestants, that since our Happy Reformation from Popery, Hell and Rome have been at Work, always by secret straud, and some times by open Violence, to reintroduce into these Nations the Tyrauny, Idolatry, Heresy and other abominable Superstitions of the Roman Antichrist, Gehatsor compassing their Accursed Endsthey have always employ'd their Engines of Division for destroying our Happy Civil Constitution, and embroising the State. They have endeavor'd to debauch our Morals and destroy our Liberties, that by being made Atheists, and Slaves, we may be made Papists or any thing: For he that can renounce his God and his Country, will stick at nothing; for he has nothing left him that's worth keeping.

The great hopes of that wisked Party have been still rais'd by the Expectations of a Popish Prince upon the Throne. What encourag'd the Popish Plot in King Charles 2's Reign, but the hopes of a Popish Successor? And they never hope for Success, but by blinding the Eyes of Protestants, and making 'em Tools to promote their Interest. The Noble Patriots of that Reign us'd their utmost Interest for Carrying the Bill of Exclusion; and yet Protestant Hands must throw it out to the Dishonor of Religion, and the E-staving these Nations. But Almighty God who sent us the Great King William and the late Glorious Revolution, to convince us of the Obstinacy and Folly of these who had given Occasion for it, hath blest the Crown and Kingdoms with a Train of Successive Glories; one of the greatest whereof is, a perpetual Law of Exclusion of all Popish Princes from the Throne; and our Noble Legislatuse bave settled the Succession in the Illustrious Protestant House of Hanover; in whose Interest our Religion, Her Majesty's Happy Government over us, and our Civil Liberties are deeply embark'd; and without which they can't in all human Probability, be preserved. And therefore our Common Principles as Protestants and Loyal Subjects lay us under the most solemn and Indispensable Obligations, to maintain it, and to oppose the Popish Pretender.

The' we be so unhappy, as not to agree in our Religious Sentiments about the Establish'd Terms of Church-Communion, vet this is a Noble Center of Union, for Ior us all to join in as one man in defending the Reform'd Religion, the Queen, the Hanover-Succession, and our Country, against the Pretender and his Abetators. Our greatest danger is from the Protestant Jacobites the Monsters of our Age, and those who are blindly led into their Measures. And therefore let us all unite against them, and practise the Advice given us by our late Glorious Deliverer in his last Speech to his Parliament; Let me Conjure you (says he) to Disappoint the only hopes of our Enemies by your Unanimity. I have shown and will always show, how Desirous I am to be the COMMON FATHER of all my People. Do you in like manner lay aside Parties and Divisions. Let there be no other Distinction heard of among us for the suture; but of those who are for the Protestant Religion, and the present Establishment; and of those who mean a Popish Prince, and a French Government.

It is near Forty Years since England has been struggling for a Bill of Exclusion, and it cou'd not be obtain'd until we were all ready to be devour'd by Popery and Slavery, and until our Gracious God sav'd us by a Revolution, which was next to a Miracle; and thus he taught us as Gideon taught the Men of Succoth by Briars and Thorns; may his Infinite Mercy prevent the Necessity of a second instruction of that kind. Shall we be such an Ungrateful Generation both to God and Man, as to reject our Mercy and Freedom, and prefer our old Chains to our Valuable Liberties! For God's sake, let us not follow the Wicked Example of the murmuring Israelites, who were for returning to the Egyptian Bondage. after God had delivered 'em from it, and brought them thro' the Red Sea. Can Infatuation it self do worse, than to throw up at once all the Religion we have gain'd since the Reformation, and all the Privileges we ever had since we were a People? Or, shall we be so vain and Credulous, as to believe that the Pretender, who if he comes to the Crown, must come fraughted with all the Vengeance that Enrag'd Resentments of his suppos'd father's being unjustly Dethron'd and himself injur'd can. supply, will ever protect the Religion and Liberty, which he has been taught from bis Infancy to destroy? Shall we be so Demented, as to think that the Model of a French Government, and the Doltrines of the Popish Religion will ever sute the Complection of a British Protestant? Or, can any man of sense believe, that the Ridiculous Report of the Pretender's turning Protestant has any Reality in it; our Adversaries are so sensible of the strongth of the Protestant Interest in these Nations, that they dare not attempt to obtrude the Pretender upon us, but under a Protestant mask: But the accurs'd Dissimulation of the Pope and Jesuites, and their dispensing with Oaths and all that's Sacred to serve a Turn, has made 'em too Infamous, to gain Credit to such a Forgery, as the Pretender's being Protestant.

Let any wise Man consider his Education in a Court which hath destroy'd one of the samousest Protestant Churches in the World, aim'd at the Ruin of all the rest, and who wou'd never have Maintain'd him unless they had been assur'd of his being a true Son of the Church of Rome; in which his Interest has been so great very lately, as to procure the Promotion of a French Abbat to a Cardinal's Cap. And he has never shown the least disregard to what the French Court Authoriz'd to be Publish'd as his Father's Dying Advice to him, viz. That he shou'd never change his Religion, and always look on the French King as his Father. When he attempted to invade Scotland Anno 1708. he did not so much as pretend to be a Protestant. And during the whole War, while he had any hopes of a French Pewer to force him upon us, never allow'd his Friends once to suggest his Change in Religion. But now when there seems to be no hope lest him, but by Dissembling a Change, nor no other way to blind the People and put an Argument into the Protestant Jacobites Mouth, he's, all of a sudden, given out for a Protestant. Did not his Pretended Father for some years, while Duke of York call himself aProtestant, yet no man in England doubts of his having been at that very time as much a Papist as he was in the moment of his Abdication; but he put on a Protestant Mask, to deceive the People, until he had ripen'd matters, by procuring the severe Persecution of the Protestant Dissenters, the Disgrace of all Moderate Churchmen, and the exalting of all men of Arbitrary Principles, and doing everything which the then Court gave out for an advancement of the Glory and Grandeur of the Church of England; by which they meant only a Party, rais'd to ruin their fellow-Protestants, and by that means to make way for the next Blook'y Popish Scene that was to be open'd. Let any man con pare all this with the familiar Arts and Impudent Forgeries of the Church of Rome, and try if he can reconcilehimself to the report of the Pretender's turning Protestant.

And yet this gross Artistice is pursu'd with such Impudence by some of the Jacobites, as they stop not to insimuate their hopes of bringing in their Popish Master, under the Notion of a New Convert, by the Legislature, and in form of Law: This they suggest to weaken and discourage the Friends of the Hanover-Succession. But this can't go down with any, but with those who have a mind to asperse our Noble Legislature as a Company of worthless shipest Slaves, as men abandon'd to all that's Sacred, and Dear to them and us as Men and Christians.

There is not one Member of Parliament that can sit or vote in either Honse, until he has sirst Abjut'd the Pretender and sworn to maintain, to the utmost of his Power, the Hanover-Succession. And is it possible to imagine that the Prers and Commons of Great-Britain shou'd render themselves so Infamous to the whole world, of six such an indelible stain of Prejury upon themselves to all posterity? Shall aRogue be pillory'd and Cropt for false swearing, when he aims but at the Estate and Lise

Honorable Senate in the whole World, at once perjure and destroy themselves, and ruin the Crown Subject, & Religion the Honor of both? The Legislature were it possible for 'em to arrive at that Monstrous degree of Wickedness, are too wise to do a thing which all good Protestants must look upon as a Nullity in it self, as being sounded in Perjury, and the vilest of Crimes.

They know that tho' a Jacobite's Conscience be preparing a Solution for our Oaths against the Pretender, it is not possible for all the Jesuitical Quipblers to advance any thing that's Tolerably Plausible. 'Tis true,' tis more than whisper'd, that our Oaths oblige us only to maintain the Hanover-Succession; while it continues to be settled by Act of Parliament, bus if the Legislature shou'd alter the Succession that our Oaths determine, Gare no farther Obligatory. The Weakness of this Unconscionable Divinity will appear, if we consider, that besides that God has a Right by our Oaths to our utmost Endeavours to perform the thing we have vowed to him, which Right no human Law can supersede; besides this, (Isay) the Legislature have no power to alter the Succession: not only because they have sworn and must swear before they can act any thing, that they will never alter it (having sworn to maintain it to the utmost of their Power, to which nothing can be a more direct Contradiction than the altering it) and therefore altering it being an Act of Perjury, is a Nullity in it self. And no Christian can have the face as to say, that the Perjury of one Man or of the whole Legislature can excuse the Perjury of another.

They have Abjur'd the Pretender without leaving any Room for receiving him, let his Profession of the Protestant Religion be what it will. For they have fworn to maintain, defend and support the Succession as the same stands limited &c, to the Princess Sophia and the Heirs of her Body being Protestants; and therefore let the Pretender call himself what he will, we must stand by the House of Hanover, or be Perjur'd. The Law settling the Succession in that Illustrious Family hath provided, that if anyof them shou'd turn Papist or Marry a Papist. He or She so doing shall lose their Right for ever to the Crown, and the next Protestant Heir shall succeed as if He or She were dead; from whence it is plain, that there is no Room lest for receiving Juch a Person again upon his turning Protestant, for he is looked upon as dead, and the next Heir has as sure a Title as if he were dead. Our Laws are so careful fer preventing a Popila Successor, and for Jecuring the Crown to Persons, whom the Nations may have no just Cause to suspect of Popery, that they render Papists uncapable for ever of inheriting the Crown. And when a Protestant Prince, only for his Marrying a Papist shall lose the Crown, the he ever was and continues to be a Protestant, and is yet disabled from Succeeding; and all for fear of Popery and Populi Councils shall any Protestant of Common Sense think it safe jur us to receive the Pretender, whose being a Bigoted Papili all his days, Educated in Principles Destructive profess what he will) than a Protostant who only Marries a Papist, and continues a Protestant himself; who yet stands excluded by our Laws: and secing the Abjuration-Oath was imposed for securing the Government and Nationsagainst all those Evils, tis reasonable from the Intention of the Imposers and the Nature of the thing, as well as from the express Words of it, to interpret it in the utmost Latitude possible against ever paying Allegiance to the Pretender upon any Pretence what soever.

And we sught farther to observe, that the Hanover-Succession is not a meer Act of the Legislature, but an Indissoluble Covenant: for it is one of the Articles of the Union of Great-Britain by a Positive Covenant between the two British Nations, upon which they became one: and the Parliament of Great-Britain must first have a Power to destroy themselves and the Fundamental Constitution of the Kingdom, before they have any Power to alter the Succession; which is now become a Covenant with the Dutch, who are Guarantees of the Succession: and whose Interest can never allow 'em to consent to the

From All these Reasons it is plain, the Hanover-Succession is an Unalterable Fundamental Constitution of these Kingdoms, by our Obligations to God, and the World, the Resormed Religion, the Liberties of Great-Britain and Ireland, and seven of all Europe. We have therefore one of the best of Causes to affert, the firmest human Laws that can be devised to support it. our Gracious Queen at the Head of 'em, all the Protestant Churches in the World on our side, and none but Papists, and some Distracted People who call themselves Protestants, against it; whose part no Protestant can take but at the Expence of his Conscience, Honor and Interest.

Let us then contend for it as for OUR ALL, Let us not render one another Uncapable of Defending the Common-Cause, or resisting the Common Enemy, let us not petsecute or disgrace one another, when our United strength is all little enough against the sewood rejeyce in nothing more than in widening our Breaches large renough for letting in the Pretender, to rum us all; and because, as matters are stated, the Church of England is the only Party that have Power enough to Oppress the Presbyterians, therefore the Papills and Jacobites are at work to push 'em on to Persecution, a thing so Opposite to the Nature of the Protestant Religion, and declar'd by the Church of England to be against her Constitution. And yet some Unwaty Bigots (not considering whose Cause they manage) are industrious to Mistrepresent the Presbyterians in Great-Britain and Ireland as men of Disloyal Principles and Practices, as Jacobites and Incendaries; the utmost Charity

(X)

24 rate of 1 to 10 1 1 1 1 122 43 Charity that is due to these who are guilty of reproaching them; is, that chie proceeds from a blind Zeal against 'em, which makes 'em take every thing upon Trust, that is said against a Presbyterian. But I must observe, that a Man can't do more Effectual Service to the Pretender, than to create a Jealenfy besween the Church of Zogland and Presbyterians, and tomake the World believe the Latter to be Jacobites. For, if the Church of England believe the Presbyterious to be Jacobites, pray what heart will the bonest Hanoverian Church-mon have. when they conclude that all the Papists; the Presbyterians, and a part of the Episcopal Church (which every body owns) ure for the Pretender? Won't this exceedingly discourage Hanover and his Friendst and indeed, were it true, it were to be fear'd the Pretender would not long delay paying us a vufit. And the Design I had in Composing the following Book, is to show the Ridiculousness and Madness of those who serve the Interest of the Pretender by Aspersing the Presbyterians with Disloyalty. Their Keenest Adversaries can't find an handle to go upon, but by repreaching them in the first place for, if they be supposed to be Loyal Subjects, all Protestants wou'd call it Persecution to molest them; and therefore seeing they can't perfecute 'em wishout pretending 'em guilty of Disloyaky, every one must see, that repreaching 'em is a step towards their Persecution. And seging there is not any Party of Protestants within Her Majesty's Dominious that are more united in their Zeal-against the Pretender and for the Hanover-Succession there they, and that all Men must own 'em to be a very Considerable Body, it's humbly Inbmitted to all Protestants, whether the persecuting, disabling and disheartning of 'such a Loyal People be not one of the most Essectual ways to ruin the Protostant Religion and Succession. I beg the Reader may seriously consider what I have offered upon the Methods and Severities of K. Charles 2d's Reign against the Protestant Dissenters, where I have prov difrom the Votes and Addresses of Parliaments, the Speeches and Authority of the Greatest Patriots in England, and of the Communion of the Church too, that all these Severities were contrived and executed either by Profest Papilto or their Protestant Tools, to serve the ' Popish interest, advance the Popish plot, and bring a Papist ta the Crown. And therefore I beg, that when the Protestant Jacobise would just play the same Game over again, and by the same Means, that we may grow wife from Experience, and show that the Priends of the Queen and Hanover Family shall "ALL STICK TOGETHER.

And for the Encouragement of all honoff entlemen of the Charches of England and Ireland, to join hands with the Presbyterians, and to confide in 'em, I have in the following Book shown the Loyalty both of their Principles and Practices; wherein I have not propos'd to my self-to serve any Party-Interest, but to prevene and remove the Jealousies, which is entertained, may be Fatal to all true Protestants, and hinder them from uniting against the Common Enemy. I have successed designed to promote her Majesty's Interest, and the Preservation of the Protestant-Succession in the illustrious House of Hanover, by showing that the Prasa byterians may be depended upon as Cordial Friends to both. And I am Cantident all honest Men of the Churches of England and Ireland will rejoyee in its, and therefore I persuade my self that no wellassed Protestant of any Persuasian, will be offended at my undertaking to prove that our Common-Interest back more friends to stand by it, than some People wou'd allow off.

(xi)

And I thought this Design condinot be so well obtained unless I should look back into the Behaviour of Presbyterians in former Reigns, and compare the whole with the Loyalty of their Principles, and ANSWER the most Considerable Culumnias that have been raised against 'em: And this bath obliged no to Intermix with that have been raised against 'em: And this bath obliged no to Intermix with this Historical Essay several very Material Points of the Civil History of these this Historical Essay several very Material Points of the Civil History of these Kingdoms, which were necessary sor setting my Subject in a clear Light.

And I have been so far from Partiality in my inquiries, that the most Considerable Defences I have made for the Loyalty of Presbyterians are grounded upon Such Vouchers as were Profest Members of the Church of England, and who were Zealous Patrons both of her Government and Worship, as the Reader will find, when he comes to peruse the Book it self. And where I have adduced any of thier -own Manuscripts, or built upon their own Authority, I have demonstrated the Credit of my Voncbers by such Arguments as are sufficient to induce the belief of all Unbials'd Judges. Where I set sorth and explain their Principles, 'twas absolutely necessary to have Recourse to their Confessions of Faith, the public. Declarations and Actings of their Ministers and Elders, consider'd as a Society and Body, Eling in Name of the phole. For every Party must be allow'd to know their own Principles Dest, and no Principle ought to be father'd upon them, but what they have own'd and esponsed by some thing shat may be justly called the act and Deed of the whole Body. And therefore from'd the Reader find any Mistakes in what I have afferted of them in this Book, thefe ought met to be impused to the whole, but to my sels ; who the I write in their Defence, yet write not in their Name except in these Passages which we quoted from their public Confessions, Addresses, Apologies, and such like Authentic instruments declaring their Common Sentiments, whereof Pane only the Transcriber and not the Author.

While I was tajing the Scheme of myanswer to the Calumnies of their Adversaries, having perused several of the Uncharitable Libels published both in sermer Reigns, and

Fii: •

and since the late Happy Revolution 1688. I met with two Pamphlets that furnished me with a Collection and an abridgment of the most material of them all, withad ditional Asculations to anything that, had formerly appeared in print against them; and therefore I have refuted these two Pamphlets in particular, as they came to be consider'd in the Method of my History; The first of them is Entitul'd a Sample of True Blew Presbyterian Loyalty in all Charges and Turns of Government, and was published Anno 1709. The second is Entituled, The Conduct of the Dissenters of beland with respect both to Church and States, and was publish'd, Appro 1712. They are both done by one Author; in both of 'em the Author does either, wretchedly misrepresent the Principles and Practices of Presbyterians, or draw false Consequences from them; and the Genius of both his papers (which are contain'd in two Letters to his Friend) breaths of either the One or 'tother of these Etrors ; of which they are so entirely made up, that he has scarce a Paragraph that's free of them, or that he does not improve by the Asfiftance of some of them, as an handle of Calumny ogainst an harmless, Loyal: and Peaceable Body of her Majesty's good Protest ant Subjects. His stile is bitter and Virulent, raised by the Warmth of I magination, and stuffed with Multitudes of Uncharitable, Satyrical, and Groundless Insinuations. I have endeavor'd! to consider calmly and Patiently what he hath advanced in heat and haste.

My Design obliging me to take a much larger Compass, than a bare answer to his Papers, I have mix'd my answer to him with the Body of this Historical-Essay, and contxiv'd the whole so as to enlighten the main Subject I had in view; and tho' I shou'd think it a Peculiar Advantage to my Book, that my Reader wou'd be at the Pains of Comparing both his and mine together, yet I have made my Answer so clear, as my Readers that can't easily get his Papers into their hands will find the whole Subject laid before 'em; and his Objections farther Illustrated and more fully urg'd in divers places, than what he has done himself; for my design in meddling with his Papers being (as I observ'd before) to consider 'em as an Abridgment of the most material Calumnics that had been publish'd against Presbyterians, I have not only sairly repeated'em, but supply'd out of other Authors what seem'd to be wanting in him, and obviated what Cavils be may be suppos'd to make against my Reply.

After I had prepar'd my Book for the Profs, I met with an Answer to the first of his Pumphlets, viza A Sample of True Blew Presbyterian Loyalty, printed this Year at Glasgow, wherein there are many Valuable Memoirs, well-improved, which are more than an answer to that Pamphlet, and yet the nature of my subject made it necessary to answer both his Pamphlets notweeks funding. For his second Letter refers in many Particulars to his first, and is built upon the mistakes contain'd in its and therefore my answer to the second had been incomplete and not intelligible, unless I had answer'd the first too; and tho' the first has been more than answer'd by another hand, yet that Answer, and this Book may not happen to get into the same hands; and if they shou'd, there is such a variety of matter in 'em, as neither of 'em makes the other useless and Needless.

The Second and Third Part of the Conduct of Dissenters consists of particular pretended Facts, which the Author does not reduce to any one Period or Reign: and therefore I have been oblig'd to consider them distinctly, in the third part of this Book. And the Reader will perhaps censure me for taking any notice of such of these pretended Facts, as he will be fully satisfy'd upon Perusal of this Book, to be bat Trivial. But the reason why I did it, was, to show the strain that the Accusers of the Loyalty of Presbyterians go upon: they muster up every little sto-Ty they can catch at, and pick-pall the private Chat they can find over a Bottle of Wine, or at a Tea-Table, and run straight to the Press with it; where they represent it in wrong Colours: And there can't be a stronger Argument of the Leyalty of Presbyterians, than the Weakness of these trifling Objections, which are made against it. For bad their Adversaries any thirg that's material to offer, they wou'd not insift on these little things, which being the Tattle of talebearers, are but very indifferent Vouchers for an Historian; the good enough to fill up a Libel, or garnish a Satyr. And where I met with em in his Letters, I have endeavor'd to refute 'em both mortly and sufficiently, and then to proceed to some Material Piece of History, that may be more entertaining to my Reader.

I find different Gopies of the Condict of the Dissenters fag'd in a different manner, some of 'em beginning at page 35. (as I suppose, because his fit st Pamph-let ended there) others beginning at page 1. I have salumed the latter in my Quotations; of which it was necessary to give the Reader this Advertisement, lest he stou'd fall upon one of the Copies that is otherwise pag'd.

I shan't detain the Reader with any farther recount of the Method of this Book, of which the Contents will give him to view at once. And the Alphabetical Table at the Close will direct him to the Principal Points in this Ireatile. All I shall add is, that I earnestly desire the Reader may peruse in carefully with the same regard to Truth and Charity that I had in composing it, and with that Glorious End of Uniting all Protestants in Zeal for the Reterm'd Religion, Loyalty to our mest Gracious Sovereign the Queen, and hearty Concern for the Succession in the Illustrious House of Hanover, and sor extinguishing and utterly defeating the hopes of the Pretender and all his Abertois.

The

The CONTENTS.

The Loyalty of Presbyterian Principles in all Reigns stated and Argu'd: and the Loyalty of Presbyterian Prastices in the Reigns of Queen EUZABETH and King JAMES I. Vindicated.

CHAP. I.

The Loyalty of Presbyterian Principles. From pige 1. to p. 69. CHAP. II.

The Loyalty of Presbyterians during the Reign of Queen ELIZABETH. from p. 69. to p. 145. CHAP. III.

The Loyalty of Presbyterians during the Reign of King JAMES the Er & of England, and fixth of Scotland. from p. 145. to p. 168.

PART II.

The Loyalty of Presbyterians from the beginning of the Reign of King CHARLES I. to this present Year 1713.

The Loyalty of Presbyterian's during the Reign of King CHARLES I. from pa 168. to p. 250.

CHAP. II. The Loyalty of Presbyterians during the Reign of King CHARLES II. from p.

An APPENDIX to the Preceding Chapter concerning the Reign of King 250. to p. 385: JAMES II. from P. 385. to P. 393. C H A P. III.

The Loyalty of Presbyterians during the reign of King WILLIAM III, of GLO-RIOUS MEMORY, from p. 393. to p. 453.

I The Loyalty of Presbyterians, from Her Present Majesty's Hayay Accesson to the Throne, to this present Year 1713. from p. 453. to p. 488.

PART III.

Wherein the second and third Parts of the Pamphlet Entitled, The Conduct of the Dissenters of Ireland with respect both to Church and State, are Ex-

Wherein the first four Facts Charg'd upon Presbyterians in the second Part of the Conduct of the Dissenters & viz, 1. Their Synods and Assemblies. 2. Their Runny Elders: 3. The Private Philosophy School of Killiengh. and 4. Their Writing and Preaching against the Establish'd Form of Marriage; are set in a true light, and a Modest Apology offer'd for them from p. 488, to p. 510.

CHAP. II.

Wherein the last four Facts charg'd upon Presbyterians in the second Part of the Conduct of the Dissenters, &c. viz. 1. Their Erecting New Congregations, and particularly one in Drogheda. 2. Their disturbing the Establish'd Clergy in the Burial of the Dead. 3. Their Printing Books of bad Principles, against the Government, and, 4, Their Entermining of some Ministers amongst them who have not taken the Abjuration-oath; are examined and answered from p. 510. to p. 540.

Wherein the four Presumptive Facts Charged upon Presbyterians in the third Part of the Conduct of Dissenters &c. viz 1. Their taking the Solemn League &c. 2. Their Common Funds against the Church. 3. Their Ensaving People by their Certificates; and 4. The many Dreadful things, prevented by the Test-Clause, are examin'd from p. 540, to the end.

The state of the s

ERRATA.

Which the Reader is earnestly desired so correct wish his pen, before he peruse the Book.

D'Age 4. line 1e. read Al. l. 15. 5. contrary. l. 12. 5. bis. p.6. l. 19. 5. Perusal. p. 8. l. ponult. adde but. p. 20. l. 17. r. their. p. 24. l.: 15. r. prevented. p. 27. 1.15. r. same. p. 28, 1. 5. 5. self. p. 33. l. 32. r. Words. l. 36.r. Strom. p. 35. l. 74. r. Aquum. p. 36.l. 5. r. intra.p. 42. 1. 19. r. defined. p. 49. l. 5. r. Ecclesisstical, .p. 49. l. 21. r. necessary. p. 52. l. 8. r. Apostolieal. 1. penult r. Churches. p. 56. 1. 29. r. strilly. p. 57. 1. 6. r. samiliar. p. 57. 1. 22. r. one. p. 60. 1. 10. r. I bave. p. 65. 1. 25. r. wiebout. p. 63.1. ult. for 4thr. 14th. p. 70. 1, 22. r. points. p. 72. l. penult. r. Wickliffe. p. 76. l. 15. r. presents.p. 77. l. 18. for ut r. between. ibid.dele between 1. 20. r. at Avignon. p. 92. l. 33. r. illius 1. 35. r. Denies. p. 94. 1.5. r. word. p. 98. 1. 16. r. Reformers. 1. ult. r. Preposses d. p. 102. 1. 16. r. urg'd. p. 103. l. 15. r. publick. p. 111, l. 19. r. Burleigh. p. 116. l. 22. r. Rhemists. p. 138. l. 11. r. bastardly. p. 142. l. 31. r. forty. p. 146. for id. ibid. r. Cald. Hist. p. 167. l. 6. r. undenyable, p. 180. l. 20. r. Animating. p. 186. 1. 15. dele not. p. 189. 1. 4. after further. adde to.p. 191. 1, 2. r. Arbitrary. p. 193.1. 29. r. 1640. p. 200. l. 2. for against. r. upen. p. 213. r. enrelments. p. 218. L. penult. r. Oppressive. p. 219. l. 25. r. vacating. p. 223. l. 26. r. for. p. 239. l. 9. r. Miseries. p. 268. l. 5. r. Indiffments. p. 270. at the bottom r. Cex's. p. 280. l. 4. r. bis. p. 289. l. 14. r. fer. p. 308. l. 8. r. understanding. p. 326. h. ult. r. b. ve. p. 339. 1. 28. r. understand. p. 343. l. 33. r. Oltober. p. 348. l. v. r. Jeverely. p. 351. l. 27. r. Subornation. p. 371. l. 24. r. statute, p. 375. l. 15. r. absurd. L. 384. 1.34 r. consider. p. 385. l. 21, r. from. p. 395. l. 9. r. made. p. 398. l. 24. r. were. p.407.1.29. r. sbere p. 411.1.25. r. Tropbies. p. 415. l. 1. r. Distinction. p. 416. l. 7. r. where p. 417. l. 2. r. their Imerest. p. 419. l. 21. r. be. p. 430. l. 22. r. Distranchis'd. p. 443. l. 11. r. 1713. p. 447. l. 25. r. /abscrib'd. p. 450. l. 1. dele of whom l. 21. r. it . p. 456. l. 32. r. several. p. 467. l. 32. after so. r. far. p. 473. l: ult. r. Succession. p. 476. l. 35. r. Priestly. p. 477. 1. 7. T. Cressing. 1. 20. T. absolutely. 1. penult. T. Censure, p. 483. 1. 8. T. afternoon. 1. 25. for no. T. nos. p. 485. l. 32. after concerned. adde in. p. 500. l. 18. r. auxiliaries. p. 503. l. 6. I. perverters. p. 516. l. 1. r. sbat. p. 535. l. 15. r. animadversing. p. 548. l. 10. r. Disloyalty.

PART FIRST.

The Loyalty of Presbyterian Principles in all Reigns Stated and Argu'd: and the Loyalty of Presbyterian Practices in the Reigns of Queen Elizabeth and King James 1. Vindicated.

CHAP. I.

The Loyalty of Presbyterian Principles

brand the best of people and their most laudable Designs with the odious Characters of Disloyaley, Rebellion, and Pastion; that they might run 'em down at once with the blows of Civil Authority, and draw upon 'em the Vengeance of Secular powers. With this mighty Engine did those go to work, who wrote to Artaxerxes against building of the House of God, & the City of Jerusalem. They recommend him to the Records of his Fathers as their Authentic Vouchers: so shall thou find (say they Ezra 4.15.) in the book Part. I. book of the Records, and know that this City is a rebellious City, & hurtful unto Kings and Provinces, and that they have mov'd Seditions within the same of old time, for which Cause was this City destroy'd.

Our blessed Saviour was traduc'd and persecuted as an Enemy to Casar. And his holy Apostles as turning the World upside down, And doing contrary to the Decrees of Casar, Acts 17.6, 7. Our Glorious Reformers, who (under God) rescu'd Religion from Idolatry, Tiranny and the other Corruptions of the Church of Rome, mett with the same Fate. From all which 'tis easy to determine whether those men be true friends to Magistracy who by their bold and scandalous Libels do promote Jealousies and missinder-standings between the Magistrate and Subject, and thereby endeavour to subvert the very sundamentals of lawful Authority, while they try to bend the Straight Scepter of Government into a crooked Rod of Tyranny and Oppression.

They degrade the Higher Powers from their Throne of Impartial Justice; and wou'd paum upon 'em the little Sneaking of fice of revenging their private quarrels, to the ruine of the public.

Whether the Author of the Pamphlets I am now answering, deferves any part of the above Censure, I leave to all impartial:

men to Judge.

Each of his Performances is one continued bitter Invedive a-gainst Presbyterians, as Disloyal, Rebellious, Seditious, &c. And what he advanceth to support these Scurrilous Resections is either salfe in it self, or altogether inconsequential and Sophistical.

And therefore no body can blame these he so fally accuseth, if they express a Just Resentment of these intolerable abuses put upon 'em by this Author; especially, seeing the Consequences of those things concern no less than their Lives, Fortunes and Reputations, beside the many Evil consequences to the Public.

The Author's profess design in his first Letter is to resute the prevailing Opinion he mentions p. 3. viz. That the Presbyterian Dissenters of Ireland have ever been, in all Revolutions, most Loyal Subjects to the Crown: The Presbyterian Ministers in the North of Ireland do assert it (as he observes) in their Address to the Queen Feb: 1708; The Author of the Parallel do's likewise maintain it, but is far from giving up the point Entirely in Relation to the Presbyterians of England and Scotland, as our Author alledgeth.

I can't find the least Infinuation to that Purpose in all that Pamph- Part. I: let,& therefore I cou'd wish the Author had been pleased to have pointed to some of his Expressions, as the foundation of his Remark; And Especially seeing he founds a considerable part of his Reasonings upon that single point, supposing it all along as a matter not deny'd, That the Presbyterians in England and Scotland rebell'd against the Queen's Royal Ancestors.

Seeing he endeavours to prove his Charge against the Presbyterians of Ireland chiefly from their Agreement with those of Great-Britain and thence concludes all equally Guilty, I must needs fay, he founds his Argument (to use his own Phrase in another case) upon what is a strong averment, of his own: It passeth with him as notoriously true beyond all Contradiction, And the Author of the Parallel hath granted it; that's proof enough with him; tho' both these Premisses are notorious mistakes.

Seing Loyalty is the subject of this debate, we must first of all fix the true notion of it, before we enter upon the detail of this Controverly.

And here I desire one point may be granted me viz. the Effential and Fundamental Principles whereupon the late happy Revolution Anno 1688 was effected, and the great Blessings sequential upon it farther settled and Establish'd, are Just, and honest, and consequently consistent with Religion and Loyalty. Methinks, he that denys this seems to have borrow'd his notions of Loyalty from St. Germains, and therefore can't be allow'd to be a very proper Judge of untainted Loyalty to the Queen.

These High-flown Notions of Loyalty, which sacrific'd all that's dear to us as men and Christians to the Arbitrary will of Princes, are effectually destroy'd by the late Happy Revolution, which was built upon the Ruins of that slavish Doctrine of Non-Resistance &

Paffive Obedience.

If any call for proof of this Assertion, they may have it from the most noted Divines of the Church of England, among whom let the Reve. Mr. Hoadly be first heard, because his Testimony has the honour to be confirm'd by the Commons of Great-Britain in Parliament assembled, whose vote is in these words.

Mercurii 14 die Decembris 1709.

Resolv'd, That the Revd. Mr. Benjamin Hoadly, Rector of St. Peter's

Part. I." Peter's Poor London, for having often strenuously Justify'd the "Principles on which her Majestyand the Nations proceeded in ' the late happy Revolution, hath Justly merited the favour and * Recommendation of this House.

The whole frain of Mr. Headly's Writings, to which the above vote refers, is Levell'd against Non-Resistance and Passive-Obedience as inconsistent with the Revolution-Principles, of which take the following Passages.

If (a) therefore they (i.e. Magistrates) use their power act "to the hurt and Prejudice of humane Society,——they " not in any such Instances by Authority from God, but contra "to his Will: Nor can they, in such Instances, be called this Vice-gerents, without the highest Profaneness: And therefore to oppose them in such Cases, cannot be to oppose the Autho-" rity of God; nay, a Passive Non-Resistance wou'd appear, upon. " Examination, to be a much greater opposition to the Will of God "than the contrary. For tho' He himself——appointed this " Person to govern; yet his chief design in this being the good, " and happiness of Society; tamely to sit still, and see that entirely " win'd and Sacrific'd to the Irregular Will of one man, seems a " greater Contradiction to the Will and Design of God than any. "Opposition can be: For it is a tacit Consent to the Ruin and Mi-" sery of Mankind, whose public Peace and Happiness is the sole end " of Government.

For (b) tho? his (i. e. the Magistrate's) Authority in carrying. " forward the end of his Power cannot be resisted without the high-" est Guilt; yet his Power in acting contrary to that end may be opposed without the shadow of a Crime, nay with honour and " Glory.

He excellently qualifieth this Doctrine (c) when he says " it " is the Indispensable Duty of Subjects to submit themselves to such "Governors as answer the good end of their Institution, to such "Rulers as he (i. e. St. Paul) here describes; such as are not a ter-11 ror to good Works, but to the Evil, such as promote the public good and are continually attending upon this very thing. To these "the profoundest Reverence, and lowest Submission is due, as to the

(a) Serm: besore Lord Mayr. of London Sep" 29. 1705. Rome. 13 p: 8. (b) p. 9. 10. (c) p. 7. ibid.

the greatest Blessings a Society can enjoy; and resistance to these Part. I:

There (d) have been many Divines of the first Rank in these 14 latter Ages, who have publickly espous'd the Doctrine I have taught; or laid down such Principles as inevitably tend to it, the great and Judicious Mr. Hooker, Bishop Bisson, and others might be nam'd. But what is of most moment, the whole Convocation, the Church of England Representative, in Queen Elizabeth's Reign, publickly acknowledged it Glorious to assist Subjests in their resistance to their Sovereigns, and their Endeavours to rid themselves of their Tyranny and Oppressions, It is now generally acknowledg'd that the Doctrine of Non-Resistance was carry'd too high in some late Reigns &c. We (e) have been effectually saved from Imminent Ruin by the Practice of that Doctrine, which I have taught: And therefore methicks, there is the little reason to think it an unseasonable attempt, to Justifie that Resistance, without which we had not now been in the good Estate in which we find our selves. For I must observe, that it is not to the present Establishment, that we originally and chiesty owe our happiness, but to that Resistance, without which the prese sent Establishment cou'd not have been made. Is it therefore seast sonable to endeavour to render people perfectly satisfy'd and easy under the Reign of her Excellent Majesty? If it be, how care it be prov'd unseasonable to endeavour to satisfie the minds of men about the lawfulness of Resistance, without which she cov'd not in all human appearance, have been seated on this Throne? "Is it seasonable to endeavour to make men satisfy'd and easy in the prospect of the Protestant Succession? Why then must it be thought unseasonable to endeavour to persuade the Consciences of es men, that the foundation of this Establishment and that Resistance without which it cou'd not have been, are lawful and honoura-" ble ?

Dr. Burnet present Bishop of Sarum in his Enquiry into the Meatures of Submission to the Supreme Magistrate Justifies Resistance, and among

(d) The measures of Submission to the Civil Magistrate, p. 149:

Part. I: "among many other reasons gives this for one there (f) is nothing more evident, than that England is a free Nation, that has its Liberties and Properties reserved to it, by many positive and express Laws: if then we have a Right to our property, we must likewise be supposed to have a Right to preserve it: for those Rights are by the Law secured against the Invasions of the Prerogative, and by consequence we must have a right to preserve them against these Invasions. It is also evidently declared by our Law that all Orders and Warrants, that are issued out in Opposition to them are null of themselves; and by consequence any that pretend to have Commission from the King for those ends, are to be consider'd as if they had none at all.

The same Reverend and Learn'd Prelate in his Speech in the House of Lords in Great-Britain upon the first Article of the Impeachment of Dr. Sacheverel, proves that the Doctrine of Non-Resistance and Passive Obedience was rejected by the most Celebrated English Reformers, by Queen Elizabeth and the whole Clergy of England, of which the following Passages are recommended to the Readers serious perusual: " Since it is grown to be a vulgar Opinion, that by the Doctrine of the Church of England, all Resistance in any case whatsoever, without Exception, is condemn'd; I think it is in-46 cumbent on me, who have examin'd this matter long and carefully to give you such a clear account of this Point, as may as fully satisfy you as it did my self.——When the Articles of Religion were " settled, the Books of the Apocrypha were indeed declar'd not to " be a part of the Canon of Scripture, but yet to be useful for " the Example of Life, and the Instruction of manners. And a great 4 part of these are the Books of the Maccabees, which contain the Histo-" ry of the Jews shaking off the Yoke of the Kings of Syria, when they "were broke in upon by a total overthrow of their whole Law, and an " unrelenting Persecution. Matthias a private Priest began the Resist-" ance, which was carried on by his Children, till they shook off "the Syrian Yoke, and form'd themselves into a free Government, under the Family of the Maccabees. It were easy to shew that the Jews had been for above 400 Years subject first to the Babylonian, then to the Persian, and at last to the Grecian Empire: so that by a long Prescription they were subjects to the Kings of Syria. It were easy also to shew that this Resistance was foretold by Daniel, in Terms of high Commendation, and is also mention'd in (t) p. 4.

" in the Epistle to the Hebrews, as the Work and effect of their Part. I. "Faith. If then all Resistance to Illegal and Barbarous Persecution is unlawful, these Books contain nothing but a History of a Rebelliion, and all the Devotion that runs thro' them is but a Cant, and instead of reading them as Examples of Life, and Instruction of man-t mers, we ought to tear them out of our Bibles with Detestation

Ishall afterwards shew what use was made of these Books; no only by private Writers of our Church, but by what the whole Body in Convocation was about to determine.

The next step to be made, is to consider the Homilies: The second Book of Homilies, which has the Homilies in it against wilful Rebellion, is generally believed to have been composed by Bi-" shop Jewell, who was by much the best writer in that time. It is certain, he understood the meaning of them Well: Now I will " read you two Passages out of his Desence of his apology for the "Church of England; from whence we may clearly gather what his Notion of Rebellion was, and that he thought a defence against.

unjust and Illegal Violence was not Rehellion. In one place he " has these words;

The Nobles of Scotland neither drew the sword, nor attempted, War against the Prince: They sought only the Continuance of God'ss undoubted Truths, and the Defence of their own Lives against your Barbarous and cruel Invasions: They remembred, besides all other Warnings, your late dealings at Vassay, where great numbers of their Brethren were murder'd, being together at their Prayers in the Church, bolding up their Innocent hands to Heaven, and calling upon God. In another place he writes, Neither do any of all these (Luther, Melanchthon) teach the people to rebel against their Prince: But only to defend themselves by all lawful means against Oppressions, as did David against Saul, so do the Noblesin France at this Day, they seek not to kill, but to save their own Lives.

"These Passages shew that he looked on Rebellion to be a violent ec rising against a Prince executing the Laws, which was the Case of the three Rebellions in England that they had in View: that in K. Henry the 8th's, in K. Edwards, and in Q. Elizabeth's Time, where the Papists took Arms against their prince, who was: exe-"cuting Lawsmade in matters of Religion, and that with a great

"Gentleneß.— Let us next look thro' Q. Elizabeth's long and Glorious Relgn, Part. I," and see what was the Constant Maxim of that time."
The Year after the Queen came to the Crown, the war in Scot" land broke out between the Queen Regent that Governed by " Commission from her daughter then Queen of France and the Lords in Scotland. She to obtain the Marrimonial Crown to be " sent to Francis the 2d. gave assurances for the Exercise of the " Reformed Religion; but that point being gain'd, the broke " all her Promises, and resolv'd to force them to return to the 4 Exercise of the Popish Religion, Upon Which the Lords of Scot-4 land form'd themselves into a Body, and were call'd the Lords of the Congregation. Forces were sent from France to assist the " Queen Regent; upon that Q, Elizabeth enter'd into an agreement with the Scotish Lords, and sent an Army to their Assistance. which continu'd in Scotland till all Matters were settled by the " Pacification of Leith; And in a Manifesto, that I have in my 46 hands, set forth 25 years after that, I find her restecting upon that "Interpolition in the Affairs of that Nation with great Satisse faction.

"The year after this War was ended, upon Francis the 2d's. Death Charles 9th, who was a child, succeeded in France, Edicts were granted in favour of the Protestants, These were soon after broken by the Triumvirate, and upon that follow'd a series ofwar often pacified, but alway breaking out again, by reason of the 46 Violence and Cruelty of the Government. All these Wars, till 46 Henry the 4th. Was settled on the Throne, were in a Course of 28 years that which some wou'd call Rebellion, being carry'd on against two succeeding Kings. Yet the Queen was in all that time still assisting 'em with men and money.

In the Year 1568, the Provinces in the Netherlands, threw off the Spanish Yoke; that was become intolerably severe and "cruel. The Queen for some Years assisted them more covertly, but when the Prince of Orange was kill'd, and they were in danger to be over-run, the took them more openly into her Protection; and by the Manifesto which I have in my hands, she 46 publish'd the Grounds upon which she proceeded. She laid down " this for a Foundation that there had been an Ancient League not only between the Crown of England and the Princes of the Neiberlands, between the Subjects of both Countries under their seals interchangeably, for all Friendly Offices: If this was a good reason for the Queen's giving aid to the Oppress'd Peo-Part. 1. the People of England had been illegally and cruelly oppress'd, it furnish'd the Princes of those Provinces with as good a reason for affifting them. In this assistance given the States, the Queen e persisted till the end of her Reign; nor was this only done by the Court, but both Parliament and Convocations granted her · several aids to maintain these Wars: And in the Preambles of ' those Subsidy Acts, The Queen's Proceedings in those Particulars were highly approv'd and magnify'd. Bilson Bishop of Winchester, and several other Writers in that time, Justify'd what she did; and not one that I ever heard of censur'd or condemn'd it. Upon King James's coming to the Crown, the first great Nee gotiation was for a Peace between Spain and the United Provine ces; which lasted several Years. The States insisted on a Prelie minary, that they shou'd be acknowledg'd free, Sovereign and Independent States; the Spaniards wou'd not yield to this, nor e wou'd the States recede from it. Same here in England began to fay, they were Form'd in Rebellion, and ought not to carry their Pretentions too far: Upon that King James suffer'd a Convocation to meet; and a Book of Canons, with relation to the Su-• preme Authority, was prepar'd; in which the Authority of the Prince, even when he becomes a Tyrant, is carry'd very far; · yet the Case of the Maccabees is Stated; and it was determin'd, that when a new Government, tho' begun in a Revolt, is come to a thorow Settlement it may be own'd as lawful. But I saw much clearer into the matter by an Original Letter of King James, which a worthy Gentleman sent me. I knew his hand well, the Letter is in Print; but I will read some particulars of it. It is directed to Dr. Abbot, afterwards Archbishop 6 of Canterbury. It begun with Censuring some Positions concerning a King in Possession, the same with our modern Term of a King de fasto: He goes on in these Words, My reason of calling you together was to give your Judgments how far aChristian & aProtestant King may concur to assist his Neighbours to shake off their Obedience to their own Sovereign upon the account of Oppression, Tyranny or what else you like to name it. In the late Queen's time this Kingdom was very free in affifting the Hollanders both with Arms and Advice; and none of.

9

liament, were not chance words that fell carelessy from him, A King leaves to be a King, and degenerates into a Tyrant, as soon as he leaves off to Governby Law: In which the King's Conscience may speak to him, as the poor woman to Philip of Macedon, Either govern by Law, or cease to be a King.

'There is another eminent Instance towards the end of that Reign that shows what the sense of our best Divines was in this Matter; When the Archbishop of York's son and Mr. Wadsworth had chang'd their Religion in Spain, Wadsworth writ over a bold Defence of that; and among other things, Charg'd. the Reformation with Rebellion. This was answer'd by one of the best Books of that time, writ by Dr. Bedell, dedicated to the Prince of Wales, who afterwards promoted him to a Bishoprick. His words on this Head are full: I will read some of them. Do you think Subjects are bound to give their Throats to. to be cut by their sellow-Subjects, or to their Prince, at their meer " Wills, against their own Laws and Edicts? You wou'd know quo jure the! Proiestants Wars in France and Holland, are Justissed. First, The Law of Nature which not only alloweth, but inclineth and inforceth every living thing to defend it self From Violence. Secondly, That of Nations, which permitteth those who are in the Protection of others, to tohom they owe no more than an honourable Acknowledgment, in case. they go about to make themselves absolute Sovereigns, and to usurptheir liberty, to Resist and stand for the same. And if a lawful.
Prince, who is not yet Lord of his Subjects Lives and Goods, shall attempt to despoil them of the same, under colour of reducing them to his own Religion, after all humble Remonstrances, they may stand upon their own Guard; and being affailed, resist Force with Force

Presbyterian Principles.

Chap: 1.

as did the Maccabees under Antiochus: In which case notwith Part. I. standing, the Person of the Prince himself ought always to be Sacred, Part. I. "and Inviolable, as was Saul to David; No Commentary is wanted here. U 'My Lords, You see how this Matter stood during King "James's Reign. In the first year of King Charles's Reign, Grotius's Book de Jure Belli & Pacis, was publish'd at Paris, dedicated to the King of France, while France was under the Administration of the wisest and most jealous Minister of the late Age <sup>6</sup> Cardinal Richelieu. In that Book, in which he asserts the Rights of Princes with great zeal yet he enumerates many cases in which it is lawful to resist: particularly that of a total Subversion, And that Book is now all Europe over in the highest Reputation of any Book that the Modern Ages have produc'd. In the beginning of King Charles's Reign, a War broke out in France, against the Protestants; upon which he sent over Ambassadors, by whose Mediation a Peace was concluded; but that being ill kept, the War broke out again; and the King thought himfelf Bound by his Mediation to protect the Protestants. So in the Second Session of the Parliament 1628. in the Demand of a <sup>6</sup> Supply that the Lord Keeper Covenery made in the King's Name these words are to be found, France is sway'd by the Popish Faction, and tho' by bis Majesty's Mediation, there were articles of Agreee ment between that King and his Subjects, that Treaty hath been broke and those of the Reform'd Religion will be ruin'd without prefent belp. Upon this the Commons petition'd the King for a Fast, and desir'd the Concurrence of the Lords who join'd with them in it. The King Granted it: and an Office was Composed fuitable to the Occasion; in which among other Devotions, the 4 Nation was directed to pray for all those; who bere or elsewhere were fighting God's Battels and Defending his Alears. Thus the whole Body of the Legislature did concur for a Fast for that, which if this Doctrine is true, was no better than Rebellion; and yet the whole Nation, Clergy and Laity were required to pray for Success in it.

The same point is clear'd by the Learned Bishop of Oxford in his Speech upon the same Article, from whence I shall quote the sollowing Passages; If in a Legal Monarchy, where such Laws have been enacted by Common Consent of Prince and People, as are to be the measures of his Government as well as of their Obesience

C<sub>2</sub>

that,

Part. I that limit his Power as well as secure their Rights and Properties, the Prince shall change this Form of Government; into an Absolute Tyranny, set aside those Laws, and set up an Arbitrary Will in the room of them: When the Case is plain, and when all Applications and Attempts of other kinds prove unsuccessful; if then the Nobles and Commons join together in defence of their Ancient Constitution, Government and Laws, I cannot call them Rebels. Allow me, my Lords, to lay before you a few things in mainte.

nance of what I have Advanc'd. And,

'I. I would humbly offer fome Effects, which I allow do not di'rectly prove what I have said to be true, but they do prove it to 'have been the Opinion of our Princes, Parliament, Clergy and 'People in the Reigns of those three great Princes, Q. Elizabeth,
'K. James, and King Charles I: I mean the Assistance which these 'Princes gave to the Subjects of other Countries that were resisting
'their Respective Princes; and to enable them to do so, they had
'Subsidies given them in Parliament and Convocation---- and there 'were Prayers Compos'd and us'd for the Success of their 'Arms.

Surely, my Lords, if those Princes, Parliaments, Chergy and A People had been of Opinion, that the Resistance of Subjects 2gainst their Princes, was in no Case lawful, but always Damanable Rebellion; they wou'd never by aiding and assisting such "Rebels have involv'd themselves in the Guilt, and expos'd themfelves to the Dangerous Consequences of such a Sin. I mention onot the particular Stories, because they are better known to your Lordships than to me, and because I doubt not but in the Course of this Debate, some Lord or other will give a large account of them; but I cannot forbear observing one thing relating to that "Affistance, which that pious Prince, and now glorious Saint in Heaven, K. Charles 1. gave to the Rochellers, who were furely the Subjects of the King of France, he order'd a Fast by Proclamation, and appointed a Form of Prayer, to be drawn up for the imploring of God's Blessing. It is highly probable that Bishop Land had the great hand in composing those Prayers, he being then Bishop of London, and in great favor, and the Archbishop of Canterbury, Abbot, at that time in Disgrace, but whoever compos'd them, I beg leave to read part of one of the Collets in that Office. O Lord God of Hosts, that givest Victory in the Day of Batile, and Deliverance

Deliverance in the time of Trouble, We beseech thee to strengthen the Part. I. Hinds, and encourage the Hearts of thy servants in sighting thy Battles and defending they Altars that are among us, and in all the Resormed Churches. It seems the Resormed Churches were thought to have God's Altars among them then, however they have been vilify'd fince. But that which I would observe from this Passage is this, that neither that Excellent King who commanded those Prayers to be compos'd nor the Bishops who compos'd them, nor the Clergy and People who us'd and join'd in them, cou'd in fo solemn a manner have recommended those Forces to the Divine Protection and Favour, and as such as were fighting God's Battles, if they had thought they were fighting against God in his Vicegerent, and as defending his Alters, if they believed they were resisting his Ordinance.

2. I could produce feveral Authorities in support of what I have laid down, but I shall mention but one; It is in a Book written professedly on this Subject, and the passage Ishallquote, comes home in point to the matter in hand ———The Book I mean, is intitul'd, The true Difference between Christian Subjection and Unchristian Rebellion. It is written by way of Dialogue between a Christian whom the Author calls Thiophilus & a Jesuit whom he calls Philander. I beg leave to read a Quotation out of it. Theophilus the Christian says, I buly not my self in other mens Commonwealths as you (the Fesuits) do, neither will I rashly prenounce all that resist, to be Rebels: Cases may fall out even in Christian Kingdoms, where the people may plead their Right against their Prince, and not be charg'd with Rebellion. Philander the Jesuit asks, as When for Example? Theophilms the Chri-Itian reply's thus. If a Prince show'd go about to subject his Kingdom to a Foreign Realm, or change the Form of the Commonwealth from Impery to Tyranny, or neglect the Laws established by Common Consent of Prince and People, to execute his own pleasure? In these and other Cases, which might be named, if the Nobles and Commons join together to defend their Ancient and accustomed Liberty, Regiment and Laws, they may not well be accounted Rebels. This Book is said, in the Title Page, to have been perus'd and allow'd by public Authority; was written by a great Man, Dr. Bilson then Warden of Winehester-College; Printed at Oxford by the University Printer, and dedicated to Q. Elizabeth, and the Author was afterwards made Bishop of Winchester. I could offer ma-I my other Authorities———But I am superseded in producing,

Part. I and your Lordships trouble sav'd in hearing more particular Quotations to this purpose, by what is yielded by a Rev Divine of great Parts and Learning, far enough from the suspicion of be-' ing prejudic'd against the Rights of Princes, or partial to those of the People, I mean the Revd. Dean of Carlifle, who in a latin Discourse preach'd and printed in this Town upon the Duty of Submission, Stating some Cales of Extreme Necessity, and putting the Question, Whether it may not be lawful for the People in such Cases to Resist? Answers Viriboni & graves, &c.

'I hat good and Judicious Men, men that have taken great and " wseful pains in defending the Rights of Princes, and repressing popular License, bave contended that it is lawful: He adds indeed whether they have done right or wrong, let others judge; and does 4 not give his own opinion. But since he has granted, that such Men as he has describ'd, Men of Probity and Judgment, Zealous Affectors of the Rights of Princes, and Repressors of Popular License, have contended that in Cases of extreme Necessity it is lawful for the People to defend themselves; I may comfort my self, if I err in my Opinion, that I err in good Company. But I humbly conceive do not err, and that,

3. For this plain Reason, That if it be utterly unlawful to relist in any Case what soever, even that of a total Subversion of the Constitutions and Laws: then there is no Distinction of Gowernments, of Absolute I mean, and Limited: or if there be a Distinction, it is a Nominal one without any real Difference, for what Difference is there between a Prince's Governing Arbitrarily without Lew, and Governing Arbitrarily against Law? Betwixt having no Laws at all, and having precarious Laws? that depend intirely on the Will of the Prince, whether he will observe one of them or subvert them all, and if he does, the People cannot help themselves.

But, my Lords, I hope and believe that there is a real Dif-4 tinction of Governments, and that the Subjects of all Governments 4 are not in the same wretched Condition that those of France and Turkey are in. I hope we have not boasted falsly or vainly of our own Form of Government, that we are bless'd with a Constitution more happy than any other Nation in the World emoys, that allows and secures as great and (I had almost Lii1) God-like Power and Prerogatives to the Crown as any wise and good Prince can desire, a power of doing e- Part. I. very thing that is good and nothing that is ill, and at the Part. I. fame time secures most valuable Rights and Priviledges to the People.

Dr. King (now Archbishop of Dublin) in his first Chap. of his State of the Protestants of Ireland. Justifies this Doctrine of Resistance and says. 'It (g) Then in some Cases the Mischief of * Tamely submitting to the Tyranny and Usurpation of a Go-

e vernor may be worse and have more dangerous and mischie-* vous Consequences to the Common-wealth, than a War, I suppose it ought to be granted, that where this necessity is certain and apparent, people may lawfully relist and Defend themselves even by a War, as being the sesser evil.

Mr. Johnson says in his Notes on the Pastoral Letter, It (b) is vain to talk of Laws which secure to us our lives. Liberties and Estates, when Passive-Obedience comes into play: " For the Property we have in these things, which makes them all our own, is swallow'd up by Irresistibility.

In his Argument proving the Abrogation of King James to be according to the Constitution of the English Government, he quotes some of the oldest and most Famous Lawyers, as Bracton, Fortes. cue &c. And the most famous Laws of the English Constitution, in favor of this Relistance from Knyghton's History.

Dr. Sacheverell's Council gave up the Cause of Non Resistance, and allow'd that the General Doctrine admitted of Exceptions of cases of extreme Necessity, which is all that either Presbyterians or any other Loyal Subjects plead for. And I shall here insert a Passage or two from two of their Speeches: The swo Gentlemen do now fill the most Eminent Posts in Law within Her Majesty's Dominions; Sir. Simon Harcourt being. Ed. High Chancellor of Great Britain, and Mr. Phipps now St. Constantine Phipps ) Ld. High Chancellor of Ireland.

The former pleads for the Dr upon the first Article of his Impeachment thus: 'My (i) Lords, There is nothing further from our bearts, nor is any thing less necessary to the Doctors Defence, than for us to dispute or call in Question the Justice

Part. 1. of the Revolution; we are so far from it, that we look on our selves to be arguing for it, whilst we are endeavouring to show your Lordships, that the Resistance used at the Revolution, is not inconsistent with the Doctrine of the Church of England, and with the Law of England, and that the Doctor uses no other Language, than what they both speak.

I humbly apprehend, my Lords, that Extraordinary Cases, Cases of Necessity are always implied, though not expressed in the General Rule. Such a Case undoubtedly the Revolution was, when our late unhappy Sovereign, then upon the Throne, mis-led by evil Counsellors, endeavor'd to subvert and excirpate the Protestant Religion, and the Laws and Liberties of the Kingdòm.

The latter makes the very same Concession in these words. To (k) carry this yet further, suppose that the urging the Illegality of Refistance on any Pretence whatsoever, had been a Substantive Clause, and had no Relation to or Dependance upon any other Clause or Sentence; or suppose such a General Assertion can be collected from any part of the Doctor's Sermon, yet it must be taken only for a general Proposition; And if such General Propositions are true in the general and to a common Intent, tho' they are subject to particular Exceptions, yet it is submitted whether the Doctor is not well warranted in afferting such a general Proposition, without mentioning the particular Exception? For all general Rules have Exceptions, and yet the Person that Cites them, seldom or never mentions the Exceptions; for when ever such general Propositions are urged, the Exceptions are always understood & implied, And, there was less Reason to mention the Exception in this Cale, because it is so universally known: It had the Concurrence of the whole Nation and was so often establish'd and approv'd by the Legislature.

'And the Doctor entirely concurs with the Gentlemen of the House of Commons that the Revolution is an Exception; not Adversary to one of the Learn'd Managers, who was pleafed to admit, it was the only Exception from this general rule; and I submit to your Lordships, if the naming that Exception would not be a greater Reflection on the Revolution, than the preaching that Doctrine in general Terms without naming it? For to name now, since the Revolution, would be be to suppose, that it was not implied and understood as an Part. I Exception, out of that general Proposition, before the Revolution, and then the Exception is to be warranted by the Revolution, which is to infer, that no Resistance was lawful till the Revo· lution; whereas we say, That such an extraordinary Case, as that e of the Revolution, was always implied as an Exception out of that general Doctrine, and so the Doctrine Justifies the Revolution.

Those Eminent and Learn'd Lawyers spoke agreeable to the Heroic and Just Principles asserted in the Associations Subscrib'd by so many Persons of Honor and Integrity, upon the happy Arrival of our late GLORIOUS DELIVERER, then Prince of Orange, & afterwardsKingWilliam of IMMORTAL MEMORY, two whereof I shall here transcribe. The Association sign'd at Exeter runs thus.

"We (1) whose Names are hereunto Subscrib'd, who have now ' joyn'd with the Prince of Orange, for the Desence of the Protestant Religion, and for the maintaining the Ancient Government, and the Laws, and Liberties of England, Scotland and Ire-. bland, do engage to Almighty God, to his Highness the Prince of Orange, and to one another, to stick firm to this Cause, in the Defence of it, and never to depart from it, until our Relie gion, Laws and Liberties are so far secur'd to us in a Free Pare liament, that we shall be no more in danger of falling under · Popery and Slavery. And whereas we are engag'd in this Common Cause, under the Protection of the Prince of Orange, by which cause his Person might be expos'd to Danger, and to the Cursed attempts of Papists, and other Bloody Men; We do therefore folemnly engage to God, and one another, That if any such Attempt be made upon him, we will pursue not only those that make it, but all their Adherents, and all that we find in Arms against us, with the utmost Severity of a Just Revenge to their Ruin and Destruction. And that the Execution of any · such Attempt (which God of his infinite mercy forbid) shall not divert us from prosecuting this Cause which we do now undertake, but that it shall engage us to carry it on with all the Vigor that so Barbarous an Action shall deserve.

In

In the Northern Association, which (as the Author of the Se-Part. I In the Normern Anociation, was honor'd with the presence of the cret History of Europesays) was honor'd with the presence of the Anne. Bishop of London, and even of her present Majesty Queen Anne, there are these Remarkable words, We (m) being made sadly ' sensible of the Arbitrary and Tyrannical Government, that is, by the Influence of Jesuitical Councils coming upon us, do unanimously declare, that not being willing to deliver our Posterity. over to such a Condition of Popery and Slavery, as the aforesaid Hlegalities do inevitably threaten; We will, to the utmost of our power, oppose the same, by joining with the Prince of Orange, &c. And herein we hope all good Protestants will, with their Lives and Fortunes, be assistant to us, and not be bugbear'd. with the opprobrious Terms of Rebels, by which they wou'd fright. us to become perfect Slaves to their Tyrannical Insolencies and Usurpations; for we assure our selves, that no Rational and Un. by ass'd per son will judge it Rebellion to defend our Laws and Religiou, which all our Princes have sworn at their Coronation; which Gath how well it hath been observ'd of late, we desire a Free Parliament may have the Consideration of. We own it Rebellion to resist a King that governs by Law, but he was always e accounted a Tyrant that made his Will his Law, and to relist such a one, we justly esteem no Rebellion, but a necessary Desence, ° &c.

The above mention'd Author makes this Reflection upon that Association; These (n) were the Sentiments of those Church ment and Patriots. These were the Sentiments of the Duke of Leeds, the Bishop of London, and a great number of Lords and Gentilemen; who had their Swords by their sides to defend them, and make good what they asserted of the Lawsulness of Defence against Tyranny.

The Office for the 5th of November plainly implies that Solemn thanks are returned to God Almighty by the Clergy and all of the Establish'd Churches of England and Ireland for his Blessing the Resistance made to K. James, and his defeating the Opposition made to the Prince of Orange, in these Words, 'We bless thee for giving his Majesty that now is, a safe Arrival here, and for making all opposition fall before him, till he became our King and Governor.

vernor.

It wou'd be tedious to trouble my Reader with all the Quotations Part. I. that might be adduc'd on this Head; but I have singled out those those already mention'd, to show the true State of the Controversy, the Just Limitations of the Doctrine of Resistance, and some ot the chief Arguments to support it, from the Law of Nature and Nations, positive Laws of God, the Constitution of England, and the Opinions of the most Learn'd Episcopal Divines, and even of whole Convocations; from which the World may see, That 'tis neither a Peculiar Presbyterian Tenet, nor repugnant to the Duty and Allegiance that is due to Magistrates; but on the contrary, a necessary and honorable Defence of Her Majesty's Title, a Security to the Protestant Succession in the Mustrious House of Hanover, and a just Barrier of the Liberty of the Subject. Of all which the British Parliament were so fully sensible, as to pass a most Solemn Censure, and fix an Indelible Stain upon the Opposite Doctrine, in the Deliberate and Just Mue of the Tryal of Dr. Sacheverell.

Seeing then this Doctrine of Resistance in Cases of extreme Necesfity is supported by the Law of Nature and Nations, the Judgment of the most Eminera Divines and Lawyers, the happy Constitution of Great Britain, and the most Renamn'd Monarchs that ever sat upon a British Throne, and is an Essential Fundamental Principle of the late happy Revolution, and the Source of all the Blessings deriv'd to us from it; it's plain that neither Presbyterians nor any other People can be justly charg'd with Disloyalry, for the practice thereof. If ever Presbyterians resisted their Sovereign when he was acting for the end of his Office, the Public good, Religion, Liberty and Property, they must confess guilt, but this is what they deny: If all their Refistance was to the unjust Invasions of Liberty by the Prerogative, and when the Prince us'd his Power to the hurt and Prejudice of human Society, and in no other Case, I shou'd think them fairly acquitted of all Rebellion and Disloyalty, upon the same Principles on which her . Majesty and the Nation proceeded in the late happy Revolution; And for my own part, I am free to venture the whole Cause upon this Isue: Let it stand or sall by that undoubted Test of true British Loyalty.

A Native Consequence of what has been advanc'd concerning the Doctrine of Resistance, is, that a decent and modest Discovery of the Subjects uneasiness and grievances under some part of the Administration D 2.

The Logalty of

Part. I nistration of the Prince's Government, is very Consstent with a Dutiful and Loyal Behaviour. To assert Infallibility in the Church, is Popery; and to lodge it in the Prince, is flivery; and both of them are dangerous Errors, refuted from the consideration of the Universal Corruption and lapsed Estate of mankind. There is nothing more odious than a fullome Flattery, with which forme people in all Ages and Nations have entertain'd their Magistrates; as if their Government were like that of God Almighty's, without the least shadow of a blemish, and uncapable of being mended, as being entirely faultless. 'Tis true, a Giddy Populace bave often groundlessly censur'd the laudable Actions of their Superiors, and murmur'd against the Best of Governments; Such Factious Male-Contents are to be discourag'd in all Societies. But then 'twere highly unreasonable on the other hand, to Abridge the Subjects of their Native Liberty of complaining, when they are hurt; or of letting their Magistrates know (so it be done with a becoming Humility and Decency) their just Desires of being eas'd of their Pressures, and protected in their just Rights, according to the true ends of Government. To doom the Subject to a perpetual and unmanly Silence in such Cases, for preventing of Faction, is such a Remedy, as the shutting of one's mouth to prevent his ever saying an ill thing; and to make men saves least they shou'd turn Rebels.

Another Notion of Loyalty as false as any of the former is, That a Subject must be of his Prince's Religion, or the Religion of the State: God is the Lord of Conscience, and therefore it does not belong to Casar. Religion is of a Divine Original founded upon the Laws of God, and can't receive an higher Affront than to make it such an unstable and mutable Piece of Vanity, so precarious and uncertain as to be turn'd into all the shapes of human Policy, and modell'd by the variable Civil Constitutions in the World. Shall God depend upon Man? or a Rebellion against the Creator be honor'd with the name of Loyalty to the Creature? No. Must a Man be a Mahometan in Turkey, a Papist in France, and a Pagan in other places in the World; because the Magistrate is so? No sure. And this shows, that we must not choose our Religion, because it is the State-Religion, but because it is the Religion of the Bible; and consequently, that a man can't be Disloyal merely for differing in Religious Matters from the public Establishment. I confess, that some bad men and bad Subjects may espouse pernicious Principles destructive of Civil Government.

and

Chap: 1.

and incorporate them into the Body of their Religious Tenets; as Part. I. the Papists do, and some of the wildest German Anabaptists did:

But these Errors are to be resuted and condemn'd, not because they are contrary to the Religion of their Prince but because they are contrary to the true Christian Religion, the Faith of our Lord Jesus Christ, and to lawful Civil Authority agreeable to it.

The Uncharitable and Mistaken Notion of Loyalty which some Bigots in these Nations have, is this, That Conformity to the Establish'd Church is Loyalty, and Non-Conformity Disloyalty: The Falshood whereof abundantly appears from what has been said: Indeed, if our Author or any other can prove, That the Presbyterian Non-Conformists have embody'd any; Rebellious or Dislayal Principle into their System of Divinity, they must yield the Cause. But I hope to make the contrary appear in the Sequel of this Chapter, and that the same true Conscientious fear of God which makes 'em dissent from the National Establishment of the Church, does bind 'em to all the Duty and Allegiance which good Subjects owe to Her Majesty, who is too Wise and Religious a Prince to believe that any Sett of People who have robb'd God of His Right, shou'd ever Conscientiously assert Her's; or that those who wou'd Compliment Her with their Consciences, which belong to God, shou'd have any Conscience lest 'em to give Her Majesty that which is Her own: For 'tis generally true, That those who wou'd give Magistrates too much, ha'n't Honesty to give 'em enough, and are among the first who desert them in their Straits.

Having thus detected and refuted the most Popular salse Notions of Leyalty, I come to show wherein it consists, and I humbly conceive it may be describ'd thus.

True Christian Loyalty Consists in the Subjects paying an high Reverential honour to the Person of the Supreme Magistrate, and in their maintaining and supporting (in their several Stations) all the Authority, Power and Prerogatives justly belonging to him or her by vertue of the Laws of God, Nature and Nations, the Original Compact between the Prince and People, and the just Laws of the State, by paying of due Tribute, obeying the just Acts of Lawful Authority, venturing life as well as Fortune in defence of the Prince and Constitution upon a Good Call, and by Prayers to Almighty God for a blessing on his or her Person or Government; and in doing all this for Conscience sake.

Upon this Foundation, I proceed to consider what our Author

Part. I has advanc'd against Dissenters; wherein he sirst attacks their Principles, and next their Practice.

With respect to the first, he says p. 5. 46 I do not purpose at f present to make so exact an Enquiry into all their Political 4 Principles, as perhaps I shall in some time; but such only as relates to those Principles, which are productive of their pre-4 tended Loyalty." If the Author shall think fit to make and publish such an Enquiry into all their Political Principles, I wou'd humbly advise him to make a more exact one than what he has presended already to have made relating to those Principles, which. are productive of their (real, and not only pretended) Loyalty. This Enquiry of his is justly chargeable with two things, any one. whereof is sufficient to demonstrate with how little exactness it has been made. 1. It is extremely Detective in the Enumeration of those very Principles he pretends to discover. 2. These Principles he mentions are unaccountably misrepresented, and wire-drawn into the worst sense & harshest Construction which can possibly be put upon them, contrary to the Rules of Christian Charity, and found Reasoning.

1. It is extremely Desective in the Enumeration of those very. Principles he pretends to discover. I can't guess at the Reason of this Omission, unless it be this, that such of their Principles as he has thought fit to pass are so indisputably clear and natively productive of Loyalty, as setts'em beyond the reach of malice it felf, which can't find in em the least shadow of a Crime, and therefore it was not for his purpose to mention them. But I hope the Impartial Reader (who will be still satisfy'd to hear what Can be siid Pro and Con) will excuse me, if I shall mind him of some of those Principles, which our Author, for reasons best known to himself, has omitted. Such as I mention are contain'd in the following Passiges; the first whereof is the 25th Article of the Confession of Faith for the Church of Scotland, compos'd Anno #560. confirm'd by the Parliament of that Kingdom; and subscrib'd by King James himselt and his houlhold Anno 1580. and by persons of all Stations Anno 1581. In pursuance of an act of the King & Frivy Council: And the whole Nation oblig'd themlelves to maintain and defend it Anno 1528, upon which Account 'cis call'd the National Covenant; And 'tis to this day own'd and Establish'd as the Confession of that Church. The Passige is this 25. Of

25. Of the Civil Magistrate.

Part 1.

e We confess and acknowledge Empires, Kingdoms, Dominions and Cities, to be distincted and ordain'd by God; the Powers. and Authority in the same, be it of Emperors in their Em-' pires, of Kings in their Realms, Dukes and Princes in their Dominions, and of other Magistrates in their Cities, to be God's boly Ordinance ordain'd for manifestation of his own Glory, and · for the singular profit and Commodity of mankind: So that. whosoever goeth about to take away, or to Confound the whole. State of Civil Policies, now being establish'd, we affirm the same. e men, not only to be Enemies, to mankind, but wickedly to fight, * against Got's expressed Will. We further confess and acknowledge, that such persons as are plac'd in Authority, are to be lov'd, honour'd, feared and holden in most Reverend Estimation, because,, they are the Lieutenants of God, in whose Sessions God him telf. doth sit, and judge: Yes, even the Judges and Princes themfelves, to whom by God is given the Sword to the praise and Defence of good men, and to revenge and punish all open Mae lefactors. Moreover to Kings, Princes, Rulers and Magistrates,. we affirm, that chiefly and most principally the Conservation. and Purgation of the Religion appertain, so that not only they: are appointed for Civil Policy, but also for maintenance of the. true Religion, and for suppressing of Idolatry and Superstition. whatsoever: As in David, Josaphat, Ezechias, Josias, and others bighly commended for their zeal in that case, may be espy'd. And therefore, we confess and aver, That such as resist the Su-* preme Power, doing that which appertaineth to his Charge, do resist · God's Ordinance; and therefore, cannot be guiltless. And further, we affirm That whosoever deny unto them their aid, their Counsel, and Comfort, while the Princes and Rulers diligently travel in the Execution of their office, that the same men deny. their help, support and Counsel to God, who by the presence of his Lieutenant doth crave it of them.

The second Passage is taken from the Westminster Consession, allow'd also and receiv'd by the Church of Scotland, and by the Presbyterians in Ireland, as the Consession of their Faith, and as such subscrib'd by all the Ministers and Preachers of both, and compos'd:

Part: I pos'd by an Assembly of the most Famous English Presbyterian Divines: In 23d. Chap. of the said Confession we have these words.

God the Spreme Lord and King of all the World, hath erdain'd Civil Magistrates to be under him, over the people, for his own Glory, and the public good; and to this end hath arm'd them with the Power of the Sword, for the defence and Encouragement of them that are good, and for the punishment of evil Doers— The Civil Magistrate may not assume to himself the Administ ration of the Word and Sacraments, or the power of the keys of the Kingdom of Heaven. Yet be bath Authority, and it is his duty to take order, that Unity and Peace be preserv'd in the Church, that the Truth of God be kept pure and entire, that all Blasphemies. and Heresies be suppres'd, all Corruptions & abuses in Worship and Discipline prevented, or reform'd; and all the Ordinances of God duly settled, administred and observ'd. For the better essecting whereof He hath power to call Synods, to be present at them, and to provide, that what soever is transacted in them, be according to the Mind of God.

their persons, to pay them Tribute and other Dues, to obey their lawful Com nands, and to be Subject to their Authority, for Conficience sake. Insidelity or Difference in Religion, doth not make void the Magistrates just and Legal Authority, nor free the People from their due Obedience to him. From which Ecclesiastical · Persons are not exempted &c.

The 3d. Passage is taken out of a Book entitul'd English Puritanism containing the main opinions of the rigidest Sort of those that are call'd Puritans in the Realm of England, wherein they hold Chap. 6. That there shou'd be no Ecclesiastical Officer so high but that he ought to be subject unto, and punishable by the meanest Civil Officer in a King-dom, City or Town, not only for Common Crimes, but even for the Abuse of their Ecclesiastical Offices; Yea, they hold that they ought to be more punishable than any other Subject whatsoever, if they shall offend against either Civil or Ecclesiastical Laws. They hold, that the Civil Magistrate is to punish with all Severity the Ecclesiastical Officers of Churches, if they shall intrude upon the Rights and Prerogatives of the Civil Authority and Magistracy, and shall pass those bounds and limits that Christ hath prescrib'd to them in his word.

They hold (Chap. 5. concerning the Consures of the Church) That Part 1. the keys of the Church are not to be put to this use to kek up the Crown, Swords or Scepters of Princes and Civil States, or the Civil Rights,

Prerogatives, and Immunities of Civil Subjects in the things of this Life.

The 4th Passage is taken out of a Book entitel'd English Presbytery, giving the main Opinions of Presbyterians in England p. 11 (Concerning the Civil Magistrate) they say, ! That they do with all Thankfulness to God, own and revere his Ordinance of Civil Maegistracy; and are so far from encroaching upon it, that they be-Lieve no Minister of the Gospel ought to employ himself in it. But to give up himself to Meditation and Prayer, and the meer spiritual Oversight of the flock of Christ committed to him.

For the Due Form of Government, or power of Governors in any Nation, they believe God's work bath fix'd no universal Rule, only confirming the just Laws of Kingdoms and Policies: And they believe it to be their Duty to be obedient to such Governors in all places, as the Laws in that place have establish'd, and in the execise of such power as those Laws have given him. From the Obedience to which no person upon the account of Religion can pretend to an Immunity. And in the exercise whereof no Magistrate ought by any to be relisted.

The geb Passage is taken from Mr. Corbet's Account of the Principles and Practices of several Non-Conformists, which Book was approv'd by them, as appears by the Title page: In it they say p. 8. believe that the power of Civil Magistrates is God's Ordinance, necessify for the Government of the World——We acknowledge that Supreme Magistrates have a Civil Supremacy in all Eccle-Sizstical Matters, and a Political Episcopacy over the Pastors of the Church in their Sacred Administrations, and may compel them to the performance of their Duty, and punish them for their Negligence or Male-Administration, that they may call Synods, make Canons, and warrantably thus reform the Church, when it stands in need of Reformation.——Moreover, we believe that the Higher Powers are not to be mere Executioners of the Judgments of Ecclesiasticks, but that they may and must be judges thereof themfelves, in order to their own execution.

The 6th and last Passage is taken out of the Book entitul'd, A Vindication of the Presbyterial Government and Ministry publish'd, by the Mi-

Part I nisters and Elder s, met together in a Provincial Assembly in London:
November 2d. 1649. We 'o) freely acknowledge, that Migistra. cy is an Ordinance of God, appointed for the great good of Mankind; so that, whoever are enemies to Magistracy, are enemies to 'Mankind, and to the Reveal'd Will of God. We desire to hold up the honor and greatness, the power and Authority of lawful Mae gistracy, against Papists, Anabaptists, and all others, that despite Dominion, and speak evil of Dignities. We say, that the Magistrate is, in a civil Notion, the Supreme Governor in all Causes Ecclefastical; the keeper of both Tables; the Nursing-Father of the Church: That belongs to him, by his Political Power, to reforms the Church, when corrupted; to preserve it, when reformed; to fuppress Blasphemy, Idolatry, Heresie, Schism, and prophaneness, and whatsoever is contrary to Godliness and sound Do-Etrine; that the people under him, may lead a quiet life, in all Godliness and Honesty. That he is sent of God, for the punishment of evil doers (amongst which, are Hereticks, as well as others, and therefore call'd evil Workers; and Heresies evil Deeds, Phil. 3. 2. 2 Ep. John ver. 11.) and for the praise of them that do well. That he is the Bishop of those things that are without the Church; as Constantine stiled himself. That to him belongs to punish Church-6 Officers, with Civil punishments, when they abuse their power; and to give protection to the public Exercise of Church Government, within his Dominions.

Upon the whole let the Impartial Reader judge of two things, I. Whether our Author's Enquiry into the Principles of Disserters that are productive of Loyalty, has any tolerable measure of exactness, when he has not mention'd so much as one of those Principles, I have now quoted out of their most Authentic Writings; tho' they are the main Fundamentals not only of their Loyalty, but of the Loyalty of all Faithful Subjects whatsoever.

2iy. Whether Presoyterians, adhering to and Practising the above Principles, can possibly be disloyal; and therefore whether Loyalty be not the Native Consequence of such Principles. If they obey all the Magistrate's lawful Commands, neither resisting nor diminishing any thing of their just power, praying for them, assisting and aiding them with their lives and fortunes, exempting no manner of persons.

₹.

Ecclesiastical nor Civil from their Jurisdiction, and doing all this Part I. from Principles of Conscience, in regard to the Authority of God (to all which the above mention'd Principles lead 'em) s believe 'twill be hard to prove 'em disloyal, until they once be prov'd either to have abandon'd or contradicted their Principles.

The Enquiry our Author has made into the Principles of Presbyterians, that are productive of their Loyalty, is not only extremely defective (as I have shown) but

2ly. These Principles he mentions are unaccountably misrepresented, and wire-drawn into the worst sense and harshest Construction which can possibly be put upon 'em, contrary to the Rules of Christian Charity, and found Reasoning, and to the genuine sense of the words; as will appear by an examination of them. He begins thus 'And (p) thus far I will venture to assert, That if the Dissenters of Ireland will allow e 'emselves to be the same in Principles of Discipline and Government with their Elder Sister the Kirk of Scotland (and I do think it never was, nor ever will be deny'd) they are so far from being the Queen's most Loyal Subjects from their known Principles, that from their principles of Discipline and Government, all Crown'd Heads are rather Vassals and Subjects to them, when ever it shall happen that the Kirk is able to exert her Inherent power, even to Excommunication and Exclusion of the Civil Magistrate.' In all this there is not any thing that has the shadow of an Argument, unless it be in these words, whenever it shall happen that the Kirk is able to exert her Inherest Power, even to Excommunication and Exclusion e of the Givil Magistrate. This Inherent Power is nothing else but the power of the Administration of the Word and Sacraments, and the power of the keys of the Kingdom of Heaven; and 'tis Impossible that the Civil Magistrate can ever be hurt by it, where the Word is truly preach'd, the Sacraments duly administred, and the power of the keys rightly uld: Nay, on the contrary, it is a great support and Comfort to all good Magistrates, when the Church takes all posfible care to reform and purge their people from scandalous sins, which provoke God Almighty to pour out his Judgments both on Princes and People: And they may still expect the greatest Loyalty and Affection from those whole chief Endeavours are to promote Piety among their Subjects. Either this Inherent power of it self is inju-TIOUS

rious to Magistracy, or 'tis only the abuse of it that is so. For the first, he hath not offer'd in these words, the least syllable to prove it. And for the second, that is no Argument against the Inherent Power at all: For any one of Common sense knows, that the Abuse of any thing in it self good & useful is not to be imputed to the thing abus'd, but to the Abusers of it. Because some Magistrates have highly abus'd their Office, shall we therefore cry down Magistracy? Because some Ministers have highly abus'd their Sacred Function, shall we therefore lay aside that holy Office? In a word, if the Presbyuerians have in the Exercise of their Inherent Power Wrong'd the Civil Magistrate at any time, that is no Argument against the Inherent Power it self, because in such Cases they must be supposed to be guiley of Male-Administration. And if our Author can prove this, it is chargeable upon the Practices and not upon the Principles of Prelbyterians, and therefore comes in Impertinently in this place.

As to this Inherent Power it self, the Presbyterians claim no more than what the Primitive Christians had for the three first Centuries; and we must either suppose 'em all that time to be Disloyal Subjects, or else that the Inherent power of it self can't make any Church Disloyal.

If it be objected, that for the three first Centuries there being no Christian Emperors, the Christian Church must have an Inherent Power, otherwise they cou'd have none at all; but that after Constantine's time, the Case was alter'd, And that there was no Parity of Reason for claming an Inherent power of Church-Discipline: The answer is very Obvious, and 'tis founded upon a Principle which the Most Critical Writers upon this Subject, and particularly the most Learn'd of the Church of England have advanc'd. Viz. That the Power and right of Princes to concern themselves (by vertue of their Office as Magistrates) in Ecclesiastical Matters dos not depend upon their Religion. This is very clearly express'd by the Learn'd Bishop Burnes in his Exposition of the 39 Articles of the Church of England. When he is treating of the 37th Article concerning the Regal Supremacy, after he had prov'd from the Holy Scriptures that Princes have a Right and power to concern themselves in Matters Ecclesiastical (which no Presbyterian denies); he next describes the Measure and Extent of that power in these words. p. 286.

It is certain, First, That this Power does not depend upon the Princes Religion: Whether he is a Christian, or not : or whether he is of a True or false Religion: or is a good or a bad man. By the same Tenure that he holds his Sovereignty, he holds this likewise. Part I. Areaxerxeshad it as well as either David or Solomon, when the Jews Part I. were once lawfully his Subjects; and the Christians ow'd the same duty to the Emperors while Heathen, that they paid them when Christian. The Relations of Nature, such as that of a Parent and 6 Child, Husband and Wise, continue the same that they were, what-6 soever Men's Persuasions in Matters of Religion may be: So do also "Civil Relations, Master and Servant, Prince and Subject; they are "neither increas'd nor diminish'd by the truth of their Sentiments concerning Religion. All Persons are subject to the Prince's Authority, and liable to such Punishments as their Crimes fall under Every Soul is Subject to the Higher Powers. Neither is <sup>4</sup> Treason less Treason, because spoke in a Pulpit, or in a Sermon: It may be more Treason for that, than otherwise 'twou'd be; because 'tis so public and deliberate, and is deliver'd in the way in which it may probably have the worst Effect. So that as to Persons no great Difficulty can lye in this, fince every Soul is declar'd to be Subject to the Higher Powers.

From this Principle it follows as a Native Consequence, That if the Church had an Inherent Power under Heathen Emperors, they must have it under Christian ones too; and this very Principle was afferted by Christian Emperors, and by Councils that were held under them, as well as by particular Fathers who flourish'd in their Reigns. The same Judicious Historian (Dr. Burnet) in his Book Entitul'd, The History of the Rights of Princes, &c. describing the Inherent Right that was in the Primitive Church to Elect their Bishops, gives us the sollowing Remarkable Account of the Christian Emperors declining to meddle in that Matter, so as to deprive the Church of their Inherent Kight.

lege peculiar to Alexandria; we have two great Instances that shew that Constantine did not interpose in Elections. The one was in Nicomedia, where Eusebius being turn'd out by the Order of the Council of Nice, as well as Theognis Bishop of Nice; Constantine, writing, (q) to those of Nicomedia concerning their choosing a new Bishop, says, That was in their Power, and depended on their Judgment. And near the end of his Letter he says, That it was in their Power to raise

Part I. that Joy in him, which he had when he found pure, Orthodox, and when Eustachius was turn'd out of An-'tioch, upon the false suggestions of the Arian Party, Ensebins of 6 Cesarea was chosen to be put in his room; Upon which an Instru-' ment, or Decree of Election was made; but he refusing to accept of it, Constancine writ to them, (r) In which he takes Notice that their Custom was to use great care, prudence and diligence in the seeking out a such a Bishop as was set for them. And in another Letter (s) to the Bishops that were then at Antioch, he recommends two Persons to them, Euphronius and Georgius; but desires, that when they propos'd 4 these or any others to be chosen, the Election should be made according to the Rule of the Church, and the Tradition of the Apostles. This is but a Recommendation; two are offered, but leave is given to the Bishops to put more in the List; and a Charge is added to manage the Election according to Cuffum. It was no wonder that all complied with such a Recommendation, and chose him that was fir It named. But it is visible that the Emperor left them to their Liberty.

Great Confusions follow'd in the Reign of Constantius, by reason of the Arian Heresy, many of the Orthodox Bishops being turn'd out, and others put in their rooms, by the Emperor's Authority; whom among other things, Hilary accuses for this, That he gave Bishopricks to those of his Party: And Writing against Auxentius, addresses himself thus to these Bishops placed by the Court (t); O ye Bishops, I pray you what Suffrages did the Apostles make use of? did they receive their Dignity from the Palace? And he runs out more copiously on those Court Bishops, in his Exposition of the sirst Pfalm; He says, The Ambition of Secular Honors had corrupted them, and that they were polluted by the pestiserous Contagion of those Affairs in which they were conversant. When that Storm was over, and the fhort, but terrible Cloud rais'd by Julian, was dissipated, then the 4 Ancient Method of Elections was again continu'd. But two things · occasion'd great Contentions in them; The one was, The Wealth 4 and Dignity of some Sees; the other was, the Heats that had been 4 rais'd by the Arian Heresy, by which Peoples minds were embittered one against another.

Here are Passages demonstrating not only that the Christian Essperors

(r) Eus. de vit. Const. 1. 3. (s) B. c. 62. (t) Lib. 1. in Const:

perers lest the Church to their sormer Intrinsic Liberty of Elections, Part I. but that they thought it not Inconsistent with their Imperial Dignity and Rights, nor with the Allegiance due to them from their Subjects, that they i.e. Emperors) might be Subject as Christians to their Bishops in Matters of a Spiritual Nature that concern'd their Souls. Any that, pleaseth may consult the Originals from which Burnet quotes these Passages, which I have consider'd, but 'twou'd be too tedious to insert 'em here; and therefore I have contented my self with his Abstract.

The Council of Antioch assembled about the year 341, decreed in their 12th Canon 'That (u) no Presbyter depos'd by his own Bilhop, and that no Bishop depos'd by a Synod should presume to trouble the Emperor; but that he shou'd apply himself to a greater Synod of Bishops, and lay before them what Allegations he has to make of the Iustice of his Cause, and wait for their Sentence; and that if in-* stead of doing this, he apply to the Emperor, that his Fault shall not be pardon'd, nor shall be ever be restor'd to his Office.

Nothing can be more express in favour of the Inherent Power of the Church in Spiritual and Ecclesiastical Matters, even under Christian Emperors, than the above Canon. If it be objected that they were Arians who compos'd it, and that 'twas design'd to hinder Athanosius from being protected by the Emperor; it's confess'd, that the Defign they had in framing it might be very bad; but if it had not been allow'd in that Age, that the Church had an Inherent Power, they durst not have asserted it: And it had been extremely prejudiciat to their Interest, to have done it, which is all the use I make of that Canon.

But what is a full and satisfying answer to that Objection, and sets the Matter beyond Debate, is the Regulation establish'd by the 6th Canon of the General Council of Constantinople assembled, about the year 381 or 383, as some think. It settles the Method of Ecclesiastical Processes against Bishops and Presbyters, upon au Accusation brought against them in Matters of Scandal, and does not allow these Causes to be properly cognizable in any Courts or Assemblies, but Synods and Ecclesiafical Judicatories.

(u) vide Histor. Eccles. Magdeburgens: Cent. 4. Cap. 9. p. 715. Conformite De La Discipline, Ecclesiastique Des Protestans De France avec celle des anciens Chretiens, Par M. Larroque. p. 153. Burnet's Mist. Of the Rights of Princes, &c. p. 34.)

For they decree 'That (v) if Persons that are neither Here-Part 1. For they decree i uas (v) in Condemn'd nor accus'd of scandal, ticks nor excommunicated, nor Condemn'd nor accus'd of scandal, 's shall say that they have any Ecclesiastical Accusation to bring against a Bishop: The Council decrees that first of all such Accufers shall give in their Acculations to all the Bishops of the Province. and before them prove the Scandalous Crimes laid to the Bishop's Charge. And in case it sall out, that the Bishops of the Province be not sufficient, nor fit enough to censure those scandals, then the Accusers are to go to a larger Council of the Bishops of the Diocess, to be assembled upon this cause. And that the Accusation shall not be given in until the accusers profess under their hand, that they are ready to undergo the like Consure themselves, if they shall be convicted of calumniating the Bishop accus'd by them. That if any person, having contemn'd this appointment of the Council, SHALL DARE TO APPLY TO THE * EMPEROR, or to the Tribunals of SECULAR MAGIS-TRATES, or demand the judgment of a General Council, having affronted all the Bishops of the Diocess: The Council determines, that he shall not be admitted to be an accuser, because he has DESPISED THE CANONS, AND THE EC-" CLESIASTICAL DISCIPLINE, and broke the Rules of Decency and good Order.

Here we have a Council appropriating the trial of Bishops in Matters of Scandal, and in what belongs to their meer spiritual Function, to the Cognizance of Ecclesiastical Judicatures; than which nothing can be a more direct proof of the Judgment of the Primitive Church for the Churches Inherent Power of Discipline, and even under Christian Emperors. The Fathers of this Council were not Arians, as these of the Council of Antioch were; and yet their Canon is a strong Confirmation of the matter of the above mention'd 12th Canon of Antioch. This Council consisted of above 150 Bishops, who were all Orthodox in receiving the Creed of the Nivene Fathers. It was amongst these called Gineral Council's, and therefore their Judgment is not only more Venerable, but a more convincing Proof of the general sense of Christians in that Age, concerning the Intrinsection of the Church in the Matter of Ecclesiastical Discipline.

(v) vide Eccles. Hist. Magdeburgens. Cent. 4. Cap. 9. p. 853. 854, Conformity De La Discipline Ecclesiastique Des Protestans De France avec celle des Anciens Chretiens, Par M. Larroque. p. 153.

Presbyterian Principles.

Chap: 1.

And therefore either those Christian Princes must be concluded to be gressy Ignorant of the Essential Prerogatives belonging to their Imperial Crown, and the Primitive Bishops disloyal in usurping upon 'em, (which I suppose, Is not agreeable to the general sense of sober Protestants and good Men;) or, Presbyterians, who claim no more Inherent Power, than the latter pretended to and the former granted, can't be convicted of Disloyalty on that Account.

Hosses, a Spanish Bishop in the fourth Century, delivers his sense of this matter very fully, in his pious and Learn'd Epistle to the Emperor Constantion, an Arian, and Persecutor of the Orthodox. In the said Letter, we have these Memorable words.

Pray (w) forbear and remember thou art a Mortal: Be afraid of the day of Judgment; keep thy self pure unto that day. Do not intrude into Ecclesiastical Business; do not command us in these things, but rather learn them of us. To thee hath God committed the Empire: But he hath entrusted us with the affairs of the Church. And, as he that casts an evil Malignant Eye upon thine Empire, contradicts the Divine Ordinance: So beware, lest thou, drawing unduely to thy self, the matters that belong to the Church, involve thy self in great guilt; It is written, Render to Casar the things that are Casar's, and to God the things that are God's. It is not lawful for us to hold the Empire upon Earth, neither hast thou, O Emperor, the Power of Holy Things. These things I succeed write for the Care of thy Salvation.

This Hossies was an Eminent Consessor for the Orthodox Faith, in great esteem with the Emperor Constantine, and a great Intimate and friend of Athanasius, (x) and can't be accounted disloyal for lodging this Inherent Power in the Church.

Chrysostome goes upon the same Principle, in one of his Homilies the English Translation whereof I shall give you in the wordsof the Revd. Dr. Potter. It runs thus, (*) Apud Athanasium in Epistola ad Solitariam Viram Agentes, et Hist. Eccles. Magdeburgens. Cent. 4. Chap: 10. p. 1189.

F

The

(*) vide Sorom- Lib. 1. Cap. 10. 16. Socrat. Lib. 1. Cap. 7. and Lib. 3. Cap. 7.

The Legalty of

Part I. The (y) Limits of the Kingdom are intirely distinct from the Limits of the Priesthood.—The King's Province is to manage the affairs of the Earth; but the Power of Priests reaches Heavens. What soever ye shall bind on Earth, shall be bound in Heaven. To the King are committed the things here below; to me, the Bishop the Things of Heaven. The King is intrusted with mens Bodies. but the Priest with their souls. The King remits their Debts of Mony, but the Priest the Debts of their Sins. TheKing compels, the Priest exhorts. The King governs by Compulsion, the Priest by Counsel: The former hath fensible Weapons; the latter Spiritual. The former wages War with the Barbarians, we with Devils : And this is the greater Covernment.

But to come to the Opinions of Reformed Divines upon this Head, (among whom I shall name only those of the Episcopal Communion in England and Ireland) let it be confider'd, That the Presovterians except no more from the Magistrates Commission, than what the Archbishops, and Bishops and Clergy of Ireland in their Convocat tion did agree upon in their Articles Compos'd anno 1615. In their 48 Article they say "Neither do we give unto him (i. e. the Supreme Magistrate) the Administration of the Word and <sup>2</sup> Sacraments, or the POWER OF THE KEYS". And to let us know where they lodge this power of the Keys, which they will not give to the Migistrate, they tell us Att. 69 But particular and Visible Churches—be many in number: wherein the more or less sincerely, according to Christ's Institution, the Word of God is taught, the Sacraments are Administred, A ND. THE AUTHORITY OF THE KEYS IS USED, the more or less pure are such Churches to be accounted." Now upon this I wou'd enquire, Whether the Establish'd Church of Ireland Representative be Disloyal Subjects, for asserting this point? If they be not, why shou'd Pretbyterians be accounted Disloyal for their afferting as much and no more?

Neither do they claim any more Inherent Power but what is. necessarily included in such Demands as some of the Most Learn'd and Pious of the Primates both of England and Ireland have thought (y) Chrysostom Homit 4. in verba Esaiz vidi Dominum. &c. Vol. 3, p. 872. 873. Edit. Front. Duc. apud Dr. Potter in his Discourse of Church Government p. 211.212.

Archbishop Grindal Primate of all England, and Usher of Ireland, whose Memories are precious to all good men. Grindal wou'd not discountenance the Meetings of Godly Ministers in England for their Learn'd Exercises and Conferences, tho' that Practice was misrepresented to Queen Elizabeth and upon that occasion the Primate had the Missortune to fall under her Displeasure, Whereupon he wrote a Petition to her Majisty full of that Candor, Piety, Integrity and Gravity that became him; some part whereof I shall here transcribe.

I (z) am inforc'd with all Humility, and yet plainly to profess, that I cannot with safe Conscience, and without the offence of the Majesty of God give mine assent to the suppressing of the said Exercises, much less can I send out any Injunction for the utter and universal Subversion of the same. Bear with me, I beseech you, Madam, If I chuse rather to offend 4 your Earthly Majesty, than to offend the Heavenly Majesty of God. And now being forry that I have been so long and tedious to your Majesty; I will draw to an end, most humbly praying the same, that you wou'd consider these short Petitions following. The first, that you won'd refer ALL THESE ECCLE-SIASTICAL Matters which touch Religion, or the Doctrine or DISCIPLINE OF THE CHURCH unto the Bishops and Divines of the Church of your Realm, according to the example of ALL CHRISTIAN EMPERORS and Princes of all ages: For indeed they are to be judg'd as an ancient Father writeth; in Ecclesia seu synode, non in Palatio. When your Majesty hath Questions of the Laws of your Realm, you do on not decide the same in your Court or Palace, but send them toyour Judges to be determin'd. Likewise, for the Duties in Matters in Doctrine or Discipline of the Church, the ordinary way is to deser the decision to the Bishops, and other head Ministers of the Church. Ambrole to Theodossus useth these words. Si de causis pecuniariis comites tuos consulis: quanto magis, in Causa Religionis sacerdotes Domini equam est consulas. And likewise to the Emperor Valentinian Epist. 32 Si de fide conserendum est, Sacerdotum debet esse just a Collatio, Si enim sactum est Constantino Augusta Memoria Principi qui nullas le-Ius

Part I. ges ante pramisit, sed liberum dedit judicium Sacerdotis. And in the same place the same Father saith, that Constantius the Emperor. fon to Constantine the great, began well, by reason he sollow'd his Father's steps at the first, but ended ill, because he took upon him difficile interaPalatium judicare, and thereby fell into Ariani/m, a terrible Example. The said Ambrose so much commended in all Histories for a godly Bishop, goes further, and writeth to the said Emperor in this Form. Si docendus est Episcopus a lasco, quid sequitur? laicus ergo disputet, & Episcopus audiat a laico: At certe, si vel Scripturarum seriem Divinarum, vel vetera tempora Retractemus, quis est qui abundat in Causa Fidei, inquam Eidei, Episcopos solere de Imperatoribus Christianis, non Imperatores de Episcopis judicare. Would God your Majesty wou'd follow this ordinary, you should procure to your self much quietness of mind, and better please God, avoid many offences, and the Church shou'd be more peaceable and quietly govern'd, much to the Comfort and quietness of your Realm. The second Petition I have to make to your Majesty is this, that when you deal in matters of Faith and Religion, or matters that touch the Church of Christ, which is the Spoule bought with so dear a price, you would not use to pronounce so resolutely and peremptorily, QUASI EX AUTHORITATE, as you may do in Civil and Extern Matters, but always remember that in God's Cause, the Will of God, and not the will of any earthly Creature is to take place. It is the Antichristian voice of the Pope. Sie volo, sie jubeo, stet pro Ratione Voluntas".

Here is a Modest Remonstrance for the Church's Inherent Power of judging Ecclesiastical Matters. The whole strain of this Letter of the Venerable Grindal is so full of Piety, Learning, Modesty and true Christian Courage, as justifies the Character which Fuller gives of it in these words, What cou'd be written (says he) with more spirit, and less animosity? more humility and sess Dejection? I see a lamb in his own, can be a Lion, in God, and his Churches

Cause.(a)

The 2d is, The great Usber's Speech deliver'd in the Castle-chamher at Dublin Novr. 22. 1622. concerning the Oath of Supremacy, while he was Bishop of Meath. It is printed and bound up with several of the other works of that Eminent Divine, viz. An An-[ner Religion profess' a by the Ancient Ivish: and some sermons. Among many Remarkable things in that Speech let the following part be carefully perus'd by the Reader, wherein he will find the Intrinsic Power of the Church not only strenuously asserted & clearly distinguish'd from that of the Civil Magistrate, but the Powers of both excellently well adjusted. His words (b) are these:

We are to consider, that God for the better settling of Piety and honesty among men, and the repressing of Profaneness and other Vices, hath establish'd TWO DISTINCT Powers upon earth: The one of the KEYS, commmitted to the Church, the other of the SWORD, committed to the Civil Magistrate. That of the Keys is ordain'd to work upon the inner man, having I immediate Relation to the (c) Remitting or Retaining of lins. That of the tword is appointed to work upon the outward man; yielding Protection to the Obedient, and inflicting external Puntshment upon the Rebellious and Disobedient. By the former the <sup>4</sup> Spiritual Officers of the Church of Christ are enabled to (d) GOVERN well, to speak and exhort and rebuke with all Anshority, to loose such as are penitent, to commit others into the Lord's Prison, until their Amendment, or to bind them over to the Judgment of the great Day, if they shall persist in their wilfulness and Obstinacy. By the other, Princes have an Imperious Power assign'd by God to them, for the Defence of such as do well, and executing (f) Revenge and Wrath upon such as do evil; whether (g) by Death, or Banishment, or Consiscations of Goods, or Imprisonment according to the quality of the Offence.

When St. Peter, that had the Keys committed to him, made bold to draw the Sword; He was commanded to (b) put it up, as a weapon that he had no Authority to meddle withat. And on the other ade, when Vziab the King wou'd venture upon the Execution of the Priest's Office, 'twas said to him, (i) It pertained not unto the the, Uzziah, to burn Incense unto the Lord, but to the Priests the sens of Aaron, that are consecrated to burn Incense. Let this therefore be our second Conclusion. That the Power of the Sword and of the Keys are

TWO

(6) p. 3. &c. (c) John 20, 23. (d) 1 Tim.5, 17. (e) Tit. 2. 15. (f); Rom. 13. 4. (g) Ezra. 7. 26. (h) Mat. 26. 52. (i) 2 Chron. 26. 14.

Part. I. TWO DISTINCT Ordinances of God: and that the Prince hath no more Authority to enter upon the Execution of ANY PART of the Priest's Function, than the Priest Hath to intrude Upon Any Part of The Office of The Prince.

' In the third place we are to observe, that the Power of the * Civil Sword. (the Supreme Managing where f belongeth to the King alone) is not to be restrain'd unto Temporal Causes only, but is by God's Ordinance to be extended likewise unto all Spiritual Ecclesiastical things and Causes. That as the Spiritual Rulers of 4 the Church do exercise their kind of Government, in bringing men unto Obedience, net of the Duties of the first Table alone (which concerneth Piety and the Religious Service, which man is bound to perform unto his Creator) but also of the Second (which respecteth Moral Honesty, and the Offices that man doth owe unto man's so the Civil Magistrate is to use his Authority also in redressing the Abuses committed against the first Table, as well as against the second, that is to say, as well in punishing of an' Heretic, or an Idolater, or a Blasphemer, as of a Thief, or a Murtherer, or a Traytor; and in providing by all good means, that fuch as live under his Government (x) may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all Piety and Honesty.

And howsoever by this means we make both Prince and priest, to be in their several places Custodes Utriusque Tabula, Keepers of both God's Tables: Yet do we not hereby any way contound both of their Offices together. For the the Matter wherein their Government is exercised may be the same; yet is the Form and Manner of governing therein always different. The one reaching to the outward man only, the other to the Inward: The one binding or loosing the Soul, the other laying hold on the Body and the things belonging thereunto: The one having special Reference to the Judgment of the World to come, the other respecting the present retaining or loosing some of the Comforts of this life.

But here 'twill be said. The Words of the Oath being general; that the King is the the only supreme Governor of this Realm and of all other his Highnesses Dominions and Countries: How may it appear, that the Rower of the Civil Sword only is meant by that Government, and that the Power of the Keys is not comprehended therein? Part I. I answer, First, That where a Civil Magistrate is affirm'd to be the Governor of his own Dominions and Countries, by common Intendment this must needs be understood of a Civil Government, and may in no reason be extended to that which is meerly of another kind. 2ly I say,

1

That where an Ambiguity is conceiv'd to be in any part of an Oath 3, it ought to be taken according to the understanding of him for whose Stisfaction the Oath was Ministred. Now in this Case it hath been sufficiently declar'd by public Authority, that no other thing is meant by the Government here mention'd; but that of the *CIVIL SWORD ONLY.

For in the Book of Articles agreed upon by the Arch-bishops and Bishops and the whole Glergy in the Convocation holden at London, Anno. 1562. thus we read, Where we attribute to the Queen's Majesty the chief Government, &c. We give not to our Princes the Ministring either of God's Word or of the Sacraments, &c. But that only Prerogative which we see to have been given always to all Godly Princes in Hely Scriptures by God himself, that is, That they shou'd rule all Estates and Detrees committed to their charge by God, whether they be Ecclesiastical or Temporal, and restrain with the Civil Sword the stubborn and evil doers.

I never read a Presbyterian Writer, who made larger demands on behalf of the Church, then those mention'd by the Learn'd Usher in the above Speech; and who was not cordially satisfy'd to make the same Concessions with him to the Civil Magistrate; of which their Confessions & other Authentic Accounts of their Principles already quoted give a sufficient Proof. And yet we never find, That ever Usher was tax'd with Disloyalty for asserting the Inherent Power of the Church so expressly as he has done: But on the contrary, he was Monor'd with a Letter of Thanks from King James for that very Speech; a Copy of which Letter is Printed along with the Speech it self, and is as follows:

JAMES REX.

A. Carlotte

Ight Reverend Father in God, and Right Trusty and Wellbeloved Councellor, We Greet you well. You have not deceiv'd our Expectation, nor the gracious Opinion we ever conceiv'd

The Loyalty of

Part I. ceiv'd both of your Abilities in Learning, and of your faithfulness to us and our Service. Whereof as we have receiv'd sundry Testimonies both from our Precedent Deputies, as likewise from our Right Trusty and Well-beloved Cousin and Counsellor the Viscount Falkland our present Deputy of that Realm: so have we now of late in one Particular had a further Evidence of your Duty and Affection well express'd by your late Carriage in our Castle-Chamber there, at the Censure of those Disobedient Magistrates, who resul'd to take the Oath of Supremacy. Wherein your Zeal to the Maintenance of our just and Lawful Power, defended with so much Learning and Reason, deserves our Princely and Gracious Thanks; which we do by this our Letter unto you And so bid you farewel. Given under our Signet at our Court at White-Hall the 11th of Janr. 1622. In the 20 year of our Reign of 6 Great Britain, France and Ireland.

> To the Right Reverend Father in GOD, and our Right Trusty and Well-beloved Counsel?

the Bishop of Meath.

If Presbyterians will go as far in afferting the Royal Supremacy in matters Ecclesiastical, as the Explication of that Supremacy deliver'd in the 37th Article of the Church of England carries it, then 'tis plain that their maintaining of the Inherent Power of Church-Discipline can't render 'em justly obnoxious to the Censure of being Disayal Subjects. For in that case, they must be supposed to go as far as the Establish'd Church her self has thought fit to set forth in her Articles, which are the public Declaration of her Belief. But it is certain, that no Presbyterian will deny the Power of the Civil Sword to the Magistrate, and that he is to use it, even in matters Ecclesiastical, which fully amounts to the sense of that article concerning the Supremacy; as 'tis explain'd in the latter clause of it, with which Explication sull satisfaction was given to public Authority, as Usher observes.

And here I must beg leave to make one Observation wiz. That when ever the Papists have objected to the Church of England, That she lodg'd a Spiritual and proper Ecclesiastical Power in the Supreme Magistrate, and that this is a thing inconsistent with the Nature

Nature and Power of the Christian Church, as a Society erected in- Part I. to a Spiritual Corporation by the Laws of Christ, the most Learn'd Patrons of the Regal Supremacy have been still oblig'd (unless they have declar'd themselves openly Erastian) to espouse those Principles, which necessarily and directly infer the Intrinsic Power of the Church in matters merely-Ecclesiastical, of which I will give several Instances.

In King Henry 8th his time, when the Supremacy was carry'd as high in words and Expressions, as ever it has been since, the Book Entitul'd, the Institution for the Necessary Erudition of a Christian Man, was concluded in Convocation, and publish'd by Authority; out of which Book, and out of another, call'd, de Differentia Regia & Ecclesiastica Potestatis, and other Authentic Pieces done by the most Zealous of that time and Nation against the Pope's Supremacy, Bishop Burnet gives us an Abstract of the Aiguments against it, and for the Regal Supremacy, and for the Inherent Power of the Church too. For the Regal Supremacy, they argu'd from the Practice of the Kings of the Old Testament, commanding Priests as well as others; which no Presbyterian denies to be a good Argument against exempting the Clergy from the Jurisdiction of the Secular Powers. From the New Testament they argue, from Christ's Example in paying Taxes, pretending to no Earthly Kingdom, and Cammanding his spostles to be subject as well as others to the Magistrates, the' then Heathen: which fixes the Supremacy upon a foot, which no Presbyterians deny.

From the Fathers they argu'd that the Emperors call'd Councils, confirm'd their Canons, and that their Canons had not any Compulsive Authority, but what was derived from the Civil Sanction. All this is allow'd by Presbyterians, and yet the Intrinsic Power safe still. And I can't but take particular Notice of an Objection they name and answer concerning the Peculiar Functions of the Clergy, and how they reconcile this to the Regal Supremacy.

For (k) the great Objection from those Offices that are peculiar to their Functions, It was answer'd, that these notwithstanding the

(k) Burnet's History of the Reformation Part 1. Book 2. p. 141.

Part 1. King might well be Supreme Head: for in the natural Body, there were many Vital Motions that proceeded not from the Head, but from the Heart, and the other Inward Parts and Vessels: and yet the Head was still the chief Seat and Root of life: So tho'. there. be peculiar Functions appropriated to Church-men, yet the King is still Head, having Authority over them, and a power to DIRECT and COERCE them in these.

> All they affert here of the Supremacy, is a Directing and Coercing Power in the Crown: which is nothing still but the Power of the Civil Sword, and a careful use of it for compelling Clergy-men, (if need be) to do their Duty, which Presbyterians assert in express Words, in Their Confessions and other Public Papers already Quoted.

And when they had produc'd these arguments for the Regal Supremacy, Eurnet says of them, But (1) at the same time that they pleaded so much for the King's Supremacy, and power of making Laws for Restraining and Coercing his Subjects, it appear'd that they were far from vesting him with such an absolute Power, as the Popes had pretended to, for they thus designed the extent of the Kings Power. To them specially and principally, it pertaineth to defend the Faith of Christ, and his Religion, to conserve and maintain the true Doctrine of Christ, and all such as be true Preachers and Setters forth thereof; and to Abolish Abuses, Heresies, and Idolatries, and to punish with Corporal pains such as of Malice be occasion of the fame. And finally to over see and cause that the said Bishops and Priests do execute their Pastoral Office truly and faithfully, and specially in these ? Points, which by Christ and his Apostles was given and committed to them.

'Thus it appears, that they both limited obedience to the King's Laws, with the due Caution of their not being contrary to the Law of God, and acknowledg'd the Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction in the Discharge of the Pastoral Office, committed to the Pastors of the Church by Christ and his Apostles; and that the Supremacy then pretended to, was no such extravagant Power as some imagine.

In

In the year 1538. Light Bishops give a full Account of their Sentiments about the Intrinsic Power of the Church, and the Regal Supremacy which they have left upon Record under their hands in these words.

The Judgment of some Bishops concerning the King's Supremacy.

An ORIGINAL. (m)

HE Words of St. John in his 20th Chap. Sicut misst me Pater, ' & ego mitto vos, &c. hath no respect to a King's or a Prince's Power, but only to shew how that the Ministers of the Word of God, chosen and sent for that Intent, are the Messengers of 6 Christ, to Teach the Truth of his Gospel, and to loose and bind sin, &c. As Christ was the Messenger of his Father. The Words also of St. Paul in the 20th Chap. of the Acts; Attendite vebis & universo gregi, in quo vos Spiritus Sanctus posuit Episcopos, regere Ecclesiam Dei, were spoken to the Rishops and Priests, to be diligent Pastors of the People, both to Teach them diligently, and also to be 6 Circumspect that false Preachers shou'd not seduce the People, as followeth immediately after in the same place. Other places of Scripture declare the Highness and Excellency of Christian Princes Authority and Power; the which of a Touth is most high, for he hath Power and Charge generally over all, as well Bishops and Priests as others. The Bishops and Priests have Charge of Souls within their own Cures, Power to Minister Sacraments, and to teach the Word of God; to the which Word of God Christian Princes know-G 2

(m) id. ibid. Cellection of Records Book 3. p. 177.

Part I. knowledge themselves Subject; and in case the Bishops be neglitient. gent, it is the Christian Princes Office to see them do their Duty.

T. Cantuarien. Joannes London. Nicolaus Sarisburien. Cuthbertus Dunchman. Hugo Wygorn. Jo. Barwellen-

Thomas Elien. K. Roffan.

Herein these Bishops fix the Power of the Pastors and Governors of the Christian Church, to bind and loose Sin, (which includes the Power of Church-Government and Discipline). upon a Commission from Christ, and deny that this Commission hath any respect to the I'ower of Kings and Princes; which is in Effect to say, That Princes have no Spiritual Power of Church-Government or Discipline; and then they declare for the King's Power over all Persons, Bishops as well as others: but when they tell us what this Power is, they say no more of it, but that in Case the Bishops be negligent, 'tis the Chrifinn Prince's Office to see them do their Duty, which Presbyterians heartily agree to.

In or about the same Year, 1538, there was a much fuller Paper concerning Orders and Ecclesiastical Functions Sign'd by Crommell, the two Arch-bishops and Eleven Bishops, and twenty Divines and Canonists, declaring that the Power of the Keys, and other Church-Functions is farmally distinct from the Power of the Sword (n) a Part whereof I shall here Transcribe.

A DECLARATION made of the Functions and Divine Institution of Bishops and Priests;

An ORIGINAL:

HRIST. (0) and his Apostles did institute and ordain in the New 'Testament, that besides the Civil Powers and Governance of Kings

(n) id. ibid. Book. 3. p. 365. (o) id. ibid Addenda p. 321. &c

Kings and Princes, which is call'd in Scripture, Potestas Gladii, the Part I. • Power of the Sword, there should be also continually in the Church-Mi-· litant, certain other Ministers or Officers, which should have Spiri-• tual Power, Authority and Commission under Corist, to Preach and * Teach the Word of God, unto his People, and to Dispense and • Administer the Succements of God unto them; and by the same to e confer and give the Grace of the Holy Ghost, to consecrate the Bleffed Body of Christ in the Secrement of the Alter, to loofe and ab-· soil from Sin, all Persons which be duly Penitent and sorry for the same; to bind and Excommunicate such as he Guilty in Manisest Crimes and sins, and will not Amend their Defaults; to Order and • consecrate others in the same Room, Order and Office, whereunto they be call'd and admitted themselves, and finally to feed Christ's • People like good Passors, and Rectors, as the Apostle calleth them, with their wholsom Doctrine, and by their Continual exhortations and Monicions to reduce them from Sin and Iniquity, so much as ' in them lyeth, and to bring them unto the perfect knowledge, the perfect love and dread of God, and unto the perfect Charity of their Neighbours. Item, That this Office, this Power and Authority, was committed and given by Christ and his Aposties to certain Persons only, that is to say, unso Priests and Bishops, whom they did Elect, call and admit thereuned by their Prayers and Imposition of their hands.

Themas Cronswell.

Rich. Cicestr.

Richardus Smith.

Themas Cronswell.
T. Cantuarien, Edwardns Elwr.
Joannes London.
Guthbertus Dunelmensis.
Jeannes Linceln.
Jeannes Bathoniens.
Thomas Blien.
Joannes Bangers.
Nicelaus Sarum.
Edwardus Hereswell.
Hugo Wygorn.
Joannes Rossen.

Richardus Wolman.

Foannes Bell.

Willielmus Clyffe.

Robertus Aldrige.

Gilfridus Downes.

Foannes Skip.

Cuthbertus Marshall.

Marmaduke Waldeby.

Robertus Oking.

Nicolaus Heyeh.

Rodalphus Bradford.

Richardus Smith.
Simon Matthew.
Joannes Prynn.
Gulielmus Buckmastre: Willielmus Maye.
Nicolaus Wotton.
Richardus Cox.
Joannes Redman.
Thomas Robertson:
Thomas Baret.
Joannes Nase.
Joannes Barbar.

(Some

Part 1.

(Some other hands there are that cannot be read)

Sacra Theologia, Juris Ecclesiastici, & Civilis Professores.

It appears plain from this Paper, That these Prelates and Divines were not for any other Supremacy in the Crown, than what is consistent with the Intrinsic Power of the Church in Ecclesiastical Discipline. For Besides, that they assert a Power and Authority in Bishops to excommunicate and absolve, by vertueof a Commission from Christ, and distinct from Civil Magistracy, they expressly assert that this Power and Authority was committed to certain persons only viz. Priests and Bishops; and therefore they cou'd not think that the Magistrates Commission Entitled him to that Power and Authority, unless they wou'd make him a Priest or a Bishop by vertue of his Office as a Magistrate; A Thought too gross to be imputed to men of their sense and Learning. And it ought to be remark'd, That not only the Venetable Cranmer, the Martyr, But Cromwell sign'd this Paper; tho' the latter had an Extraordinary Office, & was call'd the King's Vicegerent in Ecclesiastical Affairs; and it can't be supposed, That he wou'd have consented to the Inherent Power of the Church fully afferted in this Paper, if he had believed it to have been a Disloyal Principle.

Bishop Burnet, a Strenuous assertor of the Regal Supremacy in Matters Ecclesistical, when he comes to explain it, makes it only a Civil Power; for in his answer to Sanders's Book of the English Schism he states one of Sanders's Objections against the Reformed thus. He (p) says, King Edward was not only declar'd King of England, and Ireland, but made Supreme Head of the Church; and upon that runs out, to shew how uncapable a Child was of that Power. To which he replies thus, This is set down in such Terms, as if there had been some special Act made for his being Supreme Head of the Church, distinct from his being proclaim'd King, where as there was no such thing; for the Supremacy being annex'd to the Crown, the one went with the other: And it being BUT A CIVIL POWER, might be as well exercised by the King's (p) Hist. of the Resorm. Part 2. Appendix p. 383.

Presbyterian Principles.

Governors, before he came to be of Age, as the other Rights of Part I.

And if this Power of the Crown be only a Civil Power, that is, the Power of the civil Sword, 'tis plain that a Spiritual Power of Church-Government and Discipline is quite another thing, and may be Inherent in the Church, tho' the other remain entirely in the Civil Magistrate; who, has his right to it not by his Religion, but by his Office, as Magistrate; (as the same Rev'd. Author clears, in his Explication of the 37th Article, which I have quoted p 28,29 and therefore can't be invested with the Evangelical and Spiritual Power of Church-Government, committed by Christ to the Pastors and Governors of the Church; which Dr. Burnet is not willing to put into the hand of Laymen: For after he had sinish'd his Excellent History of the Reformation under Queen Elizabeth, in the Points of Doctrine and Worship: he makes this Resection upon the Reformation, in point of Church Government.

As (q) for the Canons and Rules of the Church-Government, they were not so soon prepat'd. There came out some in the Year 1571, and more in the year 1597, and a far larger Collection of them in the first Year of King James's Reign. But this matter has yet wanted its chief force; for the Penitentiary Canons have not been set up, and the Government of the Church is not yet brought into the the hands of Church-men. So that in this point, the Reformation of the Church wants some part of its sinishing, in the Government and Discipline of it.

Here indeed he speaks of the Churches Spiritual and Inherent Power of Government and Discipline, which he wou'd have plac'd in the hands of Church-men and of none others, subject to the Civil Supremacy of the Prince even in Matters Ecclesiastical; which Presoyterians reckon the true way of explaining the Distinction and Relation between the Power of the Sword, and the Power of the Keys.

The same Learn'd Author advances a Principle in his Preface to his second part of the History of the Reformation, which necessarily infers all the Inherent Church-Power, that ever Presbyterians pleaded for: For, while he is bewailing the Heats and Contentions that that arose early in England about the Power of Bishops and Presbyters in the Matter of Church-Government and Discipline; he acquaints us with the Issue of the Debate; and speaking of Ecchastical Discipline he says, 'And all went into those Courts commonly call'd he Spiritual Courts; without making Distinction between those Causes of Testaments, Marriages and such other sutes, that require some learning in the Civil and Canon Law, and the other Gauses of the Censures of the Clergy and Laity, which are of a more Spiritual Nature, and ought indeed to be tryed ONLY by the Bishops and Clergy; for they are no small part of the Care of souls, which is incumbent on them: and by THEM ONLY Excommunications ought to be made, as being a Suspension from the Sacred Rights of Christians, of which NONE can be the COM-PETENT JUDGES, but those to whom the Charge of Souls is Committed:

Part I.

Dr. Potter Regins Professor of Divinity in the University of Oxford hath written a Book, Initial'd, A Discourse of Courch-Government, wherein the Rights of the Church, and the Supremacy of Christian Princes, are vindicated and adjusted. In his 5th Chapter of that Book, he fully maintains the same Principles asserted by the Bishops and Clergy and I have already mention'd, for the Churches Inherent Power, as appears from the following Passiges, 'The (r) Nature and Design of the Powers, which belong to the Church, will best appear by considering the Constitution of the Church, and the ends for which it was founded: Which having been formerly shown to be Spiritual, and such as wholly relate to the next World; it follows that all the Powers, which belong to the Church are of the same Nature; and consequently distinct from those of Civil Magistrates, which concern the assairs of this life, and are design'd for the present Welfare of Human Societies.

In (1) treating on the present argument; I shall endeavor to show. First, THAT our Elessed Lord has entrusted the Church, and particularly the Governors of it with authority to censure Offenders, and exclude them from its Communion. Secondly, THAT this authority was constantly exercised and held to be of Divine Right

Presbyterian Principles. Chap. 1:

Right in the first ages of the Church. Thirdly, THAT it is most Part 14 agreeable to Reason, & to the general sense and Practice of Mankind, that the Church shou'd exercise this Authority.

He enlarges upon those three Heads, and proves the Churches Inherent Power and Right in Ecclesiaical matters: and as he often afferts the thing it self, so he frequently mentions the very Terms INHERENT AUIHORITY, and INHERENT POWER (t) and ascribes them to the Bishops and Clergy of the Christian Church, as rightfully belonging to them by our Savier's Commission, and from the Consideration of the Churche's being a Spiritual Society.

This Paper wou'd swell to too great a bulk, shou'd i here insert the Quotations I might adduce from the Writings of the Revd. Dr. Atterbury, and several other Famous Modern Divines of the Church of England, who put in for as large a measure of Inherent Church-

Power as ever the Presbyterians claim'd.

Upon the whole, I hope the reader will be satisfy'd from what has been offer'd upon this Head, that Presbyterians do acknowledge and chearfully yield to Magistrates the Intire Civil Jurisdiction in as ample a manner as any other faithful Subjects whatsoever. In Ecclesiastical affairs they allow them all the Power that's necessary for preserving true religion, Unity, and Peace in the Church; for correcting and reforming all Abuses; and taking order that every thing in it he done according to the Word of God: and that they should make use of the Power of the Sword by vertue of a Political Civil SUPREMACY in Ecclesiastical Matters, according to the Explication thereof in the 37th Article of the Church of England.

And seeing all the Inherent Church-Power they claim is Consistent with all the above Rights, Powers and Prerogatives belonging to Civil Authority, and is agreeable to the Judgment and Sentiments of the purest Primitive Churches in the three first Centuries; of the Christian Emperous, of the General Council of Constantineple where there were 150 Orthodox Biscops, and of other Bishops and Fathers in the 4th Century; and of many Archbishops and Bishops and other H

Part I. Clergy of the Churches of England and Ireland, and some of them amongst the first Reformers, Martyrs, and most Eminent Lights for Piety and Learning that have appear'd in them. It seems to me to be a plain and unanswerable Consequence, That either Presbyteriansare unjustly charg'd with Disloyalty for their asserting an Inherent Church-Power in matters meerlySpiritual and Ecclesiastical; or, that all the Persons I have mention'd must be reputed Disloyal and Injurious to the Secular Powers, and the Magistrates unwise and unjust so themselves for their consenting to it.

And as all the Rights of Magistracy, even in Ecclesiastical Matters. are well secur'd by the Limitations and Restrictions put upon the Inherent Power, as 'tis afferted and explain'd by Presbyterians; so the right exercise of the Political Supremacy is render'd the more easy and practicable by a Principle of Presbyterians, which is this. Their Clergy have no vote in any Civil Court (from the High Court of Parliament to the meanest in the Kingdom) they do not allow themselves a Liberty of Intermeddling in those things; their principles do not permit 'em to share either in the Legislature, or the meanest Office in the Civil Magistracy: Whereby the State has the fullest and greatest Liberty imaginable to correct all their Disorders, & reform all their Abuses, Intrusions, Incroachments or any violation of Civil Rights, or even the abuses of their Ecclesiastical Functions. Whereas a Clergy who have a large share in the Civil Administration, are still the more capable of resisting those Acts of the Legislature and Government, which may become necessary for reforming the Church from these Corruptions, wherein frequently themselves may have too great an hand. This is known by fad experience in many Popish Countries, where the Clergy not only rule the Church, but have become so great by their engrossing Secular Employments and the greatest Posts at Court, that they govern the State, and become too great for the Magistrate to meddle with them, let their faults, and Church-Corruptions be what they will. And by this means, they have both an Intrinsic and Extrinsic Power in the Church, the Conjunction whereof in the hands of Ambitious men may indeed prove dangerous to the State, and generally introduces Corruption into the Church.

But there is not the least ground of uneasiness to the Civil Magistrate, on this Account, in the Case of Presbyterian Ministers: their Parity in the InherentSpiritual Power, and their Renouncing all Civil Posts, and Employments makes it Impossible for them to be a Dead Weight upon the honest Measures of Any Government, or to awe the Magistrate into a truckling service way of abetting instead of Correcting their Errors; Besides, that it enables em to discharge the more faithfully the Inherent Trust and Powers of their Spiritual Function, while they give themselves wholly to it. They reckon it ground of Mighty Comfort and Peace to em, That their principles exclude em from the Guilt of that Crime, which was so particularly Censur'd by the greatest men that have been in the Church in its best Times; whereof I shall give the Reader a short Account, in the Words and Opinion of the very Learn'd Historian (Dr. Burnet) who speaking of Bishop Goodrick's being made Ld. Chancellor in 1551. says.

the

When (u) the Reformation was first preach'd in England, Tindal, 4 Barns, & Latimer, took an Occasion, from the great pomp & Luxury of 4 Gardinal Welsey, and the Secular Imployments of the other Bishops and Clergy-men to represent them as a Sort of Men that had whol-4 ly neglected the Care of Souls, and those Spiritual Studies and Exercises that disposed Men to such Functions; and only carried the Names of Bishops and Church-Men, to be a Colour to serve their Ambition and Covetousness, And this had raised great Prejudices in the Minds of the people against those who were called their pastors, when they saw them fill their Heads with cares, that were at least Impertinent to their Callings, if not Inconsistent with the Duties that belonged to them. So now upon Goodrick's 4 being made Lord Chancellor, that was a Reformed Bishop, it was said by their Adversaries, these Men only con-6 demn'd Secular Imployments in the Hands of Church-men, because their Enemies had them, but chang'd their mind as soon as any of their own Party came to be advanc'd to them. But as Goode rick was rais'd by the popish Interest in Opposition to the Duke of Somerset, and to Cranmer, that was his firm Friend; so it apbear'd in the Beginning of Queen Maries Reign, that he was ready to turn with every Tide: And that whether he joyn'd in the Reformation only in Compliance to the time, or was persuaded in his mind concerning it; yet he had not that sense of it that became a Bishop, and was one of these who resolv'd to make as much Advantage by it as he could, but would suffer nothing for it. H 2 his Part I. his Practice in this matter is neither a Precedent to justifie the like in others, nor can it cast a Scandal on those to whom he join'd Christ being spoke to divide an inheritance between two himself. Bretbren, faid, Who made me a Judge or a Divider? St. Paut · Speaking of Church-men, says, No Man that warreth intangleth himself with the affairs of this life: Which was understood by St. Cyprian as a PERPETUAL RULE against the Secular Employments of the Clergy. There are THREE of the Apostilical Canons ae gainst it: And Cyprian reckoning up the Sins of his time, that had brovok'd God to send a Persecution on the Church, names this, that many Bishops forsaking their Sees, undertook Secular Cares. In which he was so strict, that he thought the being Tutor to Orphans was a Distraction unsutable to their Character: So that one Priest leaving another Tutor to his Children, because by the Ro-" man Law he to whom this was left was oblig'd to undergo it, the Priests name who made that Testament was appointed to be ftruck out of the List of those Church-men who had died in the Faith, and were remembred in the daily Offices. Same at enus is represented as one of the first Eminent Church-men that involv'd' himself much in secular Cares. Upon the Emperor's turning Chritian, it was a natural effect of their Conversion for them to che-' rish the Bishops much, and many of the Bishops became so much in love with the Court and public Imployments, that Canons were " made against their going to Count, unless they were call'd, and the " Canalis or Road to the Court was kept by the Bishop of Rome, so that none might go without his Warrant. Their meddling in Secular matters was also condemn'd in MANY Provincial Councils, but most copiously and Amply by the GENERAL COUN-" CIL at Chaicedon.

But I proceed to examine what our Author objects to Presbyterians, of their exerting this Inherent Power to the Excommunication and Exclusion of the Civil Magistrate. Excommunication is proceeded in with as great Solemnies and Caution by the Presbyterians as by any Reople In the Worlds, as may be seen in the Scots Assemblie's Form of Process in their Printed Acts, Anno 1707. Notorious Scandals, unrepented of and obstinately persisted in are in the Judgment of alker sound Churhes sufficient Ground for Excommunication. And the true question is, whether Magistracy does Entitle any Person.

to the Priviledges of Christian Communion, notwithstanding of his be-Parting as notoriously, Scandalously and Obstinately Profane and Wicked, as you can suppose any Body to be? whether is it the duty of an honest &faithfulClergy-man togive the Sacrament to such a prince? Or mayhe not justlyresuse it him, & yet be a good Loyal Subject? Let us hear what the Church of Englandsays upon this Head. zd Book of Homilies. Hom. of the Right use of the Church, part 2d. they say, 'And according to this Example of our Saviour Christ, in the Primitive-Courch, which was most Holy and Godly, and in the which due Discipline with severity was us'd against the Wicked, open offenders were not once suffer'd to enter into the House of the Lord, nor admitted to Com-" mon Prayer and the use of the Holy Sacraments with other true Christians, untill they had done open Penance before the whole Church. And this was Practis'd not only upon mean Persons, but also upon the Rich Noble and Mighty Persons, YEA UPON THEODOSIUS "THAT PUISSANT and MIGHIY EMPEROR whom for committing a Grievous and Wilful Murther St. Ambrose Bishop of Milan reproved sharply, and did also EXCOMMUNICATE THE SAID EMPEROR, and brought him to open Pennance. And they that were so justly exempted and banici'd (as it were) from the House of the Lord, were taken (as they be indeed, ) for Men divided and separated from Christ's Church, and in most dangerous Estate, yea as St. Paul saith; even given unto Satan the Devil for a Time. Here is the History of the Excommunication of a Puissant and Mighty Emperor, and his being brought to open Pennance approv'd by the Church of England. Why a Son of the Church shou'd tax Presbyterians with a Principle which he says makes all Crown'd Heads their Vassals, when his own Church mentions that same Principle asjust and Laudable, and yet does not believe any such Consequence to follow from it, is what I am not bound to account for. If he be a Layman, perhaps he has never read the Hemiliee, and so his Ignorance extenuates his Crime; but then Methinks, he shou'd not be so presending, to accuse the Principles of others, untill he first learn his own a little better: If he be a Clergyman, I'm at a greater loss what to say for him, because he hath subscrib'd the 39 Articles, the 35th whereof approves the Homilies as containing a Godly and wholesom Doctrine and necessary for these times, and judgeth them to be read in Churches by the Ministers diligently and distinctly.

As to the Exclusion of the Civil: Magistate, if he means Exclusion from Part I. from his Civil Jurisdiction, 'tis what the Inherent Power has nothing to do with, it being purely Civil, and consequently what no Presbyterian Church-Judicatory lays claim to, but expressly renounceth 2d. Book of Discipline Chap. 7. Diligence shou'd be taken; chiefly by the Moderator, that only Ecclesiastical things be handled in the Assemblies, and that there be no meddling with any thing pertaining to the Civil Jurisdiction.

Our Author further objects (p. 5.) Nor is the Prince alone thus fubject, but all the Laws of the Nation, which they shall judge any way relating to the Kirk, (and what Law can they not, and in a manner have they not reduc'd to that Head) are so wholly in 4 the Power of the Kirk, that they shall null and make them void without any consent of the Legislature; and that by a power Inherent in the Kirk, Superior to and Independent of all Authority of the Civil Magistrate, even by a Commission from Christ, of : whose Extent they are the sole and proper Judges. Now that this is the known Principle of the Presbyterian Kirk, by their Books of Discipline, and repeated Acts of their Assemblies, will be ma-spifest to all, who will take the pains to peruse them.

Answ. It is no Dishonor to the Prince, That he, as a Christian. shou'd be subject to the Laws of Christ. Does not every Pious Maeistrate look upon himself bound in Conscience to obey the Word of God preach'd to him, and to amend those faults for which he may (with all due Deference to his Character as a Magistrate) be admonish'd by Christs faithful Servants; who, seeing they have the charge of the Magistrate's Soul and must give an Account to God, they must dispense all the means of Grace and Salvation to him, of which the Right use of the Power of the Keys by Church-Censures (when needful) as well as by Doctrine is a part; which they can't omit in the Case of Christian Magistrates without manifest Unfaithfulness both to God and their Souls: For our Savier's Commission runs thus What soever (v) you shall bind on Earth, shall be bound in Heaven, whofoever sins you remit they are remitted to them; and whosoever Sins you retain they are retained (w). Magistrates are not excepted here: And seeing the Church of England allows, That they may be Excommunicated as well as other men; it necessirily follows, that Part I, they are in that respect subject to those who are Entrusted with the Power of Ecclesiastical Discipline, for the good of their Souls; tho' as they are invested with Regal Dignity and the Supreme Civil-Power, they are not subject to the Churches Authority; nor can their Sovereign Power and Dignity be in the least affected, or they divested of it, by the Highest Acts of Church Power which touch them. only as Christians and Members of the Church. And tho' the servants of Christ must do nothing by Partiality, yet they ought to use the utmost Discretion and Prudence in the use of their Spiritual-Power in Censuring Scandalous Magistrates. And here I can't forbear the mentioning of a Resolution of the English Puritans in this ease, which savors very much both of Piety and Loyalty; 'tis to be found in the Book Entitul'd, English Puritanism, containing the main Opinions of the Rigider sort of those who are call'd Puritans in the Realm of England. In the 3th Chap. Concerning the Censures of the Church, they hold 'That if the Party offending be their Civil Superior, that then they are to use even throughout the whole Carriage of their <sup>4</sup> Censure, all Civil Complements, Offices & Reverence due unto him; That they are not to presume to convent him before them, but are * themselves to go in all Civil and humble Manner unto him, to stand bare before him, to bow unto him, to give him all Civil Titles belonging to him; and if he be a King, and supreme Ruler, they are to kneel down before him. And in the bumblest manner to' * Censure his faults, so that he may see apparently, That they are not carried with the least spice of Malice against his Person, but only with Zeal of the health and salvation of his Soul.

The Emperor Valentinian, in his Speech to the Bishops assambled for the Election of a Bishop for the City of Milan (who at that very time choic Ambrose to that Office) signify'd his Christian Disposition chearfully to submit bimself to any Godly Bishop that shou'd be Elected by them. And because Dr. Burnet gives us a piece of History Relating to it which I design'd to have inserted in the 30th page of this Book immediately before the last line of that page, and now Ending that 'twas omitted in the transcribing of my Papers there, I shall set it down here.

Part 1.

" And (x) thus we see what let in the Confusions that were in some Elections. It was partly the Differences in Religion, and chiefly the Wealth and Dignity of Sees in the great Towns. An Instance of this appear'd at Milan; where, upon the death of Auxentius who was an Arian, the (y) Emperor call'd the Bishops toegether, and desired THEM TO CHUSE such a Bishop as might. both by his life and doctrine, Instruct those whom he was to govern. and that he might see such a Person set up, to whom he that held the Empire, might ckearfully SUBMIT HIMSELF, and receive his Reproofs as a healthful Medicine, since be 4 kimfelf was a man and had many failings. The Synod upon this defired that he would name the Person. But he said that was above him to undertake and so he left it to them Upon which the Bishops went to consult about it; Thus we see the Empefrors declin'd to meddle in these Elections, and lest them still free. While our Author endeavors to prove That all the Laws of the Nation &c. are so wholly in the Power of the Kirk, that they shall null and make them void & c by their Inherent Power; he quotes and offers manifest violence to the sense of a Paragraph of the 2d. Book of Discipline Chap 7 the words are. This Assembly hath Power to abrogate and abolish all Statutes and Ordinances concerning Ecelesiastical Matters that are found Noysom or Unprofitable, and agree not with the time ". To infer from hence (as he does) That all the Laws of she Nation, which they shall judge any way relating to the Kirk &c. may be made void &c. is a most false Consequence. Ecclesiastical Matters are Spiritual Matters relating to men's Conscience: But a Law may have Relation to the Kirk, when only some External Reward, or Civil Punishment is intended and Statuted in it. or in diverse other Respects may be some way relating to the Kirk, tho' it be not structly concerning Ecclesiastical Matters. But to show the fallacy of his whole Reasoning upon this Head, let the Reader be pleas d to peruse the Answer to Lysimachus Nicanor (2) 'Ye object says he p. 18) an annulling (x) durnet's Hist. of the Rights of Princes. p. 37, 38. (y) Theod. 1. 4 c 6, 7. z) The Book call'd Lysimachus Nicanor was publish'd in the Reignof King Crarles 1. and is stuff'd with such Reflections as the Author of the Irne blue has in his Papers; and was resuted in a Judicious Answer of which the above Quotation is a part.

of the Acts of Parliament by the Decrees of our Assemblies, and the Part I. extending the Power of our Synod to many Secular

---What ye speak of our encroaching upon Parliaments is no ways true; only some evil Acts of your evidently corrupted Assemblies, whereto ye had obtain'd, by your familar Acts of fraud and force the Ratification of some Parliaments we did recognosce, and that alone in their Ecclesiastic part, with the good leave of the King's Commissioner: As for the Civil Sanction of Parliament, according to the ordinar Ecclesiastic Proceeding of our Church in all by-gone times, we did appoint Commissioners from our Assembly to Supplicate the Parliament for the Abolition thereof, neither do we meddle at all in our Synods with Secular : Affairs: Remember what your self in your Canons do pronounce to be the due and lawful subject of Ecclesiastic Jurisdiction, ye will find that our General Affemblies did never take in so much matter as ye appropriate to any of your Official Courts.

To justify this Answer, let the Reader consider that in the General Assembly met August 4th 1590. Their (a) Moderator having exhorted the Brethren to deal earnestly with the King, to rescind and annul dangerous Asts and Laws, made in Prejudice of the Discipline & Liberty of Christ's Kingdom; they did draw up&present to the King an humble Petition, and clause whereof was, That all Acts made contrary to the Liberty and Jurisdiction of the said

Kirk, preceding the date hereof, be ABOLISHED.

The Assembly met May 21. 1591. Petitions the King, 'That (b) the Acts of Parliament made in the Year of God 1584. against the Discipline of the Kirk Liberty and Authority thereof be annulled, and the present Discipline, whereof the Kirk hath had the Practice, be ratify'd.

From these and other Instances that could be given (if necessary) its plain, That the Assembly by STATUTES and ORDINANCES. in that place, did not in the least mean the Statutes and Ordinances of the State, but of the Church in her Assemblies; otherwise they needed not have Petition'd King and Parliament to abrogate them, but wou'd have done it themselves, if they had judg'd it had belong'd

Part I to their Inherent Power to do it: It was agreeable enough to the language of that Age to call the Canons of Councils and Synods by the name of Statutes and Ordinances: they are call'd Ordinances, in that same 7 Chap. of the 2d: Book of Discipline, 'It belongs (Say they) to this kind of Assembly, to cause the ORDINANCES made by the Assemblies Provincial, National and General to be kept and put in Execution. That in that Age they were also term'd Statuses, appears by the following Instances. Calderwood in his History. p: 94. giving an Account of a Canon of the Council of Nice concerning Ordination, Tays, " In the Council of Nice, for eshewing of private. Ordaining of Ministers, it was STATUTED &c. In the Assembly 1600. In two of their Acts, there is this phrase, It is STATUTE and ORD AIN'D (c). And in the same Assembly it was represented in the King's presence, That the Ministers urg'd Slanderous Persons Grc so purge themselves, conform to the STATUIES of the KIRK (d) And the Assembly 1602 (e) makes An Act concerning the Administration of Baptism; wherein they say, It is STATUTE &c, All. which instances prove, that 'sis no Violence offer'd to the Common signification of the Words in that age, to expound Statutes and Ordinances mention'd in the 2d. Rook of Discipline, of such as were. made by the Church; which compar'd with their Constant Prastice. of Petitioning the State for the Abrogation of such Laws as were a Grievance to them, demonstrates how unsair a Representation our Author has given of this Principle.

> After be has by a wide stretch drawn in the Laws of the State into the meaning of that phrase STATUTES and ORDINANCES. and by the same Candor expounded Ecclesiastical Affairs to be what any way relate to the Kirk, all this won't serve him, but he must add a most Malicious and Uncharitable Insinuation in these words; And. What Law can they not, and in a manner have they not reduc'd to that Head. He has notinitanc'd, norcan't instance one Law that ever was reduc'dby them to that Head, but what is plainly reducible to it; and if it be a Law of the State, he can't give an Instance, wherein they ever pretended to abrogate and annul the least Clause of it, but left it:

always to the Legislature that made it.

For-

£.:.

T.

For what Reason our Author has in his Quotation of this Passage Part I. out of the 2d. Book of Discipline Chap. 7. added these words, without any Reclamation or Appellation to any Judge Civil or Ecclesiastical (the there are no such words there, but they are in the 12th Chap. and upon another Occasion) he himself best knows. If this be fair dealing, 'twill be in any man's Power at the same Rate to turn the best sense and the greatest Truck that can be contain'd in any Books, into the meerest Nonsense, and the vilest Error, that can be well imagin'd. You may only shuffle together a sew Sentences, distorted from their proper places, without altering one word of them, and so the work is done.

He brings in this Clause in a place, which he expounds of an Abrogation of the Civil Laws of the Nation; the power whereof the Presbyteria as never pretended to; but much more intolerable and insolent wou'd such a Pretension be, if it lest no room for Appeal to any Civil Judge, who indeed is the Proper and only Judge in all such Cases. Whereas the Clause is put in such a placeas evidently shows, That 'tis only in Causes Ecclesiastical, there lyes to Appeal to the Civil Judge. The words are (Chap. 12) 'And all men as well Magistrates, as Inferiors, to be subject to the Judgment of the same (i. e. the National Assemblies) in Causes Ecclesiastical, without any Reclamation or Appellation to any Judge Civil or Ecclesiastical within the Realm. And because a great part of his Reasoning, or rather Re-Alections are grounded upon this last sensence, I shall a little consider its true meaning, however is be misplac'd by him. The whole Nicesy of this Matter lieth in the word APPELLATION: For the' they do not allow of a Formal Appeal, yet they yield all that's necessary or can be desir'd by the Magistrate in order to his using his Authority of the Civil Sword, for correcting any Male-Administrations committed by them in the Exercise of the Power of the Keys.

The Assembly Anne 1585. (f) in their Petition to the Kingsay 'Your Highones will grant us Liberty and Freedom to hold our Ordinar afsemblies, and use such Discipline as we were in use of before these late Acts, for Government of the Ecclesiastical affairs; concerning which we shall be at all times ready to give an Account to God,

2 Tour

Part I. Your Majesty and Council, if we do any thing beside our Duty, or topersurb the Common-wealth. And this is agreeable to the 2d' Book of Discipline Chap. 1. Wherein they say, The Civil Power shou'd Command the Spiritual to exercise and to do their Duty according to the word of God.

The late Revd. Mr. Samuel Rutherfurd Professor of Divinity at St. Andrews, and the late Revd Mr George Gillespie Minr. at Edenburgh ( two Famous Scots Presbyterian Divines, Commissioners from the Church of Scotland to the Westminster Assembly ) are allow'd by all such Presbyterians, as have I Convers'd with, to stand as strictly by their Principles about the Inherent Power of the Keys, and the Ecclesastical Liberties of the Church in the Exercise thereof, as any of their Writers, and yet they make such Concessions as do fully answer: all the Ends of Civil Authority in Ecclesiastical affairs.

Mr Ruthersurd in his Book Entitul'd, a Péaceable and Temperate" Plea for Paul's Presbytery in Scotland, savs 'The (g) King's Royal e Power in adding his Sanction to the Ecclesiastical Constitutions, and in punishing such as are decreed to be Heretics by the Church

' is Regal, and not Ministerial and Servile. See for this the Counc.

Chalced. Act. 16. the Imperial Laws, Cod. 1. 1. Tit. 8. leg. 2 Heretic. · Vocab. and Decret. p. 2. cauf. 23. q: 8. c. 30. crossing Bellar. de e-pont. b. 1. c. 7. So do their own men goagainst Bellarmine in this as Sanderus de Clavib. David. l. 2, c. 13. Carerius de potest. sum. pont.

L. 2. c.: 23. Leo Epift. 38. to Martian &c. Pulcheria, and Leo Epift. 7. to Theodosius. Becanus erreth here with Bellarmine, making the King-as a servant oblig'd to add his Sanction Civil to Eccle-fiastical Canons. Becan. in opusc. exam. Conc. Anglic. c. y.

"I. Becaule the use of the Sword at God's Commandement is a " Kingly act commanded by God, and is service done to God, not to the Church.

2. Neither is the King so to execute the Churches Will, as he should ' judge only of the fact, and of the assumption, yea, he is judge of the Law, and of the Major Proposition. For we see not in the word of God, where a Judge is a Judge to punish a fault, and is not to know judicially that it is a fault: a Judge as a Judge shou'd know

fuch:

fuch a thing to be Heresy, and not take it upon the Word of an Part 1. Assembly of Church-men, Deut. 17. 18, 19. he is expressy to read and know the Law, and to know and remember the Decree, Prov.

* 31. 5. And the Cause which he knoweth not he is to search out, Job 29. 16.

* all which is meant of a knowledge not of privateDiscretion, which is requir'd in all private Christians, but (as I take the places) of a Knowledge Judicial and Authoritative which agreeth to a Judge.

4 as a Judge.

It a Synod err, and decree that man to be an Heretic who is found in the Faith, the King is not oblig'd to err with the synod, and to punish the Innocent, he is to decree Righteous Judgment, and so the King is to judge of Heresy, but after a Regal and Civil way, and with Coaltive Power; as the Synod or Church-Assembly isto judge of Heresy after an Ecclesiastical way, and with a Spiritual-Power. 2. The King punisheth Heresy as it troubleth the Commonwealth, and the Synod as it is Scandalous and Infectious inthe Church.

Yea, and the Christian King ruleth over men as men, and also as Christian men; he ruleth over them as men, with a Dominion. over their bodies, lives and goods by his Civil Laws, he hath also Dominion as King over men, as Christians and Members of Christ's Kingdom and Church, not over their Consciences (for that is e' proper only to the Father of Spirits) but he hath a Coactive power over all men, even Pastors, as to cause them to do their Christian duties, he hath a Power to compel Church men in Assemblies to determine Truth, and to use the Keys Right, and to preach and · use the Sacraments according as Christ hath Commanded in his. Word, and to PUNISH THEM when they do otherwise. . What then if the King discern that to be truth, and absolve the Man. whom the Church-Affembly doth condemn as Heretic, who fhall judge-betwixt them /

' lanswer, the infallible Rule of judging for both is the Word. of God, which speaketh home impartially to both, if they will. hear, but certainly the King's Civil, Kingly Coactive Power to compel "men to do their Duty, remaineth the HIGHEST AND MOST POWER ON EARTH, in genere Potestatis Pobitice, in the kind of Politic Power, and Pastors and all men may, "by this Power, be compelled to do Right: as for the Abuse of the Pawer.

Part I. Power, it is no part of the Power; and in this kind the King hath a NEGATIVE politic and KINGLY SUFFRAGE and voice in all Church Assemblies; no Ecclesiastical Constitution hath the force of a Law without the Politic suffrage of the Civil Judge.

The late Revd. Mr. George Gillespie expresses his mind fully upon the same Subject in the following Words, 'It is far from our meaning (says he) (h) That the Christian Magistrate shou'd not meddle with matters of Religion, or things and Causes Ecclesiastical—certainly there is much Power and Authority which by the Word of God, and by the Confessions of Faith of the Reformed Churches, doth belong to the Christian Magistrate in Matters of Religion. If (i) the Magistrate be offended, at the Sentence given, or Censure inflicted by a Presbytery or aSynod, they ought to be ready in all Humility and respect to give him an Account and reason of such their Proceedings, and by all means to endeavor the satisfaction of the Magistrate his Conscience; or otherwise to be warn'd and Rectify'd, if themselves have erred. Tho' the Case be meerly Spiritual and Ecclesiastical, (k) The Christian Magistrate (by himself and immediately) may not only examine by the Judgment of Discretion the Sentence of the Ecclesiastical Court, but also when he seeth Cause (either upon the Complaint of the Party, or Scandal given to himself) interpose by Letters, Messages, Exhortations and sharp admonitions to the Presbytery or Synod, who in that Case are bound in Conscience, with all Respect and Honor to the Magistrate, to give him a Reason. of what they have done, and to declare the Grounds of their proceedings, till by the Blessing of God upon this free and equal Dealing, they either give a Rational account to the Magistrate, or be themselves convinc'd of their Male-Administration of Discipline. Yea also as Church Officers (1) they are to be kept within the limits of their Calling, and compell'd (if need be) by the Magistrate to do these Duties which by the clear word of God and Receiv'd Principles of Christian Religion, or by the Receiv'd Ecclesiastical Constitutions of the Church, they ought to do. ask'd

(b) A41.011's Rod blossoming, Book 2. Cap. 3. p. 181. (i) Ibid. p. 183 (1) Ibid. .Chap. 8. p. 253. (1) Ibid. Chap. 3. p. 176.

Chap. 1.

* ask'd (m) what Remedy shall there be against the abuse of Church-Part I.

* Discipline by Church-Officers, except there be appeals from the Eccleliastical Courts to the Civil Magistrate—Answer, look what Remedy there is for abuses in the Preaching of the Word, and Administration of the Sacraments, the like Remedy there is for Abuses in Church-Discipline Now when the Word is onot truly preach'd, nor the Sacraments duly Administred by any "Minister or Ministers, the Magistrate seeketh the Redress of these things (in a Constituted Church) by the Convocating of Synods, for Exa-'mining, Discovering, and Judging of such Errors & abuses as are found ' in Particular Churches. But if the Syn od shou'd Connive at, or Comply with that same Error; yet the Magistrate taketh not upon him the Supreme and Authoritative Decision of a Controversy of Faith: But still endeavoreth to help all this by other Etclesiaftical Remedies; as another Synod, and yet another, till the evil be re-" mov'd. The like we say concerning abuses in Church-Discipline: "The Magistrate may COMMAND a Reluming and Re-examination of the case in another Synod.

'And in Corrupto Ecclessie Statu(n). I mean if it shall ever happen That Presbyteries or Synods shall make Defection from the Truth to Error, from Holiness to Prophaneness, from Moderation to Tyranny and Persecution, Censuring the innocent and Absolving the Guilty, And there being no hopes of redressing such Enormities in the Ordinary way by Intrinsical Ecclesiastical Ree medies, that is; by well Constituted Synods or Assemblies of Orthodox, Holy, Moderate Presbyters: In fuch an EXTRAOR-DINARY EXIGENCE, the Christian Magistrate may and ought to INTERPOSE his Authority to do diverse things, which in an Ordinary Course of Government, he ought not to do: For in such a Case, Magistracy (without expecting the Proper Intrinsical Remedy of better Ecclesiastical Assemblies) may IMME-DIATELY, by IT SELF, and in the most Essecual manner, Suppress and restrain such Desection, Exerbitancy and Tyranny, and not suffer the Unjust, Heretical Tyrannical Sentences of Prosbyteries or Synods to be put in Execution. When Church-Discipline

64

Part I. (0) is degenerated into Tyranny, it belongeth to the Magistrate to take the Protection of Those Who are cast out or Censur'd unjustly.

From those Concessions (which are truly agreeable to Presbyterian Principles, so far as I can Judge of 'em) it appears, That the Magistrate may receive Complaints from the party injur'd by Ecclesiastical Courts, even in Causes meerly Spiritual & Ecclesiastical; and upon such Complaints has a Power to enjoin Synods, if he sees sit, to resume and Re-examine the Cause Complain'd of, he may call one after another, and command and even Compell'em by the Civil Sword to do justice; and if this won't do, he may, immediately by himself protect the injur'd Party, and stop the Execution of a Tyrannical Sentence against him; and in Extraordinary Cases may Apply Extraordinary Remedies.

Now, I wou'd fain know, what Right of Magistracy to meddle in Ecclesiastical Affairs is not as fully secur'd, and may not be as amply and effectually exerted upon the foot of these Presbyterian Concessions, as it is and cou'd be upon a Formal Appeal laid before him. The only justifiable Ends of an Appeal to the Magistrate in such Cases are, the Redressing of Grievances, Reforming Abuses, Correcting the Male-Administrations, and Giving Check to the Tyranny and Corruptions of the Clergy; and all these may be obtain'd, where a good Magistrate does his Duty, according to the Presbyterian Scheme; & if he do not his Duty, no Appeal to him will answer the End, but will Confirm, instead of Reforming the above Corruptions.

But the true Reason why the Presbyterians do not in Causes meerly Ecclesiastical allow of an Appeal properly so called to the Civil Magistrate, is, because they think that all Appeals, that are property such in their own Nature, do suppose the Superior Power Appeal'd to, to be of the same Nature & kind with the Inserior power Appeal'd from; and therefore seeing they believe the Power of the Keys, and the Power of the Civil Sword (which the most Famous Divines of the Church of England do likewise hold with them) to be Different Powers and not of the same kind and Nature, they think it is an Improper way of speaking, to call the Complaints of Subjects to their Magistrates

Trates against the Abuse of the Spiritual Power, by the name of FOR-MAL APPEALS; tho' they at the same time maintain such Principles, as do sully answer all the just Ends of such Appeals, both with respect to the Magistrates Authority, and the Liberty of the Subject. And they believe their Principles, to be upon the Matter the very same in this Point with all such of the Establish'd Clergy of England and Ireland, as look'd upon the Power of the Keys and the Sword to be Different. Neither can they perceive, how they who think Ecclesiastical Matters shou'd be judg'd non in Palatio, sed in Synodo, cou'd make larger Concessions than what they themselves do make. Nor do they find any Footsteps in Antiquity of any Larger Power, yielded by the Primitive Christians to their Christian Emperors, but what they are willing to grant. Nay I find Formal Appeals from the Ecclesiastical Assemblies to the Emperors and Civil Courts made by the Donatists, Condemn'd by Augustine (p.)

That they make the Inherent Power of the Kirk Superior to and Independent upon all Authority of the Civil Magistrate, after he has read the above Principles of Presbyterians, which so evidently refute that Calumny; and that they give out themselves to be the sole and prover Judges of the Extent of Christ's Commission, when 'tis plain that they allow the Magistrate a Power to punish such as abuse Christ's Commission, and all this he pretends to prove to be the Principle of the Presbyterian Kirk, from their Books of Discipline, and Repeated Acts of their Assentables, without giving one single Instance of any of those Repeated acts tho' one shou'd think, it had been his business to have done it, it he cou'd. And whether his Fidelity in quoting, and good sense and Charity in expounding what he adduces from their Books of Discipline, be so very great, as to make men rely upon his bare word for the Rest, let the World Judge.

But let us observe his Last Essort against this Inherent Power p. 6: where he says, 'Nay, farther by their known Principles, their Inherent Power extends even to the making War or Peace and the Civil Magistrate is bound to consult them, and have their Consent or else both he and his whole army may be excommunicated: For the Part 1: truth of which, I refer you first to the answer of the General assembly to the Paper presented from the Honorable the Committee of Estates, August 1, 1648i

That Paper of the Assembly (which he transcribes) doth of it self sufficiently vindicate the Inherent Power from his foul Aspersions, for they say, ' If their Lordships mean any POLITIC INTE-" REST in such Undertakings, we claim no such thing, if the meaning be of a Spiritual Interest and so far as concerneth the Point of Consci-* ence there can be no doubt thereof made by such as with David make the Testimonies of the Lord their Counsellors". Compare this with a Clause in it, which our Author has thought fit to leave: out, tho' 'tis very material for setting the whole matter in a true 'light.' Hath not the Word of God (say they) prescribed to the "Christian Magistrate the Rules of a lawful War, and doth it not belong to particular Ministers, much more to the assemblies of the Kirk, to declare the Mind of God from Scripture, for all Sorts of Duties and against all Sorts of Sins. And if the present "War be a Case of Conscience, and alledg'd to be the most fit and necessary means for the Preservation of Religion, who seeth not that the Kirk hath an undoubted Interest in Resolving and Determining Such a Case of Conscience from the Word of God.

Any man who reads our author's Commentary upon this Paper. wou'd think he makes the Assembly to assume a Power of Declaring War, raising Troops, and Commanding Armies; and concluding Peace and Alliances with Foreign States &c, this is indeed a Politic Interest in War and Peace, which they utterly disclaim. But where the harm can be of their Pious Endeavors to resolve Cases of Consciences about the Lawfulness or Unlawfulness of war, for encouraging the former, and preventing the Shedding of Innocent Elood by the latter, but more especially when consulted; is what I believe all People of Judgment will be at a loss to find out:

I shall be satisfy'd tohear what any Body can say for aggravating; this Crime in the assembly, and how they'll attempt to prove they have taken to themselves, more Power in this matter chan what Mr. Hoadly thinks well becomes all honest Clergymen, who in his. Sermon before the Lord Mayor of London, September. 29. 1705. makes. this Apology (p. 11.) for his taking upon him to determine in the Rights of Magistracy: And the some may perhaps be apt to call

thiss

this by the Name of Politicks, and Censure it as Foreign to our Part I: Office and this place, (which they are sure to do then only when their own Notions are contradicted) yet I must declare that I cannot think it an unbecoming, or even an unnecessary Part of our care to fettle the measures of Christian Duty in all Cases.

Primate Ther says (Loco citato) That the Spiritual Rulers do exercise their kind of Government in bringing men into Obedience, not of the Duties of the first Table only but allo of the second. * And that both Prince and Priest are in their several Places Custodes Urrinsque Tabula. Are not these as High Pretensions as ever the assembly made, who upon these Principles may Conclude that they may very lawfully expound the 6th Command, Thou shalt not bill, and resolve Cases of Conscience that may arise from it, and yet may be as innocent as St. Ambrese, who REPROVED Theedosius the Emperor for his wilful Murther, for which he's COM-MENDED and APPROVED by the Church of England. The Conclusion of that Paper shows that the assembly pretended to no more Power in Peace and War, than in the Duties of Parents and Children, Husbands and Wives, Masters and Servants, i. e. so far as concerneth the Point of Conscience to declare what God's Word says about 'em. And the very beginning of that Paragraph quoted by our author shows, That the State entertain'd Conferences with the Kirk upon this Subject, which oblig'd 'em to declare their Opinion, and therefore it cou'd not be officious in 'em so to do. The Reader may perceive what this Fearful Military Principle" of the Kirk amounts to, and about which our author makes such a Bustle. If the War in which the Magistrate engages be lawful they can very well bear with his not consulting them, or in having their consent to it: And therefore he fally infinuates that the Magistrate must wait for it. 'Tis the Unlawfulness of the War, and not its being entred into without their Consent, which they are displeas'd with.

What follows p. 6. and 7. concerning the Assemblies opposing of Dake Hamilton's Engagement, in 1648, doth not at all belong to the Principles, but to the Practices of the Kirk; and therefore I shall at present dismiss the Consideration of it until we come to the Reign of K. Charles 1. where several things shall be offer'd that will clear that matter sufficiently, and answer all his Cavils against that Practice.

K 2

Thus

Part 1.

Thus I have vindicated the Principles of Presbyterians, from the Reproaches of this Author, and prov'd them to be natively PRODUCTIVE OF LOYALTY; and if they had not been truly such, is had been at best anintolerable Weakness in Her Majesty & the British Parliament to have Establish'd them as a Fundamental of the Union. Her Majesty hath often declar'd, That she looks upon the Union of Great-Britain to be one of the Greatest Glories in her Reign; but if it be built upon such a Foundation as makes all Grown'd Heads Vassals to the Presby terian Kirk, and consequently their Crowns but Petite Fifes of the Kirk's Grand Exclesiastical Empire; two o'd be rather the Reproach than the Glory of her Reign. And therefore I hope the Impartial Reader will consider, Whether our Author's Resections, he not as injurious to her Majesty and Parliaments, as to Truth it self, and to Peace and unity amongst all her good Protestant Subjects.

Part. 1

CHAP. II.

The Loyalty of Presbyterians during the Reign of QUEEN ELIZA-BETH:

I proceed next to inquire into the Loyalty of their Practices. Our Author goes no farther back upon this Head than the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, which, perhaps is owing to one of these two Causes, because either he thought there were no Presbyte ians before that Reign, or that they were so loyal, as he could not fasten any thing upon them, that might taint their Reputation. Whatever his Reasons might be (which I don't think material to search into) I must beg the Reader's favorable Acceptance of some Memerable pieces of History, which I shall here present him with; Relative to the Loyalty and Religion of Presbyterians; before the Reign of Q. Elizabeth, without which this Historical Essay wou'd be Imcomplete; and which are necessary by way of Introduction to the History of their Behavior under Q. Elizabeth, and her successors.

I designedly avoid carrying of this History so far back, as the first settlement of Christianity in Great Britain and Ireland; because that wou'd lead me into a Dispute, Foreign to my business, concerning the Ancient Government of the Church; but shall confine my self to the Reformation from Popery; and here I must observe, That tho' R. Henry 8th was the first King of England, who threw off the Pope's Supremacy, and under whose Reign the Reformation got any measure of Civil Sanction: Yet there was a Famous attempt made towards it in the 4th Century in the Reign of King Edward

Chap. 2: Under Queen Elizabeth.

Part 1.

3d, by that Eminent Servant of Christ John Wickliffe, and his Numerous Followers.

The great Wickliffs, was a Graduate of Merton College in Oxford, and a Professor of Divinity there several years. He began to broach his Opinions against the Pope, and his Antichristian Doctrine about the year 1377, or at least diverse years before the death of King Edward 3d. who died June 21 Anno 1377. (9) He oppos'd the Pope's Supremacy and I yranny, his Indulgences, the Corruptions of the Clerky, the Doctrine of Transubstantiation, and the Abominable Corruptions of the Worship in the Church of Rome, and his Doctrine in these Points was the same with that profess'd by Resorm'd Protestants at this day: But that which I am to make a Peculiar Remark upon in Wicklisse's Doctrine, is, that the Main Doctrines that are the Peculiar Tenets of the Presbyterians, and in which they Dissent from the National Establish'd Churches of England and Ireland were Maintain'd by the Venerable Wicklisse.

Father Fox (as Q. Elizabeth call'd him) and Fuller have given us an Abstract of all the Opinions of Wickliffe, for which he was persecuted by the Papists of his Age; and in some of those, we Thall find him declaring himself in favor of the Presbyterian Doctrine in three Point, viz. The Identity of Bishops and Presbyters, Unlawfulness of Mystical Significant Ceremonies of human Invention in the Worship of God, and against Imposed Forms of Prayer. I find the Ingenious and Revd. Mr Pierce in his Desensio Fratrum Dissentium in Anglia, had Collected these Opinions of Wickliffe's, out of these and some other Authors, & digested 'em under their proper Heads, and I shall present the Reader with a Translation of Pierce upon this Head; and any Body that doubts of his Fidelity in quoting his Authors, he 15 desir'd to peruse Fox and Fuller and the Rest from whom 'he has got the Account he gives of those Principles, and from whom I intended to have drawn an abstract; had not that Worthy author done it to my hand. He proceeds thus, (r)

(q) vide Baker's Chtoniclep. 133. (r) p. 3,4. The Vouchers made use of by Peirce are Fiscic. Rerum Expes. & Fug. Ton. 1, p. 269, 270. 274. 276. Catal. Test. Tom. 2. p. 810. Artisuli fo. Wicklisse. in Come. Constant. sels. 8, Att. 28. Tho. Wald. apud Fuller lib: 4. p. 132. To which I add Fox's Marry rology, in divers places stam for 455. to p, 605.

Of the Degrees and Offices of Ministers.

et le seems to the Holy Doctors supersuous, in the Sacrament of Orders to assert more than two Degrees, viz. Deacons or Levites, and Presbyters or Bishops ____ In Faul's time, two Orders of Clergy-men were sufficient for the Church, viz. PRIEST and DEACON—It is Certain, That pride invented Other Degrees. It were useful for the Church, that there were neither Pope nor Cesarian Prelate; and it were useful and decent-that the Church were purg'd from their Traditions.

Confirmation of Youth, Ordination of Clergymen and Confecration of places, are reserv'd for the Pope and Bishops to gratifytheir destre of Temporal Gain and Honor.

Of the Holy Scriptures the only Rule of. Faith and Worship.

Let the Believer insist upon Reason and Scriptural Faith, and not believe such Extravagant and Groundless Fables concerning the Power of Prelates.

All Human Traditions, not taught by the Law of the Gospel, are Inpersuous and sinful—We must practise, learn and teach only the Laws of Christ-Tis not lawful for a Christian after the Publication of the Law of Christ, to frame LAWS FOREIGN to it; for the Government of the Church of Christ.

Of Rites And Ceremonies.

He plainly rejected Human Rites, and Shadows and Traditions.

Part I. Chrism and the other Ceremonies of that kind, ought not to be us'd in Baptism.

If the Ceremonies of the Old Law, because of their being burnthensom, and for their Multitude, were to be abolish'd by the Law of Grace; how much more ought such Groundless Inventions and Traditions of men, to be laid aside under the Gospel—Circumcision and the Ceremonies of the Old Law are not to be observed by Believers; and far loss shou'd they observe the present Ceremonies, that have neither Authority from the Old Law, nor from the New.

Of Vigils and Forms of Prayer.

To RESTRICT men to certain PRESCRIB'D FORMS of Prayer, is contrary to the Liberty granted them by God.—There is no Obligation to observe Vigils and Canonical Hours.

mer Liberty; and by this mean, the Solemnities of Superadded Masses and the Prayers that were invented with the Canonical

- Hours, wou'd cease.

Words can hardly be Contriv'd that more Compendiously & significantly express the Sentiments of Brechyterians in the debated Points concerning Church Government, Liturgy and Ceremonies, than those wherein Wicklieff's Sentiments upon the same Heads are deliver'd to us; and as to the first, beside what Peirce has observed let the Reader consider, that among the Opinions Collected from his Writings and Sermons, this was one, viz. That the Pope of Rome hash no more in the Power of the Keys, than hash any other methic the Degree of Priest-bood (s). And if he gave as much Power to any Priest as to the Bishop of Rome, he could hardly think that any other Bishop was invested with more Power than a Priest.

Tho' Wickliffe was of Presbyterian Principles he had many Foldowers and it pleased God, for a Testimony to his own Truth against the Corruptions of the Church of Rome, to give Eminent Suc-Part 1. cess to the Unwearied Labors of that Renowned Confessor; he was summon'd to appear before a Synod at London Anno 1376. call'd by Simon Sudbury Archbishop of Canterbury, to answer for his Heretical Opinions, as they call'd them. But he was supported against them by John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster and son to King Edward 3. and by the Lord Piercy Lord Marshal of England, who both attended him, when he appear'd before the said Synod; the latter introduc'd him to it, and the former spake openly in his behalf, and took the Archbishop to task very keenly. The Patronage of such great Men, with the Universal Opinion that all Men had of his great Parts and Profound Learning, together with his Eminent Piety and Unwearled Painfulness both in his Divinity Lectures in the Colledge (wherein he continu'd seven years after his Opinions came abroad) and his preaching frequently thro' Different Parts of the Kingdom, were the Means (by God's Blessing) of Propagating his Honest Principles among great Multitudes; insomuch that in a little time there were many who appear'd Eminently in Defence of Wickliffe's Doctrine; of which take this short Account in the Words of Father Fox, who in his Preface, to his Martyrology, says,

To descend now some what lower in drawing out the Descent · of the Church, What a Multitude here cometh of faithful Witnesles in the time of John Wickliffe, as Ocliffe, Wickliffe, Anne 1379. Wil. Thorp. White, Purvey, Fatshal, Pain, Gower, Chaucer: Gascoyn, Wil. Swinderby, Walter Brute, Roger Dexter, Wil. Sautry, about the year 1400. John Badby, Anno 1410. Nicholas Tailor, Richard Wag staffe, Michael Scrivener, William Smith, John Hendry, William Parchmenar, Roger Goldsmith, with an Anchresse called Mathilde in the City of Lecester, Lord Cobbam, Sir Roger Action Knight, John Beverly Preacher, John Husse, Jerome of Prague, a schoolmaster with a number of Faithful Bohemians, Thaborites, not to be told; with whom I might 4 also adjoin Laurentius Valla, & Joannes Pieus, the Learn'd Earl of almost are infinite?

And the same Author subjoins immediately an account of the Progress of Wickliffe's Doctrine, and brings it down to the 16th Century. His Words are these, 'Wherefore, if any be so far beguil'd in hisOpinion to think the Doctrine of theChurch of Romo(as it now fandeth)tobe of such Antiquity, & that the same was never impugn'd be Mirandula. But what do I stand upon the recital of Names, which

Chap. 2. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

74

Part I. the time of Luther and Zwinglins now of late, let them read these Histories: Or if he think the said History not to be of sufficient Gredit to alter his Persuasion, let him peruse the Acts and Scatutes of Parliament, pass'd in this Realm of Ancient time, and therein Consider and Confer the Course of Times; where he may find & read, Anno 5. Regis Richardi 2. in the Year of our Lord, 1380. of a great number (which there be call'd Evil Persons) going about from Town to Town in Freeze Gowns, preaching unto the People, &c. Which Preachers altho' the Words of the Statute do term there to be Dissembling persons, preaching divers Sermons containing Heresies and Notorious Errors, to the Emblemishment of Christian Faith, and of holy Church, &c. as the Words do there pretend; yet notwithstanding every true Christian reader may conceive of those Preachers to teach no other Doctrine, than now they hear their own Preachers in Pulpits preach against the Bishop of Rome, and the Corrupt Heresies of his Church.

Furthermore, he shall find likewise in Statut. anno. 2. Hen. 4. Cap? 15. in the year of our Lord 1402. another like Company of good Preachers and faithful Desenders of true Doctrine against blind Heresy and Error. Whom, albeit the Words of the Statute there, thro' Corruption of that time, do falsly term to be false and perverse Preachers, under dissembled holiness teaching in those days openly and privily new Dollrines and Heretical Opinions, contrary to the Faith & Determination of helyChurch, &c.yet notwithstanding whosoever readeth Histories, and conferreth the Order and Descent of times, shall understand these to be no salse Teachers, but faithful Witnesses of the Truth, not teaching any new Doctrines contrary to the Determination of holy-Church, but rather shall find that 6 Church to be unholy which they preach'd against; teaching rather ' it self Heretical Opinions, contrary both to Amiquity and verity of Christ's true Catholic Church.

Of the like number also, or greater, of like faithful Favorers & Followers of God's holy Word, we find in the year 1422. specified in a letter sent from Henry Chicheslie Arch Bishop of Canterbury to Pope Martin the 5th, in the fifth year of his Popedom, where mention is made of so many here in England infected (as he said) with the Heresies of Wickliffe and Husse, that without force of an Army they con'd not be supress'd, &c. Wnereupon the Pope sent two Cardinals

-/

Chap. 2: Under Queen Elizabeth:

nals to the Archhishop, to cause a tenth to be gather'd off all Spi- Part I. fritual and Religious men and the mony to be laid in the Chamber 'Apostolic, and it that be not sufficient, the Residue to be made up of Chalices, Candlesticks, and other Implements of the Church,

&c· What shall need then any more witness to prove this matter, when you see so many years ago whole Armies and Multitudes thus standing against the Pope? Who tho' they be term'd here for Heretics and Schismatics, yet in that which they call Here-' sy serv'd they the Living Lord within the Ark of his true Spiritual and Visible Church.

And as Wickliffe and his Tenets were lik'd by great Numbers, so there were many men of great Learning, who embrac'd them both in England and elsewhere. John Husse (his disciple) was so successful in maintaining them, as he got the Approbation of the University of Prague, who wou'd not condemn the 45 Articles of Wickliff e, Censur'd by the Council of Constance. And I shou'd be highly injurious to such a Venerable Body, as the University of Oxford, if I did not here insert their Testimonial and Approbation of Wickliffe, which runs thus.

The (t) Public Testimony given out by the University of Oxford toucking the Commendation of the great Learning and Good Life of JOHN WICKLIFFE.

Unto all and singular the Children of our holy Mother the Church, to whom this present letter shall come, the Vice-Chanceller of the University of Oxford, with the whole Congregation of the Masters, wish e perpetual health in the Lord. For somuch as it is not commonly seen, That the Acts and Monuments of Valiant Men, nor the Praise and Merits of good men shou'd be pass'd over and hidden with Perpetual Silence, but that true Report and Fame shou'd continually fpread abroad the same in strange and far distant Places, both for "the Witness of the same, and example of others; for somuch also as the Provident Discretion of man's Nature being recompens'dwith Cruelty, hath devis'd and ordain'd this Buckler and Defence against such as do blaspheme and slander other mens doings, that whenwhenfoever witness by word of Mouth, cannot be present, the e pen by Writing may supply the same.

Hereupon it followeth, that the Special good Will and care which we bare unto John Wickliffe, sometime child of this our Ula-iversity, and Protessor of Divinity, moving and stirring our Minds, 6 (as his manners and Conditions required no less) with one mind:

4 Voice and Testimony we do witness, all his Conditions and doings shroughout his whole life to have been most sincere and Commendable;

Whose honest manners and Conditions, Profoundness of Learning.

and most Redolent Renown and Fame, we desire the more earnest-

· ly to be notify'd & known into all the faithful, for that we underftand the Maturity and Ripeness of his Conversation, his diligent Iabors and travels to tend to the praise of God, the help and safeguard of others, and the profit of the Church.

Wherefore we signify unto you by these Presents, that his Conversation(even from his Youth upwards unto the time of his Death) was so praise worthy and honest, that never at any time was there there any note or ipot of suspition noys'd of him. But in his 'ANSWERING, READING, PREACHING and DETER-"MINING, he behav'd himself Laudably, and as a stout and Valiant Champion of the Faith; vanquishing by the force of the Scriptures, all such, who by their wilful Beggary, blasphem'd and Slander'd Christs Religion. Neither was this said Doctor convict of any Heresy, neither burn'd of our Prelates after his Burial. God forbid that our Prelates shou'd have condemn'd a man of such honesty, for an Heretic; Who, amongst all the rest of the Univerfity, had written in Logic, Philosophy, Divinity, Morality, and the Speculative Art WITHOUT PEER. The knowledge of which all and singular things we do desire to testify and deliver forth; to the intent that the Fame and Renown of this said Doctor May be the more evident and had in Reputation, them into whose hands those present Letters Testimonial shall . come.

In Witness whereof, we have caus'd these our Letters Testimonial to be seall'd with our Common Seal. at Oxford in our Congregation House, the 5th

Chap. 2. Under Queen Elizabeth:

October, in the year of our Lord, 1406.

Part 1. It seems that Learn'd University (in these days) thought the Doctrines concerning the Identity of Bishop and Presbyter, Free Prayer without a Liturgy, & Worship without Human Ceremonies to be Innocent Opinions. For all these were taught and preach'd amongst 'em by the Revd. Wickliffe, and yet they Certify in most ample Terms, concerning his Preaching and Determining as Laudable without Exception.

But he had not only the Countenance of men of all Stations, except the Pope and his Creatures; but was remarkably countenanc'd by God, who by surprizing Dispensations of Providence, preserv'd his Life and evidenc'd his Displeasure against his Enemies. For Rushard the 2d, who encourag'd the Persecutors of Wickliffe and his Followers. (not like his Grand-father Edward 3d. who was his friend) was Dethron'd, and died in Disgrace.

In the See of Rome, from whence Bloody Bulls, and Excommunications had issu'd against his Foslowers, there appear'd a Terrible Schism, begun at Urban the 6th & between Clement 7th. who both set up for the Popedom at once; one of them being in Rome, and the other Avignon. The Contention in that See lasted forty years; whereby Divine Providence did both give the more favorable Opportunity for the World's Embracing Wickliffe's orthodox Doctrine, and testify'd Wrath from Heaven against that Spiritual Babylon, that had united in Opposition to it; by dividing their Language amongst themselves like Babel. Archbishop Sudbury (his great Enemy)came to a Tragical End, being beheaded by a Rabble. And in 1382. The Sovereign Lord spoke I errible things in Righteousness, by an Earthquake all over England; which happen'd in the very Instant when the Convocation met for condemning Wiekliffe's Doctrine and Books of which take the Account in Fox's Words.

Here (") is not to be pass'd over the great Miracle of God's DivineAdmonition or Warning; for when as the Archbishop and Suffragans, with the other Doctors of Divinity, and lawyers with a great Company of babling Friars, and Religious Persons, were gather'd together to consult as touching John Wickliffe's Book and that whole Sect; When as I say they were gather'd together

Part I. at the Gray Friers in London, to begin their business, upon St. Dunstan's day after dinner, about two of the Clock, the very hour and Instant that they shou'd go forward with their business, a Wonderful and TERRIBLE EARTHQUAKE fell throughout all Eng-

Land: Wherenpon divers of the Suffragans, being fear'd by the ftrange and Wonderful Demonstration, doubting what it shou'd e mean, thought it good to leave off from their Determinate Purpose.

But the Archbishop (as chief Captain of that Army, more rajh and 6 bold than wise) interpreting the chance which had happen'd clean

4 contrary, to another meaning or Purpose, did confirm and strengthen their Hearts and Minds, which were almost daunted with fear, · stoutly to proceed and go forward in their Attempted Enterprise.

Who then discoursing Wickliffe's Articles, not according unto the Sacred Canons of the Holy Scripture, but unto their own Private · Affections and Traditions; pronounc'd and gave sentence, that some of them were simply and plainly Heretical, other some half Erro-

e neous, other Irreligious, some Seditious, and not Const nant to the · Church of Rome.

Thus had Wickliffe and his Presbyterian Followers the Honor of being the Restorers of Religion and Learning in England; in an Age wherein Antichristian Errors, and Blindness had got the deepest Rooting in the Minds of a Deluded People. And alongst with Religion, they brought Loyalty again into Request: for it was one of the Articles against Wickliffe, That he maintain'd the Jurisdiction of the Crown and Secular Powersover the Clergy, and afferted a Power in the Magistrate to take away the Temporalities and Endowments of the · Clergy, when they offend and Corrupt Religion, and do not answer the Ends'of their Spiritual Function; and to reform Abuses in the . Church. and Compel, (by his Civil Power) Spiritual Persons to do their duty. Wickliffe's feventeenth Article is full upon this Head, and was defended by his Followers in the second Disputation in the University of Prague with admirable Learning and Loyalty. Fox gives us the whole Disputation, and introduceth it with this Title.

> 'The (v) Second Disputation in the University of Prague upon the seventeenth Article of John Wickliffe, most fruitful to be read; proving by four and Twenty Reasons Part I. out of the Scriptures, how that Princes and Loids Temoporal have lawful Authority and Jurisdiction over the Spirituality and Courchmen; both in taking from them, and Correcting their abuses according to their doings and deserts.

I have not met with any thing in Modern Authors which says more for justifying the English Reformation, in taking away the Abbey-Lands from these who then possess'd them than the Reader will find in that Disputation; and that advanceth more Loyal Principles to the Crown, than are to be found there.

And the Loyalty of their Principles (the same with the Presbyterians of this and the former age) did produce in them a Dutiful and Loyal Behavior to their Prince; tho' they had the missortune to be represented by their bloody Enemies, the Papists, as Disloyal and Sedicious: a noted Instance whereof we have in Harpsfield's Historia Wickliffiana by Alaunus Copus, who fally accuse them of being accessary to the Rebellion of Was Tiler and Jack Straw and their Accomplices, headed by John Ball an Excommunicated Priest, against K. Richard 2. Fuller speaking of this Rebellion says, These (w) all were pure Levellers (instan'd by the abus'd Eloquence of one John Ball, an Excommunicated Priest) who, maintaining, that no Gentry was Jure Divino, and all equal by Nature,

When Adam delv'd and Eve span,

Who was then the Gentleman?

endeavor'd the abolishing of all Civil & Spiritual Degrees, & distinctions.
Yea, they desir'd to level mens Parts, as well as their Purses; and none shou'd be either wealthier, or wiser than his Fellows; project the General Destruction of all, that wore a pen-and ink-horn about them, or could write or read. To effect this Design, they Pretended the People's Liberty, and the Princes Honor: and sinding it difficult to destroy the King but by the King, they advanc'd the name to pluck down the Thing signify'd thereby; crying up, that all was for King Richard. They seem'd to be much for Reference.

80 Chap: 2. The Logalty of Presbyterians

Part I. formation, which Cloak they wore, to warm themselves therewith, when naked and first setting up; but afterwards cast it off in the heat of their Success, as not only vseless, but burdensome unto them.

> But (x) Alanus Copus (for, he it is, whose Ecclesiastical History of England, goes under the name of Harpsfield, ) heavily chargeth all this rebellion on the Account of Wicliffe's Doctrine. Whose 'Scholars (saith he) to promote their Masters opinions, stirred up this deadly, and damnable Sedition, and sounded the first Trumpet thereunto. Adding moreover, that Wieliffe's Tenet, that, Dominion is founded in grace: and that a King guilty of MortalSingis no longer Lord of any thing, was Cos hujus Seditionis, The Whet-stone of this Sedition. But, to what Lyer the Whet-stone doth properly belong, will presently appear.

> That the World may see, that these Presbyterians in Richard 2d's Reign were falsely accus dof Rebellion and Disloyalty, as their Successors have been in following Reigns; and that Sober, Moderate Episcopal Protestants have thought, that the Interest of the Gospel and the Cause of Truth oblig'd them to defend the Innocence of those Worthies, who made so brave a stand, for the Purity of Religion and the Rights of Monarchy and the People, against Antichristian Tyranny and Darkness; I must not omit the Just Vindication of them, which Fuller gives us in these Words.

' It is no News for the best of God's Children, to be slander'd in this kind. Jeremy was traduced, Thou fallest away to the Caldeans. St Paul was accused, We have found this man a Pestilent follow, a Mover of Sedition. Yea, our Savior himself was charg'd that He made himself a King, and was a Traytor to Casar. But as these were foul, and false Aspersions. So will this appear if We Confider,

1. When John Ball was executed at St Albans, and Jack Straw at London, not the least Complyance with Wickliffe, or his Doctrine, is either charg'd on them, or Confess'd by them.

2. No wild Beast will prey on his own kind. Now it is certainly known, thit John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster was the Principal Patron.

Patron, and Supporter of Wickliffe, whose life they lought to Part I. destroy, and whose Pallace in the Strand they pillag'd.

3. Wickliffe himself came within the Compass of their Destructive Principles, designing the Death of all, who wore a pen and ink. And, that Wickliffe had both pen and ink, Cope himself doth know, and the Court of Rome, with shame and sorrow will ¿ confess.

4. Wichliffe liv'd some years after, and died peaceably possess'd of the Living of Lutterworth in Leicester-shire. Surely, had he been reputed the inflamer of this Rebellion, the Wisdom of the King, and Councel, won'd have taken another Order with him.

5. Amongst the Articles laid to the Charge of Wickliffe, and his Followers, in this King's Reign, examin'd at Oxford, and elfewhere, not a Title of this Rebellion is press'd upon them. Which their Malicious adversaries wou'd not have omitted, if in any thope to make good that accusation against them.

6. Whereas it is charg'd on Wickliffe, that he held, that, Do-" minuon was founded in Grace, which occasion'd this Rebellion; we know this that Huss his scholar, the he did hold, that a King, being in Mortal Sin, was only call'd a King aquivoca Dominatione; yet the same Huss confesseth (to vse his own Words) Ipsum Deuve approbata hujusmodi Regem, quond esse Principem exterius, That God bimself all we such a King to be a Prince in all ourmand matters. So that, leaving with to Divine Justice, he never dreamt of any Re-Estance, or Remion to be made against him.

7. The Mediera Protestants (heirs, say the Papists to Wickliffe's Decerine) so far abominate these rebels their Levelling, and Ignoe rant Principles, that they are known, both to maintain Distances of People, and to have been the restorers of lost, yea the revivers of Dead Learning, and Languages: How have the Marbematicks measur'd their own grave? Greek turn'd Barbarism? Hebrew (as it readeth) gone backward, never to return again, had not Protestant Criticks, with vast Pains and expence, pre-L served them?

8. It is more suspicious, that this Rebellion came out of the Ransiscan Covent; because some of these, belike were the Rebels Whiteboys; and (as is afore mention'd) to be spar'd in a general

Destruction,

The Roman Antichrist rais'd so violent a Storm of Persecution. Part I. against those innocent People; that, tho' there remain'd some, even down to the time of K. Henry 8. who remembred Wickliffe's Doctrine with honor, yet its chief Patrons and Defenders were rooted out, and the Reformation suppressed; until K. Henry 8. threw off the Pope's Supremacy, and then they began to appear again. But during that King's Reign, the Reformation was lame, and so many Popish Corruptions both in Doctrine and Worship retain'd, that many were then persecuted, even for the Plain Truths.

of the Protestant Religion.

· But if we descend to the better times of his son, the good King Edward the 6th, the ENGLISH JOSIAH; no sooner were the: Substantials of the Reformed Religion profess d, but the Seeds of Non-Conformity began to appear; of which Fuller gives this short. account, 'For (y) now Non-Conformity in the days of King Edward. was conceiv'd, which afterwards in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth was nurs'd, and weaned; which under King James grew up a voung. Lyouth, or tall Stripling; but towards the End of King Charles his. Reign, shot up to the full strength, and stature of a man; able,. "not only to cope with, but Conquer the Hierarchy its adverfary.

Two Opposite Parties plainly discovered themselves, driving on different Interests, under their Respective Patrons.

Hounders of Conformity.

1.1. Such as remained her ' all the Reign of King Henry, the 8th, and wear, ther'd out the Tempest of his Tyranny at open Sea partly by a Politic * Compliance, and parely by a Cautions Conceulment of themselves.

Founders of Non-Conformity.

1. Such as fled hence beyond the seas, chiefly into Germany, where living in the States, and Cie ies of Popular Reforma-tion, they suck'd in both the air, and Discipline of the Place they lived! in.

2. These

Chap. 2.

2. These in the days of King

Edward the 6th, were possessed of the best Pre-ferments in the land.

remonies practis'd in the Romish Church, conceiving them to be Ancient, and decent in themselves.

The Authority of Cranmer and Activity of Ridley headed this Party; the former being the highest, the latter the hottest in Defence of Conformity.

England, were at a loss for means, and maintenance, only supported with the Reputation of being Confessors, rendring their Patience to the praise, and their Persons to the Pity of all Conscientions

People.

And Renounc'd all Ceres monies practis'd by the Papists, conceiving, that such ought not only to be clipt with the Sheers, but to be shev'd with a Rakor; yea, all the Stumps there-sof to be pluckt out:

4. John Rogers Lecturer in St. Pauls, and Vicar of S. Sepulchres, with John Hoeper, afterwards Bishop of Glocester, were Ring-leaders of this Party.

The same Author gives a brief Account of the main Arguments on both sides that were then deliver'd by the Contending Parties for maintaining their several Opinions; which I shall here insert, not with any Design, to touch the Merits of the Cause or dip into the Controversy between 'em; but only to give an Historical Account of the Progressof Non-Conformity.

Pro.

f. The Ornaments were indifferent of themselves, and

Con.

i. The best thing that could be said of them was, that

- of Antient use in the : Church (a)
- 2. Being enjoyn'd by lawful Authority, they became necessary, not to Salvation, but to Church-Unity; and it was scan-: dalous to decline them.
- 3. It would bring the Papist over to our Church; beholding all things by them used, not totally abolished by a Spirit of Contradiction, but some deeent Correspondencies Itill moderately continued.
- 4. It would suft a star on the Credit of such Rishops who formerly had used thoseOrnaments, as more Remiss in Religion, than fuch as refused them.
- " q. Those who have Sinbborn : Wills precent too often to tender Consciences; nor oughta Private Person to be indulged, with the 4 Disturbance of the public Uniformity of the . Church

- they were vieless, being otherwise Ridiculous, and Superstitions.
- 6 2. Cursed be he that Removes the Bound-marks. Grant them indifferent in themfelves, and left so by Divine Wisdom, it was
- Presumption in man to. stamp necessity upon them. 3. Too much of the Serpent nothing of the Dove herein, to offend these within, to invite those without to the Church, driving Pro
  - testants thence to draw Papists thither.
- 4. The Credits of some good men were not to be preserved, by deferoying the Consciences of others.
- 3. Hosper put himself upon the Trial of the Searcher, ef Hearts, that no Obstinacy but meer Confidence made him refule those Ora naments.

Chap. 2.

Under Queen Elizabeth.

In a Word all those Arguments, which later Age have more amply enlarged, more clearly explained, more cunningly improved, more enforced, were then and there first solidly propounded, and solemn-ly set down on both sides. Posterity in this Matter having discovered no new Mine, but only Refired, what formerly was sound out in this Controversy.

The same Author informs us, that there was a Fotent Party in this King's Reign disaffected to the Liturgy, which now began to be very Considerable in England (b).

These English Puritans in this Kirg's Reignbehav'd 'emselves with that Dutiful and Loyal Affection to His Majesty that we don't find any thing of Disloyalty laid to their Charge. The King and Government show'd great Moderation to them; He wrote to the Archbi-shop in favor of Hooper, and indulg'd his Scruples about the Vest-ments; as may be seen in Fuller (e), who gives us the Copy of his Letter, in the College.

in these Words;

Right Reverend Father, and Right Trusty, and Welbeloved, We greet you well. Whereas we by the Advice of our Council, have called and chosen Our Right Well-beloved, and Well-Worthy Mr. John Hooper, Professor of Divinity, to be our Bishop of Glocester, as well for his great Learning, Deep Judgment and long Study; both in the Scriptures and other Profound Learning; as also for his good Discretion, ready Utterance and honest Life for that kind of Vocation, &c. From Consecrating of whom We understand you do stay, because he would have you omit, and les pass certain Rites and Geremonies offensive to his Conscience. whereby you think you should fall in Pramunire of Laws: We have thought good by Advice aforesaid, to dispense and discharge you of all manner of Dangers, Penalties, & Forfeitures you should run into, and be in any manner of way, byomitting any of the same. 'And these our Letters shall be your sufficient Warrant, and Dif. charge therefore.

Given under our Signet, at our Castle of Windson, the sourth year of our Reign.

Martin

Chap. 2: The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part 1.

Martin Bucer and Peter Martyr were encourag'd, and entertain'd in Exercise land, tho'they were of the same Judgment with the English Puritans. And the famous John A Lasco a Polonian with a Congregation of Germans of the Helvetian Confession, had great Marks of Regal Favour placed uponthem. They were Resugees in England, being banish'd from their own Country for their Zealous Profession of the Protestant Religi-John Alasco one of the Ministers, and Superintendent of that Congregation, was a keen Non-Conformist; as may be seen by his Books: for he wrote against the Habits, and against kneeling at the Sacrament; and was for the Table-Gesture. He and the other Ministers of that Congregation practifd their own Discipline, which was truly Presbyterian: And the said Ministers and Congregation were erected into a Corporation, by Letters Patents, with full Liberty to Dissent from the Establish'd Church, in Government, Discipline and Worship: And because this matter can't be set in a true light without the Recital of some Part (at least) of the said Letters; I shall present the Reader with a Translation of the Preamble and Conclusion thereof, and set it down in the Original Latine, at the bottom of the page.

Weighty Considerations; and particularly having at heart how much it becomes Christian Princes to be highly animated with a studious care and love of the Gospel of God and the Apostolical

Religion begun, instituted and deliver'd by Christ himself; without.

(d) vide Burnet's Hift. of the Reformation, Collect. Record. Book 1. p. 202.

Edwardus Sextus &c. Cum magnæ quædam & graves Confiderationes nos ad presens specialiter impulerunt, tum etiam Cogitantes illud, quanto Studio & Charitate Christianos Principes in Sacrosanctum Dei Evangelium & Religionem Apostolicam ab ipso Christo inchoatam, infiitutam & traditam, animatos & prepensos este convenint, sine qua haud dubie Politia & civile Regnum nec consistere diu, neq; nomen suum tueri potest, nisi Principes, cæteriq; prepotentes viti, quos Deus ad Regnorum Gubernacula sedere voluit, id in primis operam dent ut per totum Reipub. Corpus, casta sinceraq, Religio disfundatur, & Ecclesia in arere Christianis & Apostolicis Opinionibus & Ritibus instituta, arq; adulta per sanctos ac carni & mundo Mortuos Ministros conservetur; pro eo quod Christiani Principis Officium statuimus, inter alias suas gravismas de regno suo bene splendideq; administrando Cogitationes, etiam Religioni & Religionis Causa Calamitate tractis & afflictis exulibus consulere. Sciatis, quod non solum pramissa.

Under Queen Elizabeth.

Chap. 2:

out which Policy and Civil-Government can neither stand long, Part nor maintain its Name, unless Princes and others in Power whom God hath appointed for the Government of Kingdoms, do first of all take care, that pure and uncorrupted Religion be diffus'd thro' the whole Body of the Commonwealth and that a Church instructed in truly Christian and APOSTOLICAL OPINIONS and RITES, and grown up "under holy Ministers deny'd to the flesh and the World, be preferv'd: for as much as we look upon it to be the Duty of a Christian Prince, amongst his other weighty thoughts concerning the good & splendid Aministration of his Government, to consult the imerest of Religion, and of those who are banish'd, and miserably "afflicted with Calamity for the Cause of Religion. KNOW Ye, that we not only considering the Premisses, and Desiring to preserve in its former Liberty the Church that has been rescu'd by us from the Tyranny of the Papacy; but also Commiserating the case of the banish'd and of Strangers &c. because we have judg'd it unworthy of a Christian and the Magnificence of a Prince, whose Liberality in such a Case ought not to be shut up or restrained, to fuffer Strangers to want the necessaries of life in our Kingdom, who have been cast out of their own Country for the Gospel of Christ, "and have fled to our Kingdom for Refuge". And then a Narrative is given of the Germans and other strangers that were come and daily coming to England on the Account of the Protestant Religion; and of their wanting a certain place there for their Worship, and the managing the business of Religion and Ecclesiastical Affairs according to the Custom and Rites of their own Country; Wherefore he grants them one Church in London; To (e) this Intent and purpole:

Part I. pose, (says he) that by the Ministers of the Church of the Germans and other Strangers there may be an Uncorrupted interpretation of the Holy Gospel, and that by them the Sacraments may be administred according to the Word of God, and Apostolical Observation? And this Church being to have one Superintendent and four Ministers, of 'That the said Superintendent and four Ministers them headds may be in Reality and name one Body Corporate and Politic, we do by these presents incorprate them by the name of the Superintendent. and Ministers of the Church of the Germans and other Strangers. founded by Edward 6th in the City of Lendon: and we do by these oresents Erect, Ordain, Make and Constitute them by the said Name a Body Corporate and Politic, in Reality and to the full, and that they shall have a Succession.

And in the Conclusion of the Patent, we have these Words (2) We command and straitly charge the Mayor, Sheriss, and Aldermen of our City of London and their Successors, and all others, arch-Bishops, Bishops, Justices, Officers, and our other Ministers whatsoever, that they permit the said Superintendent & Ministers freely and quietly to enjoy, use and exercise their OWN • PROPER RITES and CEREMONIES, and their PROPER PECULIAR, ECCLESIASTICAL DISCIPLINE; not withstanding that they do not agree with the Rites and Ceremonies used in our Kingdom, without let, Molestation, or Disturbance of them or any of them, any Statute, act, proclamation, injunction, Restriction oruse to the contrary heretosore had, done rublish'd or promulgated to the contrary notwithstanding.

It clearly follows from the Tenor of these Letters, Patents, That that Glorious Prince, and his Council who advis'd him to them, were fully convinc'd that his Subjects might be Non-Conformists, and yes

Loyal

num Corpus Corporatum & Politicum, de se per Nomen Superintendentis & Ministrorum Eccles & Germanorum & aliorum Peregrinorum ex sundatione Regis Edwardi Sexti in Civitate Londinensi per presentes, incorporamus ae Corpus Corporatum & Politicum par idem Nomen realiter & adplenum Creamus, Erigimus Ordinamur, facimus & Constituimus per præsentes: et quod Successionem ha? de-nt. (2) Mandamus& firmiter injungendum præcipimus, tam Majori, Vice-Comi-

Under Queen Elizabeth. Chap. 2.

Eoyal: otherwise he wou'd not have erected such a Body Politic; Part I. wherein Non-Conformity was ovenly projess d, and that not only in Matters of Worship, but Discipline too; and yet allowed and protested by him. And the Preamble of the Patent is very observable. For his grant is founded upon two Considerations, viz. 1. From the Obligation that he lay under as a Christian Prince, to regard pure Guncorrupted Religion, to diffuse it thro' the whole common wealth, & to preserve a Church instructed in truly Christian and Apostolical Opinions and Rites. & 2ly, The sufferings of those Germans and other strangers for Religion and the Truth. Whereupon and on these Accounts he 'grants them the Privileges mention'd in the Letters Patents. This is a plain Testimony of his belief that the German Presbyterian Cougregation was such a Church as was Instructed in the truly Christian and Apostolical Opinions and Rites, & that they had pure & UncorruptedReligion amongst them; tho' their Rites & Ceremonies & Ecclefastical Discipline disser'd from those of the Church of England. For 'If he had believ'd the contrary, the Patent wou'd have been inconfistent with it felt and grounded upon a Consideration that was false as to them, and confequently impertinent. Besides, he speaks of his Design thus, That there might be an incorrupted leterp etation of the Gospel, and an Administration of the Sacraments according to the Word of God and Apostolical Observation; Which shews that he believ'd both their Doctrine and Worship to be pure and Apostolical, and that they had faithful Ministers. And therefore it must be own'd that King Edward 6th, iustead of finding fault with them as Disloyal or Seditious, gives an Ample and Honorable Testimony in favour of N their tibus & Aidermanis Clvitatis nostræ Londinensis (between the last mentioned Words of this Patent and what follows, John a Lasco, in his Transcript of it, inserts these Words Episcopo Londonensi) & Successoribus suis, cum omnibus aliis Archiepiscopis, Episcopis, Justiciatiis, Officiariis & Ministris nostris quibuscunq;, quad permittant præsatis, Superintendenti & Ministris, & sua, suos libere & quiete srvi, gandere, uti, exercere Ritus & Cæremonias suas propriat, & Disciplinam Ecclesis sinsticam propriam & peculiarem, non obstante quod non conveniant cum Ritibus; & Cæremoniis in Regno nostro ustatis, absq; impeditione, Perturbatione aut Inquietatione eorum vel eorum alicujus, aliquo Statuto, actu, Proclamatione, Injunctione, Restrictione, seu usu in contrarium inde antehachabitis, sastis, editis, feu promulgatis in contrarium non obstantibus;

Part I. their Orthodoxy, Church-Constitution; and the Gospel-Purity of their Worship.

The Design of King Edward 6th, in giving such great Encouragement to these German Divines, is a Demonstration of his preferring their Principles and Worship before theseof the Church of England it self; which will appear, by considering what this Design was, and what Plan they had laid down for the Accomplishment of it. This is fully and plainly represented to us by a Lasco in his Book, DeOrdinatione Ecclesiarum perigrinarum in Anglia, printed Anno 1555, which he dedicates to Sigismund King of Poland, to whom he represents his own Opinion about Mystical Ceremonies in the worship of God; which he thinks ought not to be us'd, except they have Scriptural Institution and Authority to Support 'em: And afterwards, takes occasion to commend the PLAN of K. Edward the 6th, for introducing Gospel Simplicity and Apostolical Purity into the Public worship of the Church of England; which he describes thus:

When (b) I was call'd by that King! (i. s. Edward the 6th) and when some Laws of the Country stood in the Way, that 'twas on possible, That the Rites of Public Divine Worship us'd under

- * Popery shou'd be immediately purg'd out; (tho' it was what the * King himself desir'd) and while I was earnestly standing up for the
- 'Churchesof the Foreigners; at length't was his Pleasure, that the Pub-4 lic Rites in the English Churches shou'd be Reform'd bycertain Degrees,
- s as far as it could possibly be got done for the Laws of the King-
- dom: But that Strangers (who were not so strictly oblig'd by the - Laws of the Country in this Matter) shou'd have Churches granted

COM-

(b) Apud Voet. Polit. Ecclesiast. lib. 2. Cap. 6. Part 1. p. 421.

<sup>4</sup> Cum ego quoque per Regem illum vocatus essem: et leges quædam Patriæ ob-Racent, quominus publici potifimum Cultus Divini Ricus sub Papismo usurpati ' (pro eo ac-Rex ipse cupiebat) repurgari protenus possunt. Ego vero pro Pere-

grinorum Ecclessis sedulo instarem, ita demum placuit, ut Ritus publici in An-4 glicis Ecclesiis, per gradus quosdam (quantum per leges patrias omnino siceret)

* repurgarentur: Peregrinis vero hominibus (qui Patriis hac alioqui in parte legibus uon usque adeo tenerentur) Ecclesiæ concederentur in quibus omnia libere,

<sup>* &</sup>amp; nulla Rituum Patriorum habitaRatione(juxta Doctrinam duntaxitatqueObser-4 vationem Apostolicam) instituerentur, ita enim sore, ut Anglica quoque Ecclesia

* ad Puritatem Apostolicam Amplestendam unanimi omnium regni Ordinum

ted them, wherein they might freely perform all things according Part I. to Apostolical Doctrine and Observation only, without having ANY REGARD to the Rites of the Country; that by this means 'twou'd come to pass, that the English Churches wou'd be excited to EM-BRACE APOSTOLICAL PURITY, with the Unanimous Consent of all the STATES OF THE KINGDOM.

The King himself (from his great Piery) was both the CHIEF AUTHOR and Desender of this Project. For, tho' 'twas almost universally acceptable in the King's Council, and tho' the Archbishop of Canterbury himself promoted the thing with all his might: yet there were some who took it ill: and wou'd have shown more Re-Inclancy to it, had not the King given 'em a Repulse both by his Authority and the Reasons be gave for this Design. The Churches of Strangers being accordingly allow'd, upon Condition or rather with a Liberty, that all things in them flou'd be order'd according to the Doctrine and Practice of the Apostles, the Care of them (by the Authority of King and Council) was committed to me: and I' was commanded to chuse such Collegues for my self as I shou'd judge: fittest for that service: that their Names might be inserted in the: King's Patent.

In the end of the same Book in his Appendix. p; 649. he resumes the same history, and says, (i) What we did neither proceeded: from any Contempt of other Churches (by whom we ingenuously and willingly acknowledge we have been profited in the knowledge of Divine things) nor from any itch after Novelty; but our Delign was to remove as far as possible all Antichristian Novelries; And to make the nearest Approaches to the Antient Purity of the Primitive Apostolical Church; at the same time leaving other Churches (in this Matter) consensu, excitarenrur, Ejus vero Consilii Rex ipsemet (pro sua pietate) præcipuus non autor tantum, sed etiam Propugnator fuit. Etsi enim id in Senatu Regio omnibus propemodum placeret, ipleque Cantuariensis Archiepiscopus rem omnibus modis promoveret; non deerant tamen qui id'moleste serrent adeoque & reluctaturi fuerint huic instituto Regio, nisi Rex ipse, non tantum Authoritate sua restitisset: sed productis etiam instituti hujus rationibus conatus corum repressisset. Concessis itaque Peregrinorum Ecclesis, & quidem ea lège seu libertate potius, ut in illis omnia juxta Dostrinam atque Obstrationem Apostolicam instituerentur: cura illarum mibi (Regia & Senatus Anthoto their own Liberty, without any Prejudices. The faithfulness of the Ministry with which we are entrusted for those ends, required this at our hands; Seeing the Care of our Church was committed to us chiefly with this View, that in the Ministrations therein, we should rather follow the Rule of God's Word and the Practice of the Apposites, than any Rites of other Churches, and were admonished by the King himself and his Chief Nobility, to make a right and faithful use of so great a liberty of our Ministry as was permitted us; not to please men, but for the Glory of God alone, by promoting Reformation in the Worship of God: And that we should take care, that our Adversaries (who would be many) should not find any thing in us, that might afford them a just ground of accusing us.

The Credit of this piece of History is supported by most Convincing Circumstances. For 15t, John a Lajco had it from theking's own mouth and those of his chief Nobility; he does not tell a Story of matters that happen'd out of his own time, and that were remote from his own knowledge: in such things men may be imposed upon by Credulity in themselves, and Misinformation from others; but in this case there was no fear of either.

2dly, He hath from the King and Council (in the Patent) the Character of being, homo propter Integritatem & Innocentiam vita & morum, at singularem Eruditionem valde Celebris. i. e. A man very sameus for the In-fritate) committebatur. Jubebarque mihi Collegas asciscere quos ei ministerio aptillimos esse indicarem: ut illorum nomina Regio Diplomati insererentur (i) Nos neque contemptu ullo a liarum Ecclesiarum (per quas nos .. aliequi in divi-· norum Cognitione profecific, ingenue & libenter agnoscimus neque item ullo " novandi quidquam studio egiste quidquidhujus egimus; sedpotius id conatos este, ut sublatis omnibus anti. Christianis Navationibus. (quod ojus fieri posset) 4 ad pristam ikam primævæ Ecclesiæ Apostolicæ puritatem quam proxime accede... 4 remus, permissa interim aliis Ecclesiis, sua (hac in parce) libertate, & sine, opræjudiciis ullis. Ad hæc fidem iplam concrediti nobis, Ministerii id postulasse: cum bac potissimum ratione cura nobia notire . Ecclesia committeretur, ut in 'innis Ministerio, non tam equidem alianum Ecclesiarum ritus ullos, quam Verbi Divini Regulam potius atque Apostolicam. Observationem sequeremur. Demique cum & a Rege iplo, & a præcipuis suis Proceribus subinde moneremute ut permissa nobis tanta libertate in nostro ministerio, rece, & sideliter, non ja hominum gratiam ullam, sed ad Dei solius Gloriam (per Cultus ipsius Repurgationem). vieremur. Et caveremus, ne quid in nobis a nostris Adversasus (quos equidem mulcos haberemus) acculari merito poster.

Under Queen Elizabeth.

Chap. 2:

Now, if he had all possible Opportunities of knowing the Truth of what he relates, Judgment to apprehend it, and Honesty and Integrity to give it faithfully without a Wilful Deviation from the Truth; his History challengeth all the Esteem and Credit, that can be due to an human Testimony: which will yet further appear, if we consider.

adly, That he did not delay the Publication of this Narrative, until the Story became Stale, and the Means of Convicting him of salfehood (had there been any in it) were lost: But he publisheth this Concert between the king, the Council and him, within 4 or at most 5 years, after the affair was transacted; by which means, all his Enemies had the fairest Opportunity imaginable of discovering the error of what he afferted, had they been able to do it.

which confirm A Lasco's Narrative; for the King's Letters Patents, which confirm A Lasco's Narrative; for the King proposeth to have purs and Uncorrupted Religion diffus'd thro' the whole Body of the Commonwealth, and to have a Church instructed in truly Christian and Apostolical Opinions and Rites; this was his very View in the Preamble of the Patent, and agrees very well with the PLAN OF REFORMATION laid down by that Excellent Prince, as A Lasco explains it;

and what farther confirms it is,

cated to A Lasco, falls to work and makes Gradual attempts towards a farther reformation of the Church both in Discipline and Worship: For the latter, there comes out a second Edition of the Liturgy; many Popish Corruptions contain'd in the first were lest out of this; A Commission was presently set on foot to 32 Commissioners to prepare the Draught for the 1est, which they did: and John a Lasco was nam'd as one of the 32. (k) The work was perfected and called Resormatio Legum Ecclesiasticarum; But the king died before it obtained the Civil Sanction, and the Work died with him. However, 'tis evident that it went much farther towards a Reformation in Discipline than any thing, that has been enacted since in the Church

(k) vide Burnet's Hist. of the Reformation Part 2. Book 1. p. 197.

Part I: of England. And it makes it plain, that the king had a mind to go on by degrees in Reforming abule, as John a Lasco assures us: & that he was one of the Persons appointed by the king, to assist in thework, is a farther Circumsiance to support the Credit of what he relates. In a wor, dhere are all the Concurring Circumstances, that can be expected and desir'd in a faithful Historian.

The Matter of this Historical Narration of John A Lasco is so. plain, as it needs no Commentary to how how favorable an Opinion. King Edward 6th, and his chief Ministers and Council had of the Non-Conformists. The Patent to A Lasco and the German Congregation was not a favor design'd only for Foreigners; 'twas a Project to Prepare the Nation for RECEIVING NON-CONFORMITY IT SELF, and forhaving it diffusible UNCORRUPTED APOSTOLICAL RELIGION, thro' the whole Body of the Common-wealth. It is none. of my business in this Book, to enquire whether King Edward .6. did Right or wrong in laying this Scheme for perfecting the Reformation of the Church of England: For that wou'd directly engage me in the Controversy about Church-Government, Ceremonies and Liturgies. But so far its subservient to my present purpose. as to be a Demonstrative Evidence of his sense of the Loyalty of Presa byterians: And that his Ministry and Council concurr'd in Opinion with him, is a farther Proof of the dutiful and Loyal Behavior of that. People.

God having punish'd an Unworthy People with the Death of that Religious and Excellent Prince, the Wonder of his Age; Popery became again the Establish'd Religion in England under his Sister and Succesfor Q. Mary, by whom Protestants of all Persuasions were severely persecuted. During her Reign the English Exiles at Francsord set up a Congregation, wherein they exactly practif'd both the Presbyterian Discipline and Worship.

Upon the Death of Q. Mary (which was as great a Blelling to the Nation, as the Death of K. Edward 6th was a Curse and an heavy Affliction) Q. Elizabeth's happy Accession to the Crown open'd a Door for the Return of these Exiles; and the Protestant Religion was Re-establish'd. Protestant Non-Conformity made a Considerable Progress during her Reign; and I hope to make it appear that the Buritans in her time, tho' they had the Missortune to be treated with great Severity by her, were her faithful and Loyal Subjects.

Chap. 2.

Under Queen Elizabeth.

And here I will examine what our Author has said to the Con-Part Firery.

He begins his Account of their Behavior with this Mighty Apparatus p.7.

I will now proceed to show how far their Actions have been Con-

4 formable to their Principles in all Turns of Government, and will

4 as much as possible, confine my self to the very Words and Sentiments of most of the Qucen's Royal Predecessors in Relation to them, whereby you may judge what sense they had of their Untainted Loyalty to them in their Respective Reigns.

Seeing our Author has distinguish'd between the Principles and Practices of Presbyterians, &accordingly treats 'em, it might have been expected that they shou'd not be consounded and intermixt in this latter Part of his Eslay, as sometimes they are; but especially, seeing he brings in Evidences to prove 'em; and therefore let the Reader observe, That no Man's Testimony whatsoever is sufficient Evidence for condemning any Principle in Religion upon: for doing whereof Divine Testimony and Sound Reason is the only sufficient Ground.

Indeed in Matters of Fact, good and Unexceptionable Witnesses are to be admitted. But if the Presbyterians shou'd alledge, that some of the Queen's Royal Predecessors and their Prime Favorites by whom they were influenc'd were Persecutors of the Dissenters, to the public - Prejudice of Religion and Liberty; they lay no more than what the best States-men, greatest Patriots, Most Impartial Historians, & the Ablest Diwines of the Moderate Conformists have acknowledg'd. And therefore let the Reader judge, whether such Testimonies be Conclusive. forry that our Author shou'd have so little Regard to the Memory of some of those Princes, as to raise a Disturbance to their Royal Ashes, and oblige men inevitably in their own Defence to mention some of those Dark Shades, with which their Pictures are drawn in the Public Records of History. This is a Task I shou'd altogether decline, were it not, that those Mistakes of the Court have been already laid open. by those whose Zeal for the Church of England is past all Question; and that such Historical Discoveries have the Royal Countenance of a very great and Impartial Judge, namely the late Queen Mary of Glorious Memory, who 'When Reflections were once made before her, of the Sharpness of some Historians, who had left heavy Imputations on the Memory of some Princes: She answer'd, That if these

Part I. those Princes were truly such as the Historians Represented them, they had well deserved that Treatment: And others who tread their steps must look for the same ; for Truth won'd be told atlast. And that with the more Acrimony of Stile, for being so long Restrain'd. It was a Gentle Suffering to be exposed to the World in their true Colours, much below

* what others had suffer'd at their Hands (1).

I'm sure no man is chargeable with the Sin of speaking evil of Dignities, meetly for giving a just account of the Male-Administrations of Princes, when the Cause of Innocence and Truth requires it: with this Caution, I shall consider his Proof. 'To begin (says he p. 7.) with Queen Elizabeth We find in her Speech to the Parliament Anno Regn i Decimo septimo, the says, That the Puritans are Dangerous to Kingly Rule, every man according to his own Censure making doom of she Validity or Pravity of his Prince's Government, with a Common Vail and Cover of Gods Word.

If we examine the Reasons which induc'd Queen Elizabeth to have: this Opinion of the Rurisans, we may collect them from the following Passages, taken from three Historians, who are all above the loast sespicion of Partiality in their Favors. The first is Bp Burnet, who in the Preface to the 2d. Volume of his Histroy of the Reformation, says, There were many Learn'd and Pious Diviges in the beginning of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, who being driven beyond sea had observid the New Models set up in Geneva, and other places, for the Cenfuring of Scandalous Persons, of mixed Judicatories of the Ministers and Laity; and these reslecting on the great Looseness of Life which had been universally Complain'd of in King Edward's time, thought such a Platform might be an Effectual way for keeping out a return of the like Disorders. There were also some few Rites ereserved in this Church, that had been either used in the Primitive 6 Church, or tho' brought in of later time, yet seemed of excellent use to beget reverence in Holy Performances, ----- Yet these Divines Excepted to those as Complyances with Popery, These of the Division finding they could not carry their main Deliga, rail'd all the Clamors they cou'd against the Churchmen; and put in Bills into the Parliament against the abuses of Pluralities, Non-Part I. Residences, and the Excesses of the Spiritual Courts. But the Queen being POSSESS'D with this, that the Parliaments medling in those matters tended to the lessening of HER AUTHORITY, of which she was EXTREMELY SENSIBLE, got all those Bills to be thrown out: If the Abuses that gave such Occasion to the Male-contented to Complain, had been effectually redress'd, that Party must have had little to work on; But these things surnish'd them with new Complaints still.

(1) Burness Essy on the Memory of Queen Mary p., 24.

After he has been stating the sist Prejudice against the Resormation, he brings in the Latter Part of the Objection thus, There are besides this a great many other abuses, brought in in the worst times and now purg'd out of some of the Churches of the Roman Communion, which yet continue and are too much in use among us, such as Pluvalities, Non-residences, and other things of thus nature: so that it may be said, that some of the manifest Corruptions of Popery, where they are recommended by the Advantages that accompany them, are not throughly purged out; notwithstanding all the noise we have made about Reformation in matters much more disputable, and of far less Consequence.

This whole Objection, when all acknowledg'd, as the greatest Part of it can't be deny'd, amounts indeed to this; that our Reformation is NOT YET ARRIV'D at that full Perfection, that is to be defir'd. The want of public Pennance, and Penitentiary Canons is indeed a very great Defect: Our Church does not deny it, but acknowledges it in the Preface to the Office of Commination. It was one of the greatest Glories of the Primitive Church, that they were so govern'd, that none of their number cou'd sin openly without public Censure and a long Separation from the holy Communion; which they judg'd was defil'd by a Promiscuous Admitting of all persons to it.

form was made of an ECCLESIASTICAL DISCIPLINE, tho' the Bishops had no hope of reducing it to Practice, till the King shou'd come to be of Age; and pass a Law for the Authorizing of it: but he dying before this was effected, it was not prosecuted with that Zeal that the thing required in Queen Elizabeth's time.

In

Part 1.

Part I. In his History of the Reformation (m) he says, 'The Queen had been bred up from her Infancy with a hatred of the Papacy, and a love to the Reformation: But yet as her first Impressions in her Father's Reign were in favor of such Old Rites as he had still retain'd, 6 so in her own Nature she lov'd State and some Magnificence, in Religion, as well as in every thing else. She thought in her Brother's 4 Reign they had stript it too much of external Ornaments, and had made their Doctrine too narrow in some Points, therefore she intended to have some things explain'd in more general Terms, that 6 so all Parties might be comprehended by them. She inclin'd to keep up Images in Churches: And to have the manner of Christ's Presence in the Secrament lest in some General Words, that those who believ'd the Corporal Presence might not be driven awayfrom. the Church by too nice an Explanation of it. The same Author in his Letters (x) says,, By the Letters (he means of enrReserveres to Bullinger) of which I read the Originals, it appears that the Bishops preserved the Ancient Habits rather in Complyancewith the Queen's Inclinations than out of any likeing they had to them; fo far were they from liking them, that they plainly express' d their Dislike of them. Jewel in a Letter Feb. 8. 1566, wishes that the Vestments togetherwith all the other Remnants of Popery, might be thrown both. out of their Churches, and out of the Minds of the People, & laments. the Queen's Fixeiness to them; so that she wou'd suffer no Change to be made. And January 1 566. Sands writes to the same Purpose, L' Contenditur de Vestibus Papisticis utendis; dabit Deus his quoque sinem Horn, July 16. 1565. Writes of the Act concerning Habits with GREAT REGRATE, and expresses some hopes that it might be Repeal'd next Sellion of Parliament, if the Popish Party did not hinder it, and he seems to stand in doubt, whether he shou'd conform. himself to it or not upon which he defires Bullinger's Advice. And in many Letters wrote on the Subject it is afferted, That both Cran-" mer and Ridley intended to procure an Ait for abolishing the Habits. 4. &c. Grindal August 17. 1566 writes that all the Bishops who badboen beyond Sea, had at their Return dealt with the Queen to let the matter of the Habits fall: but the was 50 PROPOSSESS'D. that the they had all endeavor'd to divert her from prosecuting Part I. the matter, she continu'd STILL INFLEXIBLE. This shad made them to resolve to submit to the Laws, & to wait for a sit Deportunity to reverse them.

The same Learn'd Author, in his Sermon before the House of Commons January, 1688 on Ps. 144. ver. 15. gives us a Piece of History, which will give farther light in this matter, " Here suffer me to tell you (says he) that in the beginning of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, our Adversaries (the Papifts) saw no hopes of Retriveing their Affairs, which had been spoiled by Q. Mary's Per-' secution, but by setling on foot Divisions among Protestants, upon very inconsiderable matters. I my self have seen the Letters of the Chief Beshops of that time, from which it appears that the QUIERN'S STIFNESS in maintaining some Ceremonies flowed not from their Counsels, but from the practices of some disguised Papists. And I have had in my hands the Original Journel of the Lower · House of Convocation in the 5th year of that Glorious Reign, in which the matter of the Ceremonies was first argu'd, and when it came to the Vote, it was carried by the greater Number of the 4 Voices of the Members that were present TO LAY DOWN ALL THESE SUBJECTS OF CONTEST: But the Proxies turn'd it to the severer side.

The second is Dr. Heylin, who speaking of Queen Elizabeth, says, with respect to the book of Common-prayer establish'd by her 'There was great care taken for expunging such Passages in it, as might e give any scandal or Offence to the Popish Party, or be urg'd by them in excuse for their not coming to the Church—In the Litany. first made and publish'd by King Henry 8th, and afterwards contionu'd in the two Liturgies of K. Edward 6. there was a Prayer to be deliver'd from the Tyranny and all the detestable Enormities of the Bishop of Rome, which was thought fit to be expung'd, as giving ' matter of Scandal and Disassection to all that Party, or that otherwise with'd well to that Religioncome up closer to the Church of Rome, it was ordered by the Queen's Injunctions that the Sacramental Bread (which the book required onby to be made of the finest flows) shou'd be made round in the fashion' of the Wafers used in the time of Queen Mary. Blee also order'd that the Lord's Table Thould be placed where the Algar stood, And

0 2

Part I. all the Old Festivals observ'd with their several Eves, by which Complyances and the expunging the Passages before remembred; the Book was made so passable among the Papists, that for ten years. they generally repair'd to their Parish Churches, without doubt or & scruple.

The same Anthor giving an Account of many things retain'd in the Church by Queen Elizabeth, hath this Passage, 'The Gentlemen and Children in their Surplices, and their Priests in Copes as often " as they attended the Divine Service of the Holy Altar. The Altar furnish'd with rich Plate, TWO FAIR GILT CANDLE. 4 STICKS with Tapers on them, and a Massy Crucifix of Silver in the midst thereof; which last remained there for some years, till. it was broke in Pieces by Pach, the foot (no wiser man daring to undertake such a Desperate Service) at the Solicitation of Sir Francis Knolles the Queen's near kinsman by the Caries, and one who openly appear'd in favor of the Schism at Frankford. The Ancient "Ceremonies Accustomably observ'd by the Knights of the Garter, in their Adoration towards the Altar, abolish'd by King Edward 6th, " reviv'd by Queen Mary, were by this Queen retain'd as formerly. in her Father's time.

The Third is Cambden, who giving an Account of the Advancement of Whitgift-from the See of Worcester to that of Canterbury, Represents Q. Elizabeth's Instructions to him in these Words, 'Him(o) TheQueen (who, as in Civil Matters, so also in the Laws Ecclesiastiwas of Opinion that no loose Remissiness was to be used, ) gave in Charge, that he should take special Care to restore the Discipline of the Church of England, and the Uniformity in the Service. of God establish'd by Authority of Parliament; which thro' the Connivance of the Prelates, the Obstinacy of the Puritans, and the. "Power of some Noblemen, was run out of Iquare;" Whitgift, in Pursuance of these Instructions urg'd upon the Ministers a Subscription. to three Articles, the second whereof was in these Words, That the. Book of Common-Prayer and another Book of Ordaining Bishops and Priests. contained nothing in them, contrary to Gods Word, but might lawfully be used;

er Administration of the Sacraments. Upon which that Author makes this Resiction, By Occasion hereof incredible it is what CONTRO- VERSIES and DISPUTATIONS arose—

From these Passiges 'tis easy to determine, what were the Cinses of Queen Elizabeth's bad Opinion of the Puritans. I hey thought the Reformation in her time was realy DEFECTIVE, and you ice Dr. Burnet freely confesseth the same: Nay they thought that in some Points things were made worse by her, and some things reform'd byher Brothei King Edward, reduced to the Old Pepish Oustoms again, which the above Historians Confirm. That good King was for a Plan of Ecclesiastical Discipline, which she would not suffer nor establish; and for want whereof many Abuses were retained & encreas'd in the Church. and all this was regrated by the Puritans, and was what they still sought to be reform'd. And you see the most Learn'd and Pious -Bishops in her time Joyn'd with the Puritans, lamenting the Queen's FIXEDNESS, and that she was so PREPOSSESS'D and INFLEXIBLE. She was so great a lover of State and Magnificence in Religion and in every thing else, that she could not bear to be contradicted in any thing, which her Natural Temper was fond of; and she was so Extremely jealous of her own Authority, that she wou'd not suffer the Parliament to reform the Abuses of the Spiritual Courts, Non-Residence, Pluralities. &c.

Now, I would gladly know whether Q. Elizabeth was not too jealum of her own Authority, and too featful of its being diminish'd, when she carried it so high; as to hinder the Necessary Reformation of Palpable Abuses in the Church? Wherein could that diminish her authority in the least? and if she was missaken in this Point, why might not her opinion of Puritans being Enemies to Kingly Rule be grounded upon the like mistake? Were they any further Enemies to Kingly Government, than by pressing for a farther Reformation of the Church? And were not all those Worthy Presates and other Great Ones who joyned with them as much Enemies to Kingly Government as they; that is, in Truth no Enemies to it at all.

Her stopping the Reformation of Abuses in the Church gave just ground for continual Complaints and Petitions; and yet she still found fault with those Complaints, as levell'd against her Authority;

wherea.

Part 1. whereas they were only levell'd against those Corruptions, which had too much Countenance from her, against the Inclinations and declar'd

Opinion of all the Moderate Clergy.

That Glorious Princels was very hearty and Zealous in promoting every step of the Reformation that was agreeable to her own Inclinations; for which her Memory will be transmitted to late Posterity with the Universal applause of all good Protestants: but in some owher Points, 'tis plain that our Reformers had a Mind to have gone much farther, but for want of her Concurrence their Endeavors were frustrated; which was so great a Missortune to England, that (most probably) it has been the Cause of all the Unhappy Divisions and Animocties among English Protestants from that time to this. For until that Fatal Charge given by the Queen to Whitgift, anno 1583; The Prelates generally and the other Clergy, had so good an Understanding amongst themselves, that they bore with one another; and the Terms of Conformity were not rigoroully urg'd. What Parts of the Common-Prayer were against the Consciences of Men, and were likely to divide the Church, and cause a Separation, were let alone; and the Ceremonies left indifferent, and no preffing of Ministers to Subscriptions and declarations with respect to those Points; and this is what Cambden calls the Connivance of Prelates, which so much disturb'd the Queen. Now is it to be imagin'd, but that Glergy who by their Mutual Moderation continu'd incorporated into one Church and Communion for so many years, wou'd have fallen upon such a healing Scheme, as wou'd have prevented all the unhappy Differences which have since follow'd, if the Queen had heartily concurr'd with 'em. But instead of that, Wingift by herOrders, carry'd matters so high, that Multitudes of Faithful, Learn'd & Laborious Ministers were silenc'd and Grievoully persecuted for Mon-subscription to his New Articles, press'd without Authority either of Parliament or Convocation; while in many places a scandalous Unquality'd Ministry who Conform'd to his Articles were kept in their Peaceable Possession. And hereamon Multitudes of Families were ruin'd bylmprisonment, and Banishment and other Severities.

The persecuting Rigor and Violence of Whitgift, and the Loyal and Peaceable Behavior of those Puritums so cruelly harass'd by him, is strefted by the greatest Statesmen of that Age, and particularly by the Celebrated Lord Treasurer Barleigh, who in one of his Letters Part I. upon that Subject to the Archbishop Sepr. 17. 1584 says, 1 (p) see such Worldliness in many who were otherwise afficited hefore they U came to Cathedral Churches, that I fear the Places ofter the men, and herein I condemn not all: but few there be that do better being. ----by your Order, Bishops, than being Preachers they did. poor simple men, have rather been sought for by Inquisition to be found Offenders, than upon their facts condemn'd. In another letter to Whitgift dated july 4th 1984. The same Noble Lord says, '(9)" It May please your Grace, I am forry to trouble you so often as I do, but I am more troubled my felf, not only with many private Petitions of sundry Ministers recommended for persons of Credit, &for peaceable persons in their Ministry, & yet by Complaints to your Grace, &other your Collegues in Committion greatly troubled: but also daily now charg'd by COUNSELLORS, and PUPLIC PERSONS. to neglect my Duty, in not staying of those your Grace's Proceedings, so vehement and so General against Ministers, and Preachers, as the Papists are thereby greatly encouraged and all evil Disposed Persons amongst the Subjects animated, and thereby the Queen's Majesty's SAFETY ENDANGER'D; But now, My good Lord, by chance I have come to the fight of an Instrument of 24. Articles of great length&Curiosity, form'd in a Romish Style, to examine all manner of Ministers in this time without Distinction of Persons, which Articles are Entitul'd apud Lanbeth Maij. 1584 to be executed exossicio mero &c. And upon this Occasion I have seen them. I did recommend unto your Grace's Favor two Ministers Curates of Cambridge Shire, to be favorably heard, and your Grace wrote to me that they were Contentious, Seditious, and Persons Vagrant, maintaining this Controversy, wherewith I charg'd them sharply, and they both deny'd those Charges, and requir'd to be try'd and so to receive Punishment: I answer'd, That your Grace wou'd so charge them, & then Ishou'd see afterwards what they should deserve, & advised them to resort to your Grace, comforting them that they honid find favorable Proceedings & so I hope upon my former Com-

<sup>(4)</sup> Vide Fuller's Church History Book 9. p. 154 &c.

Part I. mendations the rather. What may be said to them I know not, nor whether they have been so faulty as your Grace hath been in-'form'd do Iknow; neither do'I mean to treat for favor to such ' men, for pardon I may speak upon their Amendment. But now they coming to me, I offer how your Grace proceeded with them? They fig, they are commanded to be examin'd by the Register at . London, and I ask'd them whereof. They said of a great Number of Articles; but they could have no Copies of them, I answer'd that they might answer to the Truth; they said that they were so " many in number, and so diverse, as they were afraid to answer them, for fear of Captions Interpretation. Upon this I sent for the Register, who brought me the Articles, which I have read, and find so curiously penn'd, so full of Branches, and Circumstances, that 'I think the INQUISITIONS of SPAIN use not so many Questions to comprehend, and to intrap their Preys. I know your Canonists can Defend these with all their Particles: But surely under your Grace's Correction, this Jaridical and Canonical Siftner of poor Ministers; is not to edify and reform. And in Charity I think they ought onot to answer to all these nice Points, except they were very NotoriousOffenders inPapistry or Heresy. Now good my Lord, bearwith my scribling: I write with Testimony of a good Conscience. I desire the Peace of the Church I desire Concord, and Unity in the Exercise of our Religion. I fear no Sensual and Wilful Recusant. But I conclude, that according to my simple Judgment, this kind of proceeding is too much savoring the Romish Inquisition, and is rather a Device to seek for Offenders, than to reform any.

1 have willed them not to answer these Articles, except their Consciences may fusfer them.

If COUNSELLORS and PUBLIC PERSONS thought Whie gift's Vehement Proceedings against Puritans to be encouraging to Papists, and all evil Dispos'd Subjects, and DANGEROUS to her MAJESTY'S SAFETY, then 'twas not possible that they shou'd reckon Puritans shemselves dangerous to her Majesty's safety, or that they were, in the least evil-Dispos d Subjects; and therefore they were accounted by them Loyal and peaceable in the Exercise of their Ministry, which Character of em prevails so far upon the Lord Treasurer's Belief, as he wills him not to answer Whitgist's Romish Inquisition, promoted by such whose Places alter'd the men.

Nay

Nay the PRIVY-COUNCIL themselves laid such weight upon Part I. the many Complaints made to them upon this dolern! Subject, that Part I. they wrote a grave letter of Admonition to the Archbishop of Can. twikry and Bishop of London dated September 20. 1584: in favor of the Non Conformists, as follows. 'After (r) our hearty Commendations to both your Lordships; 'altho' we have heard of late times sundry Complaints out of divers "Countries of this Realm, of some Proceedings against a great number of Ecclesiastical Persons, some Parsons of Churches, some Vicars, some Curates, but ALL PREACHERS, whereby some were de-'priv'd of their Livings, some suspended from their Ministry, & Preaching; yet we have forborn to enter into any particular Examination of such Complaints, thinking that howsoever inferior Officers 'as Chancellers, Commissaries, Arch-Deacons-and such like, whose Offices are of-more value and profit by such like kind of Proceedings, might 'in such sort proceed against the Ministers of the Church: Yet your Lordhip the Atchhishop of that Province of Canterbury have, besides your General Authority, some particular Interest in the present Jurisdiction of fundry Bishopricks vacant. And you also the Bishop? of London both for your own Authority in your Diocess, and as headCommissioner Ecclesiastical, would have a Pastoral care over the particular Officers; to stay and temper them in their hasty Proceedings against the Ministers, and especially against such as do earnestly projess and instruct the People against the Dangerous Sects of Papistry. But yet of late, hearing of the lamentable Estate of the Church in the County of Effex, that is, of a GREAT NUMBER of ZEA-LOUS and LEARN'D PREACHERS there suspended from ' their Cures, the Vacancy of the place for the most part without any Ministry of preaching, Prayers and Sacraments; And in some Country, a great Number of Parsons occupying the Cures being notoriously unsit, most for lack of Learning, many charged or chargeable with great and Erroncous finalts and Drunkennofs, Filthiness of life, places, of certain appointed to those void Rooms, being persons neither of Learning nor of good name; and in other Places of that Part I. Gamsters at Cards, baunting of Ale-bouses, and such like; against whom we hear not of any Proceedings but that they are QUIETLY SUFFER'D, to the flander of the Church, to the offence of good people, yea to the familhing of them for lack of good teaching; and thereby dangerous to the ubverting of many, weakling, from their Daries to God, and the QUEEN'S MAJESTY, by secret Jeluits and Counterfeit Papilts. And having thus in a general fort heard out of many Parts of the like of this lamentable Estate of the · Church, yet to the Intent we should not be deceived with the · Generality of reports, we fought to be inform'd of someParticulars, namely of some parts of Effex, and having receiv'd the same Credibly in Writing, we have thought it our Duties to her Majesty and the Realm for the Remedyhereof, without intermedling our selves with Your Jarisdiction Ecclesiastical, to make Report unto your Lord-Alips as persons that ought most specially to beve regard therete, as we bope you will; and therefore have sent you herewith in Writing • a Catalogue of the Names of persons of fundry Natures, and Conditions, that is, one fort bring reported to be Learned, Zealous and good e Preachers deprised and suspended, and so the Gures not served with e meet persons. The other Sort a Mumber of persons having Cures. bing in Sanday forts far unmeet for any Offices in the Church, for their many Defects and Imperfections, and so as it seems by the Reports have been and are suffered to continue WITHOIT RE-'PREHENSION or any Other PROCEEDINGS against them; and thereby a great number of Christian People untaught; a Matter. very lamentable in this time. In a third fort, a number having double livings with Care, and so not resident upon their Cares. But yet, enjoying the benefit of their Benefices without any Personal Actendance upon their Cares. Against all these Sores of Lend, and evil, and Unprofisable Corrupt Members, we hear of NO INQUISI-· TION, nor of any kind of Proceeding to the Reformation of those horrible Offences in the Church, but yet of great diligence, year e and Extremity us'd against these that are KNOWN DILIGENT " PREACHERS. Minw therefore we, for the Discharge of more Daties, being by our Vocations under her Majesty bound to be careful that the Universal Realm may be well govern'd, to the ho. nor and Glory of God, and to the Discharge of her Majesty being

the

"the Principal Governor, over all her Subjects under Almighty Part I. "God, do most earnestly delire your Lordskips, to take some Chari table Consideration of these Causes, that the People of the Realin 'may not be deprived of their Pastors being DILIGENT, LEARNED and ZEALOUS, tho' in some Points Ceremonial, they may seem doubtful only in Conscience, and not of Wilfulness. Nor that their Cures be suffer'd to be vacant without good Pastors, nor that such as be placed in the Rooms of Cures be infufficient for learning, or unmeet for their Conversation. And tho' the Notes which we send you be only of Persons belonging to Esex, yet we pray you to look into the rest of the Country in many other Diocesies, for we have, and do hear daily of the like in generality in many other places, but we have not sought to have the Particulars so manifestly deliver'd of other places as of Esex or rather, to say the Truth, of one Corner of the Country. And we shall be most glad to hear of your cares to be taken for Remedy of these Enormities, so as we be not troubled hereafter, or hear of the like Complaints to continue; and so we bid your good Lordships right heartily farewell.

Your Lordships Loving Friends

C. Howard, Will. Burleigh,

I. Croft: George Shrewsbury;

Chr. Halton, A. Warwick.

Pra. Walsugham. R. Leicoster.

Does any man believe that her Majesty's Privy Council, cou'd have pleaded in this manner for the Puritans, if they had thought them Disloyal and Seditious? If they did, I'm sure they must be chargeable with great Unsaithfulness to the Queen, and the true Interest of the Nation.

If Cambden had seen all the Debates that have been raised upon the same ground, he wou'd have had much more reason to say, as he did, it is incredible what Disputations & Controversats &c. Non-Conformity till that time made but a small Figure in England, because the Moderation of several Bishops was such, as the Puritans were connived at in their Omission of the Rites, Forms and Practices which they most

The Loyalty of Presbyterians Chap. 2. 308

Part I. most scrupled at: And therefore the number of those who separated from the Communion of the Church was, before that time, but in considerable. But the fatal Cause above mention'd (viz. Whitgist's Rigor) did then Effectually break the Peace of the Church, by excluding from her Communion many found Protestants of Unblemished Characters: And, at the same time, gave a Demonstration of the Justice of that Observation made by the Learn'd Stilling Fleet ( ); Without all Controversy the main inlet of all the Distractions, Confusions and Divisions in the Christian World, hath been adding other Conditions of Church Communion than Christ hath made.

Upon the whole, if Queen Elizabeth's stiffness in these Points, riveted in her by her extreme Jealoufy of her own Authority, and her Natural Inclination (from her Education and Temper) to the Magnifi-.cence of some of the Popish Ceremonies, Modes and Habits, did PRE-POSSESS her Judgment&make her INFLEXIBLE, even to the defires . of the most Glorsous of our Reformers in these very Points, which to this day are some of the Grounds of Non-Conformity: The Consequence plainly is this, that her judgment of Puritans was not impartial being Byas'dand Prepossesss' d; and therefore ought not to be receiv'd to their Prejudice. If every Puritan according to his own Censure, made doom of the Validity or Pravity of his Prince's Government, I think he did no more than what the Rights of Mankind and Subjects allow every Individual to do, who ought in the Judgment of Discretion to examine every Command of his Superior w herein he's concerned, whether it may be obeyed lawfully and with a good Conscience: To deny this, is to make as mary Popes as there are Princes in the World, by yielding them all an Implicit Obedience. And Q. Elizabeth's charging this upon the Purisans, is a farther Argument of her extreme Jealousy of her Authority, and of her Prepossess d'Judgment.

Our Author, to give us a farther Account of the sense of Q. Elizabeth, quotes two Passages; the one from a Speech of Serjeant Puckering to the House of Commons, whereof he was Speaker: And the other from the letter of Sir Francis Walfingham to Monsieur Cr.toy, the French King's Secretary. But seeing he quotes them only as speaking the sunse of Queen Elizabeth about Puritans, I might Part I. dismiss them both with what has been said, as a sufficient Answer: For if that Queen's own Judgment was Prepossels'd in this Point, surely all those who speak ber sense must, on the same score, be laid aside in this Debate. Yet, I shall neglect nothing that has the least shadow of Argument in what's quoted out of either of these two Gentlemen. Serjeant Puckering begins thus (p. 7.) 'You are Commanded by her . Majesty that no ear be given to the Wearisom Solicitations of those that commonly call themselves Puritans, wherewith all the late Par-Haments have been exceedingly importun'd.' All subjects have a Liberty of Petitioning for the Redress of Grievances, and to hear such Petitions and frame wholesom Laws upon'em, has been still thought the great baliness of Porliaments and the great Means of preserving the Liberty of the Subject; and therefore that the Queen shou'd -Command herParliaments to give no ear to the Complaints of Subjects, is a Stile and manner of speaking, which Parliaments have no great reason to be sond of Both Houses of Parliament being Effential Branches of the Legislature, are sor themselves Judges of what ought or ought not to pass into a Law; And therefore have still endeavor'd to pre-Serve to themselves the freedom of Speech & Foting according to their own Judgments, and not by any Prepossession from another Spring. Neither did they account the Solicitations of Puritans wearison; but, on the Contrary, Reasonable; as appears from the Petition of the House of Commons to the House of Lords anno 1587. in their favor, Fuller gives us the greater Part of the Petition it self, with an Account of the Debates upon it in the House of Lords, and of the Artifices and Management of Whitgift and his party with the Queen to obstruct it. And because all these things give Considerable insight into the History of the Puritans and their Behavior at that time, and the Causes not only of their being Discountenanc'd, but of a Stop put to the Reformation of Palpable. Abuses, I must not overlook it.

Take Fuller's Account of the whole in the following Words' But '(t) now a Session of Parliament was held at Westminster, wherein the House of Commons presented to the Lords Spiritual and Temporal

8

Part I: a Petition. Complaining how many Parishes especially in the North of England and Wales, were destitute of Preachers, and no care taken to supply them. Sixteen were the Particulars, whereof, the six first were against insufficient Ministers; very earnestly pressing: their taking the same into their serious Consideration, for speedy Redress of the Grievances therein contained.

That no Oath or Subscription might be tendered to any at their enterance into the Ministry, but such as is expressly prescrib'd by the-Statutes of this Realm, except the Oath against corrupt Entring.

9. That they may not be troubled for OMISSION of SOME RITESor PORTIONS prescribed in the Book of Common-Pray-

9. That they may not be call'd and urg'd to answer before the Officials and Commissaries, but before the Bistiops themselves.

offence, but only for NOI SUBCRIBING, might be restored, and that the Bishops would forbear their Excommunication, excossing mero, of GODLY and LEARND PREACHERS not detected for open offence of life or apparent Error in Doctrine.

11. That they might not be call'd before the High-Commission, or out of The Diocels where they lived, except for some notable Offence.

12. That it might be permitted to them in every A1ch-Dcaconty, to have some Common Exercises and Conferences amongst themselves to be limited and prescribed by the Ordinaries.

19. That the high Censure of Excommunication, may not be denounced or executed for sinal matters.

14. Nor by Chancellors, Commissaries or Officials, but by the Bishops themselves with assistance of grave Persons.

or at least that according to the Queen's Injunctions (Artic, 44.) No Non-Resident having already a Licence of faculty may enjoy it, unless be depute an able Curate, that may weekly preached and Catechize, as is required in her Majesties Injunctions.

of Pluralities and (the Effect thereof) Non-Residents.

Arch-Bishop Whitgist pleaded, that Licences for Non-Residency, Part I. were at the present but seldem granted. And yet in way of Recovering health by changing of Air, of Study for a time in the University, of Mortal Enmity born by some in the Parish, of Prosecution of Law, or of being Employed in Public Affairs, they cannot be wholly abrogated, That there were in England sour thousand sive hundred Benefices with Core, not above ten & most of them under eight pounds in the sirst fruits-Book, which cannot be surnish'd with able Pastors, as the Petitioners desire, because of the smallness of their Livings. More-over heastirm'd, that whatever was presended to the contrary, England at that time stourish'd with able Ministers more than ever before, yea had more than all Constranton besides.

The Lord Gray rejoyn'd to this Assertion of more Learned Minifters in the Church of England than ever heretofore, nay than in all the Reformed Churches in Christendom, this; that it was not to be artibuted to the Bishops or their Actions, but to God, who now opened the hearts of many to see into the Trutk, and that the Schools were better observed

them, after a long and Learn'd Oration, concluded, That he was not for firmpulous, as absolutely to like of the Bill against Pluralities without any Exception: for he did favor both Learning, and wished a Competent Reward to it. And therefore could like, and allow a Learned man to have two Benefices, so they were both in one parish, that is to say, in one Diocess, and not one in the Diocess of Winchester, and another in the North, where theseveral Diocesans would have no regard of them, whereas being both in one Diocess, the Bishop would look unto them.

5. Here it was signified, that her Majesty was acquainted with the matter, and that she was very forward to Redress the faults, and therefore required the Bishops, not to binder her good and gracious purpose, for that her Majesty would confer with them.

6. The Lord Gray again said, be greatly mendred at her Majesty, that she would make choice to Confor with those, who were all Enemies to Reformation; for that it moorly touch Atheir Prechelds, and therefore he thought it good, the House show'd make choice of some to be joined with them; also be wished the Bishops might be served as they were in K. Hen-

Part I. ry the 8th days, when as in the Case of Præmunire they were all thrust out of doors.

7. The Lord Treasurer said, that the Bishops, if they were wise, would themselves be humble Suiters to her Majesty, to have some of the Temporal Lords joyn'd with them.

8. The Lord Chamberlain utterly disliked the Lord Gray's Motion, alledging that it was not to be liked of, that the Lords shou'd appoint her Majesty any to confer withal, but that it shou'd be lest to her own Election.

9. Matters Flying thus high, the Archbilbop, with the rest of the Clergy, conceived it the sifest way to apply themselves by Petition to the Queen, which they presented as followeth.

To the Queens Most Excellent Majesty.

THE Woful and Distressed State whereunto we are like to fall, forceth us with Grief of heart in most bumble manner, to crave your Majesties most sovereign Protection. For the Pretence being made the-Maintenance and increase of a learned Ministry, when it is throughly weighed, decayeth learning, spoileth their livings, taketh away the SET FORM of PRAYER in the Church, and is the means to bring in Confusion and Barbarism. How dangerous Innovations are in a setted Estate, whosoever hath Judgment perceiveth. Set dangers apart, yet Juch great Inconveniences may ensue, as will make a state lamentable &? miserable. Our Neighbours Miseries might make us fearful, but that we know who rules the same. All the Reformed Churches in Europe, cannot compare with England in the Number of Learn'd Ministers. These Benefits of your Majesty's most Sacred and Careful Government. with hearty joy we feel, and humbly acknowledge; senseless are they that repine at it, and careless who lightly regard it. The respect bereef. made the Prophet to say, Dii estis. All the faithful and Discreet Clergy. Jay, O DEA CERTE! Nothing is Impossible with God. WILL HOME

Directors; but as humble Remembrancers beseech your Highness favor. Part I. able beholding of our present state: And what it will be in time to come,

if the Bill against Pluralities shou'd take any place.

Had I a mind to enlarge upon this Narrative of Fuller's, I think I could make it appear, 1. That the Persecution of Puritan Ministers was judg'd by the Représentatives of the Nation, to be a Prejudice to the Protestant Religion, otherwise they wou'd not have pleaded, not only for a Toleration, but a Comprehension of 'em. '2ly, That the Puritans were suspended and deprived then for NO O-THER Offence, than for NOT SUBSCRIBING gist's Articles, and consequently neither for Insufficiency, Heterodoxy, Negligence, nor DISLOYALTY (as appears by the 10th branch of the Commons Petition): And that they are honor'd with the Character of Godly and Learned Ministers. And 3dly, That a most unwarrantable Method was taken against 'em by the Arch-Bishop and their fierce Adversaries: For, to run 'em down, he and some of the Bishopsshut up her Majesties ears, and made 'em deaf tothe just desires of her Parliament in their favor; and hindred her from reforming the scandalous Practice of Non-Residency and Pluralities; the Continuance whereof continu'd and encreas'd Divisions in the Church. I have set down at large, their Petition to the Queen, that the Reader may see, I intended not to conceal any thing of the strength of their pretended Reasoning. And I must do the Justice to a great Divine of the Church of England, as to insert here his faithful and Impartial Censure of that abuse: The Reformation whereof was then obstructed, to the scandal of Religion: and let the Reader judge, whether Whitgift's Arguments or his be the Arongest.

The Learn'd Divine I mean is Bishop Burnet, who in his Preface to the second Part of the History of the Reformation, delivers himself thus, Is men had a just notion of this Holy Function, and a right sense of it before they were initiated into it, those scandalous Abuses of Plurality of Benefices with Cure, (except where they are so poor and Contiguous, that both can scarce maintain one Incumbent, and one man can discharge the duty of both very well) Non-residencies, and the hiring out that Sacred Trust to Part I .: Pitiful mercenaries at the cheapest Rates, would soon fall off. These are things of so crying a nature, that no wonder if the Wrath of God is ready to break out upon us. These are Abuses that even the Church of Rome, after all her Impudence is asham'd of, and are at this day generally discountenanc'd all France over a Queen Mary here in England in the time of Popery, set her self effectually to root them out.

And that they should be still found among Protestants, and in so. Reformed a Church, is a scandal that may justly make us biushi All the honest Prelates at the Council of Trent endeavor'd to get Residence declar'd to be of DivineRight, and so not to be dispenc'd with upon any Consideration whatsoever: and there is nothing. more apparently contrary to the most Common Impressions, which all men have about Matters of Religion, than that Binefices are e given for the Office to which they are annex'd: And if inMatters of mens Estates, or of their Health, it wou'd be a thing of high for one to receive the Fees, and commit the Work to the Care of some Inferior or raw Practitioner, how much worse is it to turn over so Important a Concernment, as the care of fouls must be confess' to be, to mean Hands? And to conclude, those who are guilty of such Disorders, have much to answer for both to God, for the neglect of those souls for which they are to give an Account, and to the World, for the Repreach they have brought on this Church and on the Sacred Functions, by their ill Practices; nor could the Divisions of this Age ever have risen. to such a height, if the people had not been posses'd with ill Impressions of some of the Clergy, for those Inexcusable Faults that are so Conspicuous in too many that are call'd Shepherds: Whocloath themselves with the Wool, but have not fed the Flock, that have net strengthened the Diseas'd, nor Healed the Sick, nor bound up that which is Broken; nor brought again that which was Driven away, nor sought that which was lost, but have ruled them with force Go-Cruelty. And if we wou'd look up to God who is visibly angry with us, and has made us base and Contemptible among the Prople, we hou'd find great reason to resitet on those Words of Jeremy.' The Pastors are become brutishand have not sought the Lord, therefore they shall not prosper, and all their Flocks shall be scattered. But

Under Queen Elizabeth. Chap. 2. 115

But to return to Puckering; let us examine the remaining Part of Part I. his Evidence against the Puritans, of whom he asserts That Whilst they labor to advance a New Eldership, they do nothing but difturb the good People of the Church and Commonwealth. For which he brings no Proof but his own Word. Here he resteds on their Principles, and therefore, (as I observed before) his Evidence without a Reason to support it, is none at all: He shou'd either have, shown that their Eldership were of themselves a Disturbance to the Church and Commonwealth, or by their Indiscreet Management were so; but, seeing he does neither, I say no more but deny his Assertion.

'As the present Case stands (says he) it may be question'd whether the Jesuites do offer more danger &c. or be more speedily to be suppress'd.' Let all Sound Protestants compare the Principles and Practices of Jeluits with those of the Puritans, and judge what Temper those People are of who make it a Question which of 'em are most speedily to be suppress'd, and whether our Author has done any service to the Memory of Queen Elizabeth, by making Puckering's Speech to be her sense in this matter. But let us hear Mr. Speaker's Reason of this grand doubt. For albeit (. says, he) the Jesuites 'do empoyson the Hearts of her Majesty's Subjects &c. Yet they do the same but closely and only in Privy Corners; but these men do bublish in their Printed Books, and teach in all their Conventicles Opinions, not only dangerous to the well Settled Estate of this Realm, but also much Derogatory to her Sacred Majesty, as well by denying her Highness's Prerogative and Supremacy, as by offering peril to her Majesty's Safety in both Kingdoms.

This Strain of Reasoning determines the Question in savor of the Jesuita as being less dangerous than Puritans. There being no particular Opinion of the Puritans mention'd, 'tis sufficient answer to this Calumny, to deny they hold any such Opinions as are there alledg'd. And that Gentleman shows how little Acquaintance he has had with the Principles of the Puritans, who did all manimously affers the Queen's Prerogative, and Supremacy; as appears by their opinions quoted in the preceeding Chapter p. 24 out of the book in tituled English Puripanism. And the same is farther Evident from a Book Entituled a Protest ation of the King's Supremacy, written in their name in the Reign of King James 1st; and from their Readiness to subscribe the sirstos Whitgist's Articles concerning that very Point, as appears Part I by their own Authentic Petition sign'd by their hands to the Privy Gouncil, and printed from the Original in the History of Conformity, p. 16. Wherein they say, "It is well known to all your Lordships;, that an Absolute Subscription throughout the whole Province of Canterbury to three Articles. The first concerning her Majesty's Su-4 preme Authority. The Second, to the Book of Common-Prayer with that of Consecrating Bishops and Ordaining Priests and Deacons. The third concerning the Book of Articles; As to the first • we offer our-selves to a full Subscription as always beretofore we have done. . &c.

> That their Opinions or Practises either offer'd Peril to ber Majesty's fasety in both (or either) Kingdoms, is of a Piece with the rest of his. Banter, he not being able to give one single Instance of it. Asfor their Printed Books they are not inferior to any in that Age, for their Usefulness, Learning, Orthodoxy and Piety; as appears from the great Fox and Curtwright's Writings, and the Eminent Professis. in both Universities, and many other Celebrated Divines then called Puritans, whose Opinions have nothing in 'em to give the least handle for that Uncharitable Reflection.

Carewright serv'd the Protestant Interest by his Learn'd Pen, in one of the most Accomplish'd Pieces which that Age produc'd, against. the Rhemish Translation of the New Testament. Fuller igives us such an Account of that Performance, as not only advanceth the just Praises of its Revd. Author, but also lets us in to the Secret Spring of Opposition that was made in that Age by the High-Church-Party to. the most innocent yea Laudable Attempts of the Puritan Divines... He expresses himself thus.

Secretary (u) Walfingham, by his Letters folicited Mr. Thomas = - : Carewright to undertake the relating of this Rhemish Translation :

And the better to enable him for the Work, sent him an hundred opounds out of his own Purse. A bountiful gist for one who was ..

' tho' a great Statesman a man of small Estate, contracting honourable · Poverty on himself by his Expence on the Public, as dying not ' to engag'd to his private Creditors, as the whole Church, and State was endebted to his Endeavors. Walfingham his Letters to. Cartwright were seconded by another from the Detters, and Heads of HONSES

Monses (and Dr. Fulke amongst the rest) at Cambridge, besides the Part I. Importunity of the Ministers of London and Suffolk soliciting him to the same purpose. Hereupon Cartwright buckled himself to the Employment, and was very forward in The pursuance there-

°of. 'No sooner had Whitgist gotten Notice, what Cartwright was a writting, but presently be prohibited his farther proceeding therein. It seems Walsingham was Secretary of State not of Religion, whereinthe Archbishop overpower'd him: Many commended his care, not to entrust the Desence of the Doctrine of England, to a Pen so disafficted to the Discipline thereof. Others blamed his jealousy to deprive the Church of so Learn'd pains of him, whose judgment would so solidly, and affections so zealously consute the Public Ad-· versary. Distastful Passages (shooting at Rome, but glancing at Canerbury) if any such were found in his Book, might be expung'd whilst it was pity so good fruitshould be blasted in the bud, for some bad leaves about it. Disheartned hereat, Cartwight desisted, but for fome years after, encourag'd by a Honorable Lord, refumed the Work; but prevented by death, perfected no further than the fifteenth Chapter of the Revelation. Many years lay this Worthy Work neglected and the Copy thereof mouse-eaten in part, whence 'the Printer excused some desects therein in his Edition; which tho'

* late, yet at last came forth anno 1618: A Book which not with standing the foresaid Defects, is so compleas that the Rhemists durst never return the least Answer thereunto.

We may see that the Puritans were employing their Studies again & the Papists and not against the Queen's Authority or Sasety. But supposing (for Auguments sake, tho' it be false in it self) that the Paritans had advanc'd some Opinions, which were not so much for the Queen's safety, as they shou'd have been; yet all who have the least Acquaintance with the Opinions of Jesuits, Must own that their Opinions are by great Odds more dangerous to a Protestant Queen than the very worst Principles that ever were alledged upon the Puritans. The Jesuits hold, that Princes excommunicated by the Pope may be depriv'd of their Crowns, They free the People from their Allegiance, and affert that its Meritorious to destroy such Heretics &c; which Doctrines Puritans, ever abhorr'd. Neither does it mend the matter, That the Jesuits do this clasely and in a Cover: they are the more dangerous, and the Antidor again-A Part I against such poyson the more difficult to be apply'd; whereas if this were done openly, the Remedy is obvious. From which it appears how Irrational as well as uncharitable his Speech is; which he concludes thus, ' by the separation of themselves from the Unity of their Fellow-Subjects, and they do but Joyn and concur with the ' Jesuits in opening the Door and preparing the way for the Span sh Invalion &c.

> They never separated till they were driven away by Whitgist's Articles which they cou'd not in Conscience subscribe, and therefore they were not chargeable with any bad Consequence that might flow from it: 'tis not to be doubted but Divisions among Protestants give great advantage to the Common Enemy; but the Debate is who are the Causes of such Divisions? For which I refer to Stilling sleet's repinion alreadyquoted 12108. Thomas Longis here adduc'd byour Author to confirm this Suggestion of Puckering, who says, That when the King of Spain sent his Armado upon the Coasts, The Protestant Dissenters instead of Arming in Desence of the Queen and themselves sidid with greater Importunity and Confidence assault the Queen with A Petitions and Libels, taking Advantage of the times, as if they were more ready to assist the Spaniards, rather than her Majesty. in case their Unreasonable Requests were not granted, of which 4 see more in Cambdenes Annals anno 1588. " I can't find in Cambden the least Infinuation of the Puritans being in the Spanish Interest: Tis true Cambden shows his great Dislike of the Principles of the Puritans about Church-Discipline and their Opposition to Prelacy, he's pleaf'd to call 'em Schismatics, and he charges 'em with Comunacious Impudency and Contumelious Malaperenes, Upbraids'em: with writing Books that he thinks Scandalous against the Church-Government & Prelates : he names the Books viz. Murein-Marre-Prelate, Minerals, Destrephes, A Demenstration of Discipline. He Objects their holding Synods and Classes, and forming Presbyseries: For which Carewright Snape, King, Proudlow, Payne, and some other Ministers were call'd in Question and that some over-zealous people, Conspin'd to deliver 'em put of the Magistates hands. All this we havein his History of Q. Elizabeth, Book 3. p. 421. But after all these hard words, her breaks off his sbory thus, But how extravagant the Petulant Impadence of these Ministers was &c. I deave to the Ecclesiastical Historian to whom it properly belongeth' and so he says nonmore of it; if-Cambden, who had Part I. so bad an epinion of the Puritans and us'd fuch harsh Expressions against 'em, cou'd have justly impeach'd 'em of any Disloyalty, he won'd not have omitted it: And therefore his Testimony doesnot in the least confirm the Assertion for which 'twas referred to by Mr. Long; As to the Matter of the Testimony it self, it shall be set in a true light when I come to examine Sir Francis Walfingham's. Letter. In the mean time let the Readerbe pleas'd to consider that Cambden's Account has no thing in it but a Collection of bitter Words and Precarious affertions.

I don't think Mr Long has shown so much Veracity in that book quoted by our Author as to procure sufficient Credit to his own Testimony. The whole book is a Collection of the most Scurrilous-Reflections, that have ever appear'd in Print against Dissenters, aggravated with all the Stuff Malice could invent, and fill'd with the most fulfome Court Flattery that can be imagin'd: of which take thisone instance p, 235. There hath not been (saith he) a Succession of four luch Princes lineally descended, for Eminency in Religion, Peaceableness and Clemency in any Age, or Nation, since our Savior's time as amongst us'. King Charles 2d was the last of these four; the very naming of whom as a Prince of Eminent Piety is sufficient to expose this Author's Assertion to Ridicule. He inveighs surjously against the Bill of Exclusion, and rakes into all the Sham-Plots of Fanaticks; rails at Parliaments for voting 'em any favor; and flys tothe highest Pin of Passive Obedience: from whence the Reader may observe; what sort of Vouchers our Author has convers'd with inhis first Enquiry; and it were easy to show (if it were worth while): that he has borrow'd Matter, method, and sometimes Expression. from this dear friend of his Thomas Long.

That the Puritans did then ask Unreasonable Requests or give in Libels to the Queen, is deny'd; and why it should be Unseasonable in the time ofdanger from a Common Enemy, to desire the hearty Union of all good Protestants & to petition for proper Expedients towards it, I can't see: And this was all the Puritans did; who were Lill ready to defend the Queen by their Arms, at any time when she thought fit to employ 'em.

And by the Observation our Author has made, as the foundation

Part I. of his Discourse p. 5. viz: That there ever was a perfect harmony both in Principles and Practice, among all the Dissenters of England, "Scotland, and Ireland?. The English Puritans are effectually vindicated from this Malicious Aspersion, by that Solemn Band entre I into by all the Scots Presbyterians, and faithfully prosecuted against the Spanish Invasion; among other things they swear in these words 'To (v) conveen and assemble our selves publickly with our friends in Arm:—at such times and places as we shall be required—to '-joyn with the whole forces of our friends and favorers against what-· soever Foreign or Intestine Powers-that shall arrive or rise within this Island or any part thereof—to expose and hazard our Lives, Lands and Goods—in Defence of the said true and Christian Religion, and his Mayjesty's Person and Estate against whatfoever Jesuits----

I come next to answer the Testimony of Sir Francis Wallingham, whom our Author very justly adduceth in this place, as speaking the sonse of Queen Elizabeth: for any one who knows his Character will readily grant, that he did not speak his own sense. Fuller says of him (w) 'Amongst all the Favorers of the Presbyterians, surely Honesty and Wisdom never met more in anythan in Sir Francis Walsing ham. Let the Reader observe the person to whom Sir Francis Wrote this Letter, viz. Monsuur Critoy, the French King's Secretary; and that he lay under the greatest Temptations possible to put the best face he cou'd upon the Conduct of the Queen his Miltress. He had been overpower'd by Whitgift's Party, who kept a Jealous Eye over him: And when he is representing the Queen's Actions and the Maxims of her Government to a Foreign Court, and to a person of so public aCharacter, and himself being in an Eminent Post at home; he. must have said the most Plausible things that cou'd be thought on, for justifying the Queen's whelesome Severities (as some call 'em) against the Puritan. Let the World judge whether the Testimony of Sr. Francis under these Temptations and in these Circumstances, be to be laid in Ballance with the Testimony of bimself, speaking in behalf of the Puritans, and pleading for the Prevention of these Severidies rities against them, which be endeavors afterwards to excuse. In the Part I. one he acted as a faithful Counsellor to her Majesty, setting forth the true Interest of Religion, of the Crown, and of the Kingdom, and struggled against the strong Current of a Prevalent Party at Court: In the wiber, the Rules of Decency, in not laying open the Weakness of the Government to a Foreign Court, and his own standing right in the Queen's favor, might prevail on him to say all that he has said. And when it is all well consider'd, we will not find so much in it against the Puritans, as at first View there appears to be.

. Her Majeky's Proceedings both against Papists and Puritans were grounded (as he informs us) upon two Principles, 'The (x) one, That Consciences are not to be forced, but to be won and reduc'd • by force of Truth with the aid of time, and use of all good Means of Instruction, and Persuasion. The other, That Causes of Consci-- ences when they exceed their bounds and grow to be Matter of · Fattion lose: their Nature, and that Sovereign Princes ought distinctly to punish their Practises and Contempt, though coloured with the Pretence of Conscience and Religion.

Now unless Sr. Francis prove that these two Principles were observ'd in her Proceedings against the Puritans, his Testimony can militate nothing against 'em. A Particular Examination of what he offers, will give us an Opportunity of judging how far the Managements of the Queen with respect to her Puritan Subjects, were agreeable to these two Maxims which He makes to be the Ground-Work of the whole. For the other Party says he which have been offensive to the State, tho' in another degree, which named them-Elves Resormers, and we commonly call Puritans this hath been the Proceeding towards them: A great While, when they inveighed against such Abuses in the Church, as Pluralities Non-Residence and the like, their zeal was not condemn'd only their Violence was sometime causur'd.

. Answer, It is here acknowledg'd, that they were right in the main, in opposing Pluralities, Non-Residence and the like: and that these

(x) Burnets Hift. of the Reformation. Part.2. Book 3. p. 418.

Part I: are Abuses in the Church: And yetsr Francis very wellknew, that the Reformation of em was stope by the Queen and the High-Party, as evidently appears from the Historians I have mention'd on that Head. As so their Violence, they us'd no force, they rail'd no Rebellion, nor shew'd the least Disloyalty against their Prince. And if any of 'em were too vehement and warm in their Expressons, this was not to be charg'd upon the whole Body of Puritans; and in such Cases, Censures are to be mitigated, where men are driven into some little Excesses by their Meeting with an Unreasonable Opposition to what is just and laudable.

Again he says, 'When they refut'd the Use of some Ceremonies and Rites, as Superstitions, they were tolerated with much Connivancy and Gensleness; yea, when they call'd in question the Super-' iority of Bishops, and pretended to bring a Democracy into the Church. yet their Propositions were here consider'd, and by comerary Writings debated and discuss'd.

Answ. Here is indeed the Spirit of true Christian Moderation, which breathed in many of the best Episcopal Divines, in the beginning of Q. Elizabeth's Reign: And this lasted till Whitgift's Advancement to the Set of Camerbury: O happy England; if that had continu'd and had never been Rifled by the fiery heat of an Impofing Spirit, by which the Nation has been so frequently thrown into miserable Convultions!

But he goes on and says, 'Yet all this while, it was perceiv'd' that their Course was dangerous and very popular: as because · Papistry was odious, therefore it was ever in their Mouths, that they lought to purge the Church from the Reliques of Papiftry; a thing acceptable to the People, who love ever to run from one extreme to the other.

Ansiv. Sr. Francis's Affection here must be weigh'd and judg'd by the Validity or Invalidity of the Reason he gives for it; for its founded upon this Supposition, that the Puritans were leading the People from the Extreme of Popery, into some Opposite Extreme; Which they deny'd; for the Purity of worship and Discipline which they aim'd at; was not (in their Opinion) any Extreme at all. The Merit of the Cause here lies in the Debate about Church-Government and Worship, with which the Cause of Loyalty is not concern'd.

Under Queen Elizabeth Chap. 2.

He adds, 'They open'd to the People a way to Government, by Part 1: their Confistory and Presbytery; a thing, tho' in Consequence ono less prejudicial to the Liberties of private Men, than to the Sovereignsy of Princes; yet in first shew very popu· lar.

Ans. This being an Assertion not of fact, but against a Principle; human Testimony is not sufficient to prove it. And that Presbyterian Government is not prejudicial to the Sovereignty of Princes, I have fullyprov'd in the preceding Chapter, Neither is it prejudicial to the Liberties of private men . For there is no Form of Church-Government what soever, Wherein greater Provision is made against the Ufurpation and Tyranny of the Clergy, and for having the People duly Represented, and their Liberties preserv'd. And for the farther 11fustration of this, I refer my Reader to the Passage quoted in the following Chapter, out of the Book Entitul'd, An. Account of the Broceedings of the Parliament of Scotland 1703. and to the Remark, which I there make upon it.

He adds, 'Nevertheless this, except it were in same few that entred into extreme Contempt, was born with; because they pretended in dutiful manner to make Propositions, and to leave it to the Pro-

e vidence of God, and the Authority of the Magistrate.

This shows there were but few that entred into extreme contempt, and so can't affect the Body of these. Puritans, who never Justify'd any wilful Contemps, they can'd not condemn a Confectious Differt. It is Certain, the Brownists were a dangerous Sect, who carry'd matpers very high, and deny'd the Church of England to be a Church, and were indeed guilty of Extreme Contempt; but the Sober Puritans both from the Pulpit and Preis refuted the Dangerous Errors of these Wild Sectaries; and yet their Adversaries took an handle from the Extravagancies of that Made Sect, to deal: severely with the whole Puritans, as if they, had been: answerable for the folly, of the Deluded Brownists; in the same manner, as the Presbysorians were charg'd in the Reign of King Charles Ift. with the abominable Principles and Practices of the Sectarian Party; of which more in its proper place.

What 9r: Prancis hath hitherto said, proves That the Puritans were looked upon as (at least) a Tolerable People, and infinuates that, as the Reason of the mild Treatment they met with from the State

Part I. for some time. But when he comes to wind up his Argument, and to give a Colourable Gloss to the severity of the Queen's Proceedings against 'em, he then picks up a few Heads, and links 'em together in short and general Expressions; well knowing, that they could not bear an Enlargement, without spoiling the Queen's cause he was then defending: For had he told the particular Stories, upon which his General Observations are founded, every one must have presently seen, that they were not sufficient to vindicate the Severity of the latter part of that Reign against the Putitans.

He proceeds thus, But now of late years, when there is it'd from them a Colony of those, that affirm'd the Consent of the Magistrate was not to be attended, when under a Pretence of a Confession, to avoid Stander and Imputations, they Combin'd themselves by Classes & "Subscriptions, and when they began to make many Subjects in doubt to take an Oath &c. When they began to vaunt of their Arength, and Numbers of their Partisans, and to use the Comminations that their Cause wou'd prevail, tho' with Uproar and Violence then it 'appear'd no more Zeal, no more Conscience, but more Faction and Divifion: And therefore tho' the State were compell'd to hold 'somewhat an harder hand than before, yet it was with ase great Moderation, as the peace of the Church and State wou'd permit.

I shall particularly inquire into the facts, which gave any Colour for what is offer'd in the above Words; and make it appear, that they are either innocent; or, so far as they are bad, not chargeable upon the Puritans as a Body; but on some few of their Number only: And consequently no Proof of their being factions and Disturbers of the State, nor of the Equity of the bad Treatment they met with. -

First, 'tis said that they affirm'd, That the Consent of the Mugistrate was not to be attended: This is short and Obscure. That the Consent of the Magistrate is not to be attended in all Cases, is a Truth acknowledg'd by all Sound Divines; otherwise the Primitive Christians, and even Christ himself and his Apostles had been in the wrong, to assert and adhere to the Christian Religion, without the Consent of the Civil Magistrate; and 'tis certain, wherever God by his Posirive Command enjoyas us to perform any Duty, that Duty ought to be perform'd, whether the Magistrate Consent to it or not: for no Part I!

Under Queen Elizabeth. Chap. 2.

we must obey God rather than man.

Now the Case of the Puritans which gave Occasion for this Remark was this. They believ'd in their Consciences, that 'twas the' Will and Command of God to them to proceed to a farther Degree of Reformation than the Public Laws had enjoyn'd. In this Case they Petition'd the Queen and Parliament, and Convocation; beside their Addresses to Particular Bishops, and other Persons of Note both in Church and State. But by the Means I have already hinted, a their Endeavors were trustrated; and therefore after all this fruitless waiting, 'twas their Opinion that, seeing they cou'd not procure such Laws, as might reform the Church of England in General," from those things they judg'd to be abuses, that 'twoud be a Sin " in 'em to contradict the Light of their own Conscience, by delaying the Exercise of that Discipline and Worship which they thought most agreeable to the Word of God, tho' the Magistrate wou'd not add the Civil Sanction. Now suppose that they had been mistaken in their Opinion about the Presbyterian Model of Eccle siastical Discipline, and that Episcopal Government were the best; that does not infer any Dissoyalty in 'em, or that what they did was from Faction, and not from Conscience. And if we once believe, that their Consciences truly dictated to 'em the Points wherein they dif-, fer'd from the Establish'd Church, they cou'd not (without manifest Contempt of the Authority of God) forbear to put their Principles in Practice. Indeed if any of them had affirm'd, That they might take away the Church-Livings of the Conformable Clergy, and possels themselves of 'em and of their Churches, without the Consent of the Magistrate; this had been a plain Usurpation upon the Rights of Civil Authority. But this is what they never pleaded for. And for the Reader's farther Satisfaction in this Point, I must refer him to the 3d Chap." of the 3d. Part of this Discourse, where that matter is largely debated.

2ly Its Objected, that under Pretence of a Confession'to avoid Slander and Imputations, they combin'd themselves by Classes and Subscriptions. This can't have a Relation to any thing, but the Meetings of the Phitan Ministers, for the Exercise of Discipline, according to their COB.

The Logalty of Presbyterians Chap. 2.

Part I. Consciences. And the same answer given to the former Accusation may be applied to this. But here I shall lay before the Reader a brief account of the progress of the Disciplinarian Party in England, for fo those were termed that set up their Classes or Presbyteries at & Synods: that we may have not only an Historical Idea of the English Presbyterians in Q. Elizabeth's Reign, but fee that their presbyterles and Synods did nothing that was prejudicial to the Crown, tho' they were against English Prelacy.

That the Reader may at once have both the History and my Vouchers, I shall give it him in Fuller's own Words; joining together such pieces of his History, according to the Order of time, as will belt enlighten the Subject.

The, y) Non-Conformille, that over-power'd for the present in Par-I liament (viz. 4nno 1572) yet found fuch favor therein; that after the Diffolution thereof they prefumed to Erect a Presbytery, as * Wandsworth in Surrey. Eleven Elders were chosen therein, and their Offices and General Rules (by them to be observed ) agreed upon and described; as appears by a Bill indorsed with the hand of Mr Field the Lecturer (at I take it) of that Place, but living in * London. Mr Smith of Micham, and Mr Crane of Roughampton (neighbouring Villages) are mention'd for their Approbation of all Patfages therein. This was the first born of all Presbyteries in England. and feeundem usumW. indesworth as much honor'd byfome as secundum asum Sarum by others,

Le may seem a Wonder that the Presbyterian Discipline, should ripen fooner in this Country Village than in Leader it felf: where as yet, they werenot arrived at fo formal, a Constitution, tho we may observe two fores ( Mr Standen, Mr Jackson, * Edmonds : Afterwards, " Gardeer, Mr Chefton, M.

* thefe were Principally a Prayer Book. The La . Discipline, and it was u

Mr. Field, Mr Wilcox Scinilog, Mr Crane, Mr. fravers, Mr Barber, Mr gerton, The former of tire, and the Commona Modelling of a New h Streams uniting, together, Non-Conformits began to bear a Large and great Channel Part I.

in the City of London.

High-Commission, to answer upon his Oath to 31 Articles, which are very Artfully Penn'd; & because diversof 'em relate to the Synods and Presbyteries that had been used, for some years preceding that, by the English Presbyterians, and give some Account of their Constitution and Basiness, I shall insert here what relates to that Subject.

On (z) the first of September (wind 1 588.) Mr. Cartwright Batchelof in Divinity, was brought before her Majesty's Commissioners, there to take his Oath, and give in his Politive Answer to the fol· lowing Articles.

Such of thele Ai fieles as concern the Hiltory of the Presbyterian Disciplinarian Party, are thefe.

- o: Item (*), That since his said Return, in sundry private Conferences, with such Ministers and others, as at sundry times by Word, and Letter, have ask'd his Advice or Opinion, he hath shewed Missike of the Laws, and Government Ecclesistical, and of divers parts of the Liturgy of this Church; and thereby partialed, and prevailed also with many in sundry Points, to break the Orders and Form of the Book of Common-Prayer who ob-
- ferv'd them before, and also to oppose themselves to the Government of this Church, as himself well knoweth, or verily believeth.

morton's Children, he spoke much of the Untaithsushes, and in Derogation of the Government, Polity, Laws, and Liturgy Eclesiatical of this Realm; and to the Justification of a Government by Elderships in every Congregation, and by Conserence and Synods, &c. abroad, as Divine institutions commanded by Christ; and the only lawful Church-Jovernment, seeking to prove and Estaablish such Elderships out of that Word in one of the Plasms where Therenes are mention'd.

Chap. 2. The Loyalty of Presbyt erians

Part I.

25. Item (b) That for, and in the behalf of the Church of Ergland he penn'd or procur'd to be penn'd, all or some part of a little book entitul'd in one part Disciplina Ecclesia Sacra Verbo Dei Descripta; and in the other Part, Disciplina Synodica ex Ecclestarum usu &c. And, after it was perus'd by others, whom he first acquaintedtherewith, he recommended the same to the Censures and Judgments of moe Brethren (being Learn'd Preachers) and · some others, assembled together by his Means, for that and other like Purposes : which, after Deliberation, and some Alterations, was by them or most of them allow'd, as the only lawful Church-. Government, and fit to be put in Practice; and the ways and Means for the practifing thereof in this Realm, were also then, or not long after, agreed or concluded upon by them.

1.26. 11em, That for the better, and more due practise of it with-· in the Space of these seven, six, sive, four, three, two, or one year -4 last past, the said Thomas Cartwright and sundry others, (as aforesaid according to former Appointment, and Determinations by them made) have met in assemblies, term'd Synods, more General (as at London, at Terms, and Parliament Times; in Oxford at the Act, in Cambridge at the Times of Commencement, at Sturbridge fair) and also more particular, and Provincial Synods, and at Classes or Conferences of certain Selected Ministers in one or moe Places of fund-y, Several Shires, as Warwick, Northampton, Rutland - Oxford, Leicester, Cambridge, Nerfolk, Suffolk, Iffex, and others.

.27, ' Item That at such Synods, and Conferences it hath been concluded, that all the Ministers which should be receiv'd to be either of the said General Synods, or of any more particular and Provincial, or of a Classis, or Conference, should subscribe to the said Discipline, that they did allow it, would promote it, practise it, and be govern'd by it. And according to the Form of a Schedule hereunto annex'd, or such like; both he the said Thomas Cartwright and many others, at lundry, or some General Assemblies, as at Provincial, and at several Conferences have within the sid sime, Moderator of that Meeting, was first by him and them Chosen, according to the Prescription of the said Book. And at some of such Meetings and Assemblies amongst other things, it was Resolv'd and Concluded; that such Particular Conferences in several Shires shou'd be erested; how many Persons and with what Letters from every of them shou'd be sent to the General Assembly; and that one of them, at their coming home to their Conference, shou'd make known the Determinations of the General Assembly, to be by every of them solved, and put in Practice; which Course in sundry Places of this Realm hath (within the time aforesaid) been accordingly follow'd and persorm'd.

Assembly, or Synod at Cambridge, did conclude and decree (as in anotherSchedule annex'd or in some part thereof is contain'd) which Decrees were made known afterwards at Warnick to sundry Classes there by his means assembled, and allow'd also by them then met together in the same or like form.

31 Item, That at such several meetings, Synods, and Conserences within the said time, many other Determinations, as well what shou'd be done and perform'd, or omitted; as also what shou'd be holden Consonant to God's Word, or disagreeing from it, have been set down by the said Thomas Cartwright and others. As namely, that all admitted to either Assembly shou'd subscribe the said Book of Discipline, Holy, and Synodical, that those who were sent from any Conference to a Synod, shou'd bring Letters Fiduciary, or Credence: That the last Moderator shou'd write them: that the Superscription thereof should be to a known man of the Assembly then to be holden: That no Book made by any of them shou'd be put in Print, but by Consent of the Classis at least; That some of them must be earnest, and some more Mild and Temperate, whereby there may be both of the Spirit of Elias, and Elizeus: That all admitted amongst them, show'd subscribe and promise, to conform themselves in their Proceedings, Administration of Sacraments, and of Discipline, to the Form of that Book; and that they would subject themselves to the Censuring of the Brethren, both for Doctrine and Life: and lastly, That upon Occasion when any of their Brethren shall be sent by them upon Assairs of the Church (as to the

Chap. 2. The Loyalty of Presbyterians 130

Part I. the great Meetings, Parliament &c) they all wou'd bear their Charges in Common: That there might be no Superiority amongst them, and that the Moderatorship, (as it happen'd) is not a Superiority, or honor, but a Burden: That no Profane Writer, or any other than Canonical Scripture may be alledg'd in Sermons: that they shou'd all teach, that the Ministry of those who did not preach, is no Ministry, but a Meer Nullity, that it is not lawful to take any Oath, whereby a man may be driven to discover any thing Penal. to himself, or to his Brother; especially if he be persuaded the Matter to be lawful, for which the Punishment is like to be Inflicted, or having taken it in this Cale; need not discover the very Truth: that to a Bishup or other Officer Ecclesiastical (as is used now in the 6 Church of England) none Obedience ought to be given, neither in appearing before them, in doing that which they command, nor in abstaining from that which they inhibit: that in such Places. as the most of the People savor'd the Cause of Sincerity, Elderships. fhou'd warily& wisely be placed and Established; which Consistory in some places hath been either wholly, or in part erected accordingly, yea in some Colledges in the University, as he knoweth, hath heard, or verily telieveth.

The most Particular Account I find of the Acts of any of their Synode, is that of the Synod of Coventry, Anno 1588. But Fuller takes it all from Bishop Bancrost, whose Authority is not very great, as I shall shew in the next Chapter: However compar'd with better attested accounts, it may help to give some light in this matter, and will be of use in my Application of this Historical Narrative, for vindicating the Loyalty of those Presbyterians.

A (d) Synod of the Presbyterians, of the Warwick-shire-Classis, Was call'd at Coventry, die decimo quarti; that is on the tenth of April (Anno 1588): wherein the Questions, brought the last year from the Brethren of Cambridge-Syned, were resolv'd, in manner as followeth.

1. That Private Baptism was unlawful.

2. That it is not lawful to read Homilies in the Church:

3. That the Sign of the Cross is not to be us'd in Baptism:

Under Queen Elizabeth. Chap. 2. 131

4. That the Faithful ought not to Communicate with unlearn'd Mi-Part I nisters, altho' they may be present at their Service, if they come of purpose to hear a Sermon, the reason is, because UN Laymen as well as Ministers may read public Service.

. That the Calling of Bishops &c. is unlawful.

- 6. 'That as they deal in Causes Ecclesiastical, there is no duty belonging unto, nor any publickly to be given them.
- That it is not lawful to be ordain'd Ministers by them, or to de-7. That it is not law julto ve or anim with a sent from nounce either Suspensions, or Excommunications sent from them.
- 8. That it is not lawful to rest in the Bishop's deprivation of any from " the Ministry, except (upon Consultation with the Neighbour Mimisters adjoining and his flock) it seems so good unto them: but that he continue in the same until he be compell'd to the Contrary by Civil Force.

9. That it is not lawful to appear in a Bishop's Court, but with Protestation of their unlawfulness.

10. That Bishops are not to be acknowleg'd either for Doctors, * Elders, or Deacons, as having no Ordinary Calling.

11. That tenching the Restauration of their Esclesiastical Discipline, it ought to be taught to the People as Occasion shall · ferve.

.12. That (as yet) the People are not to be solicited (publickly) to the practise of the Discipline, (till) they be better instructed in the knowledge of it.

13. That men of better Understanding are to be allur'd privately to the present embracing of the Discipline, and Practice of it, as far as they shall be well able, with the Peace of the Church.

Likewise in the same Assembly the aforesaid Book of Discipline was approv'd to be a Draught Essential and necessary for all times; and certain Articles ( devis'd in Approbation, and for the manner of the vie thereof, ) were brought forth, treated of, and subscrib'd unto, by Mr. Cartwright, and others, and afterwards tendered far and near to the several Classes, for a general Ratification of all the Brethren.

But the best attested and most Authentic Account of these Meetings

Chap. 2. The Loyalty of Presbyterians 132

ings for Discipline, is from Mr. Stone one of the Ministers and Part I. ings for Diagnation of W

'Thomas (e) Stone Parin of Warkton in Northampton-Shire (by ver-' tue of an Oath tender'd him the day before by the Queen's Attorney, and solemnly taken by him) was examin'd (anno 1591.) by the Examiner for the Star-Chamber in Gray'- Inn, from fix of the 6 Clock in the Morning, till seven at night, , to answer unto thirty three Articles, but cou'd only effectually depose to these which follow; faithfu'ly by me traiscriv'd out of a Confession written with his own hand, and lately in my Possession.

1. Interrog. Who and how many affembled and met together with the said Defendents, T. C. H. E. E. S. &c. all or any of them, where, when, how often &c?

The Answer of T. S. to the Interrog. touching the Circumstances of first, Places of Meeting. 2 Times. 3 Persons. The Places of Meeting were either greater or less: The greater were London in the Houses of Travers, Egerton, Gardener and Barber; and Cambridge in St. John's Colledge. The lesser Places of Meeting were Northampton in the Houles of Johnson and Snapes; and Kettering or e near it in the Houses of Dammes and Stones.

The times of Meeting were 1. Since the beginning of the last ' Parliament. 2. Sundry simes at London, how oft he remembred not. 3. Sundry times at Northan pton, how oft not remembred. 4. Sundry times at Kettering, how oft not remembred. 5. Once at Cambridge, about Siurbridge-fait-time was one or Two Years, 6. Once at London, a little before Mr. Cartwright was committed, at Mr. Gardener's House. 7. Once at this Deponent's House, the certain time not remembred.

' 3. The Persons Meeting in London jointly or severally were, Mr. * Travers, Mr. Charke, Mr. Egerson, Mr. Gardener, Mr. Barber, Mr. Brown, Mr. Somerscales, Mr. Cartwright, Mr. Chatterton, Mr. Gyfford, Mr. Allen, Mr. Edmunds, Mr. Gyllybrand, Mr Culverwell, Mr. Oxenbridge, Mr. Barbon, Mr. Fludde, and this Deponent. Meeting

Meeting in Cambridge were, Mr. Chatterton and others of Cambridge, Part I. Mr. Cartwright, Mr. Gyfford, Mt. Allen. Mr. Snape, Mr. Fludde, and this Deponent. Those meeting in Northampton jointly or severally were, Mr. Johnson, Mr. Snape, Mr. Sybthorp, Mr. Edwards, Mr. Fludde, this Deponent, Mr. Spicer, Mr. Fleshware, Mr. Harrison, Mr. Littleton, Mr. Williamson, Mr. Rushbrook, Mr. Baxter, Mr. Barbon, Mr. King, Mr. Proudtoine, Mr. Massie, and Mr. Bradshaw. Those meeting at Kettering, or near it, were Mr. Dammes, Mr. Pattison, Mr. Oaks, Mr. Baxter, Mr. Rushbrook, Mr. Atkinson, Mr. Williamson, Mr. Massie, and this Deponent.

2. Interrog. Who called these Assemblies, by what Authority, how, or in what fort?

Answer, That he knew not by whom they were call'd, neither knew he any other Authority therein, saving a Voluntary or tree Motion, one giving another Intelligence as occasion serv'd, sometimes by Letters and some times by word of Mouth.

3. Interrog. Who were Moderators in them, and what their Office?

Answ- That he remembred not who were Moderators in any Meeting particularly, saving one at Northampton, when Mr. John-son was admonish'd, and that was either himself, or Mr. Snapes, he knew not well whether.

4. Interrog. What things were Debated in those Meetings or Assemblies?

Answer. That the things chiefly and most often consider'd of in those Assemblies were these. first, the Subscription to the Book of Common-Prayer; how far it might be yielded unto, rather than any shou'd forgo his Ministry. 2dly, The Book of Discipline was often Perus'd, discuss'd &c. 3dly, Three Petitions or Supplications were agreed upon to be drawn, first, to Her Majesty. 2dly, To the Lords of the Council. 3dly, To the Bishops. The things debated of in particular, he remembred not more than these. First, the perfecting of the Book of Discipline, and purpose to Subscribe to it at Cambridge, Secondly, This Question disputed, whether it were convenient for Mr. Carturight to reveal the Circumstances of the Conference a little before he was Committed. Thirdly, The Admonishing of Mr. Johnson once at Northampton. Fourthly, The debating of this Question, whether the Books call'd Apocrypha

Part I. pha were Warrantable to be read Publickly in the Church, as the Canonical Scriptures.

5. Interrog. Whether any Censures were exercis'd, what kinds, when, where, upon whom, by whom, for what Csuso?

Answ. That he never saw any Censure exercis'd, saving Admonition once upon Mr Johnson, of Northampton, for miscarrying himfelf in his Conversation to the scandal of his Calling, neither was that used with any kind of Authority, but by a voluntary yielding unto it, and approving of it, as well in him that was admonished, as in him that did admonish.

6 Interrog. Whether any of the said Desendents had moved or persuaded any to refuse an Oath, and in what Case &c?

Ans. That he never knew any of the Defendents to use words of Persuasion to any to resuse an Oath; only Mr Snape sent him down in Writing certain Reasons drawn out of the Scripture, which " moved him to refuse the General Oath, ex Officio; which I stood epersuaded, that he sent to no other end, but to declare that he refused not to swear, upon any Contempt, but only for Conscience . fake.

I have infifted the longer on this. Deposition, because the first and fullest I find in the kind thereof, containing their Classes more formally settled in Northampton-Shire, than any where else in Eng-! land. For as the west part of that Shire, is observed to be the highest place of England, as appeareth by the Rivers rising there, and running thence to the four Winds: so was that County a probable Place (as the middest of the Land) for the Prespyterian Discipline, there Erected, to derive it sels into all the quarters of the Kingdom:

This History of the Disciplinarian Party makes it plain, what the meaning was of their Combining themselves by Classes and Subscriptions, (as Sr Francis Walsingham terms it). They Erected Presbyteries, reduced their Discipline into a Method, and took care that their Members should observe it. And all this amounts to no more than this, that they were Presbyterians, and acted according to their Consciences, helieving that they were setting up and Promoting an Ordinance of God. And therefore they must either have proreeded according to those Principles, or they must wilfully have omitted what they believed in their Consciences, was their Duty to prac- Part I. tife, which would have been in thema very great Sin. Was not this meer Conscience then, and not Faction? Wherefore according to the first of the two Maxims by which the Queen propos'd to govern in Matters Ecclesiastical, viz. That Conscience should not be sore'd, the Disciplinarians ought not to have been so severely dealt with, for holding their Classes, and such like Meetings.

. ted

I beg the Reader may carefully observe one thing, that tho' a great Part of the above History is taken from the Profess'd bitter Enemies of the Presbyterians, viz. from Bancrost (out of whom Fuller transcribes the Acts of the Synod of Coventry) and from the High-Commission; Who exhibited the Articles against Carrwright, yet there is not so much as AN HINT of any Rebellion; Conspiracy against the Queen's Title, Person, or Government; or of any Seditious Combination against her: nor are any of those things laid to the Charge of those Presbyterians. If any thing of this Kind could have been with any Colourable Pretence charg'd upon 'em, would the High-Commission have failed to have put it in their Articles against Cartwright? Surely nothing had been more Proper to justify their Proceedings against the Puritans, than to have impeached 'em of an Undutiful Behavior to their Prince; for that wou'd have taken away all ground of Censuring their Conduct as severe. But instead of this, they proceed against 'em for Meer-Non-Conformity.

Mr Stone's Evidence upon Oath exceedingly strengthens the Observation I have been making. For, some of his Brethren and Friends being dissitisfy'd with his revealing the whole of their Proceed ings in their Meetings for Discipline, he gave the Reasons of his Practice in several Letters to his triends, faithfully transcrib'd by Fuller, as he asserts. And among other things Mr Stone alledg'd in his own Defence, that their concealing of their Meetings and of what was transacted in them might occasion suspition of some Evil; as Treason, Rebellion, Sedition &c. And that to show the contrary to the whole World, he did freely revealall that was done by 'em, which indeed they themselves did not conceal out of any Consciousness of such Villanous Practises, but least a Discovery should draw upon 'em some Rigorous Proceedings, and cause the Persecution of honest Innocent People. Com,

136 Chap. 2. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part I. pare this with the Character, which his greatest Enemies gave him.

Sure I am (says Fuller (f)) the Bishops till his dying day beheld him as an Ingenuous man, carrying his Conscience with the Reafon thereof in his own breast, and not pinning it on the President of any other: Whereupon they permitted him peaceably to possess his Parsonage, (being none of the meanest) tho' he continu'd a stiff Non-Conformist, only Quietly Enjoying his own Opinion. Indeed he was a downright Naskanael, If not Guilty of too much of the Dove in him.

And steing such a Nathanael, freely resolving to tell all, could not six the least blot upon their Loyalty, and when he was upon Oath too; and that their rankest Enemies cou'd not find any Ground to accuse 'em upon, except their meer Non-Conformity; I can't see what can be said, from these Meetings for Discipline, to justify the hard Treatment the Presbyterians in those days met with.

There are indeed some things in the Acts of the Synod of Coventry, and in some of the Conclusions fram'd in these Meetings, as they are represented in the Articles against Cartwright, which, tho' they are. not Disloyal, yet appear, (as they are worded there) to need some Explication, to reconcile 'em to Truth and Charity. But then, we must consider, that these are conveyed to us only by the known Adverfaries of the Puritans, who gave just cause to suspect 'em of misrepresenting the Opinions of those whom they persecuted with so much Rigor. And Fuller himself gives us this Caution, having quoted Bancross in his Margens for his Voucher. The (g) worst is, that in matters of Fact, all Relations in these times are Relations, I mean " much Resent of Party and Interest to the Prejudice of Truth. Let me mind the Reader to reflect his Eye on our Quotations, (the Margent, in such Cases being as Material as the Text, as containing the Authors) and his Judgment may, according to the Credit or Reference of the Author alledg'd believe, or ABATE, from the Reputation of the Report.

Are we sure then that they asserted, That Laymen as well as Ministers might read Public Service, as 'tis told of them, in the 4th Att of the the Synod of Coventry; or that they did not in some other Act, or Explication of the same Ast, give a sound Meening and Sense of this matter, (tho' it be not recorded in Bancross's Relation of their Asts...)

And the very same may be said of the 10th Act of that Synod, viz. That Bishops are not to be acknowledg'd, either for Destors, Elders or Deacons: Their meaning must have been, that the Office of an English Prelate as exercis'd by him was not the Office of a Dostor, or Elder or Deacon. Otherwise 'twas not true, for by being Bishops, they ceas'd not to be Doctors, Elder's or Deacons; and Mr. Cartwright who was the great Manager, both in promoting these Meetings, and the Resolutions taken in 'em, knew better things than to join in such an Act, unless it were explain'd in the Sense I have mention'd.

If we make allowance for these and such like mistakes, that might be misrepresented and aggravated by their Enemies; I must own, that I believe the Substance of all the rest that's said of them is true; but especially in those Parts of the History, that are confirm'd by the joint Testimony both of Mr. Stone and their Adversaries. And after all, they did nothing but what was plainly agreeable to the known Measures of Presbyterian Discipline. And therefore, if the Principles of Presbyterians be not Injurious to the Civil Magistrate (as I have prov'd they are not, in the preceding Chapter; And if their Managements in their present Synods and Judicatories be not Derogatory from the Rights of Magist acy (as I shall prove they are not, in the first Chapter of the third Part of this Book); then the Classes and other Meetings of the Presbyterians in Queen Elizabeth's time that maintain'd the same Principles and manag'd the same way so far as their Circumstances did permits are not justly chargeable with Disloyalty, Faction or Sedition.

aly, It is Objected by Walfingham against the Puritans, that they descended into the vile and hase means of defacing the Government of the Church by Ridiculous Pasquills.

Answer. It is true there were in those Days some sharp biting Expressions us'd in some Books against the Bishops, which had been better wav'd; for, tho' the Bishops did too much tempt the Patience of the Puritans, by putting the Court upon severe Measures; yet it had been more Civil, yea, and Christian too, to have suffer'd with meekness. But it must be granted, That the Fury of the High Party does

ر مراجع المراجع المراجع

138 Chap. 2. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part I much extenuate, tho' is does not altogether excuso this Fault. And sew will think it very strange, that bes Persecution shou'd extort some indecent Words from the Miserable, or that Oppression son'd make wise Men mad.

> But after all this, these Papers were but the Acts of private Men; they were not written by any Concert, or in the Name of the Puritans, or approv'd by them and their Classes or Synods, and therefore they ought not to have been ill us'd for the Faults of some of their Number only. Fuller does 'em Justice in the following Account of this matter.

> Bullets (h) did not fly about to much at Sea, as bastately Libels: by Land, so fitty call'd, because none durst Father 'em, for their ' Issue. They are known tho' not by their Paronts, by their Names. 1. The Episome, 2. The Demonstration of Discipline. 3. The Suriplication. 4. Diorrephos. 5. The Minerals. 6. Have you any Work for " the Cooper ? 7. Mertin Senier Mar-Probate. 8. Martin Junior Mar-Prelate. . Mere Work for the Cooperect. The main drift and Scope of those Pamphlets, for know one and know all (these foul " mouth'd Papers, like Blackmoors, did all look alike) was to Defame and Difgrace the English Prelates, fooffing at them for their Garb, Gate, Apparel, Vanities of their Youth, Natural Defects, and personal Infirmities; it is strange how secretly they were ' Printed, how speedily dispers'd, how generally bought, how gree-"dily read, yea and how firmly believ'd, especially of the Common fort, to whom no better Musick than to hear their Betters upbrai-e dedi

Some precise Men of that side thought these jeering Pens well employ'd. --- But the more discreet and devous fort of Men. ee ven of such as were no great friends to the Hierarchy, upon solemn Debate then Refolv'd, (I speak on certain Knowledge from the Mouths of such whom I must believe) that for many foul Falshoods enterois Suggested, such Books were altogether unbeseeming a prous 4: Spirit, to Print, Publish; or with pleasure Peruse, which supposed write both in Marten and: Measure, Charity wou'd rather concess, attly, then discover.

139

414, It is Objected against them, that they begun to make many Sub-Part I.

jobs in doubt to take Oaths, &c.

The plain Answer to this Objection is, that the Puritans never scrupled nor refus'd to swear Allegiance to Her Majesty; nor to be Evidences in Public Courts, for detecting of any Crime, that was against the Laws of God, or the just Laws of the Kingdom. But the Oath which they scrupled was, the Oath ex officio, tender'd by the Bishops and the High-Commission-Court; by which Men were to discover their own Actions in Crimical Cases, and so to Accriminate themselves upon Oarb. They thought this was against the Laws of God, Nature & Natiens. Curturight refus'd to answer upon Oath to the Articles exhibited against him. Besides, that they thought this Method unsair in it self, they were in their Consciences satisfy'd that what they were charg'd with (tho' true) was no Crime, but a Duty; for 'twas meer Non-Conformity, they were profecuted for. And therefore, they thought *twas sinful to have any hand in carrying on a Persecution of honest People: And that they cou'd not with a good Conscience be Assistants to their Persecutors in that bad Cause; which their Swearing in these Cases wou'd have made 'em. The Reasons on both sides, are reprefented by Fuller (i) to whom the Reader is referr'd for full Satisfaction. And we must consider what Mr. Stone says of their Debates among themselves about this Subject, and of the Reasons Mr. Snape offer'd from Scripture against the Oath, ex officio, and of the Peaceable Temper of the Brethren who were against it, for they dissuaded none, but gave Reasons of their own Practice, to shew that what they did was from Conscience and not from Wilfulnels.

Upon the whole, 'tis humbly submitted to all Men of Impartiality and Candor; whether the imposing of the Oath ex efficie, upon Non-Conformists under Queen Elizabeth, and with the Circumstances that attended it, was not rather an Instance of the Severities than of the Fertues of that Reign; and whether their refusing it was not more justly to be accounted a Preservation and Desence of the Rights of Conscience and Liberties of the Subject, than a Criminal District to the Course and Commences.

affection to the Queen and Government.

T 2

Lastly,

140 Chap. 2: The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part I: Lastly, 'Tis Objected against the Puritans by Sr. Francis, 'that they began both to vaunt of their strength & number of their Partizans and Followers, and to use Comminations that their Cause would prevail the' with Uproar and Violence.

Ans. I don't doubt but the Puritans represented themselves to be a Considerable Numerous Party (as indeed they were). And, that their Adversaries might readily misconstruct this, as vaunting. It is hard, that men may not represent their Grievances to the State, with this Argument, that both the Grievances and the Number of Sufferers by them is great. As to their Comminations, Violence, and Uproar, I can find nothing that gave any Colour for that Accusation, but the Story of Mr Wigington's Letter to Mr Porter upon Occasion of Mr Cartwright's Imprisonment for refusing the Oath, ex Officio, when the Articles were exhibited against him in the High-Commission-Court.

Fuller gives us both the Story, and a just Desence of the Puritans against the Calumnies which some sounded upon it. 'Some (k) soon after expected the Appearance of the Presbyterian Party, accounting it more Valor to free than to keep their friends from Prison. The rather because of a Passige in a letter of Wigington's to one. Mr Porter at Lancaster.

Mr Cartwright is in the Fleet for the Refusal of the Oath, (as I hear) and Mr Knew stubs is sent for, and sundry Worthy Ministers are disquieted, who have been spared long. So that we look for some Bickering ere long, & then a Battle which cannot, long endure.

Words variously expounded, as mens Fancies directed them. Some conceived that this Bickering and Battle did barely import a Passive Conflict wherein their Patience was to encounter the power of their Adversaries and to conquer by Suffering, Parallel to the Apposites Words, Without were fightings, meaning Combats to wiestle with, in many Difficulties opposing their Proceedings. Others.

ex-

Under Queen Elizabeth. Chap. 2.

expounded the Words literally (not of a tame but wild Battle) and Part I: of some intended Violence, as if shortly they would muster their fitherto inviuble) Forces to storm the Fleet, and rescue their friends therein. A third fort beheld Wigington the writer of these words, as one, but of the soberer fort of Distracted Min, and therefore in vain do star'd Heads make Serious Comments on light mens random-

Expressions, where the knot is neither to be untied, nor cut, but Cast away.

Thus have I been led into a Considerable Part of the History of the Presbyterians under Q. Eliz beth, by examining Mr. Secretary Waising bam's Letter, which contains a Collection of the most Plausiole things that his deep Judgment could very well fet together, for putting a Colourable Gloss upon the Severities of the Queen his mistres, whose sense (and NOT HIS OWN) he has been speaking all this while. And I submit it to the Judicious Reader, whether all that has been said against Puritans (when duly examined) can infer the. Reasorableness of those hardships they met with.

Let any sober man peruse the doleful Narrative of the Tragical. Severities, BUT OF ONE act in Q. Ehzabeth's Reign, as they are ingeniously and truly Stated by Sr Peter King in his Speech upon the . second Article of the Impeachment of Dr Sacheverell, who had heartily recommended these for wholesome Severities, and thereby condemn'd the Toleration- Act in England, which has happily Repeal'd the Law that Enacted 'em: Let him (I say) peruse that Speech, and it will help him to make a judgment of the Reasonableness of those Remarks I. have been making, and of the Unchristian Temper of such as would have those Severities Repeated under the Government of our

Gracious Sovereign Q. Anne. Sr Peter speaks thus,

What (1) cou'd be said more contrary to the Toleration. Act, than to recommend the Severities used in Q. Elizabeth's Reign, because they were wholesom in themselves, and of happy Consequence to the person and Government of that Renown'd Queen. If there were not a Necessity for it on this Occasion, I would not mention what those Wholesom Severities were, but rather cast a Veil over. that part of the Reign of that Great and Glorious Queen.

To.

Chap. 2. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part I. Were burnt, other Persons were hanged, some had their Goods Confiscated, others had their Persons Imprisoned, and to mention more particularly a public act in writing that cannot be fallify'd or mifrepresented, and which is since relaxed by the Toleration-Act, an Act pass'd in the 35th year of Queen Elizabeth Intituled An Act to e retain the Queen's Majesty's Subjects in their due Obedience; by which 41h: Dissenters are, among other penalties to Abjure the Realm in forty - Days or SUFFER DEATH without Benefit of Clergy.

'This Penalty of abjuration of the Realm was taken from the ancient Common Law of England in Relation to Felony, by which if a man committed any Felony, excepting Sacrilege, and fled to a

- Parish Church, he might within forty days before the Coroner confess the Felony, and take an oath to abjure the Kingdom for ever; and if he thus confess'd and took that Oath, he was thereby Ate tainted of the Felony, and then he had forty Days from the - coming of the Coroner to provide and prepare for his Voyage, and the Coroner assign'd him such a Port as he chose for his Departure out of the Kingdom; and if he did not go. Straightway

- out of the Kingdom, or being gone out did return without Licence,

- he had Judgment to be hang'd, except he was a Clerk, and then he · had his Clergy.

"This Practice was what the Law call'd Abjuration; and being by . Several Regulations in the time of Henry the Eighth in effect taken · away, the Revival of this Practice, was thought to be a WHOLE-SOM SEVERITY, fit to be inflicted on the Protest ant Dissenters of those Times, and therefore the 35th of Queen Elizabeth doth Enact, That it any Person obstinately resuling to repair to some - Church or Chappel, or usual Place of Common Prayers, and forbearing by the Space of a month to hear Divine Service, should · after forry Days after the End of that Session of Parliament, wille ingly join or be present at any Conventicle or Meeting, under - Pretence of Religion, contrary to the Laws and Statutes of the 4 Realm, that then such Person shou'd be committed to Prison, till he shou'd conform and come to Church; and if within three months e after Conviction. he should not Conform and come to Church, and a make his public Confession and Submission, being thereunto requir'd flior'd Abjure the Realm; and if, heing thereunto required should refuse to make such Abjuration, or after such Abjuration made, should not within the time appointed him depart the Realm; or after such Departure should return without the Queen's Licence: then, in every such Cise, every Person so offending should be A FELON WITHOUT BENEFIT OF CLERGY. So that the Abjuration institted on Protestant Dissenters by this act, was morse than Abjuration for Felony at the Common Law; in that they had the Benefit of Clergy, in this they had not.

This is one of the Severities of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, whether it be a Wholesom Severity or not, HUMAN NATURE VILL DETERMINE; however, Wholesom it might have been esteemed in those Days by those who had the Power and will to punish others, yet the Legislature have in Terminis declared it Unwholesome for those times, and the Toleration-Act doth expressly, and by name exempt the Protestant Dissenters from the Penalties of this act of the 35th of Queen Elizabeth.

Our Author is so much in love with these Wholesom Severicies, that he subjoins a Quotation from Dr Burner, in their Desence; which he alledgeth to be in his Presace to the 2d Vol. of his History of the Reformation: But upon a careful Perusal of that Presace, without missing one Syllable or Point in it, I can aver there is no such Passage there at all; and I am apt to believe his friend Thomas Long hath led him into that Mistake, having quoted it the same way, upon whose Word he has ventur'd to quote it again in his second Letter viz. the Conduct of the Dissenters &c. and to conclude that Piece with it. The Words, as he alledges, are these,

Queen Elizabeth's strict enjoining Uniformity, making some Turbulent Spirits Examples, countenancing the Clergy, especially A. B. Whitgift, and the Sincerity and Watchfulness of the Council and Inserior Officers, preserved the Nation in Peace all her days, & if her Successors had held the Reins of Government with like steadiness of hand, the Nation how Head-strong soever would never have run into those Desperate Confusions, from which nothing but the hand of God could have Redeemed us-

Chap. 2. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part I. I'm of Opinion that Bishop Burnet either used no such Words as are quoted by our author; or if he did, that he intended not by them to justify the Persecution of the Puritans; because he has declar'd his Opinion against all such Persecutions, God be thanked (says be) (m) That there is an End put to all Persecution in matters of Conscience; and that the first and chief Right of human Nature of following the Dictates of Conscience in the Service of God, is secur'd to ' all Men amongst us; and that we are freed, I kope, for ever, of all the Remnants of the worst Part of Popery, that we had too long retain'd;

I mean the SPIRIT OF PERSECUTION.

This Passage makes me believe, that the Dr. Understood what our Author quotes (if he truly said such Words) concerning the Papiffs or some Insutent Brownists only; and what confirms me in it is that. he mentions the Sincersty and Watchfulness of the Council &c. as coneributing to preserve Peace during this Queen's Reign: Now from what has been said, it appears, That the Sincerity and Watchfulness of the Council was employ'd against the Suspension, Deprivation and other miseries of the Puritans, brought on 'em by Whitgist and his Party; which so Judicious an Historian as Dr. Burnet cou'd not but know: and therefore we can't force a Meaning upon his Words, contrary to his own declar'd Opinion, and to obvious Truth.

Our Author concludes his Account of this Reign with drawing a Parallel between the Presbyterians under Q. Elizabeth, and their Successor's under her present Majesty, and between the Carriage of the former with respect to the Spanish Invasion, and the Behaviour of the latter upon the Pretender's Invasion; accusing 'em of Disloyalty for their refusing to Enlist in the Militia, and to take the Oaths. And he offers this Parallel of Practices, to draw Her Majesty into Severities Parallel to those of Q. Elizabeth. But the true History and Reafons of their Conduct, belonging to the Reign of Queen ANNE; I dismiss it until we come to that Period, and shall then give a full Account of it, and consider what he has advanc'd in both his Pamphlets concerning it.

CHAP.

Exbort. to Peace and Union p. 27. quoted by P. A. in his Vanity, Mischief and Danger of consinuing Ceremonies, &c. p. 4.

Part 1:

III. CHAP.

The Loyalty of Presbyterians During the Reign of King JAMES, the First of England, and Sixth of Scotland.

Rom the Reign of Queen Elizabeth our Author next comes to her Successor King Tames And have Comes to her Successor King James, 'And here (Jays be) I do solemnly protest to you, that I think it wou'd raise the Indignation of any Ingenious Man and Loyal Subject to read the Account, that not only Bishop Spot wood, but even Petrie and Calderwood give of their Treatment of that Prince and his Royal Family. In short, the Assembly of the Kirk, rejecting all his Authority, and convening themselves, and subverting the whole Constitution as they pleas'd, did treat him to indecently, so infolently, I may say barbarously upon all Occafions, that no body can wonder, that that much Injur'd Prince fhould tell his Son in his Basilicon Doron, I have been vex'd by these Puritans from my very Birth, yea they persecuted me whilft I was in my Mother's Belly, and it must be little that they had not Murcer'd me before I was born. I hope every good Man will be on his Guard against that HEIGHT

146 Chap. 3. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part 1.

OF INDIGNATION, and Transport of Passion into which this Author is ruis'd, and by which he has been driven into these Reproachful Errors. How the Assembly, that never met during his whose Reign without Addressing him as their only Sovereign upon Earth, and owning their Allegiance to him; And who never encourag'd any Man to take up Arms against him, but who often Address'd him for punishing the Popish Lords, and their Abettors who rebelliously made an Insurrection against him, and who encourag'd all the Subjects to stand by him, not only against the Spaniard, but all Foreign Powers that shou'd make any Attempt upon his Crown, Dignity and Dominions; who were particularly Instrumental in keeping all his Subjects in Peace during his Absence in Denmark, as he himself acknowledg'd on his Return; and who after all his thwarting of them and overturning their Ecclesiastical Constitution after his: Accession to the Crown of England, never once rais'd the least Disturbance to his Title or Authority: How, I say, the Assembly (notwithstanding of all this) can be said to reject all his Authority, is such a piece of History, as nothing but an highly raised Indignation durst advance. Seeing he gives not one Instance out of Calderwood, or Petrie, of their Indecent, Insolent and Barbarous Treatment of that Prince, or of their Subverting the least part (and far less the whole) of the Constitution, I am satisfy'd he cou'd not do it; for his Indignation was too great to pass any thing of that kind that was within the Compass of his kenn. And the' he should pick out of Spotswood some Stories reflecting upon their Behavior, yet few Impartial Men will lay much Streis upon what he says against them, seeing the Strain of his History savors somuch of Party and Resentment.

As for King James's Testimony of the Puritans: I desire our Author may take that Prince's Testimony of the Kirk of Scotland in his Speech to the Assembly Anno 1590 wherein (n) he prais'd God, that he was Born to be King of such a Kirk, the sincerest Kirk of the World, the Kirk of Geneva, (said he) keeped Pasch, and Tule, what have they for them? They have no Institution. As for our Neighbour Kirk in England, their Service is an EVIL SAID MASS.

IN ENGLISH; they want nothing of the Muss, but the Listings. IPart I. charge you, my good People, Ministers, Doctors, Elders, Nobles, Gentlemen and Barons, to stand to your Purity, and to exhort the People to do the same, and, I for sooth, so long as I BROOK " MY CROWN AND LIFE, shall maint ain the same against all dead" ly-

Compare this with his Letter to Queen Elizabeth in favour of the Puritan Ministers in England, which is as follows, 'Right (o) Excellent, High and Mighty Princess, — Our dearest Sister and Cousin; in our heartiest manner, We recommend Us unto You. Hearing of the Apprehension of Mr. Udall and Mr. Cartwright, and certain other Ministers of the Evangel within your Realm; of whose good Erudition and faithful Travails in the Church, we hear a very credible Commendation; howsoever, that their Diversity from the Bishops and Others of Your Clergy, in matters touching them in Conscience, hath been a Mean by their Delation, to work them Your Missing; at this present we cannot (weighing the duty which we owe to such as are efflicted for their Conscience hat Prefession) but by our most Essectuous and Earnest Letter interpone us at your hands, to stay any barder Usage of them for that Cause; requesting you most earnestly, that for our Cause and Intercession, it may please you to let them be reliev'd of their present Strait, or whatsoeverAccusation or Pursuit depending on thatGround:respecting both their former Merit, in fetting forth the Evangel; the Sime plicity of their Conscience, in this Desence; which cannot well be tet by Compulsion; and the great flander, which could not fail to fall out, upon their tarther Straitning, for any such Occasion: which we assure us, your Zeal to Religion, besides the expectation we have of your good Will to pleasure us, will willingly accord to our Request: Having such Proots, from time to time of our like Disposition to you, in any matter which you recommend unto us. And thus Right Excellent, Right High, and Mighty Princess, our dear Sister and Consin, We commit you to God's Protection. Edinburgh, June 12th 1591. U 2

Chap: 3. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

148

Part 1: Let the Judicious Reader observe that here is a full Vindication of that Kirk of Scotland, and the Puritans of England: The former neither could be the Sincerest nor the Purest Kirk in the World, if they had been such a Nursery of Rebellion, Sedition and Barbarity to their Prince as our author makes 'em to be; and why the King should charge 'em to stand by their Purity and exhort all the People to do so; and promise to maintain the same against all Deadly, if they had rejected all this Authority, subverted the whole Con-Ritution, vexed him from his birth, and Persecuted him from his Mother's Belly, is hard to Determine. If it be objected, that he spoke all this against bis Conscience and only to flatter the Kirk; its as easily answer'd, that he might speak against the Puritans from the same Principle, and to flatter a Party of the High Church; he lay under as great Temptations to the latter after he went to England, as to the former while in Scotland: besides, this Objection does so impair the Reputation of his Testimony in any Case, that I question (if it be true) if his single Evidence can be admitted to prove any Point whatsomer. We don't use to lay much stress upon Witnesses who give Contradictory Evidences. As to the the English Puritans, he gives 'em a large Character, for their good Erudition, faithful Travails in the Church, and former Merit; representing 'em as differing from the Bishops from Conscience and not from Wilfulness, and therefore dissuades from persecuting of them.

But let us consider the Credibility of the thing it self asserted in his Bastlicon Doron. The Lord Darnley's Relations did indeed when he was in his Mother's Belly, kill the Italian David Rizio in her Presence, for Reasons which Historians mention, and which the Rules. of Decency forbid me to repeat. If his own Father's friends did this, I know not how the Kirk is bound to answer for it; and I never heard of any other danger he was in while in his mother's Belly, if shat was any at all. Upon his birth, he was taken care of: and his mother a violent knemy to the Reformation, having abdicated, all posfible care was taken of the Young King's Education to that Degree, that he was one of the Learnedest Princes of his Age, or perhaps of any other.

The General Assembly were so far from encroaching upon the Rights of his Crown, or from raising, abetting or countenancing any Rebellious Rebellious, Treasonable or Disloyal Practises against him, that they Part I thought themselves bound in Conscience to use their Ecclesiastical Authority and Censures against those who were guilty of 'em; an Undoubted Proof of their being Dutiful and Loyal Subjects. The Cale of Mr Andrew Hunter is a plain Instance of this. Mr Hunter had deserted his Flock, and joined himself to Bothuel, who was guilty of Rebellion against his Prince: Whereupon the General Assembly in the year 1594 SOLEMNLY DEPOS'D the said Mr Hunter from the Office of the holy ministry, until he should satisfy his Majesty and the Kirk. And the King himself acknowledged, That this was the first Instance of an Open Traytor of their Function against a Christian King of their own Religion, and their Natural Sovereign: (p) Their early Zeal against this Scandalous and Rebellious Crime was not only a mark of their just Indignation against it, but also the best means that could be Apply'd on their Part for preventing it in others. Bothuel himself (who headed that Rebellion) and some of his Chief Followers were Excommunicated.

In the Year 1595, the Assembly met at Montrose, to show their Detestation of all Treason and Disloyakty, and to testify their Complyance with his Majesty's just Desire, made an Act in the following Words, Whereas (q) an Ordinance is craved to be made against Practisers of any Treasonable Enterprise, or Conspiracy against his Highness Person or Estate, being sound and declared Culpable thereof by Law; that they therefore shall incur the Sentence of Excommunication: The GENERAL ASSEMBLY AGRE-

ETH, Legitima Cognitione Ecclesiastica Praeunte.

When he came into England, the Puritans received him with all the joy and Satisfaction Possible (r); after all their hopes were frustrated upon the Hampton-Court-Conference, They present a Petition to the King signed by one thousand Ministers, wherein they say 'Seeing (f) it hath pleased the Divine Majesty, to the great Comfort of all good Christians, to advance your Highness, according to your just Title to the Peaceable Government of this Church and Commonwealth of England'. Can any thing be more dutiful and

(p) vide Calderwood's Hist. p. 304, 305, 307. (q) ld. lbid p. 308. (r) Coke's Detect. Part 1. p. 11, 12. (f) Fuller's Church Hist. Book 10. p. 22.

Chap. 3. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part 1, Loyal than what is contained in these Expressions? And in the Body of the Petition it self, They frankly offer'd Subscription to the Articles of Religion according to the Law (i e. so far as concern'd Matters of Faith and the Decerine of the Sacraments, being all that was required by the Statute of 13 Eliz.) and to the Kings Supremacy.

And the Non-Conformists of Devon and Cornwall upon the Persecution raised against 'em by him and his Favorites, do vindicate ?emselves and all their Brethren in England from any Rebellious or Factious Practises, in their Printed book, called, A Removal of Certain Imputations, laid upon the Ministers &c, which I here insert, i ecause it is a public Challenge to any in that age to Convict 'em of Disloyalty. and refute their Assertions, which has never been yet done by any p. 21. they say, ' Let them sift well our Courses since his Majesty's happy Entrance in amongst us; and let them name wherein we have done ought, that may justly be said ill to become the Ministers of Christ Jesus. Have we drawn any sword, have we raised any Tumult, have we used any Threats, hath the State been put into any 4 fear or hazard thro' us? Manifold Disgraces have been cast upon us, we have endured them. The Liberties of our Ministry hath been taken from us and (tho with bleeding hearts) we have full ained is, we have been cast out of our Houses, and deprived of our Ordinary. Mainteanance, yet have we blown no Trumpet of Sedition. These things have 4 gone very near us, and yet did we never so much as entertain a 4 thought of Violence. I ruth is, we have Petitioned the King and State; and who hath Reason to deny us that Liberty? We have craved of the Prelates to deal with us by Laws and is not that the * Common Benefit of every Subject? We have fought them to con-4 vince our Consciences by Scripture—Alas! what would they we should do? Will they have us content our selves with this only, that they are Bishops, and therefore for their Greatness on-1 ly to be yielded to? Episcoporum Authoritus opprimere nos potest docere nonpotest.

Now let our Author or any other disprove these Assertions, or show that the English Puritans or Scots Presbyterians did not walk according to the Measures laid down in 'em; and if they be not found false in this, twill be hard to find 'em guitty either of Rebellion or Sedition: Land himself consesset in his Character of King James' That War from Foreign Enemy, or Rebellion at home '. And I believe Part I. all will own that Laud was not so great a friend to the Puritans, as to hide under a Vail any of their Rebellions, if he cou'd but have had the least Presence of accusing 'em.

(t)

But it we examine the Reasons of this Prince's, Spleen against the Puritions, Coke in his Detect. will help us to find 'em out, who (u) says of him, That he was the first (at least since Richard 2d) That afferted and endeavor'd to introduce an Arbitrary Power in England, For eign to the Laws and Constitutions of it; and in all his Reign was more himself and the Preservation of his Inherent Birth-Right to the Crown of England, than for the honor of God and our Savior by the Pope's Usurpations otherwise; sor in his Speech at the Opening the first Parliament of his Reign he calls the Church of Rome a true

* Church, and our Mother-Church, and if they would lay aside their King-killing and King-Deposing Doctrine, and some Niceties

(but he names them not) he was content to meet them midway.

When King James 1. came to the Crown (Jays be) (v) The Representing the Grievances of the Nation, by his Disorderly Reign was Language Intolerable to him, so that of four Parliaments (which were all he had in his Reign) in the last he boasted he had broke the neck of three of them, and his Son broke the neck of the sour for meeting the Church of Rome midway, and abhorr'd any Practice that looked like a Coalition with them upon such Terms; and were not a little Dissatisfy'd with the King's Constant savoring of the PopishLords in Scotland, Andwith his dangerous Articles of the Spanish Match in England recorded by Rushworth to which Ishall have an Occasion to give a particular Account in the first Chapter of the second Part of this Discourse Schis other Practices inclining too much that way; They were

(e) vide Rushworsh's Collect. Vol. I. p. 155. (u) Part; 1. p. 156.

Chap. 3. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part 1. were constant Haters of Arbitrary Power in all Princes, and therefore no Prince of that Temper in Britain ever loved them. The Ecclesiastical Constitution of Presbytery does provide such Essectual Remedies against the Usurpations and Ambition of the Clergy, and lays such Foundations for the Liberty of the Subject in Church matters: that it naturally creates in People an Aversion from all Tyranny and Oppression in the State also: which hath always made it odious in the Eyes of such Princes, as have endeavored to stretch the Prerogatives above the Laws of the Nation, and Liberties of the Subjects. The Author of the Account of the Proceedings of the Parliament of Scotland. May 6. 1703. confirms this Observation (w.)

' In our General Assemblies (Says he) Our Laity as well as Clergy are fully represented, by Deputies from all parts of the Nation.

The Lay-Members are generally Men of the best Quality, and of 4 the greatest Esteem for Piety and Parts, in their several Countries:

4 they are many times Members of Parliament, well acquainted with our Laws, and Zealous for our Constitution; which makes them.

a necessary Ballance both upon the Court and the Clergy. This our former Princes knew well enough, and therefore such of them as had form'd Designs against our Religion and Liberty, did ever hate those Assemblies; because as our Parliaments were one Barrier, they were another about both, and many times harder to force than the · Parliament.

'This our Princes were sensible of, and being many times more thwarted in their Designs of introducing Popery and Slavery by those 6 Assemblies, than by Parliaments; they either endeavoured to have the said Assemblies, wholly in their own Power, so as that they might call, pack, overaw and Dissolve them, how and when they bleased, as King James the 6. and King Charles I. frequently attempted by the influence of their Bishops; or else to abolish them Totally, as King Charles 2. did by his new Model of Prelacy. From all this it is evident, that no reason can be assign'd, why our 4 Princes have been such Enemies to the General Assemblies of our "Church, that they wou'd either have them wholly laid aside, or so cramped cramped in their Power as that they should be entirely at their Part I. Devotion; but that they knew it was impossible for them to obtrude any Religious Innovations upon us, or to make Tools of the Church to overthrow the Liberties of the People, by the flavish Doctrines of Non-Resistance and Passive Obedience, while we con-tion'd in Possession — of such a free and popular Constitution, as our General Assemblies.

Dr. Runner gives us an hint of she like Temper of the English Puritans in this Raign, which may discover the Reason of their falling under the Censure of this Prince. (x) 'Upon King James's coming to the Crown, (Jays be) and the Divisions that came to be afterwards in Parliaments, between the too often named Parties, for the Court and Country; And Clergymen being link'd to the Interests of the Crown, all these who in Civil Matters opposed the Designs of the Court, resolved to cherish those of the Division, under the Colour of their being heavy Protestants, and that it was the Interest of the Rasonm'd Religion to use them well, and that all Protestants show'd Unite. And indeed the Dissertance between them was then In small, that if great Art had not been used to keep them asunder, they had certainly united of their own accord.

What the Deligns of the Court were, while the King was a breaking the Neeks of his Parliaments, are too well known to need any farther Enlargement: And the honest part of the Nation who were struly loyal as any Subjects could be, were for taking the Paritans by the hand, and for Uniting all Protestants in that juncture; which shows the Disposition of the Paritans, to have been for the Public Good both of King and Subject. But she Prince was vex'd by all who opposed his Arbitrary Power; that was their Unpardonable Crime.

His Son Prince Hany was of another mind; Cohe says of him, (y)

That he was a Prince adorn'd with Wildom and Piety above his

Years,—of a Noble and Heroic Disposition, and an Hater of flatteries

Effatterers,— His Court was more frequented than the Kings, and by another fort of Men, so that the King was heard to say, will

(x) vide Preface to the 2 Vol. Hift, Rofurm. (y) vide Detec. Part 1. p. 60. &c.

Chap. 3. The Loyalty of Presbyterians 154

Part I. will be bury me alive? Never was any Prince's Death more universifally and cordially lamented. And yet this Prince had so great a Friendship for Presbyterians, as made him very Unacceptable to his father's great Minions: For Coke assures us That the High-6. Church-Favorites tax'd him for being a Patron to the Puritans? If they had used his father so Barbarously and Insolently, Subverted the whole Constitution, and rejected all his Authority, this Prince was too wise to be ignorant of it; and his Spirit too Heroic, not to Resent such high affronts offer'd to the Illustrious Imperial Crown upon his Father's Head, of which himself was the hopeful Apparent Heir.

> Our Author's next (and last) Testimony against the Dissenters in this Reign is Dr. Bancrost's, of whom he says [p. 11.] 'I cannot give you a juster view into this Matter, in letting you understand who these Purssaus were, and how they proceeded, than to give you the words of a Sermon preach'd before the Parliament of England in the Year 1988. by Dr. Bancroft, afterwards Arch Bishop of Canterbury.

Whether the justest Account that can be expected of the Proceedings of the Soots Presbyterians, must come from Bancrost, let the Reader judge by Coke's Character of him, who [z] says, 'About this time the Clergy [at least a Faction which stiled themselves the Clergy] made an Attempt to try how far their Doctrine of Absolute Power in the King had taken Root in him, they had gain'd their Point so far, as the King had declar'd his Command to the Commons as Absolute King, and now they'll see whether the King wou'd affert it, and the Case was this,———Dr. Richard Bancrost (a man of a Rough Temper) as Zealous an asserter of the Rights of the Church of England, or rather a Faction of Church-men, who atro-gated to themselves the Title, as Julius the 2d was of the Papacy, exhibited to the King and Council 25. Atticles, in the name of all the Clergy of England, called Articuli Cleri, which were defired to be reformed in granting Prohibitions, tho' there were a Parliament and Convocation then litting, which I do not find had. any hend in it:

This Exhibition, as it ascrib'd an Absolute Power to the King, Part I. So it struck directly at the Constitution of Parliament, the Principal End whereof is to Redress Grievances and Abuses in the Nation.

By this the Reader will perceive that Bancrost headed the High-Church Faction, exalted Arbitrary Power in the Prince, and run down the Privilege of Parliament; to all which the Presbyterians being so justly Opposite, they have Reason to except against his Evidence, as a Partial Witness; and indeed, it is rather an Evidence of the justice of their Cause, than of its Weakness, that they are condemn'd, by men of his Temper; by whom to be evil spoken of is rather a Mark of honor than Difgrace.

I must further observe, that Bancrost was entirely officious and Meddling, in preaching such Doctrine before the Parliament of England, Anno 1588. concerning the Affairs of another Church and Kingdom wholly Independent on theirs; and it confirms the Observation the Scots Presbyterians have still made, viz. That the High-Church Party in England did still inflame the Differences between their Princes and them, in order to make the Civil-Government reproach and Persecute 'em: And that this shou'd be done in that very year, wherein the whole Island was in danger by the Spaniard, shows who were the guilty Causes of these Divisions, which encourag'd that horrid Attempt.

Mr. Davidson answer'd this Sermon in a Book, Entitul'd Dr. Bancrost's Rashnels in railing against the Courch of Scotland: There's nothing Material in what our Author quotes from it, but what's fully answer'd already. The Doctor gives his Charge in three Articles, to which he presizes a gross Historical Mistake, which with all Judicious Men can't but lessen the Reputation of what he advanceth upon it, About some six or seven years agone (says he) certain Men of the new Government intending the Erection of these Presbyteries in Scotland, began their Parts &c.' Whereas this Design of Erecting Presbyteries in Scotland was begun several years before that time he mentions:

In his first Article he chargeth 'em with inveighing against the Superiority of Bishops, here is his Quarrel with 'em indeed: They did the same from the year 1560. and it has been still the Opi-

Chap. 3. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part 1: nion of all the Free Assemblies of that Church, that Bishops are not jure divino superior in Office to Preaching Presbyters; but I can't see wherein this tends to the Detriment of Magistracy. And for the King's Authority in Matters Ecclesiastical, what they affect of it, and how agreeable their Principles about it are to all the Ends and Rights of Magistracy has been already clear'd. What they did in the Kings Minority, is but what all Nations in the World' do, when their Kings are Minors, that is, they do their bufiness. the best way they can by the Assistance of a Regency. And all their Policy and Discipline begun in the King's Minority, was after many full and free Conferences between him and them firmly Establish'd by him and the Parliament, when he came to age; they never pretended to alter one Law (as has been shown) and far less without Knowledge or approbation of King and State. Such faise History does not become any man in any Place, but far less a Clergy-man and from the pulpit too, which is too Sacred to be made the Stage of fuch Untruths. And to our Author's Question in his Marginal Note upon it, viz. what do they now in their Provincial Synods? I an-

In his 2d Article, he says, they discharg'd the Bishops; for which the same Reason which justify'd their Opinion against the Superiority of Bishops, is sufficient. They use no such Terms as Commanding the King and Council under pain of Excommunication, tho' they did frequently Petition him in most humble manner, to that effect. 3/y. He says they prescrib'd Laws for the King and State, which is as great an Untruth as any of the former. And tho' they may set forth in their humble Supplication, that such and such particular things wou'd be an Establishing of Iniquity by a Law. (as his Marginal Note Institutes) is this prescribing a Law? I suppose our Author and all good Protestants wou'd allow the Convocation to Address the Government, if they were about to establish any Iniquity by a Law; (which I hope they are too Vertuous to Attempt) and yet this cou'd not be reckon'd a prescribing of Laws to the Queen, and State. If the Askmbly has judg'd that to be Iniquity, which in truth is no Iniquity, at all, that it self wou'd be nothing to the purpose in Hand; and fwer, they do their own proper business for the good of Mens-fouls, without attempting or pretending to alter any Law of the State, or disturbing either Queen or Subject.

Under King James I.

Chap. 3.

the discussing of that Controversy wou'd lead me clear off the pre-Part 1: fent Subject: And therefore I shall say no more of it, but only insert one Paragraph of the humble Address and Apology of the Presbyterian Ministers and Gentlemen in the North of Ireland, occasion'd by the Representation of the Irish Convocation against them, wherein that matter is sufficiently clear'd. It runs thus,

"While (a) the Convocation afferts, that where we have the Afcendency, the constant Tenor of our Discourse is to call Toleration, establishing Iniquity by a Law; we beg leave to acquaint your Majesty, that we neither know nor remember that ever we us'd any such Expression, but find it once us'd in a Representation of the Commissioners of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, not with any Design to pass that Censure upon all Toleration in General of such as Dissent from 'em, but only against a particular Draught of an Att of Toleration for Episcopal Dissenters, brought into the Parliament of that Kingdom, in the year 1703. which laid them under no Obligation of giving Security for their Fideliby to the Government, tho' many of 'em were known facobites, and. continue still to be such, as appears by their praying openly for the Pretender, and refusing to pray for your most Excellent Majesty. And whether such a Toleration won'd not have been an establish. ing Iniquity by Law, even in the Judgment of all your faithful Subjects of all Persuasions, we humbly submit it to your Majesty.

But to return to Bancroft, he missepresents the Principles of Ptesbyterians, while he afferts that they maintain'd before the King, 'That He was an Incompetent Judge, and utterly disclaim'd his Authority, that for such matters as were spoken in the Pulpir, they ought to be exempt from the Judgment and Correction of Princes.' For they teach that the Magistrate ought to maintain the true Religion, and suppress Heresy and Idolatry; whence it necessarily follows that the Magistrate has a power of punishing Preachers of false Doctrine taught in the Pulpit as well as out of it. But the true State of the Controversy between the King and some of the Ministers was this; some of them having been cited to appear before the Privy-

Council

<sup>(4)</sup> vide Present State of Religion in Ireland, p. 38.

Chap. 2. The Loyalty of Presbyterians 158

Part 1. Council, on pretence of their saying something in the Pulpit which restlected on the King and the Court, they pleaded that the Faithful Exercise of their Ministry oblig'd 'em to Reprove Sin in the Highest as well as the Meanest; and that what they did being a Part of their Meer Spiritual Function, & no way relating to the King's Title to his Crown, or to his Civil Authority, Power and Jurisdiction, was Cognizable only, Prima Instantia, by the Ecclesiastical Judicatures of the Church. The Debate turn'd much upon the Question about their Church Establishment. But the King's Power in punishing by the Civil-Sword the Preachers of False and Scandalous Doctrine, and of his being a Competent Judge of it in order to the Exercise of that Power was not deny'd by them: But the Question was whether the Church was to judge in these matters Prima Instantia, or whether the Magistrate might do it before it was try'd in any Ecclesiastical Court; For, that he might do it afterwards, and punish a Presbytery or any Ecclesiastical Judicatory that give a wrong Judgment, is what Ruthersurd and Gillespie (two Zealous Presbyterians) have fully granted, as I have shown Chap. 1. p. 60, 61, 62, 63, 64.

Our Author alledgeth thatMr. Boyse andMr. Mc Bride (two Presbyterian Ministers) do scurrilously Preach against the Constitution, the Instance he gives of the first is his Sermon against Episcopacy ( Isuppose he means the Sermon Entitul'd the Scriptural Bishop. ) But the Debate between Mr. B---- and his Opponents upon that Head being in Print, I refer the Reader to what is said on both Sides. The Instance he gives of the latter, is his Sermon Preach'd at the Synod in Amrim; an Account whereof we have in the first Apology of the Presbyterian Ministers in the North of Ireland, occasion'd by the Representation of the House of Lords, in these Words. As (b) to the Sermon alledg'd to be Preach'd by Mr. Mc Bride, at a Provincial 'Synod at Beljast; we humbly offer, That that Sermon was Preach'd at Antrim, in the Year 1698. When the Author cou'd not be call'd a Non-Juror, the Oath of Abjuration not being then impos'd, 1 That it was Printed without his Order and Knowledge. and that he, being on account of it called before the then Lords Justices and Council, was acquitted. But.

CLOMU:

But to pass our Author's Marginal Digressions, let us return to Part I. the reign of King James 1. And here I find our Author has very prudently wav'd giving any Account of the Behaviour of Presbyterians in Ireland under this Reign; for (if he is acquainted with the State of that Kingdom, upon King James's Accession to the Crown of England) he'll soon find that the Settlement of Presbyterians in the North of Ireland, was one of the Chief Means of bringing that Kingdom into the Obedience of the Crown of England, and of Securing and Enlarging the British and Protestant Interest in Ireland, as will appear by the following brief account of it.

When King James 1. came to the Grown of England, the Kingdom of Ireland in General, and the British and Protestant Interest there in Particular was in a very Deplorable Condition: A Tragical Series of Concurring Causes contributed to the Miseries of that unhappy Nation. The Natives had a rooted Prejudice against the English Government, looking upon themselves as reduc'd to a State of Slavery by England; and believ'd that their Antient Government by their own Kings, and their Laws, Liberties and Properties were all taken from 'em by Violence; and they had not the Right notion of the Excellency of the English Constitution, which is very sit for civilizing a Barbarous People. This oblig'd the English to have a Watchful and Jealous Eye over all the Motions of those, whom they rather found to be Implacable Enemies, than good Subjects: and therefore they transplanted as many of their own Country-men into heland, as they cou'd well spare from home, and persuade to go abroad, upon so discouraging an Enterprize.

But the English Settlements in Ireland being weaken'd by the Debates's between the Houses of York and Lancaster about the Succession, which carry'd home divers of the English to assist the several Candidates, according as their interest and Party led 'em, the Irish got Head again. In King Henry 8th's time, their Aversion to the English grew greater, upon his throwing off the Pope's Supremacy, and then their Bigotted Clergy wrought upon a blinded People, and instam'd 'em to the greatest Height, telling them that before they had lost their Liberties and Ancient Privileges, but now their Religion (more valuable than all the Rest) was at Stake. All these Grounds of Prejudice were farther improv'd upon Queen Elzabeth's happy Accession to the

Chap. 3. The Logalty of Presbyterians 160

Part [. Crown; in whose Reign the English were miserably harass'd, and many of 'em destroy'd in Ireland, by the Rebellions and Insurrections rais'd by that bloody People. And there was a Law Enacted [3. and 4. Philip and Mary] Entitul'd An Act against bringing in of Scots, retaining of them, and Marrying with them; which continu'd in force during the whole Reign of Queen Elizabeth, and hindred the Scots, from planting Ulster or any other part of Ireland: the Rebellions of the Irish, the Destruction of the English, and the keeping out the Scots made it a miserable Distracted Kingdom. And in this Posture of affairs King James found it.

That Prince finding that he cou'd neither Levy the Rents and Revenues of the Crown, nor execute the Ordinary Course of Justice, nor Protect such of his Subjects as were faithful there, without Military Force, endeavor'd to Civilize the Barbarous Natives, and win them by acts of Grace and Lenity, and therefore restor'd some of the most Considerable of the Irish Rebels to their Estates and Inheritances. But this Experiment had not the Desir'd Issue. For soon after follow'd the Ungrateful and Traiterous Rebellion of the Earl of Tyxone, and Sr Cabir O Doghtirtie and their Accomplices, which made a Considerable addition to these Miseries under which the Nation lay groaning, when he came to the Throne. The Parliament of Ireland, (11, 12, and 13 Jac. 1. Cap. 4.) past an Ast for the Attainder of Hugh late Earl of Tyrone, Rory Late Earl of Tyrconnel, Sir Cahir O Doghirtie and others, wherein there is this Remarkable Exp essio , that gives a most Authentic Proof of the Weakness of the Protestant and British Interest in Ireland at that time; the Words are, 'It may please your most Excellent Majesty of your Gracious Disposition, which your Highness doth bear towards the SETTLING OF THIS UNREFORMED KINGDOM" The Parliament then look'd upon Ireland to be an Unreform'd and an Unsettled Kingdom.

Many Projects were set on foot for the settling and Reforming of it, and among others, that same Parliament that had so feelingly express'd its Miseries, and who were the best Judges of proper Expedients for remedying them, past an A& (Chap. 6.) for repealing the Act against bringing in of Scots, retaining of them, and Marrying with them; and thereby gave a public PARLIAMENTARY Exsouragement and Invitation to the Scots Nation to come and plant Ireland, and to promote the Settlement and Reformation thereof. And Part I the'divers of the Scots had come over before the passing of the aforesaid Alt, conceiving hopes that their own Natural Prince wou'd take care to have such a Law past in due time, yet we must date the Commencement of the most considerable Attempts of the Scots for the Plantation of Ulfter, fromthat Law; after which, there came over many Thoufands of 'em in a few years, and settled in Ulster. They brought alongst with them their Presbyterian Principles, which they had learn'd at home, and encourag'd Ministers of their own Persuasion to settle amongst 'em. The first Minister of that Persuasion (of the Scots Nation) I have heard of was the Reverend Mr. Edward Bryce, who settled in Broadisland in the County of Antrim, Anno 1611. And about the same time, or very soon after it, we have an Account of the Reverend Mr. Robert Cunningham in Hollywood, in the County of Down. And there were three Ministers who came from England, and were Contemporary with Mr. Brice and Mr. Cunningham, viz. Mr. John Ridges of Antrim, and Mr. Henry Calvert, and Mr. Hubbard of Carrickfergus, who had been a Pupil under the great Cartwright in England. He was encourag'd by the Lord Chichester, then Lord-Deputy of Ireland, who himself had been a Pupil of Cartwright's too; and was a Man of great Parts, had got a considerable Estate in Ireland, and was amongst the first Planters of Ulfter in this Reign, and an Encourager and Favorer of the Puritans, finding it for the Interest of the Crown and Kingdom to have the Country Planted with Protestant Inhabitants. Mr. Ridge and Mr. Calvert were encourag'd by the Family of the Clotwortby's of Antrim upon the same Principles, and especially being themselves of that Persuasion.

In the Year 1622. the famous Mr. Robert Blair came from Scotland, and was ordain'd Minister of Bangor, in the County of Down; he was Encourag'd by the Lord Claneboy, Son to a Presbyterian Minister in Scotland, who had been a Fellow in the Colledge of Dublin, reported to have been Tutor to the great Usher, was now become a Lord, and possess'd of a great Estate; and a great Encourager of the Plantation of Usher, and who saw a necessity of Encouraging the Presbyterians upon his Estate, otherwise the Country must have remain'd a Wilderness. His own Nephew Mr. James Hamiltone, became Presbyterian Minister of Ballywalter, and Mr. John Livingston (a Man of singular Learning and Piety) came soon after into the Ministry

Chap. 3. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part I and was settled in the Parish of Killinsby, with divers others, in the County of Down. And in the County of Antrom, were settled about this time) Mr. Josias Welsh at Templepatrick Son to the great John Welsh, and Grandson of Know the Reformer, and Mr. George Dumbar at Larn with divers others in that County.

The mutual Moderation of the different Denominations of the Protestants of Ireland at that time, was a great help to the Settlement and Plantation of Ulfter; of which I shall give several Instances. which I wish may be duly consider'd by their Successors. When Mr. Robert Blair was presented to the Parish of Bangor by the Lord Claneboy, the difficulty that stuck with him was how he cou'd be ordain'd. for he was a Zealous Presbyterian, and scrupled to receive Episcopal Ordination according to the establish'd Form. The Lord Claneboy, brought him into Company with the then Bishop of Down, viz. Bishop Ecclin; and the Bishop and Mr. Blair had a free Conference upon that Subject, and at last Compromis'd the matter thus. The Bishop. propos'd that Mr. Robert Cuningham, and the other Ministers of Mr. Blair's Persuasion, who were in the Country shou'd concur with him in the Ordination; and that he (i. e. the Bishop) being acknowledg'd by Mr. Blair to be a Presbyter, and as such to have Power of Ordination in Conjunction with other Presbyters, shou'd join with 'em in: that Act; and that all those things which Mr. Blair scrupled at in the establish'd Form of Ordination shou'd be laid aside, and the Expresfions in it he excepted against exchang'd for others to be concerted with his own Consent and Approbation. This Proposal Mr. Blair readily consented to, and in pursuance of it was ordain'd Publickly in the manner agreed upon in the Church of Banger; finding nothing in it repugnant to his Principles and Conscience, and hoping that this might happily Contribute to the Union of Protestants in order to the preserving and promoting the Infant-Plantation of Ulfer, and: for laying a good Foundation for rooting out the Principles of Popery and Rebellion, which had been so industriously kept up by the Irish-All these of the same Persuasion who were ordain'd in Ireland between that time and the Year 1642. were ordain'd after the same Method; and particularly Mr. John Livingstone hath left a full Narrative of his Conference with Knox Bishop of Rapho, who join'd with the Presby terian Ministers in his Ordination. And all of them, (Blair and all the rest) enjoyed the Churches and Tithes, tho' they remain'd Presbyterian still, and us'd not the Liturgy, and there was a Civil Comprehension of them, and a sort of an Ecclesiastical Part I. Comprehension too; for they frequently met and Consulted with the Bishop about Assairs of Common Concernment to the Interest of Religion, and some of 'em were Members of the Convocation in the Year 1634.

These Ministers kept a Monthly Meeting at Antrim, wherein four of them usually preach'd in one day, and they commonly spent two days at these Meetings in Preaching and solemn Humiliation, by Prayer and fasting, for the Sins of the Land; and then consulted amongst themselves of the best Methods for Cherishing Piety in their several Congregations, and for the Propagation of it thro' the whole Country, and for the Extirpation of Popery: wherein God was pleas'd to bless'em with Admirable Success in a sew Years. A very Coarse People were brought in by their Ministry, not only to be wonderfully Civiliz'd, but by a Powerful Blessing upon the Gospel, great Numbers of 'em became serious Christians; and from all parts of the Country resorted to these Monthly Meetings, and to the Quarterly Communions then in use. For Mr. Blair and Mr. Cuningham soon Concerted between themselves to give the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, each of them four times a year, and adjusted the Times of the Celebration of it, so as the Greatest Number of their Parishioners, who were Proficients in Religion Communicated in both their Churches, .. upon all these Occasions, which was once in six or seven Weeks. And the other Ministers found so great Comfort, & so much divine A sistance in their Work, as encourag'd them likewise to a Desireable Frequency in the Administration of that solemn Ordinance. They employed themselves in their Ministerial Work with Indefatigable Diligence. to the Approbation of all the Moderate and Sober Epsscopalians; and particularly of the Great Usher, with whom Mr Blair was well acquainted, and from whom he and his other Brethren had great Applause.

And many of them were in high Esteem amongst the People of Distinction and of the best Station then in User, and their Ministry. much regarded, and attended upon even by these who had freedom in their Cansciences to conform to all the Rites and Ceremonies of the Establish'dChurch, one Instance whereof (to mention no more) was in Mr. Blair's Preaching before the Judges of Assize (at the desire of the

Bishop

Chap. 3: The Loyalty of Presbyterians 1.64

Part 1. Bishop of Down) upon the Lords-day which happen'd to be Haster-Sunday, upon which the Judges were to receive the Sacrament; he' preach'd to 'em before Noon that day, and on the Saturnday before; had not clearness to Communicate kneeling, upon which the Curate of the Place perform'd the Office, according to the Liturgy; And Mr. Blair was sent for on the Lords day in the Evening by one of the Judges, who made him repeat the Heads of his Sermon, discours'd him seriously about the Covenant of Redemption, which had been the Subject of it, and spoke with great Regard to Mr. Blair, and the Methods us'd by him and his Brethren in the Exercise of their Ministry, and express'd a Cordial Willingness to be under such a Ministry, which, he perceiv'd, was favor'd by so much of God's Countenance.

> The Providence of God was very remarkable in promoting this Plantation of Ulster by means of the bard Treatment of Presbyterians at that time both in England and Scotland; for Persecution drove many of 'em from both Kingdoms into Ireland. And those who gave too much way to their ill Treatment at home, found it for the public Safety of Ireland and the Protestant Religion, to protect them there.

> And 'tis very Remarkable, that after the Principles and Behavior of the same Presbyterians who came into Uster were publickly, known, even as long after as in the tenth Year of the Reign of K. Charles I. the Parliament of Ireland made an Act (Cap 4) for the Naturalization of all the Scottish Nation, which were Ante-Nati, born before his late Majesty King James, &c. happy Accels to the Crown of England and Ireland; and the very Delign of that Act was to give farther Encouragement to some of the Scors who had come over before, and for want of being Naturaliz'd, were liable to divers Inconveniencies mentiou'd' therein, and to Eucourage more Scots to come over, and they particularly set forth theusefulness of the Scottsfor promoting the Happiness of the Kingdom, in these Memorable Words, 'It being a great Dis-couragement and Disheartning unto many of your said Subjects of Scotland, that otherwise wou'd have planted themselves here, for the further CIVILIZING, STRENGTHNING, and SECURING this your Highness said Realm, against Rebels at home, and all Foreign Invasion:

> Here is one of the most ample Testimonics (and from the Parliament too) of the Loyalty and Usefulness of the Scots Planters in UL.

ster

fler, that they or any Body cou'd desire; and whoever compares this Part I. with the State and Condition in which they found the Country, when they came to it, must acknowledge the Justice of the Observation, made by the Presbyterian Ministers of the North of Iretand, in their first Apology to Her Majesty, wherein they say;

We crave leave with all Humility to observe to your Majesty, that's since our first Settlement in Olster, an hundred Years ago, by Encouragement from the Crown, the British and Protestant Interest.

which was very weak before, has been confiderably strengthen'd by our Means, to that Degree, as to have a great Influence on the Safety and Peace of the whole Kingdom, of which your Royal?

Predecessors have been very sensible.

I doubt not but the Reader will expect that I shou'd satisfy hin, how I came by the Materials of this shore Narrative I have given of the first Settlement and Progress of the Presbyterians in Ireland in > this Reign, having quoted no Printed History for some Parts of it. As to the Acts of Parliament I have mention'd, these will speak for themselves; and the publick Histories do all so unanimously agree: upon the State of Ireland, as I have represented it in the beginning. of this Reign, that he must be very Ignorant that doubts it. And for other Parts of the Narrative, I have them from a Manuscript-History of the first Settlement and Progress of Presbyterians in Ulfter, wrote by the late Reverend Mr. Patrick Adair, Presbyterian Minister in Belfast. That Reverend Divine had all the Advantages that any Man in his time cou'd be suppos'd to have for coming to the exact Knowledge of the Facts he relates: for he himself was ordain'd. May 7th in the Year 1646, about 24 Years only after Mr. Blair was ordain'd, and was personally acquainted with him. He had the Advantage also of a Manuscript-History of Mr. Blair's Life, written by Mr. Blair himself, giving the same Account; which I have perus'd carefully, and find an exact Harmony between 'em. Mr. Adair was a great Intimate and (in some respect) a Disciple of the Famous Mrz John Livingstone, who has likewise left us a Manuscrips-History of his Life. I have seen it too, and find it exactly agree both with Mr. Blair and Mr. Adair.

Mr. Adair himself lived near 50 years in the Ministry, and by his long Experience had great Opportunities of making Judicious Obser-

Hoisek

Chap. 2. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part I vations upon the History of the Times; especially if we consider, that during that whole time he was constantly employ'd by his Brethren, in all their Affairs of Moment and Intricacy; was often in Conference with the Commissioners of the Parliament of England, with Monk, .Venables, and the most considerable of the Usurper's Party, and with Henry Crommell himself; being call'd by all these to appear before 'em, and still asserted the King's Right (as shall appear in it's proper place.) He was frequently a Commissioner from the Presbyterians to the Dake of Ormand, and other Chief Governors of Ireland, after the Restauration; And was sent over by all his Brethren in the North of Ireland in 1688, with their Address to the Prince of ORANGE, and staid at Court for some time: And by these means had the Honour of Acquaintance with many Noblemen and Gentlemen; and was richly furnish'd, thro' the whole Course of his Ministry, with the best of Materials for Composing such a Work. Besides, he had Assistance from some who were Compiling such an History, before he attempted it, and particularly from Mr. John Greg Presbyterian Minister in Newton, and Mr. Andrew Stuart Presbyterian Minister in Donnaghadee, who made some Progress in the Work; and were Men of great Sagacity, Judgment, and Veracity, as many yet alive can Testify. He had the Benefit of the Conversation and Observations of three old Ministers, viz. The Reverend Mr. Thomas Hall of Lairn, Mr. Anthony Kennedy of Templepatrick, and Mr. Robert Cunningham of Broad-Island, who all surviv'd the late Happy Revolution, and were as Old Ministers as Mr. Adair himself. And their Characters are all so well known to many Gentlemen of Worth of all Persuasions, as 'twou'd be needless to say any thing in Proof of their very great Sincerity.

Add to all this the Excellent Character of Mr. Adair himself, who was a Man of great Natural Parts and Wisdom, Eminent Piety and Exemplary Holiness, great Ministerial Gravity and Authority, Endued with Savory and most Edifying Giftes for his Sacred Function, wherein he was Laborious, Painful, and Faithful; was a Constant, Curious, and Accurate Observer of all Public Occurrences; and with all these Rare Qualities, had not only the Blood and Descent; but the Spirit and just Decorum of a Gentleman.

If all these things be Compar'd, and duly weigh'd, I think I may Adventure to say, that its morally impossible we shou'd be led into MistMistakes by what Accounts are taken from that Manuscript-History; And I know nothing that can be said, for questioning its Veracity, but that Mr. Adair, Mr. Blair, and Mr. Livingstone were Prebyterian Ministers; which carries in it a most Uncharitable Insinuation, as if all the Honessy in the World were Confined to one Persuasion. And if it be Undeynable, That there are several Ingenuous Popish-Historians, who deserve Credit, even in the Facts they relate concerning the Church of Rome, he must be a very Sceptic, who will result the Testimony of these Worthy Protestant Divines, of such Entablished Characters amongst all who knew them.

I have been the Larger in shewing the Credit due to this Manuscript—History, because I shall have Occasion asterwards to refer to it. The History it felf contains a Curious Collection of some very surprizing Assairs, and perhaps may be exposed to a Public View in due.

time.

CHAP.

Part 1.

PART II.

The Loyalty of Presbyterians from the beginning of the Reign of King CHARLES I. To this present Year MDCCXIII.

CHAP. I.

The Loyalty of Presbyterians during the Reign of King CHAKLES I.

HERE are three Instances adduc'd by our Author, and in lifted upon in both his Pamphlets, to prove Presbyterians guilty of the height of Disloyalty in this Reign. viz. 1. Their taking Part with the Long Parliament against the King, which he calls Rebellion. 2. Their opposing Duke Hamilton's Engagement for rescuing the King out of the hands of the Sectaries, and for saving his life. And 3/2, The Exectable Murther of the King, as the Worst of all; with all which he charges them.

What I shall be oblig'd to offer for clearing these three points, will give Loyalty, but of several very Material Parts of the History of these Part 2. Kingdoms, without which the Behavior of Presbyterians can't be set

- in a true light.

As to the first, viz. the Civil War between King Charles 1. and the Long Parliament, I shall not give my own opinion in that Mitter, but represent to the Reader the Reasons on both Sides, leaving him to form a Judgment for himself. The most Impartial way I can think of for stating the Debate, is, to give the Reasons of a very Learn'd Prelate, who thinks that War to have been a Rebellion on the Part of the Parliament and their Abettors: And on the other hand to insert the Reasons of the Author of a very Celebrated Paper, who is of the Contrary Opinion. The first is the present Bishop of Sarum, who in his speech on the first Article of the Impeachment of Dr. Sacheverel says,

' I go next to shew what was the Common Doctrine for the next 60 years, from 1628, to 1688. I must yield up the first 12 years; For upon the Unhappy Misunderstanding between the King and that Parliament, there was a long Discontinuance of Parliaments, then the ' lately-condemn'd Doctrine was again in vogue; and nothing was so much heard of, as the Law of Government which was from God, Antecedent to all Human Laws: Out of this sprung Illegal Imprisonments, Illegal Monopolies, Severe Proceedings in the Star-Chamber, but above all the Ship-Mony: These things put the Nation in an Universal Disjointing and Feebleness. And when an unavoidable Necessity forced the King to call a Parliament, the fatal Effects of those Councils broke out terribly. I know many fancy, that the War is to be charg'd on the Principles of Self-Defence; they are much mistaken, I had Occasion to see a great way into the Secret of that time, when I examin'd the Papers relating to the two Dukes of Hamilton. I knew a great deal more fince from two Persons of 'Unquestionable Integrity, who knew the Secrets of that time, the Lord Hollis, and Sir Harbottle Grimstone; but all receiv'd a full Confirmation, when I found it agreed perfectly with the noble account given by the Earl of Clarendon:

No Body dream'd of a War, nor had they any principles leading to it. But there was an unhappy Train of Accidents that hinder'd

Mas-

170 Chap: 1. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part 2:

Matters from being brought to Settlement, even while the King was granting all they cou'd define. Stories were carried by Persons. about both the King and Queen, of Words let fall, that made them conclude, there were still ill designs on Foot, against the Laws that were then pass'd. But that which brought all to a Crisis, was the Discovery of a Negociation, to engage the Army to declare against the Parliament. Whosoever compares the Depositions in Rushworth with the account of that matter by the Earl of Clarendon, will see there is a great deal more in the one, than the other is willing to believe; tho' he acknowledges they had both Goring's Evidence, and Piercy's Letter with them. I will not take it upon me to determine, whether they believ'd too much, or the Earl of Clarendon too little. It is certain they believ'd all that was in the Depositions and a great deal more: For Goring, being continu'd in the Government of Ports-mouth, and his Father being advanc'd from being a Baron to be an Harl, and Piercy's being made a Lord and Master of the Horse to the Prince of Wales, made them conclude they had suppress'd a great deal, instead of saying more than was true. This stuck deep in their Hearts, and at last fatally broke out in the Demand of the Militia, that brought on the War, which I do own was plainly a Rebellion, because a force was offer'd to the King, not to defend themselves from an unjust Invasion, or lik-' gal Grievances, but to extort a new Law from him.

Thus the true Occasion of the War, was a Jealousie, that a Conduct of 15 Years had given too much Ground for; and that was still unhappily kept up, by a fatal Train of Errors, in every step.

that was made.

Besides these Reasons, all the Reasons that are usually advanced for Passive Obedience and Non-resistance were offered, to show the Unlawfulness of that War. But the Reader must excuse me for omitting them here; because that fort of Reasons is now universally rejected by those, who assert the Legality of the late happy Revolution in 1688. And were given up by Dt. Sacheverel's Council in his Tryal as I have shown Part 1. Chap 1. p. 15. & the debate about the Civil War does not now turn upon that Point, but meerly upon this hinge, whether there was sufficient Cause for the Parliament and the Subjects under their Conduct to take up Desensive Arms against the Arbitrary bitrary Courses of that Reign, and the Invasions made upon their Religion and Liberties by the Prerogative. That there were such Violations of Liberty as were very heavy Grievances, is acknowledg'd on all Sides, but that they were so great as to Justify a War, is denied by the one Party, and affirm'd by the other.

Of all those who have embrac'd the Affirmative of this Question, I don't find any who gives so clear a State of the Case, as the Author of a late Celebrated Pamphlet, Entitul'd, Faults on both Sides. He gives his opinion in these Words, (4)

Let is neither in my Inclination or Purpole, to vindicate any of those many ill things that were acted in the Prosecution of that Civil War; but since my Lord Clarendon himself fairly asknowledgeth, That that Prince was missed into many Mistakes in the Conduct of his Government, we may modestly say, that 't was the proper business of the Parliament to insist upon a thorough Reformation of all that had been done amis, and to OBTAIN SUCH LAWS as might Effectually secure the Liberties and Properties of the People from the like Invasions for the future: If the King, at first, adder'd to the Advice of those who distinated him from giving such satisfaction to his Parliament, as he wou'd have yielded to at last; and if he was persuaded to decide the Dispute by the Sword, and to begin is by Displaying his Standard of War against his People, what cou'd then remain for them to chuse, but either to give up for ever all their Rights and Liberties, and to submit themselves and their Posterity to be govern'd by the Will and Ileasure of all their future Kings: Or, to resolve to defend their Ancient Laws and Privileges to the utmost, and to oppose Force with Force?

There is, doubtiefs, a true Distinction to be made between a Rebellion and a Civil War; the first is Notorious, when Subjects take up arms against Lawful Governors Lawfully Governing; but when a Prince violates the Establish'd Laws of the Nation, raises Texes by his own Authority contrary to the known Rules of the Constitution, invades the Liberties of his Subjects by Illegal Impriforments, unjust Prosecutions and other Grievous Oppressions, per-

Z 2 Per of the construction of the constructio

Chap. 1. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part 2. Iss in such Arbitrary Acts of Government for a course of Years; if a People can find no other Means to preserve their most valuable Interests, but by having Recourse to the last Remedy, and shall take. up Arms, to Compel such a Prince to restore their Rights, and reform. his ill Government; 'tis evident, from the Histories of the Civil Wars. of France and other Countries, that grave and impartial Historians have not thought fit to treat this way of opposing the Unlawful U. furpation of Princes with the Odione name of Rebellion; and 'tis obferv'd, that our Parliaments have had the Caution, that in the Acts, pass'd after the Restoration, in Relation to the preceeding War . between the King and Parliament, they wou'd never give it the name of Rebellion, doubtless out of the Consideration that it behov'd 'em to keep up the Sanction of the Parliamentary Authority; and that that War was Authorized by a legal Parliament, who had Right to ... windicate the Liberty of the Nation.

The Names of Reproach, which pass'd in these Times, were Cavalier for these who sided with the King, and Roundbeads for such as took part with the Parliament: Now if the Intention of the latter were no other than to bring the evil Counsellors to condign. • Punishment, to prevail with the King to comply in a just settlement. of their Civil and Religious Liberties; and then to restore him to ... the Regal State under such Limitations as might: secure them from any future Invasions of their Rights and Priviledges, (and this I believe, was the GENERAL DESIGN of those that took up Arms at first) I see no reason why these Roundheads shou'd lie under a harder Censure for what they Acted at that time, than may be impured to our selves for what we have done in the late HAPPY. RE-VOLUTION, for the Rescuing our. Laws and Religion from the Violations of the late King James.

Hitherto. you will say I have argu'd like a Whig, but I shall soon hew you that I am not inclin'd to be Partial. When this very Reforming Party had reduc'd the Forces of the King, and 'twas. in their Power to have put a good end to the War, they fell into Factions and Divisions among themselves, and many of those that had Eminently distinguish'd themselves and gain'd the Applause of the People, enter'd into designs to advance their wwn Grandeur; the great Officers of the Army form'd Cabals in the House of Commons, who by their Strength and Interest violated the Rights of Part 2. out just Cause, and excluded such as oppos'd their sinister Designs, without filling the House with New Elections; so that they became no true Representative of the People, and carry'd on all their extravagant Actions afterwards by a small number of their own Fa-Gion: In short, when the King was at last brought to yield to fuch Terms as might have settled the Nation in Peace, they rejetled all manner of Accomodation with him, hurried him to the Block, ulurp'd the Regal Power, kept up the Army to Support their own Tyranny, oppress'd the People with illegal exactions, and rul'd the three Nations by the Sword; and if those who Style the whole a Rebel-Iion, had but distinguish'd between the Commencement of the Civil War, and the time when these Actions were perpetrated, I shall be content to allow them that Term, or even a worse if they cou'd invent it.

That the Reader may be able to judge whether the Reasons of the last mention'd Author, or of the Bishop of Sarum, be of greatest Weight, it will be proper for him to observe that those who defend the Parliament's War against the King do alledge, that his Reign confisted not of some sew single Acts; but of a constant Series of Malc-Administration, to the Endangering of the Protestant Religion, the subverting of the Priviledges of Parliament, and the Overthrow of the Liberties and Properties of his Subjects: And that all possible means on their Part were us'd for the Redress of those Grievances, but to no purpose; that the Intrigues of his Prime Favorites and the Prevalency of evil Council put the Parliament and Nation under the unhappy necessity of defending their Rights by the Sword, as the last and only means of their Self-preservation.

One main Cause of the People's Grievances in Religion under his Reign, was his Marrying a Bigotted Papist, upon such base and Disbenourable Articles confirm'd by his Oath, as inevitably open'd a Door to a Popish Interest and Council with all its mischievous essess both in Church and State. This unfortunate Prince was led into this inare by his Father, who us'd all his Incerest for promoting the Spanish Match, in the Articles whereof there were many things bighly prejudicial to the Protestant and savorable to the Popish Religion.

The Loyalty of Presbyterians Chap. 1.

174

Part 2. The Roman-Catholick Apostolic Religion, and the Holy Roman Church, were too losty Epithets for a Protestant Prince to Swear to, as he did in the 2 and 8 Articles. By the 6th Article, not only the Infanta ' her self, but also her Men-Servants and Maid-Servants, and their Servants Children and Descendants, and all their Families of what fort soever serving her Highness might be freely and publickly Catholicks." The 5, 7, and 8, provide her a Church, Chappel and Oratory, with all Popish Ornaments. The 10th allows her 24 Priests and Assistants to serve in them; and over them a Bishop or his Vicar, (by the 11) with full Authority and Jurisdiction: who only mayproceed (by the 15th Article) against Ecclesiastical Persons as bath been accustomed by Catholicks: And if any Secular Judge shall apprehend any * Ecclesiastical Person for any offence, he shall forthwith Cause him to be deliver'd to the aforesaid Superior Ecclesiastic, who shall proceed against him according to the Canon-Law. By the 13, the Infanta and her Servants might procure from Rome Dispensations, Indulgences, Jubilees, and all Graces as shall seem meet to their Religion and * Consciences. By the 16th, the Laws made against Catholicks in England, or in any other Kingdom of the King of Great-Britain Lall not extend to the Children of this Marriage; and tho' they be Catholicks, they shall not lose their Right of Succession to the Kingdom and Dominions of Great Britain". The Infanta must chuse the very Nurses for their Children of the Marriage by the 17th, & which is more, the Children must be brought up in her Company, at the least, until the Age of Ten Years, by the 20th. By the 22d, The King, Prince. and Council must Swear to all the Articles, and endeavour, if possible to have them Establish'd by Parliament. And by the 23d, All was 'to be allow'd and approv'd of by the Pope, that he may give an Apostoblical Benediction". In a Word, there is not one of all the 23 Articles, but what is in favor of the Popish Religion and Interest, and yet ill Sworn to by the King, Prince and Council, as appears by the Forms of their several Oaths recorded in Rushworth's Collect ionstogegher with the Articles themselves at large (b)

Besides all these, there were other private Articles, Sworn to by the King, Prince and Council, in favor of the Papists, which Rufworth (Ibid.) mentioneth, the most Material Clauses whereof, are Part 2.

these, '1. That particular Laws made against the Roman Catholicks as likewise General Laws which are repugnant to the Romish Religion, shall not at any time hereaster, by any means or Chance whatsoever directly or indirectly be Commanded to be put in Execution against the said Roman Catholicks; And we will cause that our Council shall take the same Oath, so far as it pertains to them, and belongs to the Execution, which by the hands of their

2. That no other Laws shall be made anew against the said Roman Catholicks, but that there shall be a perpetual. Toleration of the Roman Catholic Religion, &c.

Ministers is to be exercis'd.

'3. That neither by us, nor any other interpos'd Person directly or indirectly, privately or publicly, will we treat (or attempt) any thing with the most Renown'd Lady Infanta Donna Maria which shall be repugnant to the Roman Catholic-Religion, neither will " we by any means persuade her that the shou'd ever renounce or relinquish the same, &c.

4. That we and the Prince of Wales will interpose our Authority, and will do as much as in us shall lye, that the Parliament shall ratify all and singular Articles in favor of the Roman-Catholics, and Revoke and Abrogate particular Laws made against the said Roman Catholics—— as likewise the General Laws—— repugnant.

to the Roman Catholick-Religion &c.

In the Prince's Oath confirming these Articles, let the following Words be remark'd, 'Moreover ICharles Prince of Wales engage my self ----- That all those things which are contain'd in the forgoing Articles, and concern as well the Suspension as the Abrogation of all Laws made against the Romon Catholicks, shall WITHIN THREE YEARS INFALLIBLY TAKE EFFECT, and sooner if it be possible, which we will have to lie upon our Conscience and Royal Honour. That I will intercede with my Father, that the Ten Years of the Education of the Children which shall be born of this Marriage ---- (which Term the Pope of Rome desires to have Prorogu'd to twelve years) may be lenghshen'd to the said Term. And I' ---- swear, that if it so happen that the entire Power of disposing of this matter be devolv'd to me, I will also grant and approve the said Term. Furthermore -- as often as the Infanta shall require-

Part 2. require that I shou'd give ear to Divines and others whom her Highness shall be pleas'd to employ in matters of the Roman Catholick Religion, I will HEARKEN TO THEM WILLINGET without all Difficulty, and laying aside all excuse &c.

Compare all this with the Letters between the Pope, King, and Prince upon that Subject; and consider that Clause of the Prince's Letter to the Pope (c) "Your Holiness Conjecture of our desire to Contract an Alliance & Marriage with a Catholick Family and Princess is agreeable both to your Wisdom and Charity: for we cou'd never desire so vehememly to be join'd in a strict and Indissoluble Boud with any Mortal whatsoever, whose Religion we hated; therefore 'your Holiness may be assur'd that we are and always will be of " that Mederation, as to abstain from such Actions, which may testify our Hatred against the Roman-Catholic Religion.

Both Houses of Parliament Anno 1623. in their joynt Address to the King say, (d) 'The humble Advice of us your Obedient Subjects we joyntly offer from both Houses, No one Person there dissenting or Disagreeing from the Rest --- That the Treaties both for the Marriage . & the Palatinate may not any longer be continu'd with the honor of your Majesty, the Safety of your People, the Welfare of your Children and Posterity, as also the assistance of your Ancient Allies & Confederates.". And in their Reasons for this Address they say, 'TheSpaniards taking advantage of the Prince's being in Spain, importun'd a General Connivance of Religion, to the Diminution of the King's Sovereignty, and to the Discouragement of all his well-affected Subjects. And thus they have labor'd with the Pope, being of Mischievous Consequence. During this Treaty the Popish Faction hath mightily encreas'd.

In their next Address by their Committee in answer to his Speech they say (e) 'The Weal and Safety whereas (i. e. of England) is - in our judgments apparently threatned, if your Majesty's Resolutions for Dissolving of the Treaties now in question be longer deferr'd". The King was prevail'd with to Disolve these Treaties, -which which occasion'd Bonfires Ringing of EeVs, and great Joy in Lon- Part 2.

The Parliament, being resolv'd to strike the Iron while 'twas hot, prepar'd a smart Petition against Popish Recusants, exactly opposite to the Articles of the Spanish Match; which the King in his Letter to Secretary Convay calls, a Stinging Petition against the Papists, In which this is one clause, (g) 'Sceing we are thus happily deliver'd from that danger, which those Treaties now Dissolv'd, and that use which your ill-affected Subjects made thereof, wou'd certainly have drawn upon us, and cannot but foresee and fear lest the like may hereafter bappen, and inevitably bring such Perils to your Majesty's Kingdoms, we are most humble Suitors to your Gracious Majesty, to secure the Hearts of your good Subjects by the Engagement of your Royal word unto them, that upon no Occasion of Mariage or Treaty or other Requests from any Foreign Prince or States whatsoever, you will take off, and slacken the Execution of your

Laws against the Popish Recusants.

The Parliament Anno 1621. gave sufficient Warning of those Mischiefs and danger to Religion by any such Match: The Commons in their Address (b) to him say, finding how ill, your Majesty's Goodness hath been requited by Princes of Different Religion, who even in time of Treaty have taken opportunity to advance their own ends, tending to the Subversion of Religion—: by reason where- of your ill affected Subjects at home, the Popish Recusants, have taken too much Encouragement, and are dangerously encreas'd in their Number, and in their Insolencies. In this address they give 14 Causes of great and growing Mischiefs in the Kingdom, whereof the 7th. is, The Expectations of the Popish Recusants of the Match with Spain, and feeding themselves with great Hopes of the Confequences thereof'. They propose ten Remedies of the Evils they fear'd from these Causes, whereof the 6th is, That to frustrate their Hopes for a suture Age, our most Noble Prince may be timely and happily married to one of our own Religion.

A a

In

178 Chap. 1. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part 2. In all the Intrigues of this Match, declar'd by divers Parliaments to be dangerous to Religion, & the Kingdom, King Charles ift (then Prince of Wales) was as deeply concern'd as his Letters, Ouths and Promises above mention'd cou'd make him, being early ensured by his Father's Favorites.

This Match being broke off, there is another immediately set on foot with France, which took effect, and produc'd all the Mischiefs, which these wise Parliaments above mention'd did foresee. Of which Rush vorth says (i) The French enlarg'd their demands in savor of Papilts (as the Spaniards did do before them) and strain'd the King to the Concession of such Immunities, as he had promis'd to his Parliament, he wou'd never grant upon the Mediation of Foreign Princes.

Frinces.

The Cardinal Rickelieu — being appointed to the Manage ment of the Treaty, assur'd the Catholicks of Great-Britain, that the most Christian King remembring that he was born and rais'd up no less for the Propagation of the Catholic Cause than for the Enlargement of his own Dominions, was resolv'd to obtain bonorable. Terms for Religion, or never to conclude the Match and for his own part, such was his Compassion towards them, that if he might work their Deliverance, or better their Condition, not only with Counsel, Interest & Authority, but with his life and Blood, he wou'd

In August the Match was concluded, and in November the Articles were sworn unto by King James, Prince Charles, and the French King. The Articles concerning Religion were not much short of these for the Spanish Match. The private Articles of it besides what was common to it and the Spanish Match were (k). That the Catholicks as well Ecclesiasticks as Temporal, imprison'd since the last Proclamation which follow'd the breach with Spain; shou'd be set at Liberty, and that the Goods of the Catholicks, as well Ecclesiastical as Temporal, that were seiz'd on since the foremention'd Proclamation, shou'd be restor'd to them, and that the English Catholicks shou'd be no more search'd after, nor molested for for their Religion, and in the rock of May, says Rushworth (Ibid.), Part 2. as the first fruits of this promis'd Indulgence and favor, the King granted (viz. Charles 1. ) unto twenty Roman Priests a special Par-Jon of all Offences committed against the Laws then in Force against Papists.

The first Parliament of his Reign express'd the Eminent. Danger of the Protestant Religion, and the growth of Popery under his Administration, in a Long petition in as moving and plain Terms as cou'd be devis'd; they give (1) eight Causes of the Encrease of Popery, each whereof doth either explicitely or by necessiry Consequence tax him with Male-Administration; but for Brevity's sake, I take notice only of the 1st, 2d, and 8th.

1. The Want of the due Execution of the Laws against Jesuites, Seminary Priests, and Popish Recusants, occasion'd partly by the connivancy of the state, partly by Desect in the Laws themselves, and f partly by the manifold abuses of Officers.

2. The Interposing of Foreign Princes by their Ambassidors and Agents in Favor of them.

8. The Employment of men ill-Affected in Religion in Places of Goe vernment, who do, shall, or may countenance the popish par-.ty.

They propose 16 Remedies against this Outragious and Dangerous Disease as they justly term'd it, all pressing the strict Execution of the Laws, and proposing the wisest Expedients for the more effectual doing of it. To this he gave three Answers, 1. A very General one, promising to be more particular, and 214, by the Lord Keeper In a short message assuring 'em of his real Performance in every particular (m). The third Answer was full to each Article, and part, occasion'd by the Commons Desire sometime after, that the Lords might concur, with them in presenting to the King these Matters following (n) That notwithstanding they did petition his Majesty for advancing God's true Religion, and the suppressing of Popc. y: Unto which his Majesty vouchsaf'd, as well from his own mouth, as the Lord

A a 2 Kecper

Chap. r. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part 2. Keeper, to return such an Answer, as assur'd them of his RoyalPerformance; yet at this Meeting they found, that on the 12 of July 'last, his Majesty granted a pardon unto Alexander Baker a Jesuite, & unto ten other Papists, which [as the Commons have been inform'd] was gotten by the Importunity of some forreign Ambassidor, and pass'd by Immediate Warrant, and was recommended by the Principal Secretary of State, without the payment of the Ordinary Fees. And further that Mary Estmonds in Dorset-Shire—made her escape from the Constable, and complain'd to the King. The principal Secretary did write to two Justices in her favor.

4. Upon these Passiges, the Commons made Observations, 1. Upon the Date of the pardon, which was the NEXT DAY AFTER. 4 HIS MAJESTYS ANSWER BY the Lord Keeper to their Petition concerning Religion. 2ly, That the pardon dispens'd with several Laws, as the 21, and 27. of Q. Elizabeth, and 3d. of King Games, provided to keep the Subjects in due Obedience. 31y, That the Pardon was fign'd by the Principal Secretary of State. And . therefore the Commons declar'd that these Actings tended to the Prejudice of true Religion, his Majesty's Dishonor, the Discounteanting the Ministers of Justice, the grief of the good People, the nnimating of the Popish Party, who by such Examples grewmore proud and infolent, and to the Discouragement of the High-Court of Par-· liament.

Hereupon the King gave a Disting answer in open Parliament to each Paragraph, and afterwards emitted divers Proclamations, and Orders against the Papists in Pursuance of the said Answer; but his evil Counsellors did not intend they shou'd take any great Effect, as appears by the Commons Address to him anno 1626. (0) Wherein they Observe his Majesty's promise in answer to the above Petition and particularly 'That he wou'd give Order to remove from all Places of Authority and Government, all such Persons as are either Popish Recusants, or according to Direction of former Acts of State, justly to be " suspected, which was then presented as a great and Principal Cause of that Mischief.'. Notwithstanding whereof, they in the body of their Address mention by Name above 70 Persons of that kind to be then Part. 2: in Officesof Trust; five whereof were Lords, a great Number of them Knights and few or none under the Degree of Elquires; and many of those Offices they erjoy'd were very considerable, and of great Importance to the safety of the Nation. The Enumeration of these Persons, their Offices and Characters fills 5 Pages in Rushworth; after which they proceed in these Words, Wherefore they humbly be-'seech your Majesty not to suffer your loving Subjects to continue any longer discouraged by the Apparent Sense of that encrease both in Number and Power, which by the favor and Countenance of such ill-affected Governors accrueth to the Popilli Party.

A new Parliament call'd March 17th, 1627, falls a fresh upon the Grievances in Religion, and finds the Insolencies of Popish Recusants and Persons Popishly affected (notwithstanding of all the endeavors of formerParliaments)to remain as yet intolerable, whereupon several Worthy Members made such Speeches as will ever be remembred to their honor; and even the King's Secretary (Cooke) affects (p) whilst' we sit here in Parliament, there was another intended Parliament, of Jesuits and other Well-wishers within a Mile of this Place, that this is true, was discover'd by Letters sent to Rome.

The Mue was a Petition from both Houses of Parliament against Recusants consisting of eight Articles, all grounded upon the Non-Execution of the Laws against them, or making such Compositions with those against whom the Laws were executed, as defeated their Design, and continu'd the Danger 'to the Emboldning of Popish Recusants to entertain Massing-Priests, into their private Houses, and to exercise all their Mimick Rives of their gross Superstition (as by their daily Practice and Ostentation we may conceive) to the Nature of a Concealed Toleration: Your Majesty (say they) wou'd be Graciously pleas'd to entertain this particular more nearly into your Princely Wisdom and Consideration; and to dissolve this Mystery of Iniquity patch'd up of colourable Leases, Contracts, and Preconveyances, being but Masks on the one part to deceive your Majesty

Chap. 1. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part 2. jesty and Seates; on the other part, for private Men to accomplish their Corrupt Ends (9)

In their Petition about Billeting of Soldiers, they take 'Notice of " many Companies who openly profess'd themselves Papists, and that fome of their Captains and Commanders were as Popishly affected

as themselves. (r)

In the following Sellion, we find the Commons in three Remon-Arances of speaking very home to the Court in these Words, There is a GENERAL FEAR conceiv'd in your People of SECRET WORKING and COMBINATION to introduce into this Kingdom Innovation and Change of our Holy Religion - for not vithitanof ding the many good and wholesome Laws and Provisious made to prevent the encrease of Popery within this Kingdom, and notwithflanding your Majesty's most Gracious and Satisfactory Answer to the Petition of both Honses of Oxford, we find there hath follow'd no good Execution nor Effect, but on the contrary ____ these of that Religion do find extraordinary favor and respect in Court from Persons of great Quality and Power, whom they continually resort unto, and in particular to the Countess of Buckingham, who her self openly professing that Religion, is a known Favorer and Supporter, of them, that do the same, which we well hoped; upon your Ma-- jesty's Answer to the atoresaid Petition at Oxford, shou'd not have been permitted, nor that any of your Majesty's Subjects of that Re-Igion justly to be suspected, shou'd be entertain'd in the Service of - your Majesty, or your Royal Consort the Queen; some otherwise of that Religion have had Honors, Offices and Places of Command and Authority lately confer'd upon them. But that which STRIKETH 4 THE GREATEST TERROR into the Hearts of your Loyal Subiects concerning this, is, that Letters of stop of Legal Proceedings against them have been procured from your Majesty (by what indirect Means we know not) and Commissions under the Great Seal, granted and executed for Composition to be made with Popish Recusants, with Inhibitions and Restraint both to the Ecclesiastical and Temporal Courts and Officers, to intermeddle with them; which is COII-conceived to amount to no less than a Toleration, edious to God, sull of Part2.

<sup>(4)</sup> Id. Ibid. p. 517. (r) Id. Ibid. p. 619, (f) Id. Ibid. P. 620, 621.

Under King Charles I.

DISHONOR and EXTREME DISPROPIT to Your Majesty, of GREAT SCANDAL and GRIEF to your GOOD PEOPLE, and of APPARENT DANGER to the present State of your Majesty and of this Kingdom; their Numbers, Power and Infolency, daily increasing in all parts of your Kingdom, and especially about London and the Suburbs thereof.' After mentioning the danger from the Arminian Faction headed by Land and Neal and the discountenancing of Orthodox Preachers (of which more afterwards) they subjoin these Words, 'It coth not also a little increase our Dangers and Fears this ... way, to understand the miserable Consition of your Kingdom of ' Ireland; where without Controul, the Popish Religion is openly oprefess'd and practis'd in every part thereof, Popish Jurisdictions 6 being there generally exercis'd and avow'd, Monasteries, Nunneries and other Superstitious Houses newly Erected, reedify'd and res plenish'd with Men and Women of several Orders, and in a plentiful manner maintain'd at Dublin, and most of the great Towns, and divers other Places of the Kingdom; which of what ill consequence ' it may prove, if not seasonably repress'd, we leave to your Mas jesty's Wisdom to Judge; And now, if to all these your Majesty will be pleas'd to add the Consideration of the Circumstances of time wherein these Courses tending to the Destruction of true Religion, within these your Kingdoms, have been taken here, even when the fame is with open force and violence persecuted in other Countries, 'and all the Reform'd Churches in Christendom either depress'd or miserably diffresi'd; we do humbly Appeal to your Majesty's Princely. Judgment, whether there be not just Ground of fear, that there is' some Secret and Strange cooperating here with the Enemies of our Religion abroad, for the utter Extirpation thereof; and whether if these Courses be not speedily redress'd, and the Profession of " true Religion more encourag'd, we can expect any other but Misery and Ruin speedily to fall upon us. In the last Session of this Parliament, there arose divers Debates

In the last Session of this Parliament, there arose divers Debates between the King and them about the Order of their proceeding, be urging sirst of all sor Subsidies, and they preserving the Consideration of their Grievances in Religion; and therefore gave him a Declaration, containing their Reasons for so doing; they continued but

Chap. 1. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part 2. a short time, and finding they were immediately to be dissolv'd, the Commons fram'd three Resolutions; the first whereof was this (t;

Whosever shall bring in-Innovation of Religion, or by favor or Countenance seem to extend or introduce Popery or Arminianism, or other Opinion Disagreeing from the Truth and OrthodoxChurch, hall be reputed a Capital Enemy to this Kingdom and Common- wealth.

From the Year 1628. to 1640, the Court took care that there .. shou'd be no Parliamentary Complaints of Male-Administration in the Aflairs of Religion nor any thing else; for during that time, there were no Parliaments in England at all, but besides what Historians say of the Dangers of Popery in that time, public Records of Inferior Courts give a Melancholy Account thereof. Let the Reader be pleas'd to peruse Prynn's Royal Popish Favorite, wherein He'll find an Account of King Charles 1sts, Extraordinary Favors and Protections of Notorious Papists, Priests & Jesuits, against all Prosecutions and Penalties of the Laws enacted against them, notwithstanding his many Royal Proclamations, Declarations and Protestations to the contrary, manifested by sundry Letters of Grace, Warrants and other Writings under the King's own Sign-Manual, Privy-Signet, his Privy-Councils and Secretary Windebank's hands and Seals, by divers Orders and Proceedings in open Sessions at Newgate in the King's-Bench. and elsewhere (all extant on Record, in the Sossions Books, God-Books, Crown-Office, where all who scruple their Indubitable Verity or Reality, may Peruse them for their better Satisfaction.') Some of the Persons Names, in whose favor these Writs (Copied by the said Author, and publish'd by Authority of Parliament) are these, viz. Will. Keely Gent. Will. Cobb Gent. Sir Francis Eagelssield Barronet, Sr. John Shelly Barronet, and his Lady, Sir John Wintour and his Lady, Six Francis Marnock Baronet and his Lady, Thomas Jennings Merchant, Sir Charles Smith, Sir Henry Bedingfield, and his Lady and Family, Clement Prest on Esq; Will. Peters Gent. My Lady Elizabeth Stover, Sir Will. Pearsal Knight, John Carill Esq; Son to Sir John Carill; Edward Cotton Esq; and his Wife, The Lord Arundel and his-Lady. Will. Thorold Esq; and his Wife, Lady Elizabeth Dormer, Capt. John Read, Anthony Midcaff Gent. My Lady Sands Do $oldsymbol{v}$ -

Dowager, and her Daughter and Servant, Sir Henry Andley, and his Lady; My Lady Windser, Will. Arundell Esq; (Son ito Lord Arandel) and his Lady, Sir Henry Brown and his Lady, Will. Bradshaw Esq; and his Lady. The following Persons deliver'd by the like Letters were all Priests, viz. John Dally, Cornelius Crawley, John Sout bworth, Reynault Mc. Donald, Palmer, Gilbert Brodin; Roger Clay, Thomas Gaunt, Middleton, Stevens, James Williamson, Richard Salvin, Thomas Ridale, Bryan Midcass, John Seargin, Will. Bidale, Thomas Holms, Robert Widdington. Tho. Readman, Tho. Berry, Tho. Shephard, Gilb. Shelton, Matth. Wilson, John Plansford. All legal Proceedings against these and vast Numbers more were staid by Writs under the King's own Hand; beside all that was done by the Privy Council and Windsbank.

The three first Articles charg'd by the Commons, Decemb. 7. 1640.

(u) are 1. Seventy sour Letters of Grace to Recusants, within those sour Years, sign'd with his own Hands. 2. Sixty sour Priests discharg'd from the Gate-house at Westminster within these sour years, and sor the most part by him. 3. Twenty-nine discharg'd by verbal War-rant by him. ? Of the King's Letters above mention'd it's remarkable that in many of them there is this Clause, at the Instance of our dear Consort the Queen; some of 'em say, at the Instance of the Queen Dowager of France, and divers of 'em were at the Instance of foreign Papish Princes and their Ambassadors.

The Parliament met April 13. 1640. wou'd not Grant the King any Subfidies to enable him to invade the SCOTS, until their Grievances thou'd be first consider'd; among which their Members complain of the universal Suspension of the Laws against the Papists, their heing employ'd in places of Trust and Power, & many other things of that kind, tending to the Destruction of Religion (w) but were dissolv'd in disgust, before they cou'd come to any Resolutions, except about Conferences between the Two Houses, and Messages.

Between this and November 3d 1640, (the Meeting of the long Parliament) the Papists were so far from having the Laws executed against 'em, that the King's extraordinary Favors to them were the Arguments us'd by the Queen, Montague and Sir Kenelme Digby and others in their

Chap. 1. The Loyalty of Presbyterians 188

...,

Part 2. several Letters to the Roman-Catholicks for raising Money for the King against the Scots (x); And particularly in that from many Papists in London to their Friends in the Country, there is this remarkable expression, 'It is the sense of us all both Ecclesiastical and Lay-Persons, that besides the discharging of their and our Duties to God and the King, it mainly importeth the good of the Catholicks, to have their business take good Success.

And thus I have given the Reader a brief Account of the open and barefac'd Countenance given by the Court to Papists, from the public Records of the Nation, during that part of his Reign, which preceded the long Parliament. The Arguments from these Instances are fo fully improv'd by all his Parliaments, that makes it altogether needless to say any thing further about them; and I chink he sees little, that sees not that these wise and prudent Parliaments who were so Zealous for Religion and Liberty, have not prov'd to a Demonstration that both were evidently endanger'd under this King's Administration: If his Marrying a Popish Queen, and upon such Articles, as he must Tif he kept them dispense with the Laws, and deny all his Parliament's just Desires in Religion, together with all that follow'd natively thereupon, did no Prejudice to Religion and Liberty; our wise Parliaments fince the Revolution must be mightily to blame, who have enacted, that if the Successor to the Crown be Papist, or but Marry a Papist, he or she shall lose the Crown and right of Succession, and the next Protestant Heir is to succeed, as if the former were Dead. Shall a Practice in the Protestant Successor be carried so far as to make him Guilty of a Forfeiture of his Crown? and shall not that same Practice in a Protestant Predecessor with what follow'd upon it, be justly accounted a dangerous Subversion of the Fundamentals of a Protestant Government?

My Lord Clarendon himself confesseth the truth of a great part of what has been now advanc'd (y) The Papists had for many years (Jays be) enjoy'd a great Calm, being upon the matter absolu'd from the sevirest parts of the Law, and dispens'd with for the Gentlest; and were

(x) 1d. 1bid. Part 2. from p. 1327. to p. 1331.(9)vide Clarendon's Hist. Book 2. P. 116, 117, Edic. Polio.

were grown only a part of the Revenue, without any probable dan- Part 25 ger of being made a Sacrifice to the Law. They were look'd upon as 4 good Subjects at Court, and as good neighbours in the Country; all the Restraints and Reproaches of former Times being sorgotten. But they were not prudent Managers of this Prosperity, being too Elate and Transported with the Protection and Connivance they receiv'd, tho' I am persuaded their Numbers encress'd not, their Pomp and Boldness did, to that Degree, that, as if they affected to be thought 4 dangerous to the State, they appear'd more publicly, entertain'd and urg'd Conferences more avowedly, than had been before known; they resorted at common hours to Mass to Somerset-House, and return'd thence in great. Multitudes, with the same barefacedness as 6 others came from the Savoy or other Neighbour Churches, they attempted and sometimes obtain'd Proselytes of weak uninform'd Ladies, with such Circumstances as provok'd the Rage and destroy'd the Charity of great and powerful Families, which long'd for their Suppression: They grew not only secret Contrivers, but public profest d Promoters of, and Ministers in, the most odious, and the most grievous Projects; as in that of soap, form'd, fram'd& Executed, by a Corporation of that Religion, which under that Licence and Notion, e might be, and were suspected to be qualified for other Agitations. 4 The Priests, and such as were in Orders (Orders that in themselves were punishable by Death,) were departed from their former Mo-· desty and Fear, and were as willing to be known, as to be hearkned. 4 to; infomuch as a Jesuit at Paris who was coming for England, had the boldness to vilit the Ambassidor there, who knew him to be · fuch, and offering his Service acquainted him with his Journey, as f there had been no Laws there for his Reception. And for the • most Invidious Protection and Countenance of that whole Party, a · Public Agent from Rome (first Mr. Con, a Scottish Man, and after him the Count of Rozetti an Italian) resided at London in great · Port; publickly visited the Court; and was avowedly resorted to by the Catholicks of all Conditions, over whom he assum'd a particular Jurisdiction; and was Cares'd and Presented Magnificently by the Ladies of Honor who inclin'd to that Profession. They had · likewise with more Noise and Vanity than Prudence wou'd have admitted, made Public Collections of Money to a confiderable Sum, upon some Recommendations from the Queen, and to be by her Mab B

Part I. Majesty presented as a free Will-Offering from his Roman Catholic Subjects to the King, for the carrying on the War against the Scots; which drew upon them the Rage of that Nation, with little Devotion and Reverence to the Queen her self; as it she desir'd to suppress the Protestant Religion in one Kingdom, as well as the other by the Roman Catholicks. To conclude, they carry'd themselves so, as if they had been suborn'd by the Scots to root out their own · Religion.

The evil Counsellors of that Unfortunate Prince were not satisfy'd with all the Countenance Papists got under him; but to compleat the danger of Religion, must put him upon Methods for corrupting the Protestant Destrine by spreading the Poysonous Infection of the most Rigid Tenets of Arminianism, for corrupting Protestant Worship by dangerous Innovations, for abusing Protestant Church-Government by making it degenerate into a most Arbitrary and Tyrannical Usurpation, whereby many sincere and Zealous Protestants were ruin'd, while dangerous Reculints were treated with distinguishing Marks of Royal Favor. To this purpose the Commons in their Remon-Arance Anno 1628. (2) say, And as our fear concerning Change or Subversion of Religion is grounded upon the daily encrease of Papists So are the Hearts of your good Subjects no less. perplexed, when with forrow they behold a daily Growth and Spreading of the Faction of the Arminians, that being, as your Majesty well knows, a cunning way to bring in Popery, and the Professors of those Opinions, the Common Disturbers of the Protestant Churches, and Incendiaries in those States, wherein they have gotten any Head, being Protestants in shew but Jesuits in Opinion who notwithstanding are much favor'd and advanc'd, not wanting friends even of the Clergynear to your Majesty, namely Dr. Neale Bishop of Winchester, and Dr Land Bishop of Bath and Wells, who are justly suspected to be unsound in their Opinions that way. And it being now generally held the way to Preferment, and Promction in the Church, many scholars do bend the Course of their Studies, to maintain those Errors; their Books and Opinions are wf

Under King Charles I.

'suffer'd to be Printed and Publish'd, and on the other side the Im-Part 2.
'printing of such as a e Written against them, and in desence of Part 2. the Orthodox Church, are hinder'd and prohibited —— and further increase our fears concerning Innovation of Religion, we find there hath been no small laboring to remove that which is the most • powerful means to strengthen and increase our own Religion, and to oppose both these, which is the diligent Teaching & Instruction of the people in the true Knowledge, and Worship of AlmightyGod. And therefore Means have been sought out to depress and Discountenance pious and power; ul and Orthodox Preachers, and how Conformable soever, and Peaceable in their Disposition and Carriage they be, yet the preferment of such is opposed, and instead of being encouraged, they are molested with Vexations Courses, and Pursuits, and hardly permitted to lecture.

4 Among the 16 Remedies Propos'd by both Houses of his first Parliament anno 1625, against Popery and the danger of Religion, this was the 3d, (a) That special Care be taken to enlarge the Word of God, throughout all the Parts of your Majesty's Domini-· 0.15, as being the most powerful Means for planting of true Religion, and rooting out of the Contrary: To which end, among other things, let it please your Majesty to advise your Bishops by · fatherly Entreaty, and tender Usage to reduce to the peaceable and orderly Service of the Church, such able Ministers as have been si-· lenc'd, that there may be a profitable use of their Ministry in these.

needful and dangerous times.

King Charles (says Rushworth) (b) in his father's life 'time' was link'd to the Duke of Buckingham, and now continu'd to receive him (i. e. in the beginning of his Reign, which he there describes) into an Admir'd Intimacy and Dearnels, making him partaker of all his Counsels and cares, and chief Conductor of his affairs The public State of Religion, and the Steering of Church Matters had an early Inspection & consultation in the Cabinet-Council. Bishop Land who in King James's life time had deliver'd to the Duke a little Book about Doctrinal Puritanism, now also deliver'd to the Duke

Chap. 1. The Loyalty of Presbyterians 1.90

Part 2: Duke a Schedule wherein the Names of Ecclesiastical Persons were written under the Letters O and P, O standing for Orthodox and P for Puritans: for the Duke Commanded that he shou'd thus digest the Names of EminentPersons, to be presented to the King under that Parcition.

Who these Persons were, depress'd at Court, and persecuted with the highest Severity under the name of Puritane, appears by the above mention'd Petition of the Commons; whence we may see that all the sober, moderate Conformists, who were against Arminianism, and Laud's other Innovating Principles, did suffer under that name, and those who were dissatisfy'd with some things in the Legal Establishment and therefore silenc'd, were able Ministers, to be imreated and tenderly us'd, and their Ministry necessary in those dangerous Times. Their Character with their ill Usage is attested by a very Violent Royalist. viz. Dr. Rates (c) 'They were treated (says he) with Suspensions, Deprivations, Imprisonments and Banishment by the Bishops and Ecclesiastical Courts. But that Severity, tho' 'twas inflicted almost according to the letter of the Law, brought an odium on the Prelates, and made the Opposers of Hierarchy to be pity'd; and the rather because they seem'd to suffer for Conscience sake, and their desire of purer Worship; were men of strict Morale, fervent in their sermons, zealoully given to prayer and the Offices of Picty; and, in one Word, otherwise good Men. Therefore many free born Subjects even among the Gentry and Nobility took their part, cares'd them, and at length came into the same Senti ments, and measures with them against the Hierarchy.

All waich is further attested in the Celebrated Speech of Sr. Benj; Rudyard, a great Royalist and stiend to Episcopacy, made in Parliament anno 1640 (d) We well know ( says he ) what Disturbance hath been brought upon the Church, for vain petit Trifles, how the whole

(c) Elench. Mot. Nuper. in Anglia part. 1. p. 115. 116.) Suspensiones, Privationes, vincula, Exilium regeruntur ab Episcopis, et Curiis Ecclesiasticiis, sed odium in Præsules constavit ista Severitas, et il legum ad Præscripta sere exerce-tetur; & Anti-hierarchicis misericordiam peperit, eoq; Majorem, quod Consci-

whole Church, the whole Kingdom hath been troubled, where to Part 2. place a Metaphor, an Altar. We have seen Ministers, their wifes, Coildren and samilies undone against Law, against Conscience, against all bowels of Compassion about not dancing upon Sundays. What do these sort of men think will become of themselves, when the Master of the House shall come, and find them thus beating their fellow-ser vants. These Inventions were but sives made a purpose to winnow the best men, and that's the Devils Occupation. They have a mind to worry Preaching, for I ne'er yet heard of any, but Diligent Preachers that were vex'd with these and the likeDevices,--they wou'd evaporate and Dispirit the power and Vigor of Religion, by drawing it out into solemn, specious Formalities, into Obsolete, Antiquated Ceremonies, new furbish'd up--- A Romanist hath brag'd and congratulated in Print, that the face of our Church begins to alter, the language of our Religion to Change. And Saneta Clara hath publish'd, that if a Synodwere held non intermixtis Puritanis, setting Puritans aside, our Articles and their Religion wou'd soon be agreed. They have so brought it to pass, that under the Name of Puritans, all our Religion is branded, and under a few bard Words among Jesuits all Popery is countenanc'd. Whosoever squares his Actions by any Rule, either Divine or Human, he ' is a Puritan; who foever wou'd be Govern'd by the King's Laws, he is a Puritan. Their great Work, their Master-Piece now is, to make all those of the Religion to be the suspected Party of the Kingdom. If we secure our Religion, we shall cut off and deseat many ! Plots that are now on foot by them and others:

I suppose the true reason why all the Moderate Conformists have still been assaulted when ever the Puritans have been oppress'd, but especially under this Reign, was because they always were united in heart and Affection, and in their most vigorous Endeavors against the Common Enemy of Religion and Liberty; and therefore the one

cou'd

entiægratia, & purioris Cultus desiderio luere viderentur, moribus severis essent, in concionibus vehementes, precibus & piis Officiis prompti, uno verbo, ad centera boni. Hinc Multi Municipes Generosi etiam et Nobiles ipsis patrocinari, cosq, in sinu sovere, tandem una sentire & in Hierarchiam simul Conspirare.

Chap. 1. The Logalty of Presbyterians J 92

Part 2. cou'd not be destroy'd, and the other sase, nor could Popery and Arbitary Power be advanced but upon the Ruines of both: for (says Cike, (d) when King James died (i. e. the first of England) the Nation was rent into four Parties viz. the Prerogative, which extended the King's divided Will from the Laws and Constitutions, above his Royal or Regal Will The Country or Legal Party, which stood for the Legal Establishment both of Church and state, and the Puritan and Popish Party: after the Treaties of Marriage between the brince and Daughters of Spain and France, the Popish and Prerogative Parties joyn for carrying on the Court-Designs: and were opposed by the Country and Puritan Parties.

It being therefore the Design of the Court, of Papists and Highsflyers, as being united in one Interest, to run down the Low-Church and the Dissers, they took various Methods for accomplishing this adangerous end: With respect to the Low-Church, they went to work, two ways. I. They contriv'd ways against the Promotion or Preserment of any of that Party to places either in Church or State. 2. They ... turn'd them out of all Offices they enjoy'd, upon the least Colorable Pretence. The first was easily done, the disposing of Bishopricks and other considerable Offices being in the breast of the Court; and that they did so, is confirmed by the above-mention'd Address of the Commons: and that such places as were at the Disposal of Bishops might not be given to persons opposite to the unhappy Interest of the . then-Court, all persons were put into the highest Ecclesiastical Posts, that might answer the Ends of their Advancement. Land was brought from step to step till he cou'd rise no higher; Manwaring and Montague, tho' confur'd by the Parliament, were preferr'd; and all that Party encourag'd with all possible respect and Power.

The second Essay was more difficult, viz. how to turn them out of what they had, instead of giving them more: but this by Degrees was accomplish'd. Archbishop Abbot, because he wou'd not license Sibthorp's Sermon, such another as Sacheverell's and Manwaring's, was sequestred, confin'd to his house, and disgraced; as in the King's letters . of sequestration, his long Narrative of his own case, with the History relating to it, the reader may see in Rusbworth (e) and the most suf- Part 2. pected persons and greatest Highstyers entrusted with th' Administrat-The Archbishop among many ion of all his Ecclesiastical Offices. Memorable things in that Narrative says, (f) 'I saw what little esteem was made of me in those things which belong'd to my own Occupation; with Bishopricks and Deanries, or other Church-Places, I was no more acquainted, than if I had dwelt at Venice, and understood them but by some Gazette. The Duke of Bucking nam had the managing of those things, as 'twas generally conceiv's: for what was he not fit to determine, in Church or Common-wealth; in Court or Council, in Peace or War; at Land or at Sea, at Home or 'in Foreign Parts: Montague had put out his Arminian Book; I three times complain'd of it, but he was held up against me, and by the Duke magnify'd as a well-deserving-Man. Cosins put out his Treatise, which they commonly call the seven Sacraments, which in the first Edition had many strengthenings, as it seemeth; I knew nothing of it, but as it pleased my Lord of Durham, and the Bishop e of Bath.

relating

To throw out the Inferior Conforming Clergy, of sober Principles, the BOOK OF SPORTS was enjoin'd to be read by them on the Lord's Day, without any Parliamentary Authority; an Act in telf profane and odious, for Disobedience thereunto many sober Conformists were deprived, and thereby Room was made for the Promotion of an High flown Arminian Laudensian Clergy.

And now, that the Party seem'd to have secur'd to themselves the present Possession of Ecclesiastical Benefices, and to have enhanc'd the Supreme Management of Church-Affairs; to confirm all against any necessary Reformations, they impose an Oath in the Convocation 1460. commonly called the et catera-Oath, because they Swore in these Words, 'Nor will I ever give my Consent to alter the Government of this Church by Arch-bishops, Bishops, Deans and Arch-Deacons et catera." wherein that blind et catera startled more of the sober Conformists, whom former Methods cou'd not expel, and produc'd Multitudes of Unanswerable Exceptions against it from Northampton, Kent and Devonshire (g), and from the latter a Petition

Chap: r. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part 2. to the Council, wherein (b) they say, but this Oath striking deepi and Purity and Zeal to the Peace of the Church hath led them hitherto to a Dutiful Conformity, must needs deprive them, if they take not the Oath, ab Officio & Beneficio, and consequently induce a general Ignorance, the Mother only of Popish Devotion.

The Low-Church being thus oppress'd, the violent Persecution. of Dissenters in England can't satisfy Land and his Party; but he throws in a bone of Contention into Scotland, by his new Service-Book, and Canons illegally intruded upon that Church, and countenanc'd with all the Power the Court cou'd employ to second them; and kindled such flames there as ended in Blood and Confusion: Coke justiy observes (i) of Buckingham and him, 'These two stopt up both the King's Ears, from any other Directions in Church or Seare but what was infus'd by them, ---- before a year goes about, you half see Buckingham set the King at Odds with his Parliament, and yet engage him in a War against Spain, and before another goes about, engage the King in another against Pranceand after 13 years, Land shill be the Firebrand to set all the three-

. Nations into the flame of a Givil War, as King James had foretold.

The High-Commission-Court and Star-Chamber, as manag'd in those times, were the powerful Engines of gaining and maintaining the height of Arbitrary-Power to the Landensian Faction, whereby they rais'd themselves upon the Ruins of the Low-Church and Diffenters, molesting them with vexations Courses and Pursuits, as the worthy. Commons observ'd in their above-mention'd Petition: And therefore Mr. Johnston's Observation (k) of K. Char. I. is good, 'The best friends that King had ( says be) and who spilt their Blood for him can't deny, but he had set his heart upon a Laudean Religion, and an English Patriarchate, which we all know wou'd have ended. in Latin, and have been still Ecclessa Anglicana, as it was in all Ages. If there was Open and Notorious Countenance given to Papists agiinst the Advice of all his Parliaments, while the Protestant Interest was perseented abroad, and the Insolencies of Papists encreasing at

(b) Ibid. 1209. (i) Detect. Part t. p. 211. (b) Notes on the Patternly Letter. p. 104.

the most sober of the Protestants, Conformists as well as Dissenters; & raising, advancing and rewarding all those who were of the most High-slown Principles; and managing of all the most important Atsairs of Religion by the Advice of such as contrived, and executed all Methods for accomplishing these Ends, some whereof were known Papists as the great Lord Treasurer Weston, Secretary Windebank with divers others. If, I say, all this be true, (as abundantly appears from the most Authentic Records of the Nation above mention'd surther proving the same) and that this was nor by some single Acts or casual Oversights, but by a constant Uninterrupted Series of Male-Administration from the beginning of this Unfortunate Reign, to the very Commencement of the Civil War; then it necessarily follows, that the Protestant-Religion was in danger of being subverted under his Administration, by the Instence of his evil Counsellors.

I shall next consider the Violation of the Fundamental Liberties and Properties of the Subject under his Reign, and observe the same Method, I did in shewing the danger of Religion; which indeed was effected by trampling on the best Laws that were in being for the Security of Religion, and subjecting 'em, from time to time, to a dispensing-Power, the inseparable Character of Arbitrary-Covernment.

King James's advice to his Son, that he should not break with his Parliaments, was not so prevalent with him as his example, whereby he taught him the contrary Lesson: King Charles (when Prince of Wales) was present in Council when his Father with his own Hand took out of the journal-Book of the House of Commons their Protestation they had made Anno 1621, against his invasions of their undoubted Rights and Priviledges, See the Protestation it self, and the Declaration relating to it. [1] Upon his Accession to the Throne, the Principles of Government he had early imbib'd, were at early and constantly exerted.

His very first Barliament complains of mispending the public Treasure, and of his neglect of Guarding the Seas, [m] and the in their first Session they had granted him Subsidies, and were a little encouraged by his answer to their Petition about Religion in the Second yet in the Cc 2

Part 2. third they wou'd grant no more Subsidies tho' earnestly Press'd for by him, until their Grievances were redress'd; and therefore he dissolv'd them (n). Immediately after their Dissolution, he issueth out his Letters for Levying Money off the Subject by way of Loan (0) and Summons a new Parliament to meet in February. The Commons begin upon Grievances, viz. the Miscarriage of the Fleet to Cadiz; the evil Counsellers about the King, and Misgovernment and Misemployment of the King's Revenue (p). Tunnage and Poundage, and the other Impositions without Authority of Parliament, are question'd. He presfeth for their speedy Resolution of giving him Subsidies, urging his great Necessities to which they Answer, begging him to accept of the faithful and necessary Information of his Parliament in discovering the Causes, and proposing the Remedies of those great evils which occasion'd his Majesty's wants, and his People's Grief. (9) And in assurance of the Redress of their Grievances, promise to supply him. He gives this return. I must let you know (Jays be) that I will not allow any of my Servants TO BE QLIESTION'D AMONGST YOU, much less such as are of eminent Place . and near to me ____ I see you specially aim at the Duke of Buckingbam, I wonder what hath so alter'd your Affections towards him ---- I assure you he hath not medled nor done any thing concerning the public or Common-wealth, but by special Directions and Appointment, and as my servant (1d. Ibid.), The House not affrighted out of their Privileges by this Speech, proceeds and lays all their Grievances upon the Duke's evil Counsel, upon which the King calls up the Commons to the Lords-House and tells 'em, he was come to show them their Errors and their Unparliamentary Proceedings; and the Lord Keeper (by his Majesty's Command) entertains them with a long and bitter Invective, Impeaching their whole Procedure; vindicating the Duke in every thing; and with respect to their Searching into his Conduct, says, 'It is therefore his Majesty's EXPRESS and FINAL Commandment, that you yield Obedience unto these Directions which you have formerly receiv'd, and cease this Unpar-6 liamentary Inquisition, and commit unto his Majesty's Care, and Wildom and Justice, the future Reformation of those things, which you.

you suppose to be otherwise than they shou'd be' (r) His Speech concludes with a sharp Reprimand to them for their Scanty Supply, and their not dispatching it before the Redress of Grievances, threatning they shou'd sit no longer, if they did not enlarge it. The King not content with what my Lord-Keeper had said, tells'em himself (f)

Remember that PAK LIAMENTS ARE ALTOGETHER IN MY

POWER, for their Calling, Sitting, Dissolution; therefore as I find the fruits of them good or evil, they are to continue or not to be:

And remember, that if in this time, instead of mending your Ererors, by delay you persist in your Errors, you make them greater and irreconcileable.

In Answer to the King's and Ld Keeper's Speeches, the Commons prepared an humble Remonstrance, wherein they assert their Proceedings to be grounded upon the Laws of the Kingdom and Parliamentary Precedents, and particularly concerning Buckingham they say (t) Now concerning your Majesty's Servants and namely the Duke of Buckingham; we humbly beseech your Majesty to be inform'd by us vour faithful Commons, who can have no private end, but your * Majesty's Service and the good of our Country, That it hath been the Antient Constant and Undoubted Right & Usage of Parliaments to question and complain of all Persons of what Degree soever, found Grievous to the Common-wealth, in abusing the Power and Trust committed to them by their Sovereign: A Course approved not only by the examples in your Father's days of famous Memory, but by frequent Frecedents in the best and most Glorious Reigns of your noble Progenitors, appearing both in Records and Histories; without which Liberty in Parliament, no private Men, no servant to a King, perhaps no Counsellor, without exposing himself to the hazard of great Enmity and Prejudice, can be a Means to call great Officers in question for their Misdemeanors, but the Common Wealth Might Languish Under Their Pressures, Without Redress.

The Commons Impeach the Duke in 13 Articles, of heinous Crimes.

1. Of engrossing so many great Offices, impossible for one man to discharge faithfully.

2. Of buying the Office of Great Admiral,

con-

(x) Id. Ibid. p. 223. (f) H. Ibid. p. 225. (t) Id. Ibid. p. 245.

• •

Part 2. contrary to Law. 3. Of buying the Offices of Lord-Warden of the Cinque-Ports and Constable of the Castle of Dover. 4. Of neglecting to guard the seas, to the decay of Trade and Ruin of the Nation. Of seizing the Ship Stephen of New-Haven worth 40000 pounds unjustly, and detaining it for his own use. 6. Of oppressing the East-India Merchants, to the Ruine of Trade. 7. Of putting treacheroully the Vanguard Ship under the Command of Captain Pennington. and fix English Merchant-Ships, under the Power of the French King. 8. Of his knowing that the aforesald Ships were to be employ'd by the French King against the Protestants of Rochell, to the scandal of Religion, and Dishonor of K. Charles, and the Nation. 9: Of his difpoling of Fitles of Honor to perions unworthy of 'em, and forcing others to buy them against their Will. 10. Of Receiving a Bribe of 20000 pound for procuring the Lord Treasurer's Place, beside other Bribes mention'd in the said Articles. 11. Of procuring many Titles of Honor to his near Kindred, with Penfions of great value from the Crown to support them, to the burthen of the Public, and Discouragement of the Nobility. 12. Of embezzeling and engrosting the King's Mony and Lands, to the impoverishing the Public Treadury and Confusion and danger of the Kingdom. 13. Of his Administring to King James a Plaister and Potion contrary to the Advice of his sworn Physicians, not composed by (or with the knowledge of) any of his sworn Apothecarys, in his last sickness, whereof he died. It would make any true English heart bleed, to consider the Uparallell'd and insupportable Oppression of the Subject occasion'd by this mighty Favorite, and proved against him with so much Solidity, Learning & Shining Evidence, by those worthy Patriots who were the Managers of those Articles. (").

Sr Dudley Diggs Iraving made the Prologue, and Sr John Elliot the Epilogue to the impeachment of the Duke; they were both by the King's Command committed to the Tower. And the King himself speaks again to the Lords in behalf of the Duke, and to approve his Innocency, as touching the Matters against him, I my self can be a Witness nonstrance against the Duke, and Tunnage and Poundage as illegal; and that very day 'twas finish'd, the Parliament is dissolved, tho' the tords had prepared a Petition advising the contrary as necessary Part 2 for preventing great and Apparent Dangers at home and abroad, and for making him happy in the Duty and love of his People, the greatest safety and Treasury of a King. (w)

In that intended Remonstrance, the Commons set forth, the Court's unjust Opposition to the former Parliament, the Dissolution. of it, when they were about to redress Grievances brought on by the Duke's evil Counsel, and his Intrigue for keeping some of the noted Commons from being elected as Members of the present Parliament, by making them Sheriffs. In this present Parliament they observe the many Interruptions they met with by messages. from his Majesty, which hindred them from Prosecuting the Duke according to Law: the infringing of their Priviledges in the Imprisonment of their Members: the Duke's Arrogance in procuring a factious Party to electhim Chancellor of the University of Oxford, while he stood impeached of the above Crimes; his Majesty's Message, that if he had not a timely Supply, he would betake himself to new Counsels, which they feared wou'd be bad; because from the beginning of his Reign, he levied the Subadies of Tunnage and Poundage without Authority of Parliament, which they declare to be against the Constant uje of former Times, the known Right and Liberty of the Subject, and the settled Laws of the Kingdom; And that any who shall give such new Counsel, as to levy any Tax contrary to law, are Pests and Capital Enemies to the King & Commonwealth, to be rewarded with the highest Punish. ment the Laws inflict on any Offenders. They conclude, complaining that their humble and hearty 'Endeavors were misinterpreted, hindred and now at last almost frustrate utterly, by the interposition of the Excessive & Abusive Power of one Man, expressing their infinite Grief, that he shou'd have so great a Power and Interest in his Princely "Affections, praying, that his Majesty wou'd not ballance this one man with all these things, and with the Affairs of the Christian World, which do all suffer so far as they have Relation to this Kingdom, chiefly by his Means.

Let the Reader judge whether Coke had not reason to say (x), so much easier is it in such a Reign for a Favorite to ruine a Nation, than for a Nation to have Justice against a Favorite. The King publish'd a

. . .

De-

Part 2. Declaration of his Reasons for Dissolving the Parliament, wherein he throws all the possible Odium he cou'd against that Honor able house of Commens, who had with so much bravery and bonesty afferted the Liberties of their Country. Soon after, he falls upon the Loan and other illegal Taxes remonstrated against: (y) publishing a Declaration, and instructing Commissioners for levying them (2). gives a Commission for trying soldiers and others according to the Martial Law, in time of Peace; (Ibid.) and some time after, having entred into War with France, heaps new favors on Buckingham, making him Admiral and General of all the Fleet and Forces for that Expedition: and (a) Imprisons many worthy Gentlemen for refusing the Loan (b)

> A new Parliament met March 17th, 1627. of whom Coke gives this Character. ' Neither Rome nor Athens cou'd ever glory in such an Assembly as the Commons of this Parliament were, for their vertue and Learning: nor any Age produce such a number of men of the ! like Integrity to their Country, and humble Obedience to their Prince?. They begin with the Grievances of billeting Soldiers, loans by Benevolence and Privy Seal, Imprisonment of the Retusers; whereupon there were such Speaches made as will ever be admir'd by all those who are not fond of Absolute Slavery. (c). They present to the King their Petition against his illegal way of billeting Soldiers, which Practice they complain of as contrary 'to the fundamental Laws of the Realm & an apparent violation of the antient & undoubted Right of all his Majefty's- -- loyal Subjects to the exceeding great Disservice of his Majesty, the general Terror of all, and utter undoing of many of his people (d).

> The Celebrated Petition of Right, another Magna Charta of England, was fram'd by the Commons, concluded by both Houses of this Noble Parliament, and confirm'd by the King himself in common Form, soit droit fait comme il est desire, in which Petition there is a Narrative of the BREACH OF THE FUNDAMENTAL LAWS of the Kingdom, and Invasions of Liberty, and Property Which occasion'd it.

It runs thus (e)

10

(y) Id. Ibid. p. 415. (7) p. 418, 419. (a) Id. Ibid. p. 425. (b) Ibid. p. 428. (c) id. ibid. p. 499, &c. (d) 1d. p. 542. (e) 1d. Ibid. p. 588.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty. Part 2.

I I Umbly show unto our Sovereign Lord the King, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons in Parliament of sembled. That whereas it is declar'd and enacted by a Statute made in the time of the Reign of King Edward the first, commonly called, Statutum de Tallagio non concedendo, that no Tallage or Aid shall be laid or levied by the King or his Heirs in this Realm, without the good will and affent of the Arch-bishops, Bishops, Earls, Barons, Knights, Burgesses, and other the Freemen and Commonality of this Realm: And by Authority of Parliament holden in the 25th Year of the Reign of King Edward 3. it is declar'd and enacted, that from thenceforth no person shall be compell'd to make any Loans to the King against his Will, because such Loans were against Reason, & the Franchise of the Land; & by other Laws of this Realm it is provided, That none shou'd be charg'd by any Charge or Imposition, call'd a Benevolence, nor by such like Charge, by which Statutes before mention'd, and other the good Laws and Statutes of this Realm, your Subjects have inherited this Freedom, That they shou'd not be compell'd to contribute to any Tax, Tallage, Aid, or other like Charge, not set by common Consent in Parliament.

Yet Nevertheless, of late, divers Commissions directed to sundary Commissioners in several Counties with Instructions have issued, by means whereof your People have been in divers places assembled, and required to lend certain Sums of Mony unto your Majesty, and many of them upon their Rejusal so to do, have had an Oath administred unto them, not warrantable by the Laws and Statutes of this Realm, and have been constrained to become bound to make Appearance and give Attendance before your Privy Council, and in other places, and others of them have been therefore imprisoned confined, and sundry other ways molested and disquieted: And divers other Charges have been laid and levied upon your People in several Counties, by Lords Leiutenants, Deputy Lieutenants, Commissioners for Musters, Justices of Peace, and others by command or Direction from your Majesty or your Privy-Council, and gainst the Laws and Free Customs of this Realm.

Part 2. All which they most humbly Pray of your most Excellent Majesty, as their RIGHTS and LIBERTIES ACCORDING TO THE LAWS and Statutes of this Realm; And that your Majesty would also vouchsafe to declare, That the Awards, Doings and Proceedings to the Prejudice of your People, in any of the Premisses, 's shall not be drawn hereafter into Consequence or Example: And that your Majesty wou'd be also Graciously pleas'd for the further 6 Comfort and Safety of your People, to declare your Royal Will and Pleasure, That in the things aforesaid all your Officers and Ministers shall serve you, according to the Laws and Statutes of this Realm, as they Tender the Honor of your Majesty, and the Pros-berity of this Kingdom.

Before the above Petition pass'd the House of Lords, the Duke and his Party who did all they cou'd to stop it, or make it inessectual, prevail'd upon them to move the Addition of a Clause call'd a Saving' in those Words. We humbly present this Petition to your Majesty, not only with a care for Preservation of our Liberties, but with a due regard to leave entire that Sovereign Power wherewith your "M.jesty is Trusted, for the Protection, Safety, and Happiness of your People'. Which Clause the Commons wou'd by no means consent to have inserted, and having in their Conference with the Lords, given fuch Arguments against it from Law and Reason, as intirely satisfy'd their Lordships, 'twas in the above Form concluded, and made the joint Deed and Ast of King, Lords and Commons. therefore 'tis most plain that the FUNDAMENFAL LIBERTIES' and PROPERTIES of the Subject were, to the imminent danger of the People's ruin, violated under this King's Administration. wou'd have thought that ever this Prince, after such a Petition affented to by him in so solemn a manner, wou'd have suffer'd his evil Counsellors to prevail upon him to continue those Invasious he had made upon the Vital Liberties of the Nation, and far less to encrease the lame.

. I he Commons supposing the King's Judgment to be set straight By the Petition of Right, fell next upon the Unhappy Instruments that had abus'd his Royal Power, that the like might be prevented for the future; for the best Laws in the World are but a Paper-Security without the Examplary Punishment of those Ministers of Sinte, and Incendiaries who trample upon them. The King acquaints them, he' was soon to put an end to that Session; whereupon they impeach Part 2. Dr. Manwaring for his Sermon he preach'd for the loan, and for all the other illegal Practices of the Court, against the Fundamental Constitution of Parliaments, and the Liberties of the Nation: the Lords find him guilty, and pronounce a smart Sentence against him; (f) another proof of the Nations sense of their Grievances. under that Government.

While the Commons are proceeding in their Enquiries (or lest they shou'd do so) into the other Causes of their Milery, the King in his accustomed manner in such Cases, sends them a Messige 'requiring them that they enter not into, or proceed with any new business, which may spend greater time, or which may lay any 's scandal or Aspersion upon the State-Government or Ministersthereof.' This unexpected Treatment, after the Petition of Right, furpi iz'd 'em; upon which after long Ressoning, they agreed on a full Remonstrance of the State of the Kingdom, and the Caules of its Miteries both in Rel gion (of which before) and Liberty; Wherein they express their fears of Innovation and Change of Government: as well as Religion, and tho' comforted with the Petition of Right, yet repeat many things contain'd in it, reinforcing it with new Arguments: they take notice of his Order under the Privy-Seal for keeping German Horse, and the great Sums of Mony paid for that end, and his Commission under the Great-Seal, for raising of Mony by Impositions; the dangerous Consequences and Tendencies thereof they fully represent; They further observe the often Breaches of Parliaments, whereby he has been deprived of the faithful Counsel and. free aids of his People; his taking of Tunnage and Poundage without act: of Parliament; ever since the beginning of this Reign to that Present, the standing Commission to Buckingham to be General of an Army in time of Peace, discharging of faithful and sufficient Officers; the ill Success of all. his late Designs and Actions, particularly at Cales, the Isle of Rhee, &. Rochel to the extreme waste of the honor, blood and Treasure of the Nation, the Weakness of the Forts at home, being ill provided in animu :ition, the Decay of Trade, loss of Shipping and Mariners, and growing Poverty of the Kingdom; all which Miseries and Mischiefs they fix upon the:

the evil Council of the Duke of Buckingham and his Party, and there-Part 2. the evil Council of the Duke of Browning for the King sent an Orfore pray he may be laid aside (g). Soon after, the King sent an Order to the Star-Chamber, that the Information Exhibited to that court against the Duke for divers great Offences, (for that his Majesty was fully satisfy'd of the Innocency of the Duke) be taken off the file, that no Memory thereof remain on record against him, which may tend to his

Disgrace [Id. Ib.]

The Commons proceed upon the Bill for Tunnage and Poundage,& resolving to draw it accurately, they cou'd not do it in the time allow'd by the King for their sitting, and therefore drew up a Petition to him, shewing him the Causes of their Delay; and lest he shou'd claim it without their Consent, as he had done all along, they remonstrate in these Words, 'That there ought not any Imposition to be laid upon the Goods of Merchants, exported or imported, without common Consent by Act of Parliament, which is the Right & Inheritance of your Subjects founded not only upon the MOST ANCIENT and ORIGINAL CONSTITUTION of this Kingdom, but often Confirm'd and declar'd in divers Statute Laws; that the Receiving of Tunnage and Poundage, and other Impositions not granted by Parliament, is a Breach of the Fundamental Liberties of this Kingdom, and contrary to your Majesty's Royal answer to the faid Petition of Right (b).

The King understanding this Remonstrance was a coming to him. fends for the Commons to the House of Lords, and ends this Sellion of Parliament, with a famous Speech, respecting their former Remonstrance, which he said no wife man cou'd justify, takes notice of their new-intended Remonstrance, and openly declar'd in these words,

. Those things which have been done, whereby many have had some cause to expect the Liberties of the Subjects to be trench'd upon which indeed was the first and true ground of the Petition (i. e. the , Petition of Right) shall not hereafter be drawn into example for your Prejudice, and from time to time, in the Word of a King, ye , shall not have the like Cause to complain. But as for Tunnage and

. Poundage, it is a thing I cannot want, and was never intended by you to ask, nor meant by me, I am sure to grant (i) ' Whether he he kept his Royal Word given here, will appear from what follows. And whether his claiming Tunnage and Poundage, was not against the Petition of Right, and Fundamental Liberties of the Subject, will appear by comparing it with that Clause. That no man hereaster be compelled to make or yield any Gist, Loan, Benevolence, Tax, or such like Charge, without common Consent by Act of Parliament? But Tunnage and Poundage was a Tax and Charge imposed without Act of Parliament; and therefore was against the Petition of Right.

Between this and the next Session of Parliament which met Jan: 20th, The Duke is kill'd, and Laud brought into the Highest favor. Manwaring, declar'd by sentence of the Lords in the last Session uncapable of suture Ecclesiastical Preserments in the Church of England, for his Preaching up Arbitrary Government and Slavery, is pardon'd and preserr'd, and Montague, (question'd on the same account) made a Bishop, and the Merchants Goods seiz'd for Tunnage.

and Poundage.

When the Parliament met, they consider'd the violation of the Liberties of the People, fince the end of the last Session, even contrary to the Petition of Right, some having been since that time committed, and a Command sent to the Sheriff, not to execute a Replevin, when Mens goods and Merchandizes have been taken away, and it was instanc'd in the Case of Mr Rolls a Merchant, and known to be a Member of the House, to whom it was said, by some of the Officers of the Custom House, if all the Parliament were in you, we won'd take your Goods (k). For clearing the Customers and hindring men from being brought to censure in Parliament, the King makes an Order in Council Febr. 22. wherein he declares that what was formerly done by his Farmers and Officers of the Customs, was done by his own Direction and Commandment—; and therefore cou'd not in this sever the Act of his Officers from his own Act, neither cou'd his Officers suffer for it, without High Dishoner to his Majesty; the Substance of which Declaration he sends in a Message to the Commons(1) who after debase thereupon, being ready for a vote mov'd the speaker to put the Part 2. the Question; but he refus'd to do it, and said he was otherwise commanded from the King, whereupon they adjourn to Febr. 25, & from thence by the King's Command to March 2d; at which time they urge the Speaker again, to put the Question; & he reply'd, I have a commandfrom the King to adjourn till March 10th. & put no Question It was no great wonder that the House was disoblig'd by such a palpable invasion of the fundamental Constitution of Parliament; and therefore the Commons (foreseeing a Dissolution) made a Protestation, the first part whereof concerning Religion is already cited p. 184 and the other two Conclusions are viz. 2 whosoever shall counsel or advise the taking and Levying of the Subsidies of Tunnage and Poundage notbeing granted by Parliament, or shall be an actor or Inftrument therein, shall be likewise reputed an Innovator in the 4 Government and a Capital Enemy to the Kingdom and Commonwealth.

3. If any Merchant or Person whatsoever shall Voluntarily yield or pay the said Subsidies of Tunnage and Poundage, not being granted by Parliament, he shall like wise be reputed a betrayer of the Liberties of England and Enemy to the same (m)? Next Day Warrants were directed from the Council to Denzil Holles Esq; Sr. Miles Hobert, Sir John Elliot, Sir Peter Hayman, John Selden Eiq; Will. Coriton, Walt. Long, Will. Strowd, and Benj. Valantine, commanding their Personal Appearance on the Morrow. At which time Mr. Holles, Sir John Elliot, Mr. Coriton, Mr. Valantine appearing, and refusing to Answer out of Parliament what was said and done in Parliament, were committed close Prisoners to the Tower, and Warrants were given, the Parliament being still in being, for the Sealing up of the Studies of Mr. Holles, Mr. Selden, and Sir Gohn Elliot, Mr. Long and Mr. Stroud not then, nor of some time after appearing, a Proclamation issu'd out for the Apprehending of them (n).

March 10th, The King dissolves the Parliament, the Cause whereof he says in his Speech was meerly the Undutiful and Seditious Carriage in the Lower-House, afferting that there were some Vipers among them, that did cast this Mist of Undutifulness over most of their Eyes, whom be threetneth with Punishmant. (e) And accordingly those worthy Part 2. Patriots and Afferters of the violated Liberties of their Country. (Vipers in the King's Eyes) after an illegal Imprisonment are miserably harass'd and unjustly Sentenc'd, fin'd in Exorbitant Sums, and imprifon'd till they shou'd make submission and acknowledge their Offince (p)

When such illegal and Arbitrary Courses destructive of the Foundatione of Liberry and Property were taken, during the Sitting of Parliaments, and in their short intervals, what must we expect to hear of in the long interval between the Parliament Dissolv'd March 10th, 1628, and that call'd Apr. 13th 1640: During which time, there were no Powers to controul his Judges, challenge his evil Counsellors, supply the King with saithful Counsel, or to correct the growing Disorders of his Reign. Among the many Additions to former Grievances, that of Ship-Money became one of the chief, not only for its being so evidently against Magna Charta, the Petition of Right, and Fundamental Liberties of the Subject, but because of its being so poservely and universally enjoin'd by the King's Writs often repeated. Confirm'd by the Opinions of his Corrupted Judges, enforc'd with the severest Penalties of Imprisonment and Prosecution against the Refusers, and particularly in the noted Gase of Mr. Hambden; the whole Arguments us'd in his Case, which souch the Merits of the whole Cause Pro and Con, the Reader may Peruse at large in Rushworth's Appendix to his Second Part.

The hearts of all good Subjects and Free-Men were rais'd with joyful expectations from this Parliament, hoping their Grievances wou'd be redress'd; and the Speaker of the House of Commons (Serjeant Glerviles in his first Speech to the King upon his Approbation of him, boidly acquaints him, 'That if hy the Subtilty of Musinsormers, by the specieus talse precences of public Good, by cunning and close Contriwence of their ways to senuce, the facred Royal Person shall at any. time be artumuented or surprix'd or overwrought of drawn to command things constrary to Law, and that the same be done accordingby: These Commands will be void, and the King innocent in his very Person, being desended by the Prorogative: Nevertheless the Authors

Part 2. thors in such Missinformations, and Actors in these abuses will stand liable, and expos'd to strict Examination and just Censure; having nothing to defend themselves but the color of a void Command, made by void by just Prerogative, and by the Fundamental and true Reasons of State and Monarchy: And what Difference is there, or can be in Law, between a void Command and no Command at all." (9) The House proceeds upon this Principle, Orders the Proceedings against Sir John Elliot, Mr. Hollis, and the other Imprison'd Members of the Parliament (3 and 4 Caroli) to be sent for, the Carriage of Sir John Finch Speaker of that Parliament' to be examin'd, all the Grievances mention'd in many Petitions from Counties and Boroughs to be Stated, and the Records in the Case of Ship-Money concerning Mr. Hambden, to be brought into the House, (r) Upon Report, the House Voted Finch's Carriage in not obeying the House, and his adjourning the House by the King's Command, to be a Breach of Privilege. The Grand Committee for Grievances, presents Ship-Money as a Grievance ( Ibid. ) And afterwards the Commons resolv'd on these particulars following, as Heads for a Conference to be had with the Lords, 1. Concerning Innovations in Matters of Religion, 2. Liberty and Property. 3. Privilege of Parliament'. The first Head I omit here, having taken some Notice of it before, the other two are as follows. '2. As to Property of Goods. Resolv'd, that one Head of this Conference, shall be the Complaints which have been made by the Petitions from the several Counties, touching the Multitude of Monopolies and Restraint of Trade, also the Complaints which have been " made by feveral Petitions from the Counties, touching the Grievances of Ship-Money.

The Complaints which have been made by several Petitions from the Counties, of enlarging the Bounds of Forest's beyond what they have been for some hundreds of Years last past, concerning Military Charges. viz. Coat & Conduct-mony, Wages and Arms, taken from the owners, forceing the Country to buy and provide at their Charges, horses and Carts by way of Tax—concerning the denyal of Justice in the Courts of Westminster, to the Subjects Prejudice in Point of the Property of their Goods. The frequent Imprisonments and Vexation for Non-payment of Unwarrantable Tax- Part. 2. es, and for not submitting to unlawful Monopolies. Thirdly, as to the Liberties and Privilege of Parliament, resolv'd, that one head shall be the Complaints that have been made touching the punishing of men out of Parliament, for things done in Parliament, in breach of the Privileges of Parliament (1).

While the House is a Canvassing those Grievances, the King interrupts them with Messages about the present urgent Necessity of Supplies, and that it must be preferr'd to Grievances, which was the old Cant of his Ministry in every Parliament; but such was their feeling sense of the distracted and Miserable Condition of the Nation, that they wou'd not enter upon-Supplies, till their Grievances shou'd be first consider'd, and thereby sufficiently express'd their belief of what one of their Members (1) said in to the house:

The Commonwealth (says he) hath been MISERABLY TORN AND MASSACRED, and all Property and Liberty shaken, the 4 CHURCH DISTRACTED, the Gospel and Professors of it pere secuted, and the whole Nation overrun with swarms of projectsing Canker-Worms, and Caterpillars, the worst of all the Egyptian Plagues—-all that I shall say to it are bur the Words that Ezra " us'd to King Artaxerxes of the Settlement of that State --- that which cur'd theirs I hope will cure ours: his Words are these, who-Goever hath not done the Laws of God, and the King, let Judgment be speedily executed upon him, whether it be unto Banishment, or to Confiscation of Goads, or to Imprisonment, --- we can't complain we want good Laws---there want only some Examples that such as have been the Authors and Causes of all our Miseries and Distra-4 ctions in Church and Commonwealth contrary to these good Laws e might be Treacle to expel the poison of Mischief out of others(n) The King rather than let the Grievances be redressed in a Parliamentary way, dissolves the Parliament, imprisons some of the Members, purfues the Ship-mony, renews the Loan, and gets Subfidies from the Convocation, when the Parliament had refus'd 'em.

While affairs stood thus, Divers Noble Lords, and likewise the whole City of London petition'd the King for calling a new Parliament,

Part 2, ment, seating forth in those Petitions their great Grievances, oa. the account of Innovations in Matters of Religion; the Outh, Canons, and Benevalence imposit by the late Camposation, the encrease of Purpery, and employing Papills in Places of Trust Civil and Military contrary to Law; their fears of bringing in his forces upon 'em. the illegality of Ship-Mony and other Taxes then impos'd; and the Intermission and Dissolution of Parliaments without the Redress of: Grievances (m.). And on November 3. 1640, the Long Parliament. met

Before the King's leaving of his Parliament and the Commence. ment of the Civil War, there was at measurapled Harmony and Unanimity in the Judgment of the a Houses concerning the Main Grievancus complain'd of by the Nation, as appears by the following Votes.

By the Hause of Commons.

Besolved, Nemine Contradicanta,

That the Charge Imposed upon all the Subjects for the providing and furnishing of Ships and the Assessments for raising of Money, for that purpose called the Ship-Money, were against the Laws of the Realm, the Subjects Right of Property, and contrary to former Resoluions in Parliament, and to the Perition of right.

2. That the Extrajudicial Opinions of the Judges published in the Star-Chamber and involl'd in the Courts at Westwenster in bec everba&c. in the whole and in every part of them, are against the Laws of the Realm, the Right of Property and the Laberry of the Sub-' jests, and contrary to former Resolutions in Parliament, and to the Petition of Right.

. 4

3. That the Writ following in bec verbacke, and the other Writs commonly called the Ship-write are against the Laws of the Resim, the Right of Property, and the Liberty of the Subjects, and contrary to former Resolutions in Parliament, and to the Position of "Right.' In their 4th Resolution they condemn'd the Judgment against Mr. Hambden as illegal...

The Lords reduc'd the whole Substance of these 4. Votes into three and agreed with the Judgment of the Commons nomine Contradisme; and accordingly order'd. Warates and Concellations to be made of the

Re-

Under King Charles I. Chap I.

Resolutions of the Judges touching the Shipping-Mony, and of the Part 2. ' Emoluments thereof in the several Courts, and of the Warrants for Ship-Writs, and Proceedings therein; and the Judgment giv. en agginst Mr. Hampden, and Procedings thereupon; and that Entries be made of these Vacates upon the several Rolls, according to the Form read in the House (x).

Now is it not strange, nay morally impossible to be true, that if the Court had been wrong'd by theseVotes in matters that concern'd the Fundamental Laws of the Kingdom, the King being present, and at a time, when there was no Hosfility between him and his People, there shou'd not be one Member in either House to give a single Negative to these Votes, for a Testimony to the Pretended Prerogative of the Prince; but on the contrary, that those Members who stuck closest to the King's side in the War, did with as much life and Convincing Reason as any others in the Parliament represent the dreadful and dangerous Condition of the Nation in their Speeches, made sometimes in the House of Commons, and at other times to the Lords, in Conserences with them, or Impeachments made at their Bar: of which I have (for the Reader's satisfaction) transcrib'd the following Passages.

Mr. Edward Hide afterwards Earl of Clarendon (y) My Lords I. am commanded by the Commons to present to your Lordships a great and crying Grievance—by the Consequence of it, the Grievance of the whole Kingdom. The Court of the President of the North, or as it is more usually call'd, the Courts of Tarkhath so prodigiously broken down the Banks of the first Channel in which it ran, as it hath almost overwhelm'd that Country under the Sea of Arbitrary Pewer, and involv'd the People in a Labyrinth of Distanper, Oppression and Poverty. My Lord of Strafford came to that Government in December 4 Caroli; & since, the Commission bath been three several times receiv'd. But unto that Commission of the 8 and 13 Years of the King's Reign, a new Clause was inserted for the Granting, Sequestring and establishing Possessions according to Instructions, which crowdedin a Mass of new Exorbitant and Intolerable:

Part 2. lerable Power; our Complaint is against this Commission it self, and against the whole Body of these Instructions: The Ninth Instruction requires an Obedience to such Ordinances and Determinations as be or shall be made by the Council-Table, or High-Commission-Court. A Grievance of so Transcendent a Nature, That your Lordships noble Justice will provide a Remedy for it, with no less care than you wou'd RESCUE THE LIFE AND BLOOD OF THE * COMMON-WEALTH. There are among them in the whole 58 Instructions, scarce one that is not against or besides the Law.

(z) 'Mr speaker, the County of Dorset have entrusted their Complaints—inashort Memorial of the Heads of them, which was read in the hearing of the Freeholders then present, who all with one voice signify'd upon each particular .-- their desire, that we shou'd represent them,——and these they are. 1. The great and Intelerable Burthen of Ship mony _____ 2. The many great Abuses in pressing Soldiers and raising Monies—3. The multitude of Monopolies. 4. The new Canon, and the Oath to be taken by Lawyers, Divines &c. 5. The Oath requir'd to be taken by Church-Officers to present according to Articles new and unusual: Besides this, there was presented to us by a very considerable part of the Clergy of that County, a Note containing two particulars.

The Imposition of a new Oath—which they conceive to be ' illegal, and such as they cannot take with a good Conscience. 2. The e requiring of a Pretended Benevolence, but in Effect a Subsidy, under the Penalty of Suspension, Excommunication and Deprivation, ALL * BENEFIT OF APPEAL FXCLUDED.

6 (a) Mr. Speaker, I have in Charge to present the Grievances of Kent. 1. The great Increase of Papists, by the rem is Execution of the Laws—2. The introducing and countenancing of divers new Ceremonies in Religion -- 3. A great Grievance by the Military Charges. 1. Of Coat and Conduct. Mony. 2. The inhancing the Price of Gunpowder _____3. A thouland of our best arms were taken from the owners and sent into Scotland: the Compulsory way was this, if you will not send your Arms you shall go your selves:

<sup>(2)</sup> Lord Digby with the King at Oxford. p. 1337. (a) Sir Fobn Culpeper after; wards with the King at Oxford. p. 1338.

The next Grievance is the Canons—the oath et catera, made Part 2. by a Convocation that ended with the Parliament, yet afterwards the same men without any new Election were Shuffled into a Sae cred Synod, and Without Parliament assum'd to themselves Power to make Laws, to grant Benevolence and to meddle with our freehold [b]. The next is Shipmony, it cries aloud, it strikes the first-born ot every Family, I mean our liberitance. If the Laws give the King Power in any danger of the Kingdom whereof he is Judge, ' to impose what and when he please, we owe all that is lest to the Goodness of the King. There is one Grievance more, but 'it Comprize th many, it is a Nest of Wasps or Swarm of Ver-• mine, which have overcrept the Lind. I mean the Monopolies & · Pollers of the People: These like the Frogs of Egypt have gotten. · Pessession of our Dwellings; they sup in our Cup, they dup in our * Dish, they sit by our fire, we find them in the Wash-house, and owdering-Tub, they share with the Buttler in his Box; they have mark'd and seal'd us from Head to foot, they will not abate us a Pin; Thele are the Leeches that have such'd the Commonwealth, fo hard, that it is almost become Hectical.

heard, how these Sons of the Law have torn out the Bowels of their Mother. This Imposition of Shipmony springing from a pretended necessity—they entail upon the State for ever, at once making Necessity inherent to the Crown, and Slavery to the Subject—certainly there is no Privilege more properly belongs to a Parliament than to open the Purse of a Subject, and yet these Judges—have not only assumed this Privilege of Parliament, but presum'd at once to make a present to the Crown of all that either your Lordships or the Lommons of England do or shall bereaster Posses.

(d) Mr. Speaker, The Constitution of this Commonwealth hath establish'd, or rather endeavor'd to establish to us the Security of our Goods, and the Security of these Laws which wou'd secure us,

and

[b] I'm perfuaded that neither Puritan nor Presbyterian Assembly ever did the like of this. [c] Mr. Waller afterwards sentenced to death for adhering to K. Cher. 1. p. 1339. (d) Lord Faulbland afterwards with the King at Oxford. Printed Collection of Speeches &c. p. 337, &c.

Part 2. and our Goods; by appointing for us Judges, so settled, so Swore, that there can be no Oppression, but they of necessity must be Accessary: since if they neither deny nor delay us Justice, which noither for the Great nor the little Seal, they ought to do, the greatest Person in this Kingdom cannot continue the least Violence upon the Meanest. But this Security, Mr. Speaker, hath been almost our Ruine; for it hath been turn'd, or rather turned it self into a Battery against us: And those Persons who shou'd have been as Dogs to desend the Sheep, have been as Wolves to worry them - The Cause of all our Miseries we have suffer'd, and the Cause of all our jealousies we have had, that we shou'd yet suffer, is, that a most Excellent Prince hath been most infinitely abus'd by his Judges, telling him that by Policy he might do what he pleas'd. - And since in procuring of those Laws, upon which those Men have trampled, our Ancestors have shown their utmost Care and Wisdom, for our onaffected Security, Words having done nothing, and yet having done all that Words can do, we must now be forc'd to think of Abolishing our Grievances, and of taking away this Judgment, and these Judges together, and of regulating their Successors by their Exemplary Punishment — Among these there is one that I must not loose in the Croud - who not only gave away with his breath what our Ancestors had Purchas'd for us by so large an Expence of their time, their Care, their Treasure, and their Blood ----but strove to root up those Liberties --- And to make our Grievances Immortal, and our Slavery Irreparable, lest any Part of our Posterity might want occasion to curse him- It is my Lord-Keeper for my part, I think no Man secure, whilst all our Estates are in his Breast, who hath sacrific'd his Country to his Ambition, whilst he who hath prostrated his own Conscience, bath the keeping of the King's, and he who hath undone us already by "Wholesale, hath a Power left in him by Retail.

(e) Mr. Speaker, when I look upon the Body of this good and flourishing Kingdom in matters of Religion and of our Laws (for tike Hippocrates Twins they Live and Die together) I say when I behold these in that State and Plight, as they have been represented to us, flere magis libet quam dicere. But this is our Comfort, that we Part 2. are all met together, for the Welfare and Happiness of Prince and People. And who knows whether this may not be the appointed time, wherein God will restore our Religion as at the first, and our Laws as at the beginning — To make People rich they must have Ease and Justice; Ease in their Consciences from the Bane of Superstition, from the intolerable Burthen of Innovation in Religion, and from the Racks & Tortures of Strange and New-fangled Oaths. They must be eas'd in their Persons --- in their Lands- in their Goods- yes if they have not Justice they cannot subsist. -- The King is Styl'd Fons Justitia, and he commits it to his Judges —— but not without an Oath requir'd of them 18 Eliz. 3 1. —— The effect of the Oath is, that they shou'd do equal Law and Execution of Right to all the King's Subiccs --- That they shou'd not deny to do common Right to any Man fortheKing'sLetters, or for any other Cause; & in case such Letters do, that they proceed to do the Law notwithstanding such Letters,---how this Oath hath been perform'd, we have seen and felt; I wou'd Tay no more; but when I cast my Eyes upon the inserior Courts of Justice, wherein no such Oath is requir'd: I mean the High-Commission, and other Ecclesiastical Courts, my Soul hath Bled for the MANY PRESSURES I have observ'd - in these Courts ae gainst the King's good People; especially for the most MO N-STROUS ABUSE of the Oath ex Officio, which, as it is now us'd, I can cill no other than Carnificina Consciencia ---- These Worthies that spoke before me, have told you of our Miseries; but I cannot tell you of the Remedies: For things are come to that Height, that I may say, as Livy said of the Roman State in his time, nec Vitia nostra scire possumus, nec Remedia: for no Laws will now do us good; better Laws con'd not have been made than the Stare of Monopolies, against Projectors, and the Peritien of Right against the infringers of Liberties; and yet, as if the Law had been the Author of them; There hath been within these sew Years more Monopolies and Infringement of Liberties, THAN HATH BEEN IN ANY AGE SINCE THE CONQUEST. And if all these vile Harlots, as Q. Eliz. call'd 'em, that have been the Authors of those evils, and the Troublers of our Israel do go unpunished, it will never be better with us; for now during Parliamens like frozen Snakes their their Poyson dries up, but let the Parliament dissolve, and then ' their Poyson melts and scatters abroad, and doth more hurt than ever. My conclusion, Mr. Speaker is this ———— let them be made Examples of Punishment who have been the Authors of all these Miseries, according to the Counsel of Solomon, Take away the Wicked from before the King, and his Throne shall be establish'd &c. " (f) " My Lords, there can't be a greater Instance of a sick and Larguishing Common wealth than the business of this day. Good God! How have the guilty these late Years been punished, when the Judges themselves have been Delinquents.' I is no such Marvel, that an IRREGULAR, EXTRAVAGANT, ARBITRARY 'POWER, like a Torrent, hath broke in upon us, when our Banks and our Bulwarks, the Laws were in the Custody of such Persons. Men who had lost their Innocence cou'd not preserve their " Courage. Nor cou'd we look that they who had so visibly undone us themselves shou'd have the vertue or Credit, to rescue us from the Oppression of other men.—Had not this blessed day come, all men wou'd have had that quarrel to the Law it self, which Maries had to the Greek Tongue, who thought it a Mockery, for a Man to learn that Language, the Masters whereof liv'd in Bondage under others.——It is in your Lordships Power---to restore the de jected broken People of this Island to their former Joy and Security, the Successors of those men to their Old Privilege and Veneration, and SEPULTAS PROPE LEGES REVOCARE. (1) 'It is most certain that there hath not been in all that Deduction of Ages (i. e. since the Conquest) such a Conspiracy of all the Elements of Mischief to bring a flourishing Kingdom (if it were possible) to swift Ruin and Desolation. I will be bold tosay (and I thank God we have so good a King under whom we may speak boldly of the abuse by ill Ministers, without Restection up-on his Person) that an Accumulation of all the Public Grievances fince Magna Charta, put one upon another unto that hour in which the Petition of Right past into an Act of Parliament, wou'd not amount to so Oppresive, I am sure not to so Destructive a Height and

10

Part 2.

(f) Mr. Edm. Hide Rust. Collect. Part 2. p, 1360, &c. (2) Lord Dight. Id. Ibid. p. 1342.

and Magnitude, to the Rights and Property of the Subject, AS Part 2. ONE BRANCH of our bestaving, since the Petition of Right. The branch I mean is the Judgment concerning Ship-Many, as for unmatche Oppression and Enthralling of free Subjects in a time of tre best King's Reign, and in Memory of the best Laws enacted in favor of the Subject's Liberty, let any man find a truer Cause than the Ruptures and Intermission of Parliaments. 'Tis true, Sir, wicked Ministers have been the Proximate Causes of our Miseries; but the want of Parliaments the Primary and the Efficient Cause. Ill Ministers have made ill Times, but that, Sir, hath made ill Ministers.

From these and many such Speeches, of great Royalists, and the Unanimity of the above mention'd Votes of both Houses, the Nations just and deep sense of the Universal Encroachments that were made upon their Fundamental Liberties and Properties by Arbitrary Power is abundantly manifested; and the same doth further appear from divers Acts of this Parliament, to which the King himself gave the Royal Assent, viz. An All for the preventing inconveniencies happening by the long Intermission of Parliaments. An Act to prevent the Inconveniencies by the untimely adjourning of this Parliament. An Act for the Regulating of the Privy Council, and for taking away the Court commonly call'd the Stare-Chamber. Repeal of the branch of a Statute 1. Eliz. concerning Commissioners, or Causes Ecclesiastical. An Act for the declaring unlawful and void the late Proceedings touching Ship-mony, and for the vocating all Records and Processes concerning the same. An Alt against divers encroachments and Oppressions in the Stannery Courts. An Act for the Certainty of Forests, and of the Meets, Meers, Limits and Bounds of the Forests. An Act for preventing of vecatious Proceedings touching the Order of Knight-bood. An Act about Tunnage and Poundage.

Seeing the Experience of all the former Parliaments of this Reign had made it evident that the best Laws they did or cou'd make, or which had been made for them by their Ancestors cou'd do them no Service, without the Exemplary Punishment of those who had trampled upon them; This Parliament then falls to Work, and resolves to Purge the Court of such Time-serving Flatterers and Oppressors, as by their Counsel had abus'd the King's Honor and endanger'd the People's safety. My Lord Keeper Finch and Secretary Windebank sled for

F f 2

the

Part 2: the same. Strafferd is beheaded, but much against the King's Will.

Land and the unjust Judges are impeach'd. While the King is in Scotland, the horrid and bloody Irish Massicre breaks out, which alarm'd. all the Protestants of the three Kingdoms, and convinc'd the Long. Parliament of the Absolute necessity of Proceeding in their intended Method of bringing all the Instruments of their Mileries to a deserv'd Punishment. Accordingly the Commons prepare a Remonstrance (upon the King's return to London which was in November 1641) wherein they let forth all the illegal and oppressive Practices of his evil Counsellors and Ministers of State, with their ill Consequences happen'd. already, and to be justly fear'd, if the Actors shou'd go unpunish'd. And while they are prosecuting this Design, the King in January following comes in Person with a Company of Arm'd Men into the House then sixting, and demands five of their Members to be deliver'd tohim, to be Try'd for High-Treason. This unaccountable breach of their Priviledge sill'd them and the Kingdom with such Consternation, 25 they no longer thought their Lives Safe, and therefore were guarded by such as had a respect for 'em and their Privileges. 'Tis true, the King promises not to do the like again, but while his evil Counsellors were about him, who for 15. Years had in so many noted Instances made him break his Royal Word, they durst not trust him; and hence arose the Debate between him and them concerning the Militia; they urging that the Power and Trust of it might be put into such hands as both Houses of Parliament might confide in, as absolutely necessary for the Nations safety; (for which as also for their Demands, about other places of Public Trust, they give a vast number of known Precedents in their Declaration upon the breaking up of the Treaty between him and them, Anno 1643. (b) ) which he refus'd to do: He leaves his Parliament, goes to York, and from thence to Hull, where Sir John Hotham refus'd him Entrance, and at Notingham in August tollowing. Set up his Standard, Proclaims the Parliament Rebels, and gathers an Army against them.

> From all the Public Acts, Records, Petitions, Remonstrances, Declarations, Votes, Commissions, Impeachments and other Actions,

> > and

(b) vide the Proceedings of the late Treaty of Peace &c. Printed by Order of both Houses p. 82.

and well Attested Historical Observations mention'd in the Premis-Part 2. ses, from the 195th proge of this Discourse, let the impartial Reader judge, whether the fundamental and Vital Liberties and most essential Properties of the People of England were not Manifestly overturn'd by the Male-Administrations of this Reign. If none but the long Parliament had complain'd of this, one might have had some ground at least to suspect, that all might have been but the noise and Clamor of a Faction, combin'd against the bonest Designs of the Court: but from what hath been said, tis clear that Grievances, Oppression infringement of Liberties, was the CONS FANT CRY of all his Parliaments what soever. Is it not strange, that all the Marks of Disgrace he put upon his Parliaments, by his Messages to them, imprisoning their Members, and publishing such bitter invectives against them in his Declarations after their Dissolution, and all the means that cou'd be us'd by the Court for new Elections; that all this, I say, cou'd never procure kim one Parliament in 1 3 years time, that cou'd either please him or be pleas'd with him?

Can any man of Judgment offer so much Violence to his Reason, as to believe, that the English Nation (whose Gallant and Loyal Genius stands Celebrated in the Records of Immortal Fame) shou'd so universally and Constantly, in so many different Parliaments, conspire to load the Methods of their Prince's Government with such Dishonorable Aspersions and Scandalous Libels, as their Proceedings might have been truly accounted, if they had not been justify'd by an Unparallell'd Series of Oppression from the Court? For what supposable Reason did the King intermit Parliaments for above Eleven Years, but for this, because he was hopeless of getting any that wou'd approve of his Measures? For certainly the most Arbitrary Prince in the World wou'd rather have his People on his Side than against him.

If any reason be sufficient to justify Resistance, it must be when Religion, Liberty and Property are undermin'd; which appears to have been the Cause of the Parliaments War against this Prince. - And I wou'd gladly know, what Degree of Violation and Invasion of a People's Rights Religious and Civil will justify this Resistance, if those made by the then-Court were not sufficient to do it? And whether, supposing the Encroachments made on each of them separately were not sufficient ground for Resistance, yet the Encroachments made on

Part 2. on them all compar'd and duly weigh'd not by some single Acts, but by almost an uninterrupted Progress, still encreasing in spight of the most clear, Indisputable, and Fundamental Laws, and Unanimous sense of the Nation, be not an unansweruble Reason to acquit the Subjects first taking up Desensive Arms from the scandal and Crime of Rebellion?

> As the Evils the People groan'd under were intolerable; so their Patience before they took up Arms, was surprizing; and exceeded all the Instances, wherein the English Nation ever resisted by Arms the Exorbitant and illegal Will of their Princes, for reducing it to just Bounds. For tho' the Grievances of the Nation were more in one Year of this King's Reign than in both the Reigns of Edward 2d and Richard 2. (1.) (as the Reader may be fully satisfied by comparing their several Histories) whom their Subjects resisted, yet in this Case they waited 16 years till things grew daily worse; and after all, the Subject drew not the Sword untill of three branches of the Supreme Legislature they were directed and headed by two of them to rescue the Nation from utter Confusion and Ruin; and until the greatest if not the only Barrier of their Liberties, viz. That all Subjects what soever, even the greatest Ministers of State are accountable to and Punishable in Parliament, was flatly, frequently, and without hopes of Recovery any other way deny'd 'em; and until he refus'd to put the Executive Power into such hands as the Parliament durst confide in for the safety of their Lives to Sit and do business. And that their sears and jealousies were not groundless, appears by the King's Letters to the Queen intercepted by the Parliament, and publish'd in their Account of the breaking up of the Treaty with him (p. 74.); wherein he discovers his Designs of filling these Places with Persons recommended by her Councils, and imparts to her his other Projects; and therefore 'twas' no great wonder, that several of those who follow'd the King shou'd say (as Coke observes) (k) They as much dreaded the King's overcoming the Parliament-Party, as they fear'd to be overcome by them. That Author farther says of him, (1) The first fifteen years of his Reign were e perfectly French, and such as never before were seen or heard of in the English Nation. This brought on a miserable War in all the three

(i) as Coke assures us Det est. Part 1. p. 397. (k) Ibid. p. 396, (1) Ibid. p. 205.

Under King Charles I.

Kingdoms of England, Scotland and Ireland, and Destruction upon Part 2.

the War against him to save his Life, which they wou'd have done.

And let any Man read the short Passages of his Reign (says he)
(m) and judge if the Imminent Ruin of the Nation were not frem bimself within, as well as without. No human prosecut (says he) (n) con'd have foreseen where the Tyranny of K. Charles 1's Reign wou'd have ended, if the long Parliament in 1640, had not put a full fop to it.

The true end of a lawful War is, that an injur'd Party may preserve or recover by the Sword some Right wiich he can't recover or preserve any other way; and therefore a War shou'd still be the last Remedy. To apply this to the Case in hand: The points in Debate and in danger of imminent Ruine, namely, Religion, Liberty and Property are valuable Rights, worthy of all Endeavors for their Preservation and Restitution; but these cou'd not be preserv'd or restor'd by any other Method, than the subjects defensive Arms. No Laws, no Petitions, no Remonstrances, no Essay us'd, no Patience exercis'd did prevail upon the Court; and therefore what cou'd the Parliament and other Subjects do, but either resist by Arms or tamely sit still, and see the good and Happiness of Society intirely ruin'd and sacrific'd, which Mr Hoadly thinks a greater Contradiction to the Will of God than any opposition can be, as being a tacit Consent to the Ruine and Misery of Mankind, whose public Pette and Huppiness is the end of Government.

What other reasons can be given for resisting the lateKing James, than those which justify'd the Resisting of his Father? 'Tis true, King James was a Profest Papist: But seeing the Bill of Exclusion was rejected; his being a Papist, as it cou'd not keep him out, so it cou'd not legally turn him out, nor justify Resistance merely on that score: and therefore it must be his illegal attempts upon Religion, Liberty and property, that justify'd the Revolution: and the very same do equally justify the Commencement of the War against his Father. And yet the People of England waited 16 Ye are before they resisted the Father; the' their Patience was quite tir'd out, be-

Part 2: fore they had waited 5 Years under the Son. They relisted not the Father till both Houses of Parliament declar'd for it, and press'd 'em They resisted the Son without looking upon themselves oblig'd to wait for any such Formality. After they had resisted the Father, they petition'd him as their lawful Prince, treated with him, begg'd him to return to his Parliament, and Govern according to Law; and after they had quite subdu'd and rooted all his Forces, and so had Power to do what they pleas'd, yet they voted his Concessions saisfactory, and to be sufficient Ground for a Treaty; all which shew'd that they carry'd on a War with no design to Dethrone him, or declare him to have abdicated; But they had no sooner resisted the Son, but they declare his Throne vacant; Entertain not the least thoughts of repossessing him of it, but take all Methods possible to put it out of his Power to come at it. Were all those Glorious Steps of Resistance to K. James built upon the Impregnable Foundation of Equity, Justice and the public Good; and to be espons'd and cordially maintain'd as the Essential and Honorable Principles of the late HAPPY REVOLUTI-ON? And shall a lesser and MORE LIMITED Resistance to K. Charles 1. tho' supported by the same Reasons, which warranted a greater and more Absolute one to his Son, be justly tax'd with Rebellion?

Upon the whole, I leave it to the Reader, to form a Judgment for himself, whether the Presbyterians were Guilty of Rebellion, in taking part with the Parliament in their War; and tho' I won't give my own Judgment as to the Merits of the Cause, yet I shall adventhre to say, that they had a great deal to say for themselves; especially considering, that in the Parliament (at the beginning of that War) there were not ten Members, who were profess'd Presbyterians, as my Lord Clarendon confesseth, and therefore if the Presbyterians were Rebels, they were INVITED and COMMANDED to be such by their BRETHREN OF THE ESTABLISH'D CHURCH, and by those who were sitting in a LegalParliament, and acting for the rescuirg of the violated Sinking Liberties of the Nation: And the Aft of Oblivion hath laid a just Foundation for removing all Grounds of Reproach upon that Account. The King's Party as well as the Parliament's needed fuch an Act.

Before I come to the second Crime objected against Presbyterians during this Reign, I must take notice of our Author's Objections against three Petitions of the Presbyterians in the North of Ireland to the General Assembly. While he is answering the Challenge of Part 2.

the Author of the Parallel, which is to shew the Rebellions, the Associations) Fastions & c. which the Dissenters of Ireland ever rais'd against their Prince, the they shou'd go back to the Tear 41, 48. and 60. He refers to the Acts of the General Assembly for Three Petitions from the Dissenters of the North of Ireland to the General Assembly of Scotland: The first in July 1642. Sent by James Gordon and Hugh Campbel: The second was dated August 3. 1643. The 3d in May 1645. from Belfast, deliver'd by William Mc Hennah Merchane. In all which Petitions you will plainly discover (says he) what their Temper and Disposition then was both to the King and Royal Party (p. 15.).

In all these three Petitions (which I have carefully perus'd) I don't find the least Syllable relating to the King, or his Name so much as mention'd except once; and 'tis in the last of them, in these Words; We are nothing shaken in our minds, with the odious Aspersions of Sedition, Combination against the King &c. And seeing they disown any Combination against the King, by giving it the Name of an Odious Aspersion, I think 'twill be pretty hard from thence to conclude any thing against their Loyalty. I confess I am at loss to find out the least Consequence from any of these three Petitions, to prove what our Author Alledgesh from 'em; &until he shall think sit to form an Argument from 'em (which I don't find he has once attempted) I shan't think my self much concern'd with them.

The Prayer of those Petitions being for a Mission of Ministers of their own Persuasion to supply the poor distress'd Remnant of Presbyterians in Ulster, who had surviv'd the Bloody Massacre of 41, they mention in their several Narratives the Severities formerly us'd against them by the Prelates in Wentworth's Government; but where the Sedition, the Rebellion, or any other Fault of this was, our Author proves not. Because they speak against the Tyranny of some of the then-Prelates, must they therefore be disloyal? What's very observable is, That as our Author quotes these Petitions for a purpose which they no way tend to advance viz. Disloyalty against the Government, so he intirely passeth the Sufferings and Oppression of Presbyterians mention'd in them, without any Remark. And indeed he had great reason to do so, considering the Illegal and Arbitrary Imposition of the Oath commonly call'd the Black-Oath in Ireland upon all Per-

for

Part 2. sons of the Scottish Nation of the Age of 16 years and upwards, who were then Inhabitants in Ireland, upon severe Penalties. The want of Parliamentary Authority and Sanction to the said Oath was a sufficient Reason (even tho' the matter of it had been unexceptionable) to justify any one's refusing it. But the Presbyterians refus'd it not only for its being Illegally impos'd, but because of the Pernicious Tendency of the matter of the Outh it self to destroy Liberty and Property: For it oblig'd 'em to Swear in the following Words, 'I will not bear Arms, or do any Rebellious or Hostile Act against ANY OF HIS (i. e. the Kings) ROYAL COMMANDS, but submit my 's self in all due Obedience thereunto; and that I will not enter into any Covenant or Band of Mutual Defence or Assistance against any ' Person whatsoever by Forces, without his Majesty's Sovereign and Regal Authority. And I do Renounce and Abjure all Ouths, Covenants, and Bands whatsoever, contrary to what I have herein Sworn, profess'd and promis'd. So help me God in Jesus Christ. They look'd upon this to be a dangerous Insnaring Oath; because it might be interpreted as an Approbation and Assenting to the savish Doctrine of the Unlawsulness of Resistance upon any Pretence what soever. The Royal Commands are to be limited by the Constitution and Laws of the Kingdom; and if the King shou'd Command the Subject to join in the Destruction of Religion, Liberty, and Property, and in the Overthrow of the Municipal and Fundamental Laws, and Essential Privileges of Free born Subjects, they cou'd not consent to divest 'emselves, upon Oath, of their Right of Self-Defence, without a manifest betraying of the Liberties of the Nation which they durst not Swear to do. having always testify'd an Inviolable Regard for them. The Principles of Srafford and his Party (the Contrivers and Imposers of this Oath) leading to Arbitrary Government, were, according to the Rules of all Casuists in such Cases, consider'd in order to the Understanding of the Oath fram'd by them for serving the Court-Designs. of that Reign.

This Oath, tho' illegal not only for its matter as tending to subvert the Civil Constitution, but also for want of a due Authority to impose it, was violently mg'd by a High-flown Party in Ireland, headed by Wentworth in Conjunction with the Laudensian Faction in England. For refusing it, Multitudes of sincere Protestants were banish'd, and miscrably persecuted: By which means the remaining part of the Protestants of Ireland became a more easy Prey to the Bloody Papists, Part 2. who soon improved the Advantage given to their Cause, by so remarkable a Blow as the Protestant Interest had got by these violent Courses.

And 'tis very observable, that as the Moderation of the Government towards Presbyterians was the great Means of Planting Ulster, so Persecution weakned the British and Protestant Interest, and was the diresul Forerunner of the Bloody Rebellion in 1641. Yet Divine Providence by removing the Presbyterian Ministers out of the Kingdom before the Rebellion (being driven away by Wentworth's Persecution and the Black-Oath) kept them alive, and reserved them for farther Service to their Flocks, who receiv'd them again with great joy and Comfort, when their Persecutors had either perish'd, or been driven away by the Common Calamity. And thereby a door was open'd for the replanting of the Gospel in these Presbyterian Congregations, whose Ministers had been banish'd by the High-Church-Faction. Why may not this be told, without any ground for that Censure which our Author places upon the Presbyterians (p. 19.) Is not this (say be) a wondrous mark of their Tenderness & Pro-' tection of the Loyal Episcopal Party at that time, when their Bae nishment by the Papists was reckon'd by these Charitable Brethren the Opening a Door (as they say there) for the planting of the Gospel, as if they reputed them Infidels, 'the Presbyterians never call'd their Brethren of the Episcop 1 Church Infidels, nor ever gave any just Occasion to believe that they reputed them to be such. Nay they believe (and a ways did) That there are of that Communion many worthy Protestants and good Christians, tho' they conform'd to divers things in the Ecclesiastical Establishment, which were against the Consciences of Presbyterians. And therefore the widening of the Breach among Protestants to that unaccountable Degree, as to persuade the World (as our Author does) that one part of them reputes the other to be Insidels, is Disserviceable to our Common Christianity: Especially, when there is nothing in the Expression he quotes, to support the Charge founded upon it.

But I come next to consider the second Crime charg'd upon Presbyterlans during this Reign viz. That the Commission of the General Affembly of Scotland oppos'd Duke Hamilton's Undertaking in 1648; who went into England with an Army to fight for the King; That they

Part 2. they did so, is very true: But our Author falsissieth the History of it in divers Material Circumstances and Insinuations. 'This Declaration of the Assembly (Jays he p. 6.) was made to the Estates, whohad by an Act of Parliament, rais'd an Army to go into England, to rescue the King out of the hands of the Sectaries; which Expedition the Assembly of the Kirk Oppos'd, Declam'd against, and ' afterwards did excommunicate the Dake of Hamilton, and the whole Army for engaging in that Expedition against the Consent of the Assembly 'He falsely infinuates, That the Assembly had no mind to have had the King rescurd out of the bands of the Sectaries, as if. their Opposition to Duke Hamilton had flow'd from that Spring: Whereas no Persons were greater Enemies to the Secturies than they, and less fond of their Usurped Power, and by all Methods proper for them resented the ill usage of his Mijesty's Royal Person at that very time, We cannot but ABHOR (say they) (o) the Purposes of any who mind the Subversion of Monarchical Government, which we heartily wish to be preserv'd and continu'd in his Mijesty's Peron and Posterity; and we do no less distike the Practices of those who deal so hardly with his Majesty's Person, earnestly desiring that he were in the Condition he was in by the Advice of both Kingdoms before he was taken away by a PartynfSirThomas Fairfax's Army.

The Commission of the General Assembly in their humble Advice and Petition to the Honorable Estates of Parliament June 10. 1648, do clear themselves from any Deslayal Design or Principle in opposing the Duke's Engagement, while they assure their Lordships with an awful Solemnity in these Words, (p. 18.) We call to Record the Searcher of all hearts, the Judge of the World, that our not concurring with your Lord hips Proceedings hitherto, hath not flow'd from want of Zeal against Secturies, for the Supp ession of whom, and for the Advancement of a Work of Reformation, we are ready to hazard all in a lawful way; Nor from any Remissness in that which concerns his Majesty's true Honor and Happiness, and the Preservation of Minarchical Government in him and his. Posterity,

<sup>(0)</sup> vide a Declaration and Exhortation of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, to their Brethren in England, Asts Assemb. p. 409.

nor from any want of tenderness of the Privileges of Parliament; Part. 2" nor from want of Symputhy with our afflicted and oppress'd Brethren. in England; nor from Partial or Sinistrous respect to any Party or Person whatsoever within the Kingdom; but from meer Tenderness in the Point of Security of Religion, and the Union between the Kingdoms, and from the Unsatisfactoriness of the Grounds of you: Lordships Declaration, as hath been express'd more at length in our Representation.

The true Reasons why the Church of Scotland look'd upon that undertaking to be unlawful are represented at large in the Papers of the Assembly and their Commissioners, of which our Author has not taken any Notice, tho' they are all in Print. It wou'd be too tedious to recite them all; but what I am to mention shall be under three Heads. That Expedition was unlawful. 1. Because the Parliament of Scotland neglected to treat with England, when they might have done it, for preventing the Effusion of Christian Blood. 2. As matters then stood, 'twas dangerous to the Interest of Religion. 3. It was carried on by unlawful! means.

As to the first, the Assembly give us their Sense in the following words. (p) We are commanded if it be possible and as much as lyeth in us to have Peace with all Men, Rom. 12. 18. to seek Peace and pursue it, Flal. 34. 14. War and Blood-shed is the last Remedy after all the Ways and Means of Peace have been us'd in vain. The intended War of the nine Tribes and a half against the two Tribes and half was prevented by a Message and Treaty of Peace, Josh. 22. The like means was us'd by Jepthah (tho' not with the like Success) for preventing of War with the King of Ammon. Judg. 11. The very light of Nature. hath taught Heathens not to make War, till first all Amicable ways. of preventing Bloodshed were tried; yet this War hath been driven on without observing any such Method of Proceeding, except by a Message wherein not so much as one breach was represented. Yea, tho' these Two Kingdoms are straitly united in Covenant, yet these who have carried on this War did not only neglect to desire a Trea-

(p) Wit. July 1648. A Declaration of the General Affembly concerning the present Dangers of Religion, and especially the Unlawful Engagement in War, Sign-In the Acts of the General Assembly p. 388.

Part 2. ty, but also slight an offer of a Treaty made from the Parliament of England, upon the Propositions of both Kingdoms.

The Committee of Estates of Parliament made and publish'd some few observations upon the Declaration of the General Assembly, and they reply to what has been offer'd from that Declaration, in these Words, (p: 5.) To the third, because there hath been no Treaty. That is denied, because our Commissioners did for a long time represent Wrongs, and seek Reparation, as is mention'd in their Papers given unto the Parliament of England, and approven in this Parliament; also a Messenger with our just and necessary Demands, was sent to their Houses in April last; yet, by the Prevalency of Settaries, no Satisfaction is return'd thereunto.

The Commissioners of the General Assembly August 15. 1648. publish'd their answer to the Observations of the Committee of Estates, wherein they defend the Assembly's Declaration against the Engagement; and in Answer to that exception of the Committee of Estates which I have recited, they say 'p. 12, 13.

'The Argument in the Assembly's Declaration was to this sense: Whatsoever Engagement in War is undertaken without fiest essaying the lawful, possible and ordinary Means of preventing Bloodshed, is unlawful and sinful: But the present Engagement is such; Therefore, &c. 'Tis to be observ'd that their Lordships do not deny the Proposition, but only the Assumption of this Argument; The Reasons of their Denyal are two, 1. Because the Comm ssinners at London did represent Wrongs and seek Reparation. 2. Because a Messenger was sent with the Demands of the Parliament of this Kingdom to the Kingdom of England. But here 'tis not to be forgotten, that neither the Commissioners at London, nor the Mclenger here meant of, did make known to the Parliament of England the breaches found & declar'd by the Parliament of this Kingdom in their Declaration to the Kingdom concerning the Grounds and Causes of the present Engagement. How can it then be suppos'd that all the Means of preventing Bloodshed were sufficiently essay'd, seeing the very Grounds and Causes of the War found by the Pauliament of this kingdom, were not so much as made known to the Partiamens of England, that their answer thereunto might be heard; and whether there is some other Mystery in the not making known those Breaches to the Parliament of England, time may peradventure dif-COVER cover. 2. Their Lordships are pleas'd here to pass in silence that Part 25 which seemed most strange to the General Assembly, that the offer of a Treaty upon the Propositions of both Kingdoms being made by the Parliament of England, was YET SLIGHTED and not embrac'd by the Parliament of this Kingdom. 3. Was not the Town of Berwick seized upon (which Act now their Lordships own in this Paper of their Observations) before the Messenger was sent with the demands to the Houses of Parliament? from all which Itid together, it will quickly appear that this Ingagement was undertaken without first Essaying those Amicable and Peaceable ways, which might and ought to have been used for preventing of Blood-shed.

The SECOND head of reasons I propos'd to insist upon for showing the unlawfulness of that Engagement, is taken from this; because, asmatters then stood, it was dangerous to the Interest of Religion; Which the Assembly in the above-mentioned Declaration express thus p. 386, 387.

The Wars of God's People, are called the Wars of the Lord. Numb. 21, 14. 2 Chron. 20. 15. And if our Eating and Drinking, much more our engaging in War, must be for God and his Glory; 1 Cor. 10. 31. What soever we do in Word or Deed, we are com-* manded to do all in the Name of the Lord Jesus, and so for his Glory, 6 Col. 3. 17. The Kingdom of God and the Righteousness thereof is to be sought in the sirst place, and before all other things, Matth. 6. 33. It was the hest Flower and Garland in the former Expeditions of this Nation, that they were for God and for Religion Principally and Mainly. But if the Principal end of this present Engagement were for the Glory of God, how comes it to pass that not so much as one of the desires of the Kirk, for the Sasety and Security of Religion in the said Engagement, is to this day satisfied or granted? but on the contrary, such Courses taken as are destructive to Religion. And if God's Glory be intended, what meaneth the employing and protecting in this Army so many Blasphemers, Persecutors of Piety, disturbers of Divine Worship, and others Guilty of Notorious and crying Sins? Again how can it be pretended that the Good of Religion is principally aimed at, when it is proposed and declared that the King's Majesty shall be brought to some of his Houses. in or near London, with Honour, Freedom and Safety, before ever there be any Security had from him, or so much as any Application

Part 2. made to him for the Good of Religion? What is this but to Postpone the Honour of God, the Liberties of the Gospel, the Safety of God's People to an Human Interest, and to leave Religion in a condition of uncertainty, unsettledness & hazard, while it is strongly endeavor'd to settle and make fure some what else'.

The Committee of Estates of Parliament in their Observations &c, reply to the above reasons in the following words p. 2,3. We Answer, by acknowledging & believing that all the Wars of the People of God, "Thou'd be the Wars of God undertaken at the Command of these who have lawful Authority under God, as were the Wars by the Command 4 of Moles, Joshua, the Judges and Kings of Judah, And as undertaken by Warrant from Gods Vicegerents, so for an honest Cause, for the Glory of God: But whereas it is assumed that this Engagement is not such, we deny it, because it hath the Warrant of Lawful Authority, The Estates of Parliament; and the Cause being honest to do a duty Commanded of God to our Prince, God is 6 Glerified by doing that duty, The relieving of our King out of Prifon is a duty, John 18. 36. If my Kingdom, says our Lord, were of this world, then would my servants fight that I should not be deliver-4 ed to the Jews, Our Lord suppones it was a common duty, that Subjects shou'd fight to prevent the Captivity of their King, And if a war be lawful so prevent Captivity, is it not Lawful to deliver him from that base Captivity; are we less obliged in duty to our Native Prince, than Abraham to his kinsman Lot? who engaged in a war for rescuing him, notwithstanding Lot had associated himself in war with Wicked Men, the Sodomites. Gen. 14. Are we less obliged than David and his Associates to their Captive wives, who ingaged in war for their freedom, 1 Sam. 30.?

As for the Duty of honor, for performance whereof we have engaged our selves, We believe it is a duty commanded by God himself in the fifth Commandment, Prov. 24, 22. 1 Pet. 2. 16, 17. We are forbidden to use our Christian Liberty as a Cloak of Malieioulnels, for withholding or withdrawing duty. Yea Pagans by the light of Nature, reading the Law of Nature, which is from the God of Nature, do use all honor to their Kings. Yea, holy 54muel undoubtedly Zealous of Gods Honor notwithstanding he knew certainly by Divine Revelation, that God had rejected Saul, yel honored him before the People. 1 Sam. 15, 30, 31.

But

But let us hear the Desences made against the above Exception by Part 2. the Commissioners of the General Assembly, August 15th. 1648, Wherein they say p. 3, &c.

The substance of the Argument used by the Assembly was this, In all Lawful Wars of the People of God, the end principally, intended and driven at, is that wherein the Glory of God is chiefly concerned: But in this present War, the end principally intended and driven at, is not that wherein the Glory of God is chiefly concern'd; Therefore 'tis not a Lawful War of the People of God. Lordships do not deny the proposition of the Argument: As to that which their Lordships say concerning the Assumption of the Assemblies Argument, we Answer 1st, Their Lordships say e nothing to it as it stands in the Assemblies Declaration with the · Proofs thereof, but passing all this they form another Assumption which they deny, and bring some reason for their denyal of it. The 4 Assembly did clearly prove in their Declaration, that the end principally intended and driven at in this Engagement is not that wherein the Glory of God is chiefly concern'd; and this was proved by the Parliament's not satisfying of the desires of the Kirk concerne ing the safety and security of Religion.——But all this their Lordships are pleased to pass in silence, And, as if the Assembly had denyed all duty to the King, they go about to prove, that 'tis a duby incumbent on Subjects to undertake a War for his Majesties freedom and honour (we know not why their Lordships omit his safety.) And several Texts of Scripture are cited by their Lordships to this end; Whereas they touch not the point in Concroverly, viz. Whether Religion being in so great danger by his Majesties Opposition thereumo, it be the Subjects duty to make War for his Majesties · Freedom and Honour, before Security sought and had from him for · Religion.

gument, do indeed add no small strength to it; For while they are answering that very Argument which Challengeth the neglect of the Glory of God, and of Religion in this Engagement, they mention nothing of Religion, but only the King's Freedom and Honour as the Cause of undertaking the present War.

3. The Kirk of Scotland hath ever been, and is most willing to resent any Injuries done to his Majesty, and to perform every duty

Hh

Part 2. for his Mijesties Freedom and Honour in the Right Way and Order; that is, giving to God in the first Place what is God's: But it hath not been the mind of Kirk or State in this Land to make War for his Majesty in an Absolute Way, and without any Qualification, or to the Detriment and Hurt of Religion. For in the Year 1643, this Kingdom was Solicited with his Majesty to undertake War for him but because he was engaged in a course against Religion and the Liberties of the Kingdoms, therefore all giving of Assistance to 'him was Declin'd, although at that time the Kingdoms were not joined, in Covenant: How much less is it the Subjects Duty, after such a: Covenant and after so much Bloodshed by the means of his Majesties opposing the Covenant and Reformation, and his Majesties adhering fill to his former Principles, yet notwithstanding of all this, to engage in a War for him, and to espouse his Quarrel before Security.

desired and had from him for Religion.

4. The three Scriptures alledged by their Lordships John 18. 36. Gen. 14-and 1. Sam. 30. do in no wise help their Cause, or Militate against the Assemblies Argument; For there are four great differences which will Marr the Application of those Scriptures to the present Engagement in War- ist, Christ's cause against the Jews, Lot's Cause against the 4 Kings, who had taken away him and his goods; David and his Men, their Cause against the Amalekites who had taken their Wives Captive, was without Controversy a good and honest Cause, and no wise to the prejudice of Religion. 2. The Instruments and Managers were without Exception. 3. The Parties to be relieved were also without exception, so far as can be known from Scripture, 4. None of the three Texts cited by their Lordships doth hold torth a War undertaken for a human Interest, with negletting and postponing the Glory of God, and therefore come not home to the point of the Assemblies Argument. When their Lordships shall prove their Cause to be as good, the Managers and Parties to be as much without exception, the Glory of God to be as little neglected in this Engagement, as in the example Cited; then may their Lordships apply those Scriptures in reference to this Engagement, but not otherwise. 5. Whatsoever be the Daty of Sub-' jects towards the relief of their King, which in the due order and Subordination to the Glory of God and Security of Religion, is not denyed, we cannot see now the Text John 18: 36. proveth it: seeing that Scripture holdeth forth a common Custom of the World, rather.

"rather than a duty of Subjects, and sheweth what Men us'd to do, Part 2. rather than what they ought to do. And this Sense may be plainly drawn from the Text it self, If my Kingdom were of this World, that is, as the Kingdoms of this World are, and use to be, then would my Servants fight for me: Least of all was it our Lord's meaning to allow fighting, and making War in a Cause prejudicial and hurtful to Re-4 ligion. And whereas their Lordships say in their next Citation, that Lot had Mociate himself in War with wicked Men the Sodomites: 4 As hereby they Tacitly intimate the Lawfulness of Association in War with Men as wicked as the Sodomites, so we shall humbly beseech their Lordships to observe here how necessiry it is for their Lordships to search more accurately into these Scripture-Arguments, for there is no such thing in the Scripture as is cited in their Observations. We read indeed of Abraham's (not Lot's) Consederacy with Aner, Eshcol, and Mamre; but that these three were either Idolaters, or wicked Men is more than can be prov'd. 6. The following · Paragraph is as wide from the point, proving what no body denies, • viz. the duty of Honoring Kings. We wish their Lordships may ferionfly ponder two things join'd with this duty in the first Text cited by themselves, one is fear God and this is put in the first place, another is, meddle not with them that are given to Change: whereby we are warned that under colour of doing for the Honour of Kings, we may not join with those who fall of from the Cause and Ways of God.

To press any duty concerning the King's Honour, with the neglect or prejudice of the Honour of God, is indeed to nse Liberty as a Clock of Maliciousness; so that this falleth back upon them who charge it without Cause upon others. The Text 1 Sam. 15. 30, 31. Is no better applyed, For when Samuel yielded to Honour Saul before the People, and to turn again with him, It was upon his Confession and acknowledgment of his fin, and withal, Saul was so honored before the people that Agag was cut in pieces.

To illustrate this Argument, all the Circumstances hinted by the Askimbly and their Commissioners must be taken into the Account. The Kings Aversion to their Constitution, his former practices against it and against the Liberties of their Country, the effects of his evil Counsellors upon his Royal Judgment, the Oppression they had groan'd under formerly by the Scors Bishops, of which Clarendon and Burnet give a clear account, which the Reader will find in the folh

Part 2. lowing Chapter of this Book; his refusing to give them any sufficient Security against the like evils for the suture; all the Countenance he gave and continued to give to prosest Papists, of which I have given a short Narrative in this Chapter, his countenancing and designing to employ so many thousands of Papists out of all the three Kingdoms for carrying on this very Engagement; besides the barbarous High-landers and those of the Scots Nation who had but lately before this carried on a Civil War in Scotland, to the ruin and destruction of many good people, and who were all to be employed in this Engagement. Compare all these things duly, and they strengthen the Assemblies Argument, for proving that as matters then food, that Engagement was dangerous to the Interest of Religion.

For if we consider the Temper and Disposition of these Engagers; we may argue thus: we must suppose that either they would overcome the Forces of the Parliament of England, or be overcome by them: If the first, then what must the three Kingdoms have expected, but the repeating of all these Miseries and Grievances, they had lain under during this whole Reign. The King was not then come to any Terms with his Parliament in England, and had he in these Circumstances entirely routed their Forces, what cou'd all the Asserters of the Liberty of their Country have expected, but that both Religion and Liberty wou'd have been in a worse Condition, than they were in at the Commencement of the Civil War? and all the struggles of the Church of Scotland for her just Rights & Constitution must have ended in the utter ruin and subversion of the whole. On the other hand, shou'd these Engagers be overcome by the English Forces (as eventually they were) then the Power of the Sectaries must be advanced, disorders both in Church and State must be multiply'd every day, Monarchy must be exchang'd for Usus pation and Anarchy, and Religion be succeeded by Enthusiasm and all the wild Errors of Settarian Frenzie. We know that all this happen'd accordingly, and that the Engagers instead of doing service to the King, hastened his ruin (though not designed by them) and brought a flood of Calamities upon their Country; whereas had they first treated with the Parljament of England, and infilted on farther Security for their Religion from the King, all true Friends of Religion, Monarchy, and Liberty, would have united upon that foot against the Sectaries; that Scheme(by the Blessing of God) might have afforded them some Rational Prospect. spect of strving both their King and Country, and the Church of Part 2. Scotland would have most chearfully and cordially concurr'd with it.

The third Head of Reasons I propos'd to insist upon for shewing the unlawfulness of this Engagement, was because 'twas carry'd on by unlawful Means. What these unlawful Means were, the Assembly discovers to us in these Words (q) 'The Engagement is carry'd on by such Means and Ways, as tend to the destroying of Religion, by enforcing and forcing the Consciences of the People of God with unlawful Bands and Oaths, and oppressing the Persons and Estates of such as have been most astive and Zealous for Religion and the Covenant. All which is strengthen'd and Authoriz'd by Asts of Parliament, appointing that all that do not obey, or persuade others not to obey the Resolutions of Parliament and Committee anent this Engagement, or who shall not subscribe the Ast and Declaration of the 10. June, 1648. impos'd upon all the Subjects, shall be holden as Enemies to the Cause and to Religion, and have their Persons secur'd, and their Estates intromitted with.

The General Assembly enlarge farther upon this Head (r) in these Words, --- Which Subscription the Assembly cannot otherwise look upon, than as a snare for the People of God to involve them in Guiltiness,——For that Subkription were an approving of some Acts of Parliament, which they have never yet seen nor known, they not being all publish'd. were an acknowledging of this present Engagement in War, in all the Means and Ways for promoving the same, to be the most sit and necessary Remedies of the by-gone and present Evils; whereas so many Petitions to the Parliament, from Committees of War, Synods, Presbyteries and Parishes have made it appear, that they are no way satisfy'd therewith in point of Conscience; were an approving of an Act made for the restraining the Liberty of Printing from the Kirk, yea ' and of all the Acts of the Committee of Estates, to be made in time coming, till March 1650; which by Act of Parliament are ordain'd to be obey'd; were an allowing of acts for securing of the Perfons.

<sup>(4)</sup> vide the Assembly's Answer to the Paper sent from the Committee of Estates of the 24th of July 1648. in the Asts of the General Assembly P. 375. (1) Ibid. P. 376. &c.

Chap. 1. The Logalty of Presbyterians

Part 2: fons, and intrometting with the Estates, of such as themselves shall not obey, or persuade others not to obey Resolutions concerning this Engagement, and for protecting Persons under Kirk-Censures, & 10 an infringing and violating of the Liberties and Discipline of the Kirk Establish'd by the Laws of the Land, and sworn to in the National Covenant to be defended, under the pains contain'd in the Law of *God. And in all these, such as do subscribe, do bind themselves not only to active Obedience in their own Persons, but to the urging of Active Obedience upon all others, and so draw upon themselves all the Guiltiness and sad Consequences of the present Engagement;

I don't find that the Committee of Estates have taken any Notice of this Objection in their Observations, nor can I imagine what can be answer'd to it. Upon the whole, I wou'd humbly recommend it to the Reader to compare the three Heads of Reasons against this Engagement, which I have extracted from the Papers of the Assembly and their Commissioners, and by which he'll perceive the Oppolition made to it by the Church of Scotland was not founded upon the hast Disloyalty to their Prince, but upon the Sinfulness of the Engagement it self.

The Assembly did not actually excommunicate Duke Hamilton and his whole Army, for engaging in this Expedition, as our Author alledges p. 7. But what they did was this; first the Commissioners of the Assembly of 1648. did by their Acts of the 6th of October and 4th of December that Year, appoint Church Censures to be inflicted on those who had been concern'd in that Engagement, in order to bring them to Repentance. And the following Aslembly of July 26: 1649. approv'd what these Commissioners had done, and farther appointed such of the Engagers as remain'd Obstinate and Impenitent, after due Process in the Ecclesiastical Judicatories, to be excommunicated. But this differs much from the Account our Author gives of that Affair. And tho' it shou'd be granted that the Assembly carry'd the matter of their Censure too high, that wou'd infer nothing against their Loyalty. I won't take it upon me to determine whether the Extravagancies, Rapine, Oppression, and many Outrages committed by many of the rude Soldiers that went on that Engagement, did not justify the highest Censure; or whether the Assembly being highly provok'd, did not make their Act a little too general, without making all the necessary Distinctions, and taking all suitable Precaution to prevent vent the Excommunication of some who might be concern'd in this Part 2.

Engagement from Principles of Conscience tho' misinform'd, and tho' they might perfift in that Error of their Judgment.

Shou'd it be granted, that their Act had some unguarded Expressions in it, and which is not Moderated a little in the Execution might bear too hard upon some Men otherwise Sober and Inossensive, which is the most that can be made of it; all this amounts to no more, than that it was somewhat of the Riger of Discipline; which is very much extenuated from the Intolerable Oppression and Miseries, which were brought on their Country, by that sinful ill advis'd Expedition.

But the THIRD and GREAT Crime objected against Presbuerians under this Reign, is the Murther of K. Charles 1. They acknowledge this to be one of the blackest and foulest Pieces of Villany, but on good grounds deny themselves to be in the least guilary of that barbarous Regicida. Our Author says (p. 11) I think it needless for me to mention any of the Words of K. Charles 1. his Injuries and Blood cry louder than the noite of Thunder. The greater the Crime any Person or Party stands charg'd with, the suller ought the Proof to be: but our Author is so far from observing this Rule, that the this be the most heinous and edious Crime he impeaches Presbyterians of in all his Pamphlet, and which they all deny to a Man; he has not thought fit to oblige his Reader with one single Evidence of their Guilt, unless Salmasim's sable (mention'd by him p. 17) may deserve that name.

6 If a Robber (Says be i. e. Salmasim) surprizing a Traveller in as Wood shou'd disarm him, rob him, strip him, & tye him to a Tree, & a wild Beast of the Forest, coming upon him thus bound shou'd fall upon him, tear him in Pieces, and devour him, which of these properly speaking, wou'd be the cause of this Man's Death?' Our Author applies this fable thus. 'Tis most certain (says he) that the Independents were actually the Murderers of King Charles 1. but 'tisas certain, that the Presbyterians first murdered him in his Policical Capacity, as a Prelude to the Murder of his Person; they compell'd him to give up all his Power to them, and then did, as Dugdale observes, worse than Murder him in the manner and Circumstances of his confinement, before the Independents pull'd them out of the Saddle, and forc'd the King out of their hands. And were the actual Executioners of that Royal Marty, whom the Presbyterians had. in effect condemn'd. Hence.

Chap. 1: The Loyalty of Presbyterians 240

Hence let the Reader observe that our Author has fairly acquitted the Presbyterians from being the Actual Murderers of K. Charles 1. The Sectaries who all shelter'd themselves under the name of Independents (tho of quite different Principles from the sober Party of that Denomination) were the true Criminals. He likewise consesseth that those pull'd the Presbyterians out of the Saddle, and forc'd the King out of their hands; which plainly shows that they cou'd not have compas'd the King's Ruine and the Subversion of Monarchy, but upon the Ruines of the Presbyterian Interest; and that the Presbyterians did not deliver the King into the hands of the Sectaries, but he was forc'd out of their hands, and themselves pull'd out of the Saddle to make way for that fatal Violence upon his Royal Person.

How the Long Parliament was by Military force turn'd into the Rump, and reduc'd to a small Party of Factious Members, who in Concert with the Army hatch'd that barbarous Tragedy, is so universally attested by Historians of all sides, that he must be altogether unacquainted with those times who do's not know it. For the Parliament, who propos'd no other end in their War than to keep the Prerogative within it's just Limits, and preserve the Nations from the unjust Invasions had been made upon them by evil Counsellors, under Color of Royal Authority, having upon a Treaty obtain'd such Concessions from the King as they voted satisfactory for the ground of a Treaty, were proceeding to accomplish that great and Noble work, until the Sectarian Party in the army (that then had conquer'd the Commanding part of it) subverted and overturned all: The Members (Says Coke (1) met upon the first of December (viz. 1648) and vote the King's Concessions to be a sufficient ground for Peace. And then adjourn for a Week, but when the Members were to meet again, they found all the Avenues to the House beset with Soldiers; who exclude all, which were not of their Faction, from entring the House; which were not one fourth part, and make the Residue Prisoners. So FAREWEL PRESBYTE-RY &c.

My Lord Clarendon not only recites the same Story at great length, bus tells us how barbaroully this Military Rump treated the Members they excluded by the Army (t), and yet after all they met with a brisk Opposition by some who had got in notwithstanding of the Guards; and therefore they were resolved to prevent the like again, and suffer none of the excluded Members to sit until the Vote they had passed in their Absence (viz. for Declaring the King's Concessions unsatisfactory, contrary to their former Resolution) were subscribed by them: And that they might find no more such Contradiction hereaster (says he libid.) They committed to several Prisons Major-General Brown (tho' he was then Sheriss of London) Sir John Clotworthy, Sir William Waller, Major General Massey, and Commissary General Copley, who were the MOST ACTIVE Members in the House of the PRESBYTERIAN PARTY.

Let any Man of Common sense Judge from hence, whether the Presbyterians were the Constituent Members of the Rump: for if they had, why shou'd Presbytery have been oppos'd by them? Why shou'd they have imprison'd the most Astive of the Presbyterian Members? And why shou'd Presbyterians give always so much Opposition to the Rump, and all their Proceedings? And yet 'twas this very Rump, that erected the pretended High-Court of Justice for trying the King. The Excluded Members Print a Protestation against the Proceedings of the Rump as void and null in themselves, for which they were persecuted by 'em.

And the Reader may judge whether a Rump from which the Prefbyte ians were excluded, wou'd appoint Presbyterians Judges to try the King; or whether Presbyterians were fit Tools for executing that Vilany which they had with so much danger and Prejudice to then solves opposed; let the Characters of all the King's Judges be try'd, many of whom were the chief Sectarian Officers of the Army, who had given Birth to the whole, and then let us see whether they were Presbyterians or no.

While they are proceeding to the King's Tryal, the Presbyterians protest against it. Bates giving an Account of that Tryal says

[4] 'In

Chap. 1. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part 2. (n) In the mean time Opposition is given to it by almost all the Presbyterian Ministers of the City of London, and by many more out of many Provinces, and even by some of the Independents, in their Sermons from the Pulpit, Conferences, Letters of Admonition, Supblications, Protestations, and Remonstrances publish'd to the World. They obtest 'em, that they wou'd not embrew their Hands and ' involve the Kingdom in the Guilt of the Royal Blood, against the tremendous Obligations of so many Oaths, against the Public and Private Faith confirm'd with Declarations and Promises, against the Laws of Nations, and the Sacred Dictates of the Holy Scripture and Religion; and against the profit of the Common-wealth.

I shall here insert some Parts of three of those Remonstrances or Declarations of the Presbyterians, adducing one out of each Kingdom, from which the Reader may judge of the rest. For England, let the following part of a Vindication of the Ministers of the Gospel in and about LONDON, from the unjust Aspersions cast upon their former Actings for the Parliament, as if they bad promoted the bringing of the King to Capital Punishment &c. be duly consider'd.

When we first did engage with the Parliament, (which we did not till call'd thereunto) we did it with Loyal Hearts and " Affection towards the King and his Posterity; not incending the least burt to his Person, but to stop his Party from doing farther hurt to the Kingdom; not to bring his Majesty to Justice (as some now speak) but to put him into a better Capacity to do Justice: To remove the Wicked from before him, that his Throne might be establish'd in Righteousness; not to Dethrone and Destroy him, which (we much sear) is the ready way to the destruction of all his Kingdoms.

That which put any of us on at first to appear for the Parliament was, The Propositions and Orders of the Lords and Commons in Parliament (June 10. 1642.) for bringing in of Mony and Plate &c. Wherein they assure us, that whatsoever shou'd be brought in thereupon, shou'd not at all be employ'd upon any other Occa- Part 2: sion than to maintain The Protest ant Religion, the King's Authority, bis Person and his Royal Dignity, the free Course of Justice, the Laws of the Land, the Peace of the Kingdom, and the Privileges of Parliament, against any force which shall oppose them.

(u) vide Elench. p, 11. Reclamant interea Ministri Præsbyteriani, Londinenjes s sere omnes, et ex plurimis Provinciis plures, imo ex Independentium partibus ononnulli, Concionibus e suggestis, Colloquiis, Literis Monicoriis, Libellis Suppli-1 cibus, Protestationibus et Remonstranciis publice divulgatis. Obtestantur, no contra

And in this we were daily confirm'd and encourag'd more and more, by their many subsequent Declarations and Protestations, which we held our felves bound to believe, knowing many of them to be godly and Conscientious Men, of Public Spirits, zealously promoting the Common Good, and laboring to free this Kingdom from Tyranny and Slavery, which some evil Instruments about the King endeavor'd to bring upon the Nation.

As for the present Actings at Westminster, since the time that so many of the Members were, by force, fecluded, divers imprison'd and others thereupon withdrew from the House of Commons, (& there not being that Conjunction of the two Houses as heretofore) we are WHOLLY UNSATISFY'D therein, because we conceive them to be so far from being warranted by sufficient Authority, as that, in our Apprehensions, they tend to an Actual Alteration (if not Subversion) of that which the Honorable House of Commons, in their Declaration of April 17. 1646. have taught us to call the fundamental Constitution and Government of this Kingdom, which they therein assure us, (if we understand them) they wou'd never alter.

Yea, we held our selves bound in Duty to God, Religion, the King, Parliament and Kingdom, to profess before God, Angels and Men, that we verily believe that which is now so much sear'd to be in Agitation, the taking away the Life of the King, in the prefent way of Tryal, is not only, not agreeable to any Word of God, the Principles of the Protestant Religion, (never as yet stain'd with THE LEAST DROP OF THE BLOOD OF A KING) or the FUNl i 2 DAMEN-contra tot juramenturum horrendas Obligationes, contra fidem publicam, privatam, Declarationibus, Pollicitationibus Communitam, contra leges Gentium, contra Sacræ Scripturæ & Religionis Sanctiora Dictamina, imo contra Reipublicæ Utilitatem manus suas & Regnum Cruore Regio commaculent, Scoti per Delegatos facta Protestatione contra nituntur.

244 Chap. 1: The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part 2

of this Kingdom; but contract ry to them, as also to the Oath of Allegiance, the Protestation of May 5. 1641. and the Solemn League and Covenant; From all which Engagements, we know not any Power on Earth, able to absolve us or others.

Therefore, according to that our Covenant, we do in the name of the Great God, (to whom all must give a strict Account) WARN and EXHORT ALL who either more immediately belong to our respective Charges, or any way depend on our Ministry, or to whom we have administred the said Covenant (that we may not by our likesize suffer them to run upon that highly in of Perjury) to keep close to the Ways of God, and ligion, the Laws, and their Vows, in their constant the true Resorm'd Religion, the Fundamental Constitute Government of this Kingdom, (not suffering them-

The Commissioners of Scotland entred their Protestation against the King's Tryal and Murder, the following part whereof I shall here insert,— We understand, that after many Members of the House of Commons have been imprison'd and secluded; and also without, and against the Consent of the house of Peers, by a single Act of yours alone; Power is given to certain Persons of your own Number of the Army, and some others to proceed against his Majesty's Person; in order thereinto, he was brought upon Saturday last in the afternoon, before this new Extraordinary Court; Wherefore we do in the Name of the Parliament of Scotland, for their Vindication from talse Aspersions and Calumnies; Declare, that they they are not satisfy'd with his Majesty's Concessions in the late Treaty at Newsort, in the life of Wight, especially in the Matters of Religion, and are resolv'd not to crave his Restitution

Under King Charles I.

Chap. 1.

to his Government, before Satisfaction be given by him to his Part. 2. Kingdoms, yet they do all UNANIMOUSLY WITH ONE VOICE (not one Meinber excepted) discluim the least, knowledge of, or accession to the late Proceedings of the army here against his Majesty; and sincerely profess, that 'twill be a great Grief un-6 to their Hearts, and lye heavy upon their Spirits, if they shill ' see their trusting of his Mijesty's Parlia, to the Honorable Houses of the Pailiament of England, to be made use of to his Ruine so far contrary to the Declar'd Intentions of the Kingdom of Scotland, and folemn Professions of the Kingdom of England, and to the end it may be manifest to the World, how much they abominate and detest so horrida Design against his Majesty's Person; We do in the Name of the Parliament and Kingdom of Scotland, hereby declare THEIR DISSENT from the said Proceedings, and THE * TAKING AWAY HIS MAJESTY'S LIFE: and Protest, that as they are altagether free from the same, so they may be free from all Evils, Miseries, Confusions, and Cilamities that may follow thereupon to these distracted Kingdoms. January 22. 1649.

Lothidn. Fo. Chiesly. William Glendoning

Besides the above Protestation in Name of the whole Kingdom of Scotland, the General Assembly of that Church, in their Letter to King Charles 2, dated August 6. 1649. sully and feelingly express'd their Detestation of the barbarous Murder of his Royal Father; The Letter it self will be inserted at large in the next Chapter, to which the Reader is referred.

As for Ireland, the Presbytery of Belfast read in their several Pulpits a Paper which they had fram'd Feb. 15. 1643. Intitul'd, a necissary Representation of the present Evils and Imminent Dangers to Religion, Laws and Liberties, arising from the late and present Practices of the Sectarian Party in ENGLAND and their Avertors; the following part whereof I shall here transcribe,—— Again it's more than manifest, that they feek not the Vindication; but Extirpation of Laws and Liberties; as appears by their seizing upon the Person of the King; and at their Pleasure removing him from place to place, not only without the

Chap. 1. The Loyalty of Presbyterians 246

Part 2. Consent (if we missake not) but against a direct Ordinance of Parliament; Their violent surprizing, imprisoning and secluding. many of the most Worthy Members of the Honorable House of Commons; directly against the declar'd Privilege of Parliament; an Action certainly without a Parallel in any age, and their Purpoles of Abolishing all Parliamentary Power for the future, and establishing a Representative, as they call it, instead thereof.

'Neither hath their fury stopt here, but without all Rule or Example, being but private Men, have proceeded to the Tryal of the King; against both the Interest and Protestation of the Kingdom of Scotland, and the former public Declarations of both Kingdoms; and (besides their violent haste, rejecting any Desences) with Cruel Hands they put him to Death: An Act so HORRIBLE, as no HIS TO-* RY DIVINE or HIIMAN, ever had a PRECEDENT of the like.

'These and other Detestable Insolencies may abundantly convince every unbyass d Judgment, that the present Practices of the Sectaries and their Abettors do directly overturn the Laws and Liberties of the Kingdom; root out all Lawful and Supreme Magistracy; the 'just Privileges whereof we have Sworn to maintain) and introduce a fearful Confusion and Lawless Anarchy.

When we seriously consider these things, we e cannot but declare and manifest our Dislike and Detestation of such Unwarrantable Practices directly subverting our Covenant, Religion, Laws, and Liberties; and as Watchmen seriously to warn all be Lovers of Truth, and the well-affected to the Covenant, careful-' ly to avoid Complyance with, or not bearing Witness against such horrid Insolencies; lest partaking with them in their Sins, they

he also Partaker with them in their Plagues.

The Representation of the Presbytery of Belfast had been adduc'd by the Author of the Parallel to prove the Innocence of the Dissenters in Ireland; to which our Author makes a very singular Reply, such as I believe, few but himself wou'd have thought of; 'There were also (says be p. 17) in the very same Year several more made in England and Scotland, by the Presbyterians to the very same puropose, and with as great Virulency against the Sectaries in England for their Proceedings, and particularly for their Murdering the King But I can by no means conclude with that Author, that the Presbye sery of Belfast's Disclaiming that Fact and Railing at the Sectaries, is any Argument at all for their not being concern'd in the Counsels of Part 2. those Times. Because the same Argument is full as strong for the · Presbyverians of Scotland and England, who in the very same Year made their Representation to King Charles II. to the very same purpose; ——— Thus it is evident, That the Presbyterians thro' the three Kingdoms did with one voice loudly Declaim against the Sectaries, as Authors of the King's Murder.

If by the Councils of those times our Author means the Councils for Murdering the King and the Subversion of Monarchy; the Argument fully proves that neither the Presbyterians of England, Scotland, nor. Ireland were concerned in them; but that they all oppos'd 'em to the utmost of their Power. But if he means the Councils us'd in the Parliament's defensive war against the King, that's nothing to the Purpose; for it was never pretended that the Presbyterians were not concern'd in these Councils, for they own it, and look'd upon their concern in those Councils to be lawful and Jukisiable for the Reasons above mentioned; indeed the Presbyterians in Ireland had other work to do, than to embroil themselves in the Debates between the King and Parliament; for while the greatest heat arose and was a carrying on in England between the Royalists and Parliamentarians; the Presbyterians in Ireland had the Bloody Irish Rebels to fight against: and were willing to take assistance from either the King's or Parliament's Forces against the Common Enemy; and this is the Reason of that assertion of the author of the Parallel which our author do's so much mistake and quarrel with, viz. that the Difsenters in Ireland were left as a Sanctuary, to which the Duke of Ormond and the Royal Party retreated &c. Against this offertion he produceth the Declaration of the Presbytery of Bangor, anno 1649. Remonstrating against the Duke of Ormand and my Lord of Airds their taking Commission from King Charles 2d (of which afterwards) which is quite another case and does not in the least disprove what the Author of the Parallel intended; for he speaks of the Assistance given by the Presbyserians in Ireland to Ormand and the Royal Party against the Irish, in the time of King Charles 1.

The Author of the Parallel had alledged Milton's abusing the Presbytery of Belfast for their Representation, as a farther confirmation of their Innocence, and our Author gives the same Reply to it as to the former, viz. that Milton abus'd the Scots Assembly as much as be

Chap. 1. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part 2. did them (p. 18); and is not that still a good Proof of his looking on the Assembly and them too to be Enemies to the Rump and their Pro-

ccedi gs against the King?

Our Author, with a design probably to invalidate these Arguments, seems to please himself with a Quotation of Dugdale, whom he introduceth speaking thus, (p. 17.) I cannot deny but as soon as this hel-'lish Murcher was committed, many of the Presbyterians did loudly Disclaim against it, seeming as much to wash their hands of the guilt as Pilate did, from the Death of our Saviour." 'Tis plain from the above Accounts that the Presbyterians oppos'd the first Projects of this hellish Murder, and therefore 'tis base in any to offer to insiduate the contrary; and seeing they did not Sentence the King to Death, as Pilate did our Saviour, but with all their might oppos'd his being brought to Tryal, the Comparison is too edious to be made or countenanc'd by any Christian, or Man of knowledge. If then the Presbyterians must be excluded the Parliament, before the King's Judges cou'd be appointed, if the King'. Judges were not Presbyterians, and if the Presbyterians had no hand in the Sentence against the King nor its Execution; but did openly and boldly remonstrate against every step that was taken to effect that horrid Murther, where Prisons, Reproaches, and ruine were all the Reward they cou'd expect from the furious Army and Party that Govern'd those hellish Councils: can any thing but either the height of Malice, or the greatest of Ignorance, persist in such scandalous and unchristian Libels to arraign their unstained Innocence?

But, says cur Author, (p. 18) 'The Presbyterians sirst murdered him in his political Capacity, as a prelude to the murther of his · Person 'Our Author atter his vsual manner thinks it wou'd affront the self-evidence of his Mugisterial assertions, to vouchsafe the least additional Proof in this case. The 'King's Political Capacity is his Capacity of ruling his Subjects, and protecting them in their Religion, Liberty, and Property, according to the Laws of the Kingdom, which do at once limit his Prerogative and provide for their - Security. Now if his evil Counsellors persuaded him to encroach upon Keligion and the Liberty of the Subject, contrary to the Fundamental Laws, and to stretch his Preregative beyond the Laws (as I have fully proved they did) then it was THEY and not the PRES-BYTERIANS, who' Murdered him in his political Capicity. If the the Papists and High-styers under Buckingham, Land and the Heads Part 2. of that Faction, put the King out of capacity of ruling in the hearts of his Subjects, and protecting them in what the Laws gave them a right to, by advancing Arbitrary Government, and making way through all the Barriers of the Public safety and good of the Subject; they, and their Successors who abett their principles must account for that Mugder, which none but themselves Committed, and which all sober Protestants of both Communions; Episcopal, and Presbyterian, always oppos'd. As to the Kings Imprisonment, the General Assembly in their Declaration in July 28th 1648, express'd their Dissatisfaction with it: Let the Reader peruse their own words which I have transcrib'd, (p. 228) The Presbytery of Belfast, in their Representation (which I have inserted p. 245, 246.) did likewise declare against it it was known to have been the Act and Deed only of the Sectarian Party, and therefore it is very unfairly charg'd by our Author upon the Presbyterians,

Chap. 2. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part	2.
5

250

CHAP. II.

The Loyalty of Presbyterians Anring the Reign of King CHARLES II:

I Shall consider this Reign. 1. From its beginning Anno 1648, to the Restauration, Anno 1660. and 2 dly from thence to its Conclusion.

During the first Period, the Presbyterians are charg'd by our Author with great Disloyalty in their opposing the King's Authority; Commission and Restauration: to support the charge, he adduceth a Declaration of the Presbytery at Bangor in Ireland, July 7th 1649. Of all the Accusations and Arguments used against Dissenters in either of his Letters, this of the Bangor-Declaration is set off with the greatest Noise, hardest Words and loudest Triumph. He has not thought fit to Insert it with his Marginal Observations upon it in that place of his first Letter, where according to the Order of time it came naturally to be consider'd viz. in the beginning of this Reign, but Subjoins it to the whole Letter, that the Reader may take his leave of him, full of this rare discovery; for which he must be prepared by the distinguishing manner wherein 'tis introduc'd in the Title-Page, and some Quotations from it and reflections upon 'em with which that Letter is stuff'd. For of 22 Pages (which are the whole) 3 viz. the 12th, 15th, 16th, 19th, and 20th refer to it, with such Abusive Language as is scarce Justifiable even when one Speaks Truth Truth, but far less when one do's so unluckily stumble into bold mi-Part 2. Rakes.

He thinks this Declaration such an uncontested evidence of Disloyalty, as effectually refutes that part of the Address of the Presbyterian Ministers in the North of Ireland to the Queen Anno 1708, which Asserts their Untainted Loyalty in all turns of Government to have been the natural consequence of their known Principles, for which he represents them to be Men that will stick at nothing to gain a point, amusing the World with Gross and Palpable misrepresentations; calls it a resin'd piece of Assurance, and a gross Imposition upon the Queen and all Mankind, p. 16. Shou'd our Author think fit to give us the Definition of a notorieus Knave or Villain, cou'd he give it in more severe and harsh Terms than those he has bestowed so Liberally upon the Presbyterian Ministers in the North of Ireland? What Knave can be greater than he that will stick at nothing to gain a point? In his second Letter he Repeats his Invectives against this Declaration and the Presbytery who made it, in divers places, they are no less than Infamous Tongues and Pens in his Account, p. 7.

He is so very fond of Magnifying the crime of this Declaration and three Petitions from the Presb, terians in the North of Ireland to the General Assembly of Scotland before the year 1648 (which have been already considered ) that to gain that point he has destroyed the greatest part of both his Letters, and by his own Confession fully acquitted the Presbyterians of any other Disloyalty than what may be infer'd from the aforesaid Declaration and Petition: his words are these, p. 1, 2. And the truth is, had it not been for those declarations, and for what records the Kirk of Scotland hath pree lerved of the Kirk of Ireland, her younger Sifter that hath no breafts, he might have past with us now for that Virgo Intalta, that Untainted Virgin in her Loyalty which they represent her 'Now these Declarations he mentions are that of Bangor, and that of my Lord of Airds; as appears evidently by the Preceding Paragraph, and these records (as his Marginal Notes shews) of the Kirk of Ireland preferv'd by the Kirk of Scotland, are the aforesaid 3 Petitions Hereupon one wou'd think that our Author might and shou'd have spared his pains in drawing up a Libel against Presbyterian Loyalty in a great many particulars that have not the least relation to these Declarations and Petitions; for if the Kirk of Ireland (as he's pleas'd to K k 2 term

14

Chap. 2. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part 2. term Presbyterians there) might have pas'd for an untainted Virgin in her Loyalty, had it not been for the Diclarations and Petitions, for what reason could she pass for such unless it be for this, because their can be nothing elle said against her Loyalty but what is grounded upon these Declarations and Petitions? if she can be justly taxed with any Difloyalty in other points, then what our Author has Advanced here is not true; and if the cannot, then we must lay afide the rest of his Libel as ground tess and calumnious.

But to come to the Declaration it self, I shall endeavor to set the whole matter in a clear light by enquiring into 4 things, 1st, The occasion and scope of this Declaration of the Presbytery at Bangor, that we may see against what and against whom it was level'd. 2h, The Reasons which are offer'd in the Declaration it self to justifie it. 3ly, The Demonstrative evidences we have of the Loyalty of the Presi bytery who fram'd it, and of all the other Presbyterians, from the Murther of King Charles the first to the Restauration of his Son & the Royal Family, 4/4. The Ovjections of our Author against it.

As to the first, viz. The occasion and scope of this Declarations. that we may see against what and against whom it was level'd; we must look back into the latter part of the former unhappy Reign, wherein we'll find the Posture of Affairs in Ireland to have been thus. Upon the breaking out of the Irish Rebellion October 23 d, 1641, the then Lord justices of Ireland, finding that the Protestant Forces in that Kingdom were unable to make head against the Enerale, wrote Importunately to England for a speedy supply of Men, Mony, and Arms, to oppose the Rebels, and passicularly proposed that in regard the Scots cou'd be more easily transported over to the North of Ireland than the English, Methods might be taken to bring forces from Scotland to their Assistance; whereupon, Articles and Propositions were asseated to by King Charles of and the Parliaments of England and Scotland, for transporting 10000 Scots into Ireland, to fight against the bloody Irish. By the third of these Articles it is provided that they have the command and keeping of the Town and Castle of Carrickfergus, with power to them to remain still within the same, or toenlarge their Quarters, and to go abroad in the Country upon such occasions, as their officers in their discretion shall think Expedient for the good of that King iom. And if it shall be thought fit, that Part 2:

any Regiments or Troops in that province shall join with them, that they receive orders from the Communication of their Forces. See Husbands's Collections. p. 57.

In pursuance of which Articles, 10000 of the Scots went into Ireland and were possessed of Carrickfergus as their Head Quarters; the several Regiments brought over their Min sters alongst with them, who beingof the Presbyterian Persuasion did associate for the exercise of Discipline; and such ministers of the same Persuasion as then remain'd in the Kingdom join'd with them and founded a Presbytery which mex at Carricksergus, July 10th in the Year 1642. And this was that very Preshytery wnich fram'd the Representation at Belfast, Feb. 15th, 1648. against the Murder of King Charles I, and the Sectarian courses, and who also fram'd the Declaration at Banger, now under consideration. This Presbytery received Applications from such places of the Country as were of their Persuasion, and Planted Ministers in divers Congregations, and many of the Gentlemen of the Country fell in with them, of whom the Lord Viscount of Airds was one, and the Lord Viscount Claneby, another. Both these noble Lords show'd an early Zeal for the Interest of the Presbytery. For on the 19th day of July 1642 (which was but nine Days after their first meeting) My Lord of Airds sent Captain Mc Gill to the Presbytery then met at Carrickfergus with a Message to them, promising that HE WOll'D JOYN WITH THEM IN DISCIPLINE; and my Lord Claneboy writ 'em a Letter, deliver'd the very same day, and giving the same assurance for him-Relfas my Lord of Airds had done by his Mcsige.

After the Civil War broke out in England between the King and Parliament, the British Protestants then in Ireland, as well Inhabitants as Auxiliaries who came to desend them, begun to consider which side they would take Part with: And here it must be own'd, the Presbyterians were generally in the Interest of the Parliament, and those of the Episcopal Communion were as generally on the King's side: But for divers Years, these Parties in Ireland did not engage against one another; but were employed against the common Enemy, the Irish Rebels. But tho' those in Ireland who took part with the King (the Head of whom was the Noble Marquiss of Ormand) did not for divers Years commit any Open Acts of Hostility against the Parliamentarians there, yet they did several things that were very disgusting

Chap. 2. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part 2. and prejudicial to them: the chief whereof was their repeated Attempt of a coalition with the Irish; which produc'd a Cessation concluded with them in 1643, and a peace in 1646, and mother in 1648. The Design of the Marquiss was to have carried over i to England a good number of the Irish, to strengthen the King's Forces against the Parliament. The Parliament of England taking the Alarm from this intended Irish Invasion, begun to put their Party in Ireland upon Methods to prevent it. Their Commissioners were Active against Ormand's Party; and the Irish proving Treacherous to him in breaking the Articles of the Cessation and Peace in 1646, he was not able to make a stand against the Parliamentarian Forces, and so had no choice left him, but one of two viz: whether he wou'd submit to the Irish or to the Parliamentarians; and he, like a wise and an honest Man, prefer'd the latter, who gave him honourable Terms: upon which he left 'em in possession of Dublin, and went for England, Anno 1647. After he had been in France, and taken the best advice he cou'd for retrieving the King's Affairs, he returns into England, enters into a concert with some of the Scots Commissioners that they should raise Forces in Scotland and he in Ireland, and that both should meet in England and joyn the King there: According to which Plan, the Scots went into England under Duke Hamilton's Command, the fate whereof is known, and the Marquis Lands in Ireland in September 1648, presently sets on Foot a New Treaty with the Irish, but cou'd not bring it to a conclusion before the 17th of January, and then it was too late for his purpose; for the King was Murder'd the 30th of the same Month. Asson as the fatal News of the King's Death came to Ireland, every Party begun to exert themselves according to their several Principles.

The Marquis of Ormand makes an Essay to bring his New Confederates into the Interest of the young Kirg; but Owen Ro O Neil having retused to submit to the Peace, exceedingly embaras'd his Affairs and perplexed all his Measures. The Party that Commanded for the Rump in England adhered to their Masters, and wou'd by no means Incorporace with him and the Irish; the Scots Forces refus'd to joyn with him too, tho' they were strenuous Assertors of Monarchy. The Presby tery emits their Representation of the 15th of February, and endeavor to bring Sir Charles Coot into their Measures, but in vain, as appears by his Answer to the Presbytery dated March 7th, publish'd in Burlas's History, p. 207.

Under King Charles II.

They Treat with Collonel Monk in April, but with small Satisfacti- Part 2. on, the Treaty with him was Managed by a Meeting, which consisted of three forts of constituent Members, viz. the chief Officers of the Army, call'e, the Council of War: Some Gentlemen in Name of the Country, called, the Committee of the Country; and a Committee of the Pre-bytery. These 3 join'd their Councils and conferr'd together about the Demands to be infifted on, and the Answers to be given to Collonel Monk. The Proposition's of this Joint Meeting, and Monk's Anfwers can all be produc'd, with which I shan't trouble the Reader any farther than as they relate to the Affair in hand. He refus'd to quit the Interest of the Rump, upon which the Treaty broke off.

Having seriously consider'd what they were obliged in conscience and Interest to do, they concluded TO A MAN to adhere to Monarchy, and particularly to affert the Title of King Charles II, as their lawful Sovereign and natural Prince; and were deliberating about the Choice of a Commissioner to be sent to him : but in the mean time, they confidered that he had all alongst afferted his Fathers cause in the Civil War, seem'd yet to pursue the same measures, & therefore they look'd upon him as being Materially in a State of war with his Subjects. And they were for waiting for the issue of the Scots treating with him, before they wou'd put themselves entirely in his hands; especially considering that all who declar'd for his coming to the immediate and full exercise of his Regal power in Ireland, had submitted to a dishonorable and dangerous peace with the Irish destructive of Religion and property, and that they must fall in with that peace, if they declar'd for the immediate and full exercise of his Regal power. In all which conclusions the Lord of Airds joined with them in Letters to their friends in the Lagan and other parts of the Kingdom, to persuade 'em to adhere to the said declaration; notwithstanding whereof the said Lord took a commission from the King to be Chief Commander of the Forces in Ulster, to obey the Marquiss of Ormand, and incorporate his forces with the Irish Rebells.

The Presbytery being surprized at this sudden and unexpected change, fram'd their Declaration at Bangor, for preventing the Mischievous consequences which they apprehended might ensue, to the destruction of Religion and Liberty, from the execution of that Commission which My Lord of Airds had taken from King Charles 2d, and from the peoples submitting to the peace in 1648, and incorpo-

Part 2 rating with the Irish Rebels. In the Declaration it self you have the Narrative and occasion which is short, and gives a general hint of those things I have mention'd, sufficiently intelligible to these who were then alive, and who knew the History of their own times; but I thought it necessary to explain it, by the above-account, to those who Nive at such a Distance from the times when these affairs were transactæd.

After they had represented the evil tendency of that Commission and of the Marquis of Ormond's Peace with the Irish, they declare themselves in these words. All these things make clear as the beams of the Sun, the unlawfulness of his Authority by such a Commission &c. For this cause as the Ambassadors of Christ, we beseech our people in his stead not to join hands with such a Cause, or to Meddle with them who are given to change, and particularly we charge all who have renewed the Covenant, and have entred into a Declaration of the Army and Country, not to join in executing fuch a Commission, by taking charge in the Army under the present command, or serving them either as Officers or Soldiers &c. We do also in the Name of Jesus Christ warn the people of our charge to keep themselves free from all complyance with their ungodly course, either by speaking favorably of them, acknowledging the Authority of the present command under the Marquis of Ormand, and the Lord of Airds, by Imposing of Cess upon others for maintaining their unlawful power, or by constant obeying their orders, in paying Cess unto their Army &c.

2dly, I shall consider the Reasons offer'd in the Declaration it self to justifie it. And these are reducible to two heads; if, The Equity and Justice of the long Parliament's Defensive War against King Charles 1. 2 dly, the Illegality and Pernicious Consequences of the Asq ticles of peace with the Irish Rebells in 1548.

As to the first, I must remit the Reader to the reasons formerly, given from p. 169 to p. 224, for justifying the Parliament and those who sided with them in that war; which I there represented, together with the reasons on the other hand; leaving the Reader to form a judgment without giving my own opinion in that maiter: All I have to do here, is to shew that the same Reasons were of equal force to justifie the Bangor-declaration, and that the Declarers went upon the same foundation, upon which the Long Parliament justified their desensive Arms, which will appear by considering Part 2. the following paragraph in the Declaration. For the first distrerence (say they) between the King and his people was touching his

Absolute and unlimited power in Civil things, and his Adherence to Prelacy and Maintaining their power, for which both our lateSovereign and his Majesty who now is did raise arms against their Subjects,

& to this day that same quarrel is avouched & owned by his Majesty, and all his Commissions tend to the bringing him to that power, which was

' justly denied to bis Royal Father.

1

If it was just to oppose the illegal and Arbitrary Methods of the preceding Reign, can any body blame those who demanded some rea-Jonable Security from the young King, against their being drawn into a Precedent in his Reign; especially, considering that he himself had acted a part in those things, which (they apprehended) did justify their relisting his Father by force of Arms. The Long Parliament was carrying on a Treaty with his Father in the Isle of Wight, and had brought Matters to a bearing, so as to afford them a prospect of a lasting and honourable Peace, until the Sectarian Party over-turned all, and destroyed both King and Parliament. Now, it was the Sense of the Presbytery and of those who adhered to them, that the New King ought in all Reason to have given his Subjects that Satisfaction as to have assur'd them, he wou'd make good at least the substance of his Father's Concessions, which if he refused to do, they cou'd not but look upon themselves and the rest of the subjects to be just under the same Pressures and Difficulties under him as under his Royal Father; and consequently, that as they thought the Commissions granted by his Father, while in a State of War with his People, for subduing them and their Liberties, were void and not Obligatory, so they concluded that the Commissions granted by the Son, while in the same Circumstances and for the same ends, were also void, and might be lawfully disobeyed. And such were the Commissions granted to the Marquis of Ormond and Lord of Airds: Which is plain from what my Lord of Airds says in his Declaration; viz. That the King's Commission did ever procure respect and obesience until the worst of Times; by which he meant those who disobeyed the Commissions of King Charles I. during the Civil War: And this makes it plain, that he accepted this Commission from King Charles II, on the same Terms and Principles with those who accepted Commissions LI

258 Chap. 2. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part"2. from his Royal Father while at War with his People; and therefore the former might be as lawfully Disregarded as the latter, seeing the Commissions of K. Charles 2. were founded upon the same Principles and promoted the same designs with those granted by his Father during the War, which proves the young King to be Materially in a State of War against all those with whom his Father had been at War.

What exceedingly strengthens the Argument is, that King Charles 2d being a young Prince under the Influence of evil Counsellors who had ruin'd his Father, might (if he had come to the immediate and full exercise of his Regal Power, without any previous Articles with his People) have carried his Resentments so far against those who Manag'd the War against his Father and Himself, as to have destroyed a Multitude of his best Subjects, enslaved all the rest, and exceeded his Father in Arbitrary Power, instead of Correcting and Amending the Errors of his Reign. When the fear of all this was so well grounded, and his Commissions went upon a Foot that tended to bring it to pass, the great Law of Self-preservation will go very far to justify the Presbytery's Declaring against such Commissions, which were 10 full of Danger to the public safety.

Let the second period of this Reign, viz. from his Restauration to his Death (of which afterwards) be a witness for Presbyterians. from whence all wise men who love Religion and Liberty may be judges, whether the Presbyterians had not good reason to insist upon the King's providing reasonably for both, before he shou'd have all thrown at his Mercy. Let the Popish Plot, Popish Councils, Popish Succession, and Encroachments on Liberty, which were all supported by the Court, Declare whether is had not been better for Britain & Ireland that they had Insisted (as Presbyterians wou'd have had 'em) upon such terms with the young King, as wou'd have secur'd them against all those Mischiefs.

The Jecond reason offer'd in the Declaration, to justify it, is founded upon the Illegality and pernicious tendency of the Articles of the Peace made with the Irish Rebells in 1648: for speaking of the Lord of Airds's Commission, they say ' it is to receive commands from the Marquiss of Ormand &c. who hath made a peace with the Rebells destructive to Religion; unto which peace the Lord of Airds contrary to his many professions and subscriptions has now join'd bimself.

Now

Now if this Peace was illegal, destructive to Religion, Liberty, and Property; then all Commissions to support this Peace, and Incorporate with the Irish Rebels according to the Articles thereof were of themselves null and void; and therefore might lawfully without the least infringment of Loyalty and Duty be opposed and resisted: but such were the Commissions granted to the Mar quiss of Ormand and Lord of Airds.

To illustrate this Argument, 'twill be necessary to lay before the Reader all the Articles of this peace, they are to be found at large in Cox's History appendix 43; and abridg'd in Burlace, page 205. And because there are divers things in the Articles at large which are not so much as hinted at, or but darkly express'd in Burlace's abridgment, I have transcrib'd such of 'em at large out of Cox, as are most Material for enlightning the present debate; and as to the rest, have contented my self with Burlace's abridgment. Those transcrib'd out of Cox have this mark it presix'd to them.

The Articles of the Peace. 1648.

hat the Roman Catholicks of Ireland have free exercise of Religion, all Penalties taken off, not oblig'd to the Oath of Supremacy, to ENJOY ALL CHURCHES AND CHURCH-LIV-INGS THEY HAVE IN PRESENT POSSESSION, and the Exercise of Invisdiction therein exercise of Jurisdiction therein.

† 2. Item, 'tis concluded, accorded, and agreed upon, by and between the sid Partys, and his Majesty is further graciously pleas'd, that a free Parliament shall be held in this Kingdom within six months after the date of these Articles of Peace, or as soon after as Thomas Lord Viscount Dillon of Costologh Lord President of Connaught, Donnogh Lord viscount Muskery, Francis Lord Barron of Athenry, Alexander Mac Donnel Esq. Six Lucas Dillon Knight, Six Nicholas Plunket Knight, Six Richard Barnerall Baronet, Jeffery Browne, Donnogh O Callaghan, Tyrlagh O Neile, Miles Reily, and Gerrald Fennel Esquires, or the Major part of them will desire the same, so that by possibility it may be held, and that in the mean time, and until the Articles of these presents, agreed to be pissed in Parliament, be accordingly passed, the same SHALL BE INVIOLABLY

Chap. 2: The Loyalty of Presbyterians

LABLY OBSERV'D as to the matters therein contain'd, as if they were enacted in Parliament; And that in case a Parliament be not call'd and held in this Kingdom within two years next after the date of these Articles of Peace, then his Majestie's Lord Lieutenant, or other his Majesties chief Governor or Governors of this Kingdom for the time being, will, at the request of the said Thomas Lord Viscount Dillon, &c. or the major part of them, call a General Assembly of the Lords and Commons of this Kingdom, to attend upon the said Lord Lieutenant, or other his Majesti's chief Governor or Governors of this Kingdom for the time being, in some convenient place for the better setling of the affairs of the Kingdom; and 'tis further concluded, accorded and agreed by and between the said Parties, that all matters that by these Articles are agreed upon to be passed in Parliament, shall be transmitted into England, according to the usual form, to be passed in the faid Parliament, and that the said Acts so agreed upon, and so to be passed, shall receive no disjunction or alteration bere, or in England; Provided that nothing shall be concluded by both, or either of the said Houses of Parliament, which may bring prejudice to any of his Majestics Protestant Party; or their Adherents, or to his Mae jesti's Roman-Cathelie Subjects, or their adherents, other than such things as upon this treaty are concluded to be done, or such things as may be proper for the Committee of Privileges of either or both Houses to take Cognizance of, as in such cases heretofore hath been accustomed, and other than such matters as his Majesty will be graciously pleas'd to declare his further pleasure in, to be pass'd in Parliament for the satisfaction of his Subjects, and other than such things as shall be propounded to either or both Houses by his Majestie's Lord Lieutenant, or other chief Governor or Governors of this Kingdoom for the time being, during the said Parliament, for the advancement of his Majesties Services and the peace of the Kingdom; which clause is to admit no construction which may trench upon the Articles of Peace, or any of 'em; and that both Houses of Parliament may confider what they shall think convenient touching the Repeal or Suspension of the Statute commonly call'd Poyning's Act, Entitul'd, An Ast that no Parliament be holden in that land until the Acts be certified into England.

3. That ALL LAWS made in the Parliament of England

Ence

- fince 1641. in blemish of the Catholicks, are at the next Parliament Part 2. to be VACATED.
- 4. ALL INDICTMENTS against any Catholicks since 1641. We be VACATED.
- f 5. hem, It is like wife concluded, accorded & agreed, and his Majesty is graciously pleased, that as soon as possible may be, ALL IMPEDIMENTS which may hinder the said Roman Catholicks to SIT OR VOTE IN THE NEXT INTENDED PARLIA-MENT, or to choose, or to be chosen Knights, and Burgesses, to sit or vote there, shall be REMOVED, and that BEFORE the said Parliament.

6. All Debts to remain as they were February 8. 1641, Not-

7. The Estates of the Knights, Gentlemen, and Freeholders of Connaght, Clare, Thomand, Limerick, and Tipperary, be secur'd by an Act:

may erect and keep Free-schools for Education of Youths in this Kingdom, any Law or Statute to the contrary notwithstanding; and that all the matters assented unto in this Article be passed as Acts of Parliament in the said next Parliament.

† 9. 'Item, It is further concluded &c. That places of command, honor, profit and trust in his Majestie's Armies in this Kingdom shall be UPON PERFECT'ON OF THESE ARTICLES actually and by particular Instances conferr'd upon his Roman-Catholick Subjects of this Kingdom, and that upon the Distribution conferring and disposing of the places of Command, honor, profit, and trust in his Majesties Army in this Kingdom, for the suture no DIFFERENCE shall be made between the said Roman-Catholicks, and other his Majesties Subjects. But that such Distribution shall be

Part 2.

be made with equal indifferency according to their respective merits and abilities; and that all his Majesties Subjects of this Kingdom, as well Roman Catholicks as others, may for his Majesties service, and their own security, arm themselves the best they may, wherein they shall have all fitting Encouragement; and 'tis further concluded &c. That places of Command, honour, prosit, and trust in the Civil Government in this Kingdom, shall be upon passing of the bills in these Articles mention'd in the next Parliament, actually and by particular instances conferr'd upon his Majesties Roman-Catholick Subjects of this Kingdom, and that in the Distribution, conferring and disposing of the places of Command, honour, profit and trust, in the Civil Government; for the future, NO DIFFER-ENCE SHALL BE MADE between the said Roman-Catholicks, and other his Majesties Subjects, but that such Distribution shall be made with equal indifferencies, according to their respective merits and abilities, and that in the Distribution of Ministerial offices or places which now are, or hereafter shall be void in this Kinzdom, equality shall be m'd to the Roman-Catholick Natives of this Kingdom, as to other his Majesties Subjects; and that the Command of Fores, Castles, Garrisons, Towns, and other places of Importance in this Kingdom, shall be conferr'd upon his Mujesties Roman-Catholick Subjects of this Kingdom UPON PERFECTION OF * THESE ARTICLES actually and by particular instances, and that in the distribution conferring and disposal of the Forts, Garrisons, Towns and other places of importance in this Kingdom, 6 NO DIFIERENCE shall be made between his Majesties Roman 4 Catholick Subjects of this Kingdom, and other his Majesties Subicts, but that such distribution shall be made with equal indifferences, according to their respective merits and abilities: And that 4 until sull settlement in Parliament, sisteen thousand foot, and two thousand and five hundred horse of the Roman Catholicks of this * Kingdom shall be of the STANDING ARMY of this Kingdom: 4 and that until full Settlement in Parliament as atorefaid, the Lord Lieutenant or other chief Governor or Governors of this Kingdom for the time being, and the said Thomas Lord Viscount Dilton, &c. or any seven or more of them, shill D'MINISH OR ADD muto the said number, as they shall see cause from time to time.

10. That

- That the King take 12000 pound per Annum in lieu of the Court of Part. 2.
- 'all blanks to be null.
- That the depending of the Parliament of Ireland upon England, finall be as both shall agree and Rand with the Laws of Ireland.

13 'That the Council-Table meddle only with Matters of State.

- 14 That all Ass forbidding the Transport of Wool, be null'd by the next Parliament.
- or since, they may Petition, and have relief in Parliament.

16 That divers particular Lords, Knights and Gentlemen, who have been (as they conceive) wrong'd, shall now be righted.

17 That all who had their Estates taken from 'em in Cork, Youghal &.

<sup>6</sup> Dungarvan, have Restoration or Rent.

1. 18. 1tem, It is further concluded &c. That an A& of Oblivion he past in the next Parliament, to extend to all his Majesties Subjects of this Kingdom, and their adherents, of ALL TREASONS and Offences, CAPITAL, CRIMINAL and PERSONAL, and other Offences of what Nature, kind or quality foever, in such manner as 'if those Treasons or Offences had never been committed, perpetrated or done; That the said Act do extend to the Heirs, Children, Kindred, Executors, Administrators, Wives, Widows, Dowagers, or As-! signs of such of the said Subjects and their Adherents, who Died on, before, or since the 23d of October 1641. That the said Act do relate to the first day of the next Parliament, that the said Ast do extend to all Rodies Politick and CORPORATE, and their RES-' PECTIVE SUCCESSORS, &unto all Cities, Boroughs, Counties, Baronies, Hundreds, Towns, Villages, Tithings, and every of'em within this Kingdom, for and concerning all and every of the said Offences, or any other Offence or Offences, in them, or any of 'em committed, or done by his Majesties said Subjects or their Adherents, or any of them, before, in or since the 23d of Ottob. 1641.---19. 'That no Officer of Eminency in Ireland farm the Customs.

20. An Act to pass againgst Monopolists.

21. That the Court of Castle-Chamber be regulated.

22. That the Acts for prohibiting Plowing with Horses by the Tails, and Burning Oats in the Straw, be rull.

23. An Act for taking off the Grievances of the Kingdom.

† 24. ! Item, It is further concluded &c. That Maritime Caules may.

Part 2. may be determin'd in this Kingdom, without driving of Merchants or others to Appeal and seek Justice elsewhere; and if it shall fall out that there be Cause of an Appeal, the Party griev'd is to Appeal to his Majesty in the Chancery of Ireland, and the Sentence thereupon to be given by the Delegates, to be Definitive and not to be question'd upon any further Appeal except it be in the Parliament of this Kingdom, if the Parliament shall then be sitting, otherwise not; this to be by Act of Parliament, and until the said Parliament, the Admiralty and Maritime Causes shall be Order'd, and settled by the said Lord Lieutenant, or other chief Governor, or Governors of this Kingdom for the Time being, by and with the advice and consent of the said Thomas Lord Viscount Dillon &c. or any seven or more of them.

† 25. That no Rents be rais'd upon the Subjects, under pretence of defective Titles.

26. 'That Interest-Money be forgiven from 1641.

27. Item, It is further concluded &c. That IMMEDIATELY UPON * PERFECTION OF THESE ARTICLES, the said Thomas Lord 'Viscount Dillon, &c. shall be Authoriz'd by the said Lord Lieuteant to proceed in, Hear, Determine, and Execute, in and throughout this Kingdom, the ensuing particulars, and all the matters thereupin depending, and that such Authority, and other the Authorities hereafter mention'd shall remain of Force without revocation, alte-* ration, or diminution, UNTIL ACTS OF PARLIAMENT BE ' PASSED, according to the purport and intent of these Articles, and that in case of Death, Miscarriage, Disability to serve, by reason of fickness or other wise of any the said Thomas Lord Viscount Dillon, &c. His Majestie's Lord Lieutenant, or other chief Governor, or Governors of this Kingdom for the time being, shall Name and Au-4 thorize another in the place of such as shall be so Dead, or shall " miscarry himself, or be so Disabled, and that the same shall be such ' Person, as SHALL BE ALLOW'D OF by the said Thomas Lord Viscount Dillen, &c. or any seven or more of them then living. And that the Said Thomas Lord Viscount Dillon, &c. or any seven or more of them shall have POWER TO APPLOT, Raise, and Levy means, with indifferency and equality by way of excise or otherwise, upon all his Majesty's Subjects within the said Kingdom, their persons, Estates & Goods, towards the maintenance of such Army er

Under King Charles II. Chap. 2.

or armies, as shall be thought fit to continue, and be in pay for his Part 2. Majesty's Service, the desence of the Kingdom, and other the neces-' sary public charges thereof, and towards the maintenance of the Forts, Castles, Garrisons and towns of both, or either party, other than such of the said Forts, Garrisons, and Castles, as from time to time, until there shall be a Settlement in Parliament, shall be thought fit, by his Majesty's chief Governors of this Kingdom for the time being, BY AND WITH THE ADVICE AND CONSENT of the said Thomas Lord Viscount Dillon &c. or any seven or more of them, not to be maintain'd at the charge of the public, provided that his Majestie's Lord Lieutenant, or other chief Governor or Governors of this Kingdom for the time being, be first made acquainted with such Taxes, Levies and Excises as shall be made, and the manner of Levying thereof, and that he approve the same; and to the end that such of the Protestant Party, as shall submit to the Peace may in the several Counties where any of their Eftates lyeth, have equality and indifferency in the Assessments and Levies that shall concern their Estates in the said several Counties. It is concluded &c. That in the Directions which shall issue to any such County, for the applotting, subdividing, and levying of the said public Assisments, some of the said Protestant Party shall be joyn'd with others of the Roman-Catholic Party to that purpose, and for effecting that Service; and the said Thomas Lord Viscount Dillon, &c. or any seven or more of them shall have power to levy the Arrears of all Excises and other public Taxes impos'd by the Confederate Roman-Catholics and yet unpaid, and to CALLRECEIVERS and OTHER ACCOMPTANTS OF ALL FORMER TAXES, and ALL PUBLIC DUES, to a Just and Strict Account either by 'emselves, or by such as they or any seven or more of 'em shall name or appoint; & that the said Ld. Lieutenant or any other-chief Governor or Governors of this Kingdom for the time being, shall from time to time issue Commissions to such Person & Persons as shall be nam'd and appointed by the said Thomas Lord Viscount Dillon, &c. or any seven or more of them, for letting, fetting and improving the Estates of all such Person or Persons, as shall adhere to any Party opposing his Majestie's Authority and not submitting to the Peace, and that the Profits of such Estates shall be converted by the said Lord Lieutenant, or other chief Governor, M

266 Chap. 2. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part 2: or Governors of this Kingdom for the time being, to the Maintenance of the King's Army, and other necessary charges, until settlement by Parliament.

And that the said Thomas Lord Viscount Dillon, &c. or any seven or more of them shall have Power to Applot, RAISE and LE-'VY MEANS WITH INDIFFERENCY & EQUALITY for the buy-' ing of Arms and Ammunition, and for the entertaining of Frigots 'in such Proportion as shall be thought fit by his Majesties Lord Lieutenant, or other chief Governors of this Kingdom for the time being, by and with the advice and consent of the said Thomas Lord Viscount Dillon &c. or any seven or more of them, the said Arms and Ammunition to be laid up in such Magazines and under the Charge of such Persons as shall be agreed on, by the said Lord Lieutenant, and the said Thomas. Lord Viscount Dillon, &c. or any seven or more of them, and to be dispos'd of, and the said Frigots to be employ'd for his Majesties Service, and the public use and benefit of this Kingdom of Ireland; and that the said Thomas Lord Viscount Dillen &cc. or any seven or more of them, shall have Power to APPLOT, RAISE and LEVY MEANS with Indifferency and Equality, by way of excise or otherwise, in the several Cities, Corporate Towns, Counties and part of the Counties, now within the Quarters, and only upon the Estates of the said Confederate Roman-Catholics, ALL SUCH SUM and SUMS OF MONEY AS SHALL APPEAR to the said Thomas Lord Viscount Lillon &c. or any seven or more of 'em to be really due for and in the discharge of the public Engagements of the said Confederate Catholicks, INCURR'D OR GROWN DUE BEFORE THE CONCLU-SION OF THESE ARTICLES; and that the faid Thomas Lord Viscount Dillon, &c. or any seven or more of them shall be authoriz'd to appoint Receivers, Collectors, and all other Officers, for such Monies as shall be Asses'd, Taxed or Applotted, in putsuance of the Authorities mention'd in this Article, and for the ARREARS OF ALL. " FORMER APPLOTMENTS, TAXES and other PUBLIC DUES "YET UNPAID; and that the said ThomasLord Viscount Dillon&c. or any seven or more of them, in case of refractoriness, or delineqency may distrain and imprison, and Cause such Dilinquents to be. Distrain'd and Imprison'd. And the said Thomas Lord Viscount Dillon, &c. or any seven or more of them, make pertect Books of all such Mogies as shall be Applotted, Rais'd or Levied, out of which which Beoks they are to make several and respective Abstracts to be Part 2. deliver'd under their Hands, or the Hands of any seven or more of them to the several and respective Collectors which shall be appointed to Levy and Receive the same. And that a Duplicate of the said Books under the Hands of the said Thomas Lord Visconnt Dillon&c. or any seven or more of them, be deliver'd unto his Majestie's Lord Lieutenant, or other chief Governor or Governors of this Kingdom for the time being, whereby a perfect Account may be given, and that the said Thomas Lord Viscount Dillon, &c. or any seven or more of them, shall have POWER 10 CALL the COUNCIL and CONGREGATION, and the RESPECTIVE SUPREME COUN-CILS, and Commissioners General, APPOINTED HITHERTO from time to time by the said Confederate Roman-Catholicks, to manage their public Affairs, and all other Persons accountable, to an Account for all their Receipts and Disbursements since the begiuning of their Respective imployments under the Consederate Roman-Catholicks.

28. The Commissioners for the Catholicks that treated, agree upon such as shall be Commissioners of the Peace, and hear all Causes under ten Pound.

29. That all Governors of Towns, Castles and Places, made by the King, be with the Apprehation of the Catholick Commissioners.

30. That none of his Majosties Rents be paid, until a full settlement in Parliament.

31. That the Commissioners of Oyer and Terminer Sto try Murthers, Stealing, and all inferior Trespasses of that Nature.

32. 'That i ereafter such differences as shall arise between Subjects, be Determin'd by a Court in Ireland, not Transferr'd to England.

33. That the Roman Clergy, that behave themselves according to the Agreement, be not molested.

Lastly, That his Majesty please to Grant WHATEVER ELSE

'IS NECESSARY FOR THE ROMAN-CATHOLICKS.

The impartial Protestant reader will need little more than the serious perusal of these Articles to convince him, of their being I liegal and destructive to Religion and Liberty. For what law Divine or humane can justifie the putting of so much power into the hands of those who had Mossacred 200000 Protestants? shall so much innocent blood be sted, and no inquisition made for it? was it no injury M m 2

Chap: 2. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part 2. to the protestant Clergy nor Illegal to grant the popish rebells all Churches and Church-livings they had then in possission (which were very considerable) and the exercise of Jurisdiction therein? must all acts of Parliament passed in England against the Roman-Catholics since 1641 be repeal'd in the next Parliament, and all Indictmens against them since 1641. be vacated, must all Incapacities impos'd upon the Natives by any act of Parliament, provisos in patents or otherwise be taken off, popish Inns of Court and popish Free schools erected? must 15000 foot and 2500 house, all papists, be of the standing Army in Ireland, and all Military Employments be given with Indifferency to Papilts as well as Protestants immediately upon perfecting these Articles? Mast the King be oblig'd to ask and obtain the consent of the popish Commissioners to his Commissions for the command of Forts, Castles. Garrisons, Towns, and other places of Importance and for making lustices of the peace? must the Papists (I say) have all these priviledges granted them by a treaty and yet the protestant Religion be safe in Ireland? I confess, I think that he who can digest this Scheme so as to make it consistent with Religion, which it directly overthrows, must have a peculiar skill in solving Contradictions, an Art, which wise men in all ages have thought it reasonable to despair of.

> It is observable, that these Articles are of z kinds. 1st, Such as promise the Irish Rebells great privileges, which they were to be posses'd of upon the passing of Acts of Parliament for that purpose. 2dly, Such as grant 'em immunitys and privileges to be enjoyed by

'em immediately upon the persetting of the said Articles.

In the first, the freedom and Priviledges of Parliament are violated; while their power is so limited by the second Article, that there shall be no disjunction or alteration in England or Ireland with respect to what was concluded in this Treaty. To assume a power of obliging Parliaments. to pass acts for ratifying articles without the least disjunction Or alteration is (to lay no worse) a very large stretch of the Prerogative. If the Parliament themselves had been a party to the Atticles, no doubt they had a power of promising to pass such Acts, but I don't find that our Constitution allows any person or persons a power of binding the Legislature without their own consent; and more especially to approve of Articles in their own nature destructive of Religion and Liberry.

But least the Rebels should be baulk'd in their expectations by a

Pro-

Protestant Parliament in Ireland, that might refuse to enact these articles into a Law, the 5th Article provides that all Impedaments which may hinder the said Roman-Catholics to sit or vote in the next intended Parliament, or to choose, or to be chosen Knights and Burgesses to sit or vote there shall be removed, and that before the said Parliament. This gave them a moral assurance that the Majority in both Houses wou'd be pop sh or popishly affected, and consequently that they must carry their point. For the Crown was oblig'd by the articles to give the Royal Assent, and now they are made sure of carrying it in the 2 houses.

The exorbitant and extraordinary power to be put into the hands of the Rebels upon the perfecting of the articles, their vast superiority in numbers to the Protestants, being at least 8 to one, their having so great a standing Army of their own, and the Court on their side, cou'd not but give 'em a vast Interest in the Election of Members of Parliament; and all this was owing to these Articles of Peace, which for that reason must have had a pernicious tendency to corrupt the whole Legislature.

Among other powers granted to the Commissioners of the Irish Rebels, these contain'd in the 27th Article are very extraordinary being no less than Parliamentary, and to be justly reckon'd a high Invasion of the Liberty of the Subject. For the Popish Commissioners viz. The Lord Viscount Dellon &c or any seven or more of 'em have power to applot, raise and levy means with Indifferency and equality by way of Excise or otherwise upon all his Majesties sub-' jects within the said Kingdom, their Persons, Estates and goods towards the Maintenance of such Army or Armies &c. And other the necessary Public charges thereof and towards the ' maintenance of Forts, Cakles, Garrisons and Towns &c and for buying Arms and Ammunition and entertaining of Frigots &c. ? If the power of granting Subsidies to the Crown be not a peculiar Parliamentary Right, nothing is such: And if Money may be Levy'd off the subject without his consent in Parliament, I wou'd fain know what shadow of Liberty is lest him. MAGNA CHARTA, the PETI-TION OF RIGHT, and all the FUNDAMENTAL LAWS of the Nation, are but meer Chimeras, if that practice be not utterly illegal and unwarrantable; and yet never any Parliament in England, or Ireland pretended to any more authorisy for levying Money off the Subject, than what is by this Article granted to the Popish Rebels.

And

270 Chap. 2. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part 2.

Another Illegal power, and of dangerous consequence is granted 'em by the said Article, viz. 'to levy Money by Excise or otherwise in the several Cities, Corporate Towns, Counties and part of the Counties then in their quarters, and only upon the Estates of the said confederate Roman-Catholicks, all such summ and summs of Money as shall appear to the said Lord Dillon &c to be really due for and in discharge of the public Engagements of the said confederated Roman-Catholicks; incurr'd or grown due before the conclusion of these Articles &c. And to appoint Receivers, Collectors and all other officers for such Monies &c, and in case of refractoriness or delinquency to distrain and imprison the delinquents &c. '

That the Reader may be fully satisfied of the danger of this part of the Article, let him be pleas'd to consider that the Irish having by private and traiterous concerts begun their Massacre, October 23d, 1641, Found themselves considerable enough October 24th, 1642. to meet in a National and General Assembly at Kilkenny; which continued till the 9th day of January following, and substituted a Society with all the supreme powers of Royalty and Legislature, called, The supreme Council of the Confederated Catholicks of Ireland: Which supreme Council manag'd all their Subsequent Rebellions, Treasons & Traiterous applications and propositions to the Pope and Foreign Popish Princes and States, for the enslaving the Nation, shaking off its dependance on the Crown of England, alienating it from the Royal Family, for the establishment of Popery, and the utter Extirpation of the Reformed Religion; for which purposes they laid on Taxes upon the Subject, to defray the charges of such Enterprizes; all which may be seen at large in the Historys of Cox (from p. 123 to p. 127 part 2. and Appendix 14) and Burlace (from p. 173 to p. 178) And to make all effectual they impos'd upon all the Roman-Catholic Consederates an Oath of Association, the Sast clause whereof is in these words (k) 'And for the preservation and strengthening of the association and Union of the Kingdom, that upon any peace or accomodation to be made or concluded with the said Consederare Catholics, as aforesaid, I will to the utmost of my power Insist upon and maintain the ensuing Propositions, until a peace as aforesaid be made, and the matters to be agreed upon in the articles of Peace, Part 2. be ESTABLISHED and SECUR'D BY PARLIAMENT, So help me God.

The Propositions mentioned in the asoresaid Out's.

feveral Capacities, have free and public exercise of the Roman-Ca-tholic Religion and Function throughout the Kingdom, in as FULL LUSTRE and SPLENDOR. as it was in the Reign of King Hentry the 7th, or any other Catholic Kings his Predecessors, Kings of England and Lords of Ireland, either in Ireland or England

* 2dly. That the Secular Clergy of Ireland (viz.) Primates, Archibishops, Bishops, Ordinaries, Deans, Deans and Chapters, Archibishops, Prebendaries and other Dignitaries, Parsons, Vicars and all other Pastors of the Secular Clergy, and their respective Successors, shall have and enjoy all and all manner of Jurisdictions, Priviledges, Immunities in AS FULL and AMPLE MANNER, as the Roman-Catholic Secular Clergy had or enjoyed the same within this Realm at any time, DHRING THE REIGN of the late Hening ry 7th sometimes King of England and Lord of Ireland, any Law, Declaration of Law, statute, Power and Authority whatsoever to the contrary notwithstanding.

3ly. That all Laws and Statutes made since the 20th Year of K.
Henry 8th, whereby any Restraint, Penalty, Musch, Incapacity or Restriction whatsoever, is or may be said upon any of the Roman-Catholics, either of the Clergy or of the Laity, for such the said free exercise of the Roman-Catholic Religion within this Kingdom, and of their several Functions, Jurisdictions, and Priviledges, may be Repealed, Revoked and DECLARED VOID, by one or more

Acts of Parliament to be pass'd therein.

4/y. That all Primates, Archbishops; Bishops, Ordinaries, Deans, Deans and Chapters, Archdeacons, Chancellors, Treasurers, Chaunters, Provosts, Wardens of Collegiate Churches, Prebendaries and other Dignitaries, Parsons, Vicars, and other Pastors of the Roman-Catholic Secular Clergy and their respective Successors shall have hold and enjoy ALL CHURCHES and CHURCH-LIVINGS, in as large and ample manner as the late Protestant Clergy respectively enjoyed the same, on the first day of Ostober in the Year of our Lord 1641. together with all the Profits, Emo-

Part 2. luments, Perquisites, Liberties and the Rights to their respective. Sees and Churches, belonging as well in all places, now in the Pos.

's selfion of the Confederate Catholics, as also in all other places that shall be recovered by the said Confederate Catholics from the Ad-

* verse Party within this Kingdom, saving to the Roman-Catholic

4 Laity their Rights according to the Laws of the Land.

Upon comparing this piece of History with the Power granted the Rebels of Raising Money upon the Estates of the Roman-Catholic Confederates for all Sums due for and in Discharge of the public Engagements of that Supreme Council, before the conclusion of these Articles: I will venture to make one Observation, which I believe will be allow'd to be very natural. It is this, That they had a Power Granted them to Raise Money become due for SUPPOR TING THEIR FOR-MER REBELLIONS and Treasonable Designs and Practices, which I can't help thinking was a very DANGEROUS ALLOWANCE, not only because it gave too much Countenance to their former Bloody Councils; but because under the Notion of Raising Money due upon that Score, it gave them an opportunity of Raising Money to Prosecute the same Designs for the tuture; and 'tis very plain from the Propositions they had Sworn to, that it was no less than the utter ruin of the Reform'd Religion they had in view. They Swore to maintain these Propositions to the utmost of their Power, until the Articles of Peace shou'd be ratified in Parliament; now, they must consider that either these Articles wou'd be Ratify'd or Rejected in Parliament; if Racified, then their raising Money in the mean time might be of great Service to them to procure farther enlargement of their Privileges; and if their former Rebellion was so well rewarded by the present Articles, they might conclude that a New Attempt might give 'em their beart's desire, and finish the Scheme they had laid, and now they have got power of levying Money for it. If the Articles should be rejetted in Parliament, they had the more need of Money to Support their Old Trade of conspiring against, and Massacring their Enemies: And under the Notion of calling the Supreme Council to an Account of Disbursements &c. the Popish Commissioners have really a Power of Calling them together for consultation, and for Hatching new Mischiefs.

What exceedingly strengthens this Observation is the first Clause of the same 27thArticle in these Words, viz. That the said Lord Dillon &c shall be authoriz'd by the said Lord Lieutenant to proceed Part 2. in, hear, determine and execute; in and throughout this Kingdom, the ensuing particulars and all the matters thereupon depending, and that such Authority and other the Authorities hereafter mentioned shall remain of force without revocation, alteration or diminution, an-4 til Acts of Parliament be pass'd according to the Import and intent of these articles' Now in case the Parliament should meet and reject the articles, here is directly a power by this Article to the popish Rebels to go on as they did before the making of these Articles; for it was an engagement in their National Assembly, to maintain the above-propositions sworn to, not until the articles of a Peace be considered in Parliament, but UNTIL THEY BE ENACTED AND RATI-FIED in Parliament. In that case Money becomes due by vertue of the said engagement, and here a power is given to raise it; and all these authorities of Levying Money continued, not only without but against the Authority of Parliament; and an Assembly erected formerly for PROMOTING Popery and Rebellion, now CON-TINU'D BY A TREATY WITH THE CROWN.

That the Rebels had this in View, is beyond Question, if we may rely upon what Cox offers us in his History (1) But it must not be forgotten, that the Confederates lay still upon the larch, and in order to keep up their dominion and power, (notwithstanding the peace) they did on the 12th of January 1648. Make the following Order '.

By the General Assembly:

Whereas the Declaration of the General Assembly of the Consederate Catholics, bearing date the 28th day of August 1645 and the explanation of the said General Assembly thereupon dated the 1st of September 1645. Did relate to a Settlement of Peace to be grounded on any Authority, from his Majesty as by the said Declaration and explanation thereupon more at large may appear, It is this day ordered and declared by this Assembly that the said Declaration and Explanation shall CONTINUE AND REMAIN infull force, and be renewed as of this time, and have relation to ALL ARTICLES for a settlement agreed on as well by Authority from his Majesty as Part 2. frem his Highness the Prince of Wales or both; as if the said Declaration & Explanation had been now made to all intents; Constructions and purposes.

The Declaration refer'd to was made August 28. 1645. Upon the occasion of their treaty with Glamorgan, and in Cox Ibid. p. 152. in these words; The General Assembly order and declare that their Union and oath of affociation shall remain FIRM and INVIOLABLE, and in full strength, in ALL POINTS and to all purposes until the articles of the Intended Peace SHALL BE RATIFIED IN PARLIAMENT: notwithstanding of any PROCLAMATION OF THE PEACE &c. and on the first of September (says that Author) they explain this not to impart any thing inconsistent with the Peace, nor to breed an Interruption or Impediment of it but to further its performance.

And tho' this Declaration (not with standing any explanation they cou'd make of it) was diametrically opposite to the Nature and Design of a Peace, because this would reduce them to the Obedience and Condition of Subjects, and that wou'd still keep them up in the condition of a separate state; yet there was a deeper Intrigue in this matter, viz, That if they would not part with their associastion, it necessirily follow'd that they cou'd not part with their Army which was the Ligament and Support of it; and therefore, notwithstanding Glamorgan's Concessions, yet that Earl must have patience, and wait for the expected succorsuntil the King-shall publickly ratifie what his Lordship had privately done, and they did not doubt but the same necessities continuing, or rather encreasing, wou'd compel bis Majesty to comply with their expectations.

A plain DISPENSING POWER with the Laws is set up in the second article; wherein 'tis agreed that in the mean time 'until the Articles of these presents agreed to be pass'd in Parliament be accordinglypassed, the same shall be inviolably observ'd as to the Matters therein contain'd; as if they were enacted in Parliament.

Ulpon the whole, if these arricles of Peace were destructive of Religion, of the Authority of the Legislature, of the Liberty, and property of the Subject, and the Prerogative of the King (as I have proved they were) then the Commissions granted to the Marquis of Ormand and Lord of Airds in pursuance and maintenance of them, and to oblige the Protestant Forces to Incorporate with the Irish Rebels, according to the Intent and purport of 'em, were void and Illegal; Part 2: and therefore the Presbytery at Bangor might Lawfully declare against them.

I am so far from charging the Gallant and Noble Marquis of Ormond with any design to compass those unhappy ends, which the Articles of this Peace had a tendency to promote, that I must do him the Justice on the other hand, as to declare that it seems to me from the whole of his Conduct in that Affair, that the pressing necessities of the King his Master made him yield contrary to his Inclination to such hard Terms, to enable him to retrieve the King's Affairs, and purely to do him Service: But then it must be own'd, that a good end cannot justifie unlawful Means, and therefore the Presbytery at Bangor obviate this Objection, in their Declaration in these words 'Neither can any necessity (say they) be an excuse to it, for we ought to choose Affliction rather than sin; to help the ungodly and to strengthen the hands of the wicked, is an evil worse than any suffering.' Both Cox and Burlace who offer all they can for excusing the Matter, are forced to acknowledge the Marquis's mistake, the first expresserh himself thus, Part 2. page 205. "Upon this Peace Ormand propos'd to get together so good an Army, as might by Force or Treaty prevent the impending Fate of his Royal Master, for the undertaken Quetas were as followeth.

•	20000	3500
Owen Roe, if he wou'd come in had	35000	500
Insiquin Connaught	4000	.800
Insiquin	3000	600
Leinster	400 0	80 3
Munster-Irish,	1000	800
-	Fo ot	Horse.

<sup>4</sup> But he depended upon a broken reed; for besides that the Irish had delayed the Conclusion of the Peace too long to render it serviceable to the King, and had exacted such Conditions as wou'd rather hasten than prevent his Majestee's ruin, the Lord Lieutenant was exceedingly disappointed in his Calculation; for Owen Ree did not at all come N n 2

10

Part 2. in till it was too late, and most of the rest were deficient in their promis'd Proportions of Men and Money, so that he was forced to borrow 800 l. upon his own Credit to enable the Army to March.

The other expresseth himself thus (Burlace, p. 228, 229) 'From the first hour of the Peace, the English and Irish had not been without that prejudice towards each other, as gave the Marquis much trouble, and they were rather incorporated by their Obedience and Submission to the Authority and Pleasure of their chief Commander. than united by the same Inclinations and Affections, to any public end. Insomuch as before the Deteat at Rathmines, there were many of the Irish, who much fear'd the Swift Success of the Army, and apprehended the Lord Lieutenant's speedy reducing of Dublin, wou'd give him such Power and make him more absolute, than they defired to see him, and therefore were not sorry for that Mischief. On the other side the English were much troubled, to see the Authority and Jurisdiction of the Marquis so Restrain'd and Limited by the Articles, and that the Army was neither Recruited, Disciplin'd nor provided, as it ought to be, Solely by his want of Power; and they had a very low Opinion of the Spirit and Con-' rage of the Irish: But now upon this Desection in Munster there was a Determination of all Confidence and trust in each other.

If we consider the State of the King's Affairs, we'll find that the first thing that Cool'd the Assections of his Subjects to him was the Influence his evil Counsellors had upon him, to encourage Popery, and by his Arbitrary and Illegal Courses to Levy mony without consent of Parliament, as Tunnage, Poundage, Leans, and Ship-Money, and to destroy the Liberty of the Subject and the Fundamental Laws. Now I wou'd fain know, if it was a likely way to Accommodate the unhappy Differences between him and his People, which begun upon thele Foundations, to give greater Countenance to Popery in Ireland, than ever he had done before, and to Authorize Bloody Papists there to assume a Parliamentary Power, to the destruction of Liberty and Property as well as Religion, and to do in Ireland under cover of his Authority that which he had no Power to do any where; and more especially after those Papists (who receive such an Illegal Power) had barbaroully Murthered 200000 of his Protestant Subjects.

Let the demands of the long Parliament be compar'd with the Articles of Peace with the Irish; and let the World judge, whether it had:

had not been more Honorable for the King to have granted the former than the latter; and whether he did not, in feveral particulars in the faid Articles, grant more dangerous Powers, and made more ample Concessions to several of the Irish Repels than he was willing to grant to the whole Parliament of England. This was fideed the way to hasten his Ruin, as the event provid, and Cox justly observes; which is further consistent by the Pauliament's Intercepting Ormand's Letter to the supreme Council, while the Treaty between him and them was in Agication, and thereupon making a Demur in this Treaty with his Subjects until his Majesty wrote a Letter to the Marquis not to proceed any surther in the Treaty with the IRISH: notwithstanding where-of the Treaty was carried on, and the Articles figu'd January 17th, 1648. Vide Cox p. 2040 part 2.

Neither can the Maiquis or the Lord of Aird's adhering to the peace with the Irish be defended, upon pretence of serving the Interest of King Charles 2d; for the above reasons, which demonstrate it to be illegal and sinful in it self, and highly differviceable to the Interest of King Charles 1st, are of equal source to show it's being destructive to the Interest of King Charles 2d. Nay, if there be any disparity, it consists in the Argument's being much stronger in the case of the Son, than in that of the Father.

For experience, having confirm'd it's being fatal to the Father, shou'd have prevail'd with those who made it to lay it aside, as very unhappy to the Son: which will yet further appear, if we consider that all those who were in the Interest of the Long Parliament, before they were turn'd into the Rump, were to the list degree disgusted by this Peace; and by adhering to it, the young King riveted in them the fears they had conceiv'd of his Resolutions to pursue the Measures of his Father's Reign; and now there was a party got up in England who had bar baroully murdered his Royal Father, and were poisoning the Minds of the People with undutiful and disloyal Principles against Monarchy in General, and against the whole Royal Family; and nothing cou'd give them a greater handle to work upon, for deluding and misleading their fellow-Subjects, than that the young King and his Favorites shou'd adhere to the peace with the 1rish Rebels. 'Tis true, it was a bad consequence that for these faults, Monarchy and the whole Royal Family shou'd be extirpated; but then the premisses they made use of for inferring that conclusion,

Part 2. were so evidently true and shocking, that they wrought exceedingly (by the Artifices of bad Men) upon the weakness of Multitudes, who by that means were made enemies to the Royal Family, and might have been gain'd to the King's side, it he and his Counsellors had carry'd otherwise.

> The Kingdom of Scotland who as an entire United Body adher'd to his Title, and Proclaim'd him King February 15th 1648, were so disoblig'd by the Peace, that he found it Convenient to Declare, that 'the Peace concluded with the Irish Catholicks in 1648. by Au-"thority of the late King of ever Glorious Memory, and Confirm'd by himself, was Pronounc'd and Adjudg'd Void, and that his Majesty was Absolv'd from any Observation of it," The Marquis, to prevent the Irish from being Scandaliz'd by this Declaration, Writes to them. "that Elince the Declaration was by undue means obtain'd from his "Majesty) he was resolv'd by all the means it shou'd please God to offer unto him and through all hizirds in behalf of the Nation, to '-Infist upon and Assert the Lawfulness of the conclusion of the Peace, by vertue of the aforesaid Authority, and that the said Peace was fill valid & of Force & binding unto his Majesty and all his Subjects. (m)

> This Declaration of the Marquis, to opposite to that of his Royal Master, produc'd no good Esfect upon any Party; for such was the experienc'd Treachery of the Irish, in breaking the Cessition in 1643, and Peace of 1646, and delaying that of 1648 so long that had it been Lawful, it became useless for the end intended; and they So cramp'd his Power and Embaras'd all his Measures, that they were not to be Sweeten'd into Loyalty by the Smoothest Language he did or cou'd give 'em, and the Mistortune was that all his farther Attempts to do it Sower'd and Disgusted the greatest body of these Protestants in the 3 Kingdoms, who might be most depended upon as stanch Friends to Monarchy and the Royal Family.

> Cromwel comes to Ireland, and carries all before him, to whose Suc-. cess this Irish Peace Contributed not a little, as the Reader will conclude from what Cox says (n) ' In the mean time the Towns of the County of Cork, being inhabited and Garrison'd with Englishmen cou'd not endure the thoughts of joining with the Irilb against their owa .Coun-

Country-men; they consider'd how the Lord Lieutenant was not Part 2 only Limited in his Authority by the Commissioners of Trust, and was but Partially and Precariously obey'd by the Irish: They knew the Irish aim'd at their destruction in the end, and continued the War to that purpose. Finally, they remembred the reasons of surrendring Dublin to the Parliament wo years before; and they thought they had the same Motive to submit now; and therefore by the means of the Lord Broghill, Collonel Courtney, Sir Percy Smith, and the Collonels Townsend, Jefford and Warden, they revolted all at once; and about 2500 Men were drawn out of those Garrisons, and they met Crommel at White Church not far from Dungarvan.

'This Revolution Dissolved all confidence between the English and Irish; and as well for that Reason, as in other respects prov'd advantagions to Cromwel; for otherwise he must have been forced to endure a long and dangerous March to Dublin, or to have embark'd his Men on board the Fleet, that Coasted all along as he Marched to attend him; but by this Revolt he got excellent Winter Quarters in Cork, Bandon, Kinsale; and Toughal; which last... Place was "

'made his Head Quarters:

This matter will be set in a farther Light, by confidering the Pétition of the Protestants of Munster against Glamorgan's Peace, and the same Arguments contain'd in it against that Peace being of equal Force against the Peace in 1648, the Grounds upon which the Presbytery at Bangor proceeded are very much strengthen'd by them, and therefore I shall here Insert it.

(o) The Petition of the Protestants of Munster against a Peace with the Irish to the Right Honorable the Lord Lieutenant General and Council ? of Ireland...

Humbly Sheweth, Hat whereas after a long and happy enjoyment of the Peace and Prosperty under which (by his Majesties Gracious Government) this Land did lately Flourish; the Irish Papists of this Part 2.

Kingdom, have on or about the three and twentieth of Ottober 1641 entred into a most wicked and treacherous Conspiracy, to surprize. the then Lords Justices and Council together with the City of Dublin, and all other her Majesties Forts and Holds within this Kingdom, Intending thereby totally and at once to extirpate the Protestant Religion, and English Nation from amongst them, and consequently to alienate this Kingdom from the Crown and Government of England. And for those ends, 1 though they were by the Divine Providence dissappointed in the main point of that Bloody and Cruel Design, have pursued the same with Indesatigable Malice into acts of open Rebellion and most Inhuman Barbarism, robbing and despoiling his Majesties good Subjects of their lives and Fortunes: Insomuch as his Majesty for the Vindication of his Protestant Subjects from the Cruel Rapines of the said Irish Papilts, was justly occasioned to denounce and Undertake a war in this Kingdom, the managing and support whereof he was graciously pleased to recommend to and ENTRUST WITH HIS PAR-LIAMENT then sitting in England, who having piously begun the great work of Suppressing the cruelties of the aforesaid Irish, were by the unhappy Interpoling of fundry fatal differences in England (somented, as may be greatly doubted, by the Rebels of this Kingdom) diverted from the careful and provident courses requiuce in so important an affair, by Means whereof his Majesty who had undertaken the War for our Defence was now constrain'd for our preservation to treat and conclude of a Cessition of Arms for twelve Months space; in which time he was MADE BELIEVE the aforesaid Irish Papists wou'd submit to some safe and honorable conditions of Peace. To which purpose, Agents from the aforesaid Irish were admitted to have access to his Royal presence, and his Majesty did not only in Manisestation of his Pious and Paternal care of his Protestant Subjects, command certain Select Persons, well vers'd and Interested in the State and affairs of this Kingdom, to attend his Royal Person, and give Information and assistance in the debase of so weighty a business, but did also give admission so such Agents as his Protestant Subjects, were able to employ in representing their particular and General Grievances and Sufferings by the said Irish Papists, who in Negotiation of that whole Matter, have endeayor'd to make advantage of his Majesties necessities, and by Sinister and Corrupt Means with a lavish expence of that Trea- Part 2. sure, and those Estates which your Petitioners have been despoil'd of by them, to raise a Factious Party at the Court, to SEDUCE and MISGUIDE his Royal Majesty, and to beguile his Judgment, with a false opinion of their Inclination to Peace, and feigned forwardness to advance his Service and to discountenance and suppress shose whose Attendance his Majesty had required, and those Agents whom your Petitioners had employed; by which Subtil and Serpentine Courses the said Irish Agents having quasht and deprest all opposers and Accusers, and removed all Impediments to their Devilish ends of extirpating the English, and before any equal Debate of the Cause, procur'd a Transmission of the whole Affair unto your Lordships, with Power and Commission further to Treat and Conclude of such Conditions as by those deceitful Courses they had gained too great hope to be confirm'd unto them, which for some Reasons was not thought fit to be done in England, they do now with the same Art and Subtilty study to trick your Petitioners here before your Lordships, and to compound for all their Mischiefs Multiplied upon the Heads of your Petitioners at their own Rates. And therefore at a time when neither your Petitioners, nor any from them are present, when the Agents employed to his Sacred Majesty are unrecurred to this Kingdom, and whilst most of your Petitioners Evidences of their Detestable Treasons, and horrible barbarisms are remaining in England, they endeavor to strike up the Basiness with your Lordships, upon such Terms as your Petitioners who were once a considerable Part of this late Flourishing and now unhappy Kingdom, have not the Honor to be made Privy unto, or to be called or admitted to any Debate of the Business of that Main Influence upon themselves and their Posterity.

Wherefore your Petitioners having seen how far some Persons of Honor HAVE BEEN MISGUIDED, and by Secret and Subtil Contrivances drawn to become Abused Properties and Instruments to Accomplish the Wicked Designs of the aforesaid Irish Rebels; and finding how they are in all likelihood in danger to be overborn by the Power and Potency of their said Adversaries; do in all Humility RESEECH your Lordships, first to call to mind that his Majesty hath by his Royal Assent unto an Act of Parliament, oblig'd kimself not to grant any Pardon or Terms of Peace to the aforesaid Rebels

0 0

Part 2. bels without the Consent of his Parliament of England; and accordingly that your Lordships wou'd not suffer any part of his Majestie's 'Honor to be betray'd to Calumny in Assenting to such packed Terms 6 of Peace as they have already contrived to draw your Lordships un. to, without consent of the said Parliament of England, and without admitting your Petitioners to a free and full debate of the Caufe; whereby they may Vindicate his Majesty and themselves from that 4 Unnatural Aspersion which the Irish wou'd Maliciously fasten on them, by making the one the Faster, and the other the occasion of their Rebellion, and that the matter may not be carried with such Indulgency towards them, as that to extenuate their Real Enormities, vour Petitioners must be made Guilty of Imaginary Crimes, and Undergo a beavier Censure for demanding Justice, than they for Perpetrating all their Treasons; and that their Lives, Fortunes, and 4 Posterities, and which is dearest, their Religion may not be SOLD or SACRIFICED to the Malice of the Irish Papists; or if this Lawful Favour shall be deny'd them; that they may have leave to protest against any suchfatal and Destructive conclusions as are in hand to be made with the aforesaid Irish Rebels, without consent of the King and Parliament, or your Petitioners Privity; and that their Filtilious pretences of affilting his Majesty, wherewith they have too long already abused himself and his Ministers, on purpose to Protract the War in England, may not be a sufficient Wile to delude your Lordships any longer; but that your Petitioners (and not Persons disaffected to their Religion and Nation now to be preserv'd or ruin'd) may be heard to Plead in this Cause, before any Judgment be given therein and that the examples of their former and frequent Breaches of the Cessation yet unrepair'd, may be accounted a REA-SONABLE CAUTION to your Lordships to expect little better observation of any Peace that shall Abridge them of their Devilish Defigns.

And your Petitioners shall Ever Pray for your Lordships increase of Honor and Happiness.

Sign'd by the Lord Brogbill, the Magistrates of Cork, Kin-S. le, Youghall, and Bandonbridge, and above Three Hundred other Persons.

Conclude this Head with the Preamble of the famous Act of Settle Part 2. and prove the Justice of those remarks I have been making upon the Peace with the Irish 1648 (p)

An Act 14 Caroli 2di

Whereas an unnatural Insurrection did break forth against your Majestie's Royal Father, of ever blessed Memory, his Crown & Dignity in this your Majestie's Kingdom of Ireland upon the 23d of Ottober in the Year of our Lord God, 1641; and Manifest it self by the Murthers and Destructions of many Thousands of your said Majestie's good and Loyal Subjects, which afterwards universally spreading and diffusing it self over the wholekingdom, settled into and became a form'd and almost National Rebellion of the Irish Papists, against your Royal Father of Blessed Memory, his Crown and Dignity, to the Destruction of the English and Protestants Inhabiting in Ireland: The which Irish Papists being represented in a General Assembly chosen by themselves and acting by a Council call'd by them, The Supreme Council of the Confederate Roman-Catholicks of Ireland, did first Assume, Usurp and exercise the Power of Life and Death, make Peace and War, levy and coin Money, and many other Acts of Sovereign Authority, treating with Foreign Princes and Potentates, for their Government and protection and afterwards afted under a Foreign Authority, by the said ways, disowning and rejecting your Royal Father's, and your Majestie's Undoubted right to this Kingdom, even while they Treacherously used bis, and your Majesties Names in the outward Forms of their Proceedings; withal impionfly seeming by words and shews to swear unto that, which by the whole series of their deeds, they denyed; and moreover presuming to pretend his late Mijestie's Sacred Authority even for their worst Actions; all which they did amongst their other designs) to frighten his good Protestant Subjects from their Loyulty, to blast his Majestie's honor, And to widen the breach between his said Majesty and his seduced subjects in England; the which 001

Part 2. which ends, by their said wicked stratagems, they did too SUC-CESSFULLY and MISCHIEVOUSLY EFFECT'

Having enquired 1st, into the occasion and scope of the declaration of the Presbytery at Bangor, and adly, into the reasons which are offer'd in the Declaration it Rifto justify it; in pursuance of the Method propos'd, I come next to enquire,

3dly, Into the Demonstrative Evidences, we have of the Loyalty. of that Presbytery, who fram'd the said Declaration at Banger, and of all the other Presbyterians from the Murder of King Charles the 1st, to the Restauration of the Royal Family.

The Presbytery met at Belfast February 15th 1648, drew a most Loyal Representation against the Murther of King Charles ist, and against the Antimonarchical and detestable principles and practices of the Usurping Powers who were the Authors of the Regicide, a copy whereof I have inserted p. 245. To shew they were in earnest, they wrote with all possible Importunity and strength of reason, to Sir Charles Coot, then at London-derry, to dissuade him from Complying with these Usurping powers; but he refused to come into their measures, as Burlace observes (q)

At the same meeting (viz. February 15th) they wrote a Letter to Colonel Monk then at Dundalk, to the same purpose, and sent it to him by the Reverend Mr. Anthony Kennedy one of their Number, who brought the Collonel's Answer, shewing that he was distissied with their Representation, and that he urg'd them to delay the publication. of it in their Churches until he shou'd come to Lisburn, which he soon Intended (and accordingly came thither on March 21st), but their . duty to the King and their Veneration for the insulted Legislature wou'd not allow them to entertain a thought of delaying a matter so Necessary and seasonable for animating their flocks, & cherishing their Loyal inclinations to make the earlyest appearance in favor of the Royal Family and our happy Constitution. Some Letters were afterwards exchang'd between the Collonel and them; but both of 'em resolutely adhering to their different Interests, he to the Rump and they to the King, all Correspondence between 'em broke offi

On the 21st of March, Collonel Monk, despairing of success with the Presbytery, made an Essiy at Lisburn, how far his Interest cou'd Part 2. prevail with the Army and Country, the first being represented in a Council of War, and the second by the most noted Gentlemen, called the Committee of the Country. They soon perceived the tendenev of his proposals; and to fortifie themselves against 'em, drew up a Declaration call'd, the Declaration of the Army and the Country, and p: epar'd a draught of some propositions to be offered to him, as a Foundation of a Treaty with him : but before they show'd him either the Declaration or Propositions they consulted the Committee of the Presbytery, and took their advice and assistance in amending the draughts of both; and then presented them to the Collonel. Before he gave any answer to them, he deliver'd to 'em a Paper Entitul'd, Queries given in by Collonel MONK to the Council of War at BF.L-FAST April 9th, 1649. the 3d and 4th Queries were these:

the

The 3d, Why do ye declare against the prevalent party in England, without order or advice from England, or Scotlant, and thereby do in all appearance prejudice the good party opprest, by declaring your selves sooner than they think it seasonable &c?

The 4th, I desire to know in regard of our dependence upon England, whom it is we shall serve at this present?

To which Queries they return'd the following Answers in writing.

3. To the Third, Albeit when Iswful Authority is suppress'd an order be impossible to be obtain'd, yet as we are Christians, our duty to God and lawful Authority tyeth us to declare against the public Enemies of our Covenant, such as are the now prevalent party in England, who have OVERTURN'D AUTHORITY, from which we might have expected orders; and besides the protestations of many Members of both Houses of Parliament, the Protestation of the Kingdom of Scotland, the Representation of the Ministers, and Apologetical Declaration of many Thousand Citizens in and about London, all against the present courses of the Sectaries, may be to us in place of a strong advice to join with them in declaring against them also:

To the 4th, as we have hitherto in Relation to England served the King and Parliament thereof, whose just Power, Rights and Priviledges we are deeply Sworn to Maintain in our Solemn Covenant, to we resolve saithfully to SERVE and ADHERE UNTO THEM, though.

Part 2. 'though now for a time they be violently berest of the Exercise of their Lawful Power.

Of the Propositions they Presented to him the 2d. and 3d. were Conceived in these Words.

'2d, That he and they do Sign the Declaration to be emitted by the Meeting of the Army.

3d. That he shall not Obey or Execute any Order that shall be sent to him from the now prevalent Power in England.

The Declaration was Calculated for the same end, it is too long to be here Inserted, but I shall Transcribe the following Paragraphs of it.

And whereas the Sectarian Party in England hath of late Usurped an Illegal Power over both King and Parliament, and are Resolving an Universal Toleration in Religion, and the Subversion of EAW-FUL GOVERNMENT by KING, LORDS and COMMONS, and have taken upon them to Proclaim all the Adherers to the present Government in the Person of the Present King, to be Rebels and Traitors; all which their Usurping Practices they visibly pretend to Force upon us in this Kingdom, so soon as they can Transport hither to be Obeyed and Received by us contrary to our League and Covenant; for this Cause we do faithfully oblige our selves Unanimously with our ESTATES and Laves to Resist and OPPOSE ANT SUCH IRREGULAR COMMANDS, which shall proceed from them, and that we shall Maintain the just Power of King and Parliament against all the Opposers thereof.

And being confident that these our present Intentions will not want Bitter and False Aspersions and Calumnies of all sorts, and particularly that by this Act we intend to shake of our due dependance on the Crown of England &c. we do hereby declare, That we shall really demean our selves as becomes Faithful and Loyal Subjects to the Crown of England, and shall at all times give due Obedience to the KING and FREE PARLIAMENT thereof.

The Committee of the Presbytery prepar'd a Paper, Entitul'd, A Vindication of the Late and Present Proceedings of the Presbytery, especially of the late Representation &c. emitted by the Committee of the Presbytery at Belfast, April 10th 1649; the following part whereof is recommended to the Readers serious Consideration.

We have not been free from the Malice of the evil affected, whose chief

Chap: 2

Under King Charles II.

chief Principle being to be Time-servers have Reproach'd us for our Part 2.
avowing stedrastness, and pressing the same upon our flocks, and have fistned upon us sich uneven designs as were farthest from our thoughts, that we intend nothing but a Revolt from the Lawful Authority of England, and to decline the Subjection of this Kingdom thereunto. For removing all such groundless Calumnies (tho) our former Doftrine, Representation and constant Practice might have clear'd us abundantly ) We do yet Profess before God and the World our constant Resolutions to Subject our selves to the LAWFUL · AUTHORITY of the RIGHT EOUS KING and free Parliament of * E ghind, and to the LAWFUL COMMANDS of such as shall have Power from them, and do acknowledge the Interest they have in, and the Power they have over the Subjects of this Kingdom of " Ireland; which by the Grace of God, we shall continue to Witness in all our Practices, and to Teach the People under our charge to 6 do the like: And we conceive there can be no better Testimony of the Reality of our Protessions than the Disclaiming of the Prefent Usurped Power of Sectaries in England, which against both the Laws of God and Men and our solemnCovenant, they have assumed to themselves whom we are resolved NEVER TO OBET as the

This Committee show'd a hearty concern for the King's Interest, in reproving those within the Bounds and under the Inspection of the Presbytery, who did neglect in their several Stations to Asset it, of which take the following Remarkable Instance, in an Act of that Com-

Lawful Authority of England; and do thereby approve our selves to be more Loyal Subjects to that Crown, than any who overcome with the Temptations of the Times, Change with every Wind; and for fear of Usurpers, lay aside the Prosecution of their Duty to their Lawful Magistrates, contrary to their former Vows and Pro-

' upon us." This Paper was Read by all the Members of the Presbytery in their respective Churches, according to an Order of Presbyfessions, and are now so inconsiderate as to return their own charge mittee, Faithfully Copied from their Records.

April 10th 1646. Compeared Mr. Forster sovereign of Belsast, and was rebuked for sencing (i.e. bolding) the Courts without Mentioning of the KING'S NAME, contrary to the Covenant, who promised to a-

Wher

Part 2.

When the Rump-Party had got more power, and found that the Presbytery were not to be wheedled out of their Loyal Principles by fair words, they begun to think of dealing with them by the more forcible Arguments of Sequestrations, Prilons, and Banishment, to restrain them from (what was their constant practice) praying for the King and preaching up his Title, and declaiming against the Usurpers: And accordingly Collonel Venables summon'd the Ministers of the County of Down and American to appear before him, to answer for their pretended Sedition in preaching, praying, and practising against the Commonwealth of England, and in favor of the Royal Family.

Whereupon, some of the Presbytery sled, some absconded, and others were taken prisoners. He sent them a proposal under his hand which is an undenyable Testimony of their Loyalty and is as follows, Whereas the Ministers of the County of Down and Antrim, have been summon'd to appear in a fair way before me, & have some jealousies and suspitions (as I conceive) that I intended by that summons, to have entrapped them, and to have taken advantage of them had they come; this is to assure them, that if they come, and give it me under their hands, that they will not for time to come in their sermons and prayers, nor in any other private Conferences with the people move them to Sedition or trouble, or touch upon any other thing of State matters than what is allowed by the State of England, that they shall have free Libertyto depart from me again to their several places of abode, and Charges, and to use their Ministerial Functions. & that although at their being with me, they shall not be convinced to give this Engagement, yet if they engage that they will depart this province and repair to Scotland within ten days, Wind and Weather ferving they shall have free Liberty to do the same and to depart on THESE TERMS, also without Confinement or restraints, all which I promise under mykand this 16th of June 1650.

Ř. VENABLES

Divers of the Presbytery being brought prisoners to Collonel Venables, did with Undaunted Courage and strength of Reason make so brave a stand before him, for their King and Country, as to challenge a peculiar remark in this Book. While they were prisoners, they reduc'd to writing the substance of their Conference with him, which from the Original Maniscript I shall here lay before the Reader.

der; Omitting such passages in it as are not Material to the business Part 2. in hand, to prevent its being tedious.

The Desences of Mr. John Dryssaill Minister at Portaserry, Mr. Bautie, Mr Main, and Mr Alexander, Ministers Prisoners June 1650.

.... The latter (i. e. the Sectaries) Although they might, yet they did not at the first publickly disturb the Ministers, notwithstanding of their free preaching against their Courses, till once they had the Enemy without sufficiently subdu'd, and these people within f tanght to carry their Yoke.

After they had found themselves in a tolerable posture, they began most cunningly to loaden the Ministry with reproaches (else their Malice and Purpose of Persecution cou'd not have been well enough convey'd) for say they, the Ministers are bloody men, they are Seditions, they keep a differce betwixt you and us (meaning the Country) else your Burdens wou'd not lye so heavy upon you, they in their preaching and praying are guilty of Treason against the State; And with many other words, Imitating the Persecutors of our Lord and Ma-4 ster Jesus Christ, Lake 23.2.

* Then began they in their Councils to advise what course was fittest to be taken with these men, and it was thought fit that Summons should be iffu'd for them, commanding them to appear before the Colonel Venables at the Army at Drummere against such a day. 4 The first summons came to us about four hours before the hour of our appearing: Whereupon, not long after, second summons were sent. These Peremptory Summons sent to them before that they had ' call'd 'em to a Conference, or appointed any, or had desir'd that the question shou'd be disputed for the satisfaction of Conscience, Geem'd very strange unto the Ministers; as also the summons gave a perfect Character of their Intentions. Beside, understanding of the threatning Expressions that had passed from many of them, and the particular earriage of some formerly, who had publickly drawn en Soldiers in Supdry Churches, and oppos'd the Ministers, yea publickly revised shom with base words.

As also she wery day before the summons came they had apprehended Mr. John Dryfdail Minister of Portasery by a band of near 6 80 Dragoons. All those and sundry other Considerations moved Part 2. the Ministers to write back in answer to these summons, and desired a safe Conduct that so they might without trouble go and return.

> Instead of the safe conduct a Party was presently sent to bring every Minister by violence, these of the County of Antrim to Car.

frickfergus, and those of the County of Down to Belfast.

Of the Ministers of the County of Down beside Mr. Drysdaill for. merly apprehended, were taken Mr James Bausie Minister at Ballywa'ter, and Mr Fergus Alexander Minister at Gray-Abbey. Of these in the County of Amerim were apprehended Mr Henry Main Minifter at Islemagee, and carry'd to the common prison of Carrick fergus. Master Archbald Ferguson, Mr. David Butle, Mr Ambony Kennedy. also were taken, yet were permitted to stay in their own Houses till Collonel Venables came from the Army; at which time we were all to be brought before him: For the rest of the Ministers, they were upon their keeping, fled to the Woods, some to Scotland, or hid themselves.

'Their of the County of Down were brought to Belfast, and were imprison'd in a lodging where none of the Lord's people durst come to visit them, nor hear them either preach, or Joyn with them in prayer. The Heathen did not deal so with the Apostie Paul. Atts.

28. 17.

" After fixteen days imprisonment of Mr Drysdaill and ten of the rest: Colonel Venables came from the Army in Carricksergus, whether we were sent to observe his surther pleasure.

By the way it is to be observed that when he had understood of the flight of the Ministers, and their fears of his violence, a little to mitigate the matter he sent this ensuing paper to Mr Ferguson and Mr Kennedy, upon a letter of their's desiring their not imprifonment till he himself came alongs to Correckjerus, at which time they promised to come to him '(This is the paper which I have alre dy inserted p .288 and therefore omit it here).

As ye may perceive by the paper, the Question was propounded: to the seven Ministers, Whether they wen'd serbear preaching or praye or Conserence in public and in private against the present Power and State of England, except with such limitations as were then propounded, unto which the Ministers return'd this following answer in: write subscribed by their hands.

(That paper being more fully set forth in their Conference with Venables, Part 2. I omit it here )

This we deliver'd to Colonel Venables, and had before and did after by way of Conference give found and valid Reasons of our An-

4 fwer in that kind.

'I thought best to premise what is said as an Introduction, unto the ensuing Reasons, which hold forth clearly to the whole World found Grounds why in Conscience we cannot Condescend unto the Command of Colonel Robert Venables in that kind, to give Obedience thereunto.

First, It is said by Colonel Venables: Ye are Subjects to the Kingdom of Ireland which is a Kingdom belonging to England, ought ye onot therefore to obey the Acts of the Parliament of England, who have by Act of Parliament adjudg'd it High-Treason, if any Man 1 Mall own Monarchical Government by King and House of Lords, and have Commanded under a Penalty to Subscribe an Engagement to be faithful unto the Government, now Establish'd without King or House of Lords: I will show you the Acts.

To this we Answer. 1. That we acknowledge our selves to be Subjects of the Kingdom of Ireland, and that Ireland is Subordinate unto England.

- But it was objected that now they were come in by the Sword as Conquerors and the Sword must be the Law: To this we Answer, That there is a necessity of Passive Obedienco to their Power, though WE DO NOT ACKNOWLEDGE THEIR AUTHORITY. But,

"1. Certainly those who are conquered must, or at least ought to be made acquainted with the Laws of the Conqueror, by public Proclamation, and not receive them from every private Soldier or Colonel in an Army; which was never as yet done for any thing we cou'd hear.

2. By two several Declarations, Colonel Venables spoke to the People in this Corner in another Strain; wherein are these Words, That he was come to deliver the well affected in the Country and the Ministry from the Power of Malignants; so that we are Amiz'd why he now speaks to us in a Dialect so far different; And he knew then as well, in what we were well-affected, as now.

But grant that the Kingdom of Ireland were immediately Subject-P p 2

-y-

Part 2. ed unto the Laws of the Parliament of England, and that we in Confcience were bound to Obey the Laws of the Parliament of England; (which we for our own Parts have been most ready to do always since these troubles, sinding this Kingdom in such Posture by the Bloody Rebellion that from our own Parliament, wholesome Laws could not liste: And do sincerely profess that we are all endated and willingly subject unto the Lawful Authority of the Kingdom of England, as ever we were and do resolve by the strength of God to continue constant; ) yet we must be convinced that that Power which now Rules in England is the Lawful: Parliamentary Authority of that Kingdom.

To this Colonel Venables Answers, that they call themselves so

To this we answer, that it seems to us a strange Assertion, that they are a Parliament, because they say so; or a Power; because they place Power in themselves: Can Men be the Authors and Founders of a new Authority in themselves? Kings and other Magistrates are called the Ordinance of Man, because they are put into their Offices by Men: But can the same Persons be the Creator and the Creature?

Again, It seems to be more strange to us; for it overwith the very soundations of Order and Right Government: For Men are call'd to the Magistracy by the Suffrage of the People whom they Govern; And for Men to assume unto themselves Power, is MEER. IYRAN.

NY and UNJUST USURPATION.

But it may be said that they are call'd by the People.

Ans: 1. We indeed conceive that the first Parliament which was made up of the three Estates were Orderly in their Members, E-

Iested and Appointed by the People, according to Law.

But we wou'd fain understand the Nature of this Government;
At the first sight it looks like a Democracy. Yet we conceive that in a Democracy, the Power of Government is either in the Collective Body of the People, of in some elected by them, and entrusted therewith. But neither have the People assumed Government in their own Hands, since the Dissolution of the Old Government by King, House of Lords and Commons; Neither have they Elected any new Delegates: There was once indeed propounded a draught, Entitled, An Agreement of the People; but it was not received nor was it Authorized by thems.

Secondy,

Secondly, If this present Parliament (as you call it) had been E- Part 2. e lected and Authoriz'd by the People, how comes it that in England they so GENERALLY STAND OFF from Subscribing the Ene gagement? But we cannot be persuaded that this can be the Parliament of England; it looks so unlike it, from these reasons.

1. We who are now accus'd by you were formerly call'd the friends of the Parliament of England. And we are in nothing chang'd from the Men we were at that very time; We walk upon these very same Principles, we Preach these very same things; so that furely if this were the Parliament of England, we wou'd continue · in their favors.

4. The Parliament of England and their Armies call'd us of the Scots Nation their Brethren, their Armies and Ours were one, Lived as Brethren, suffered together: But we are now by your Soldiers call'd Seditions Fellows, our Nation a Base and Treacherous Nation which you will e're long make a Province of, you are in constant Jealoulies with us, we are not believed: No, our Oaths no more accounted than the Bark of a Dog. All these do evidently hold forth to us, that this is not the Parliament of England. -

---- April 17. 1646. The House of Commons declare that their true and real Intentions are, to endeavour to Maintain the Ancient Fundamental Government of England.

But says Colonel Verables, this Government is the ancient Fundamental Government; the Honse of Lords is only Usurp'd from Custom. Ans. 1. See page 4 of that Declaration, April 17.1646. And there the House of Commons does fully explain themselves, What they e mean by the Ancient Fundamental Government of Ergland, in f these Words,

* They are so far from altering the Fundamental Constitution and Gos vernment of the Kingdom of England by King, Lords and Commons, e that they have only desir'd that with the Consent of the King, such Power e may be settled in the I wo Houses, without which we can have no Assue rance but that the like and greater Mischiess than these which God hath. a bitherto deliver'd us from, may break out again and ongage us in a Second and more destructive War. Whereby it plainly appears (say they) our e Intentions are not to change the Ancient Form of Government withe in this Kingdom, but to obtain the end of primitive Institution of all Look. Governments.

Part 2.

Look all) the Petition of the Lords and Commons Off. 22. 1642. Many more Acts and Ordinances of Parliament might be instanced, as relating to the Covenant and Fundamental Government of the Kingdom of England, by a compound Magistracy of King, Lords, and Commons; All whereof are most manifestly destroy'd and overturn'd by this present Power. So that we cannot conceive this (so call'd) Parliament to be the very Parliament of England.

But it was O jected by Colonel Venables, that the House was Purg'd, for there was discover'd therein a Faction that carry'd on the King's Interest, without regard to the public Good or Liberty of the Sub-

• jest. &c.

* Anf. 1. They were Parg'd indeed, and so Parg'd, that the very SOUL, ESSENCE and BEING of a Parliament was Parg'd from them: And nothing left but some few, even the lesser part of the House of Commons. You know when the breath of Life expires, and the Soul departs to God who gave it, Man is Dissolv'd, tho' some of his Constitutive Elements remain: The far lesser part of the House of Commons remain, in whom there can be no formal Power but a BORROW'D LIFE from their Lord and Master, Cromwel and the Army.

2. Where was there any necessity of Purging, nothing of such being deprehended by the Kingdom of Scotland, nor by the People of England, tho' alledg'd by these who had the Sectarian Design in hand, for a specious Colour for their Irregular Practices. See the Answer of the Coadjutors and General Council of the Army Jan. 3. 1648. calls it Irregular.

3. When the King in the first sitting down of the Last Parliament offer'd to Infringe the Liberties and Priviledges of the Parliament by secluding of the Members, how was it by these Men cry'd out upon, who now themselves have so violated the Privileges of Parliament, as they have out off two Integral Parts, and the greater part of the third of the whole Parliament? If the Remainder have Power, the daughter has devoured the Mother. We cannot in reason say there is any Parliament now sitting in England, unto whom Obedies ce is due. For what Power they had with others in the ancient Fundamental Constitution of the Government, must needs be null and ceased. The Government being a mixture of three Estates, the sormal Essence whereof is destroy'd, and consequently the whole.

But let us go further and grant that those men were a Parliament, Part. 2. Whether or not ought we to obey this Command in submitting to their Authority without King and House of Lords? Or forbear preaching, praying or Conference in public, or in private, except with fuch limitations propounded by Colonel Venables?

A. We cannot neither as we are Subjects, nor 2. As we are Chriflians, Nor 3. As we are Ministers of the Gospel.

1. Then, we are under the moral tye of Subjects unto a former Establish'd Government by King, House of Lords, and Commons: Now no man can serve two Masters, therefore we cannot be subject. both to the one and the other: And we conceive that THIS IS THE ONLY TRUE ESTABLISH'D AUTHORITY, as we have hewed formerly.

2. As Christians we cannot: 1. Because we are sworn and cove-

"nanted under that Relation.

1. In the Oath of Allegiance unto his Majesty the Supreme Mae gistrate in these three Kingdoms in these words; I do swear from my heart that I will bear Faith and true Allegiance to his Majesty, bis Heirs and Successors.

2. In the Solemn League and Covenant, wherein we are folemnly! engag'd to maintain and defend these Interests which this Engagement takes away.

We are to defend the King's Person and Authority, the Privileges of Purliament, to bring Malignants to Condign Punishment &c. All these for the Glory of God, Good of the Kingaems, the Honor and Happiness of the King.

If it be objected, that there is no King and therefore the matter Subject of the oath ceaseth; We have given already sufficient reasons, and were it not we study brevity, we cou'd give many more, that the King and both Houses, in regard of THEIR. ' RIGHT TO RULE, are YET IN BEING, or in regard of their LEGAL INTEREST; altho' they be violently thrust from it, by a power who have made themselves, and asurped the sear of · Authority.

Object. But in the Covenant you are tyed to bring all Malignants unto Condign Punishment; and the King himself was the head of all the Malignants.

We delife to put you in mind how the Condition of affairs was Part 2. betwixt the King and his People, when the Government was first made and received; he was look'd upon as a Prince detained from the way of truth by finistrous and Evil Counsel and Counsellors; and for this cause you, in your public declarations, held forth that ye were only to deliver him from them.

' 2. That is a special Article conceiv'd in the solemn Covenant. wherein you oblige your selves to preserve his Majesties Person, his Inst Power and Greatness, that you shall not diminish bis Authority.

3. It was well known what the KING THEN WAS, when the Covenant was made. And yet a DIFFERENCE clearly put be-

* swirt HIM and OFHER Malignants.

. '2dly, As Christians we cannot Condescend to the desire 6 of Colonel Venables, for by so doing we should offend against all 4 these Scriptures. 1 Tim. 5. 22. Eph. 5. 7. 11. 1/2. 4. 22, 23. 2 Cor. 6. 4 14. 2 Tim. 3. 2, 3, 4, 5. Prov. 17.15. And so justifie the ungodly: counive at oppression and wrong, yea we shou'd cooperate with it. We know not how it can stand with Christianity to have fellowship with the unfruitful Works of Darkness, or with the Throne of Iniqui-

But, may ye not engage a non-acting against, or a permissive sufferance of this power, that is, that ye shall not countenance any Insurrection among the people, but rather prevent and suppress the 4 same?

Ans. 1. We deny not but unto an usurped power there may be. 4 in some cases&for some reason, a present Passive Submission in our con temporal things, or leaving for the time our Right in point of Liberty, Estate or the like: But to engage for time to come not to apbear against them, will not be Justify'd. For

By so doing we wrong others with whom we are bound in solemn " Covenant, in BINDING UP OUR HANDS from their assistance.

in point of Instice AGAINST USURPERS.

2. Every Christian man in his station is bound to set himself against wicked Courses and the promoters thereof. In this case, we hou'd resist unto Blood. Heb. 12 5. For such as keep the Law Caneend with the wicked. Prov. 28,4.

4.3. If Lawful Authority may have a door open'd for the RES-* TAURATION thereof, we make our selves LINABLE TO OUR DUTY before God and Man, unto the lawful Magistiese.

Al-

Although our binding our selves in that kind may seem of small Part 2. Importance for the present, yet it's an indirect advancing of the " unjust ways of Usurpers and oppressors, and a Confirmation of them in \ their wicked courses.

Thirdly, Neither can we as Ministers of the Gospel Condescend to the desires of Colonel Venables, sor these reasons.

1st, Of all others, Ministers of the Gospel are most strictly obliged to shew Opposition, and the Advancement of equity, in their Places and Stations, 2 Cor. 10. v. 4. 5. Isa. 58.

Obj: But what has Ministers to do with State-Matters, let them preach Jesus Christ, and not Meddle with other things which do not concern them?

* An/: We take no pleasure to move without our own sphere, Neither through the strength of God resolve we to Meddle in State-Matters, further than it becometh Ministers of the Gospel.

" As first, we deal not as Statesmen in State-Maiters, but only be-wails the Enormities in them, and Witnesses against their evil.

2dly, In so far as they fall under the Theological Rules and E-* vangelical Doctrines, we dare not restrain our selves but as watchmen set the Trumpet to our Mouth, and cry aloud, and not fear.

About two Months after this, Sir Charles Coet publish'd his Declaration against the Ministers of the Presbytery, another Authentic proof of their Loyalty, the Title and latter part thereof I cannot omit in this place, without manifest Injustice.

A Declaration of the Right Honorable Sir Charles Coot, Knight and Baronet, Lord President of Conaught, Commander in the Army in the Province of Ulster and Conaught, and of his Council of War. August 14th, 1650.

- As to that of the Ministers, we Declare that we are heartily forry, that we shou'd be inforc'd to that Irreverence, we feriously acknowledge, to persons of their Function; but when after · several admonitions, private and public intimations, if they would adhere to their former Dispensation of the word without these frequent oblique Calumnies upon that Government and Power under which they live, rather giving the Children stones than bread, and instead of Edi-Qq

Part 2. Edification of Souls, SEEKING THE SUBVERSION AND RU-IN OF THE STATE, and fomenting such Distempers among our felves, that cannot probably (if way were given unto it) but draw us intoFactions, Diversities of Interests, and so terminate in blood: we say out of the duty we owe to God in Preserving that Peace we enjoy amongst one another, and for preventing such Misreports as some "wou'd Charge us withal; out of the Relation we stand in to the PRE-SENT GOVERNMENT THAT THEY WOU'D UNDER-" MINE, we must use all means to silence all such Incendiary Infruments, we being yet scarcely whole of these deadly wounds this Country receiv'd by the like contumelious practices, till which as 'in all sincerity we declare and desire it may be received in as friend-' ly a belief: signed by Command of the Lord President and his Council of War.

> The Universal refusal of the Oath mentioned in Mr Drysdaill's defence, call'd the Engagement, wherein the jurants swore to be faithful to the Commonwealth of England, without King and House of Lords, the Universal refusal, I say, of this Oath by the Presbytery & all those of wheir persuasion, was an uncontrovertible proof of their Instexible Integrity. They were often press'd to take it, threatned and revil'd for refusing it, when others comply'd, of which I shall give the Reader a brief account. Those who took upon them the Government of the North of Ireland in the year 1652, & who were styl'd the Commissioners of the Revenue, wrote Letters to the Presbyterian Ministers in these hounds, subscrib'd by Colonel Venables, wherein they desire a Meeting and Conference with 'em at Belfast, October 21st 1652. Whereupon the Ministers met at Cumbar the day before their appearance at Belfast, and foreseeing new troubles coming upon them entred into a Concert about their Behavior before the said Commissioners, and sirmly resolv'd to acquaint them, that they COII'D NOT OWN the Government as LAWFUL, nor BIND THEMSELVES by any OATH or SUB-SCRIPTION to it; and subscrib'd a paper to that purpose, which they actually gave in to the Commissioners next day. The Commissioners & they debated upon it 5 or 6 hours; but the Ministers wou'd not in the least recede from their Paper, tho' they were much Dealt with both by Enticing promises and severe Threatnings. They were Dismiss'd at that time; and desir'd to appear again within six Weeks, and in the mean time to make no Insurrection in the Country; Theypromis'd mis'd to do the first, but declin'd to give any answer to the se- Part 2.

When the 6 Weeks were expir'd, They met the Commissioners again, but still continu'd immoveable and six'd in their Loyal Principles. The Commissioners being weary'd and not knowing what to do with 'em, put them off with a Proposal that they shou'd send one or two of their Number to Dublin to General Floetwood, and the Council of Officers there; to try if they cou'd give them Satisfaction. The Ministers accordingly chose two of their number for that purpose (tho' they despair'd of Success) viz. the Reverend Mr. Patrick Adair, and Mr. Archibald Ferguson, and gave them Instructions to adhere resolutely to the Principles, they had own'd and asserted to the Commissioners below; and particularly discharged them, from giving any Titles to Fleetwood, and the Officers, which might seem to approve of their present Power, and appointed them to Plead that it was pure Conscience and no Turbulent Factious Humour that Instuenc'd their Opinion in that Matter.

The two Minusters having gone to Dublin, and Discoursed Fleetwood, were call'd before a Meeting of the Sectarian Officers in the Castle of Dublin, and Interrogated, Why they and their Brethren wou'd not take the Engagement, nor give Security to live Quietly? To which, they gave an Answer exactly agreeable to their Instructions, and were much Upbraided and Revil'd for it. And yet they persisted in Asserting their Principles with such undaunted Courage, as very much confounded some of their Accusers; of which (among other Instances) I shall give the Reader this one. While Mr. Ferguson was Pleading Conscience for their Judgment and Practice, one Allan an Anahaptist reply'd, a Papist wou'd and might say as much for himself, and pretend Conscience as well as you: To which Mr. Adair boldly Answered, Sir, Under savour,'Tis a mistake to compare our Consciences with Papists; for a Papist's Conscience cou'd Digest the Killing of Protestant Kings, and so wou'd not ours, for our Principles are contrary to it. There being divers there who had a hand in the King's Murder, all of 'em were struck with Shame, and some with Anger, by Mr. Adair's cutting Repartee; pulling down their Hats over their Faces, and using the other Gestures that are the usual Indications of these Passions: Whereupon there was profound Silence in the Company. The Ministers were not ask'd any more Questions, but in a day or two were dismiss'd Qq2

Part 2. by Fleetwood; without giving or getting any Satisfaction, but what was the Result of their own Integrity and of a good Conscience, in giving their public Testimony against those Republican Usurpers to their very Faces.

The Commissioners of the Rump finding that they cou'd make no hand of the Presbyterian Ministers and People, but were constantly oppos'd by them, form'd a Design of clearing the North of Ireland, of all such obstinate Anti-republicans, by Transporting them to the South, to be Confin'd there, where they imagin'd their Commonwealth cou'd not receive so much Damage by their Opposition to it: For this purpose, in the Year 1653, they Summons'd all the Ministers and Charg'd them to bring in the Greatest and Best part of their Parishoners to Carricksergus, there to take the Engagement, or give sufficient Reasons why they refus'd it.

The Ministers having first protested against the pretended Authoriaty, that Summons'd 'em, as void; and that their appearing should not be Interpreted an owning or Symbolizing with the same, did accordingly appear at Carricksergus, and were Accompanied with a vast Concourse of People; in presence of whom, and before the Commissioners then sitting, viz. Collonel Venables, Coll: Barrow, Goll. Jones, Coll. Hill, Major Morgan, and Major Allan, The Ministers (speaking by turns) continued for several hours, to unfold the Sinful and Illegat Usurpation of the then prevalent Power in England, the unlawfulness of Abjuring the King and House of Lords, whose Title they STRENII-OUSLY ASSERTED; and exhorted their People with a COURAGE and STEADINESS becoming the GOOD CAUSE they Maintain'd, to be Just and Loyal to the King, and to refuse the Engagement.

The Commissioners heard all with great Patience, not that they approv'd the Matter of such Discourses, but that they might have the more full Proof and better Color for Practifing their New Expedient of Transporting the Ministers and People to Tipperary, wherein they were so forward as to have at that very time a Ship lying ready in the Road of Carrickfergus, to carry off the Ministers instantly. - But Divine Providence baffled this Delign in a manner, and at a Nick of Time, which prov'd as Surprizing and Confounding to these Republican Engagers and to all their Abettors, as 'twas Seasonable for relieving the Resusers, and for Vindicating their oppress'd Innocence; for in the mean time, while the Commissioners were full of this Project, and just about sending the Ministers a Ship-Board, the Multitude be- Part 2. ing in Town, the public News brought an Account that Oliver Cromwil had rais'd the Parliament, Dissolv'd the Common wealth, and made himself Lord-Protector: Now there was no Common-wealth to Engage to, and that Society, that was Erected upon the Ruin of the Constitution tion, had it self made an Inglorious Exit. This Damp'd the Commissioners, and made em Dismiss the Ministers and People with milder Terms and Treatment than they had design'd.

Oliver having now thrown off the Mask, and Set up for himself; the Ministers were as brisk in their opposition to him as they had been to the Commonwealth, and for the same reasons. After his Son Henry Cromwel was made Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, he being of an easie' gentle temper, they Liv'd in more Peace than formerly; but refus'd' all Compliance with his Court, and wou'd not observe the Fasts and Thankigivings, appointed by his Authority; for which they were troubled by him. He wrote em threatning Letters, full of Animosity and Resentment, and some of 'em were charg'd to appear before the Council. Mr. Greg and Mr. Hart were call'd before Henry Cromwel himself, and askt the Reasons why they and their Bretheren did not observe the Fasts and Thanksgivings appointed by his Authority: In Answer to which they Pleaded, That their Consciences did not allow 'em to comply with any Power that was against the Constitution and Lawful Magistracy of the Kingdom. He was much Incens'd against 'em by this Answer, and Charg'd 'em with Ingratitude, Meaning that they had 100 Pounds each of them, per Annum, from the Government. But they never look'd upon that Salary as any Obligation upon them to own the Government; for the Usurpers had taken the Tyths from 'em, and after some Years gave 'em that bundred Pounds per Annum; which they accepted of, not as a Gist from the Government, but as a part of their own to which they had a Prior Title, and of which they had been depriv'd by the Usurpers, as has been observid. But yet 'tis evident, that they were laid under a Temptation by the Precarious Foot upon which their Maintenance then stood; Notwithstanding which, they persisted in their Loyal Resolutions and Declarations, and constantly and openly Prayed in their Pulpits for the King and for his Restauration, to their great Danger from Oliver's Army who heard them.

Before I make any reflections upon these papers and Historical passages,

Part 2. passages, I have adduc'd for proving the Loyalty of this Presbytery, who fram'd the Bangor-declaration, I am oblig'd to satisfy the Reader (which I shall here do once for all) of their being authentic and Genuine. Monk's Queries, and the Answers to them; the propositions delivered to him, the Diclaration of the Army and Country, are all kept amongst the original papers and minuts of the Presbytery; Colonel Venables's Letter is publish'd from the very original yet in being, and kept amongst the said papers. Sir Charles Cooi's Declaration is from a Copy kept likewise amongst their papers. The Vindication of the late proceedings of the Presbytery, and the Committee's reproving the Sovereign of Belfust, for not mentioning the King's Name i fencing the Courts is taken from the Original Minuts of the said Committee. Mr Drysdaill's Desence is publish'd from the Original Manuscript, all written with his own hand, known to several persons of untainted Reputation and Veracity, yet alive, who can attest it. All the papers and records from whence they are taken, have all the evidences that any papers in the world can have of their being authen. tic & genuine. And I do with the EmeSincerity and Solemnity declare, as if I were upon oath, before God and the world, that I have not interpolated or added (to my knowledge) the least Word or Syllable to any of 'em; but do find from undoubted evicences that the Lid papers were all own'd and deliver'd by the Ministers, who were then Members of that Presbytery to their other Brethren, as genuine, and the facts therein set forth, affirm'd by them to be true with all the positiveness and particular circumstances of Eye and Ear-witness; divers of 'em have died several years since the late happy Revolution 1688, and particularly the Reverend Mr. Patrick Adair, Mr Thomas Hall and Mr. Anthony Kennedy. Besides what all are agreed on, about the Management of the Rump-party even in Ireland, and what the public printed Histories relate of Colonel Venables, Sir Charles Coor and others so well quadrates with these papers, that there cannot be any shadow of Suspecting ttem. I have in my hands an original paper subscribed by 5 of that Presbytery to their brethren dated at Maybale in the shire of Air in Scotland November 2d, 1653. Shewing their being banish'd for their Loyalty by that party, the 5 Miniszers were the Reverend Mr John Greg, Mr Thomas Hall, Mr Fergus Alexander, Mr Anthory Shaw, Mr William Richardson. The History I give of the Ministers of Carrickfergus in 1653 their refusing the Engagement was attested by great Numbers of eye and ear-witnesses Part 2 who surviv'd the Revolution, and Multitudes can be produc'd (if nced be) who had it from their own Mouths.

En-

The Ministers aver'd all these Facts mention'd in the said Papers, in their Address to the Duke of Ormond in 1662, when all that Generation cou'd have resuted them had they offer'd any Palpable Mist-These and all the other particulars I have adduc'd with Relation to the Loyalty of Presbyterians during the Times of Usurpation (beside the other Proofs already mention'd, of their being True and Genuine) are recorded in Mr. Adair's Manuscript-History; a Book of very good Credit and Authority, as I have shown p. 165, &c.

The Inserences from these Papers and Historical Passages are 10 Obvious, that I shou'd justly incur the Censure of the Judicious Reader, shou'd I offer any tedious Enlargement upon 'em. What more cou'd Loyal Subjects say or do than what that Presbytery said & did? They Preach'd and Pray'd for their King, Afforted his Title upon all occasions, Press'd others to be Loyal, refus'd to Abjure him, were banish'd, revil'd sequestrated, imprisoned and miserably harass'd and oppress'd for him; fac'd the greatest Dangers with an intropid Gallantry, spoke and did what the Usurpers had Decreed to be High-Treason, and were not frighten'd out of their Integrity by an Usurper, so FORMIDABLE as to awe some of the greatest Crown'd-Heads in Europe, and to make Foreign States to Court his Alliance; And they did all this in Face of their Enemies, and attested by their Enemies. I am bold to say, that these were such Demonstrative Evic'ences of Loyalty as were PARALLEL'D BY FEW and OUTDONE BY NONE in those Days.

But let us take a short View of the behavior of the Presbyterians in Great-Britain during this Period; and this is so well known from the public Histories of those days, that I shall spend but little time upon it.

In Scotland, they Proclaim'd, Crown'd, and Fought for the King; their Country was a Santtuary to him, when he durst not appear in any of his other Dominions; they defended him with their Lives and Fortunes until they were overcome by Cromwel and his Adherents; In his Cause they lost the Liberty of their Country, and were expos'dto all the Calamities of a conquer'd People, and to all the Malice and Scorn of Enraged Enemies; In sace of whom, their Clergy Pray'd for his Restauration, and all Ranks amongst the People asserted his Right: whereby they show'd, that, tho' their Bodies and Estates must be Passive to a Superior Power, they had Souls not to be Subdu'd by the strongest Temptations to what was Disloyal and Dishonorable. As many of 'em had contributed out of their Estates for supplying his necessities, during his Exile; so they all join'd (in their several Stations) for promoting his Restauration; and 'tis well known that General Monkeyn-certed his Measures with them, for effecting that Grand Design.

Part 2.

All these things were so evidently true and so publickly known, that some of the bitterest enemies of the Presbyterians have freely acknowledged the truth of 'em: A noted Instance of this we have in a Book, Entitul'd, the History of Independency &c. Written by Ckemens Walker Esquire, and published Anno 1661. That Author acknowledgeth (part 2. p. 15.) that the Scots in their Treaty with King Charles 2d at Bread promised 1st, That his Majesty should be admitted to the Throne of Scotland. 2dly, That his Rights then should be by Parliament recover'd from the hands of Usurpers, and 3dly, That they wou'd assist to bring the Murcherers of his Father of blessed Memory, to condign Punishment, and to restore him to his Native Kingdom of England.

Upon these promises, and the Resolutions taken upon 'em and concerted between the King and the Scots, he lands in Scotland; The Loyalty of which Kingdom was what drew upon 'em all the Miseries, which the Sectarian Usurpers cou'd possibly inflict, as the same Author (Ivid. p. 16) relates in these Memorable words.

Things being at this piss, and his Majesty with much ado gotten into Scotland, as aforesaid, which the Juncto at West-minster having perfect intelligence of, and Weighing with themselves that promise of the Scots to bring the Murtherers of the King's Father to condign Punishment, they begin to think it high time to provide for their own safety; in consulting whereof, after much time spent, it is resolved, the safest, wisest & to them least chargeable course to wait on the Enemyin his own Country, whereby they carryed the War from home, and not to stay for him to bring it to their own doors.

As a strong Motive to this, just at the Instant, they discover that MANY OF THE PRESBY IERIANS of England, had by their Agents agreed with the Scots at Breda, to Re-Establish his Majesty in all his Dominions whereupon MANY EMINEN I persons are are seiz'd on, and among them Mr Case, Mr Jenkins, Mr Jackson, Part. 2. Mr Love &c. Which Mr Love, together with one Mr Gibbens, SUFFERED DEATH together on Towerhill, at the earnist suit of Cromwel, protesting he would not March into Scotland unless they were cut off.

The same Author having given an Account of Monk's Intention of making an Expedition into England, for bringing home the King; acquaints us with his calling an Assembly of the Nobility and Gentry of Scotland at Edinburgh; To whom he propos'd 3 things, viz. That in his Absence they shou'd preserve the Peace of that Nation, and supply bim with Men, and Money for bis Undertaking: to which the Earl of Giencairn, the Chair-man of that Assembly, made such answers as were bighly satisfying to General Monk, who (i. e. Monk) ' Endeavors to caress and endear them by giving the Lords and Gentry power to arm themselves, by SATISFYING THEM PRIVATELY IN THE DESIGN OF HIS EXPEDITION, and accepting of their Years Taxes. Hereupon he resolves now to daily no longer than this supplies of Men and Money come in ' (Ibid. p. 77) This makes it plain, that the Scots were made privy to Monk's design of bringing home the King, Anno. 1660; And that they gave him all possible Encouragement and Assistance for making it practicable.

But let us next review the behaviour of Presbyterians in England during this period, and there we will find 'em preaching, praying and suffering for their King. The Reverend Mr Love was condemn'd and executed as a Traitor for espousing his quarrel, and the English Presbyterians join'd with the Scots Commissioners at Breda in their promises and propositions in favor of the King and Royal Family, as Walker observes, in one of the passages I have quoted from him; for which reason they were the objects of the most Inveterate malice of the Rump and their Adherents; as will appear by 2 Instances which that Anthor hath Recorded in his History. For the two projects that wicked Party had fram'd for destroying Presbyteriaus, whose Loyalcy was likely to obstruct their Designs, were a Massacre, and the Severity of the High Court of Justice.

As to the first, Walker gives us the following Account of it in these Words (Ibid. Part 3. p. 11.) 'The first endeavour of all Tyrannical Usurpers is to lessen the number of their Enemies, either by Flattefring and Deceiving them; or by violently extinpating and rooting Rr them,

Part 2. them out. And such have been the attempts of our new Cromweli-an Statists, ever since (without any calling from God or the peoble) they took upon them the Supreme Authority of the Nation, subverted our well-mixed Monarchy and created themselves a free State. if, They endeavor'd to sweeten and allure to act with them, as many of the secured and secluded Members, Ministers, and other Presbyterians, as they cou'd, to the end that ex post facto being guilty of their Sins, they might be engaged in one common defence, ' and go halfs with them in their Ignominy and Punishment, though onot in their Power, profit and preferments, in which the Godly will 4 admit no Rivals, but (like their Patron the Devil) cry all's mine: 6 But this DESIGN FAIL'D FOR THE MOST PART. 2. Their fecond endeavor was how to diminish the number of their opposites, Royalifts and PRESBYTERIANS, by a Massacre, for which purpose many dark Lanthorns and Poniards were provided last Winter, 1649. But same prevented this plot: which coming to be the common rumor of the Town, put them in mind of the danger, So this was laid infamy and hatred that wou'd overwhelm them. aside.

As to the second Project, the Author having prov'd the Illegality of the Oath call'd the Engagement, and having commended the Loyalty of those who refus'd it, and particularly the reasons of the Cheshire and Lancashire Ministers in their Plea for non Subscribers (for the Presbyterians Universally refus'd that Oath through the three Kingdoms) proceeds to Treat of the High Court of Justice, and shows, first, the Authority by which 'twas Constituted. 2dly, the Judges, 3ly, the manner of their Proceedings; and then he adds (sbid. p. 43.)

4ly. 'And lastly, I am to consider, to what end and purpose this New invented High Court is constituted and appointed? Concerning which see a Letter dated 6 June 1550. Stilo Vetere, from the Hague, (suppos'd to be Walter Strickland's, the Parliament's Agent there) as I find it in Walter Frost's brief Relations of some Affairs and Transactions, &c, from Tuesday June 11, to June 18. 1650. Wherein the Epistoler hath these Words, "One piece of the Cure (viz. of the dangers that threaten your new State) must be Phlebotomy, but then you must begin before Decumbency, and then it will be facile to prevent danger &c.they are here most of all afraid of your High Court of Justice, which they doubt may much Discour-

" courage their Party, they wish you wou'd not renew the Power Part 2 "thereof, but let it expire: then they think that after Michaelmas they may expect assistance with you, and indeed that Court is of almost as much use to you as an Army: And will prevent the raising of as many Enemies as the other would destroy, only you must be sure to Execute Justice there with all Severity. A few of the first " Stirrers taken away, by the Power thereof, without respect to "Cousin or Country will keep all the rest quiet. But whosoever " that Court Condemns, let them be as already Dead &c. But let them he most free in cutting the Vena Caphalica (that is, the PRES-BYTERIAN PARTY) for the Basilica (or Royal Party) will be 14 latent. The Median (or Levellers) wou'd be spared as much as " may be, That the Body be not too much Emaciated. Besides, the " BLOOD IS MOST CORRUPT in the Caphalicks (or PRESETTE-" RIANS) and is the very causa continens of your Disease. You need not fear to take freely of this Vein, &c.

According to the above Scheme, the Sectaries did bend their thoughts and apply themselves in the most effectual manner they could, to the suppressing and ruining of the English Presbyterians; and yet 'twas not in their Power to make them abandon their Loyal Principles and Dutiful Affection to the Royal Family: For the Presbyterians, a little after Oliver's Death, made an oren and bold attempt for the King's Restauration, which will ever be remembred to their Honor. Rump, who had still entertain'd their Resentments against Oliver for deposing 'em and Dissolving their Common-wealth, finding that his Son Richard had not his Father's Parts, nor cunning to Maintain himself in the Protestorship, found means to get once more into the Saddle, and set up their Republick again. How the Presbyterians in England behav'd in this turn of Governmen. I shall relate in the words of the Author of the Continuation of Sir Walter Raleigh's History p. 143. ' Richard (says he) retir'd to his former Obscurity, Henry Cromwel gave up Ireland, and the Commonwealth was Re-establish'd. During this Revolution, the Royalists had not been Idle, they had formed a Conspiracy for a general Insurrection; and we must do the Presbyterians the Justice to own, that MOST OF THE CONSPIRA-TORS were of THEIR PROFESSION, as the Lord Willoughby of Parham who was to seize Lyn; General Massy, who was to do the same by Glosester, and Sir George Booth in Chesture, who actu-Rr2

Part 2. ally Rose, was Deseated by Lambert at Winnington-bridge and ta-

This Loyal attempt, tho' it was not Successful at that time, prov'd. very Serviceable to the King's Interest by the Influence it had upon others and particularly upon the Kingdom of Ireland, of which Burlace takes special Notice, cilling it a Noble Attempt, p. 316. and the Affairs of England (fays he) growing every day full of change, Ireland unstderstanding what Sr. George Booth had NOBLY ATTEMPTED. in England, grew thence early in its dutiful Address to his Majesty.

The English Presbyterians not being discourag'd by the unsuccessfulness of the former attempt, for the Restauration of the Royal Family, did most CHEARFULLY CONCUR with Monk, and the Parliament Anno 1660, for bringing home the King. And here it ought. to be observ'd, that the way was Pav'd for his Restauration, by the Readmission of the Secluded Members and Presbyterian Party into the. House, of which Walker gives the following Account (Ibid. part. 4. p. 92. &c.)

He (i. e. Monk) procures à Conference between some sitting Members of the House, and some of the Honorable Gentlemen and WORTHY PATRIOTS that were EXCLUDED from it; at which himself being in person present, and weighing judiciously the Reasons and Arguments formed on both sides, which he heard with a deep and reserved silence, after all were withdrawn, he concluded with himself, upon result from the whole, that the pretended settlement proposed by the House, was of Compass too narrow, and too weak of Foundation to bear up the Nation, and repair its breaches: he resolved therefore to withdraw all manner of force from the House, and to admit men of more sober, moderate and less bya fed Judgments, whose Spirits being more apt for public Good, wou'd establish the Kingdom upon Terms comprehensive of every considerable Interest therein: hereupon, on the one and. twentieth day of February, meeting the secluded Members at Whitehall and expressing himself to them in a speech not delivered by himself but by his Secretary, Wherein he commended to their care, 1ft, Religion — 2dly the State.

The Secluded Members being thus admitted, fall immediately to Work, where they were abruptly forced to break off in December 1648.

Confirming

Confirming their VOTE MADE THEN by ANOTHER now, Part 2. that the Concessions of the late King were a sufficient Ground to proceed on for serving the Peace of the Kingdom; hereby not only Vindicating themselves, but as it were at once disannulling all that had been done Dissonant thereto, during the whole time of their Recess.

It is very observable of the two CHARLESes, that the FIRST cou'd not be Murthered until the Presbyterian Members were first cast out of the House of Commons, and that the SECOND cou'd not be restor'd, until the same Members were brought in again: And then Sectarian Ulfurpers were effectually depos'd, a Wise and Faithful Council of State set up, and the Militia put into Loyal and Trusty Hands. A free Parliament is Call'd, and Presbyterians in the mean time us'd their utmost Interest for the King, and particularly those eminent Divines, Mr. Calamy, Mr. Ash, Dr. Bates, Dr. Manton, Dr. Jacomb, and the other Presbyterian Ministers of London animated the Affections of that Great City, as Mr. Baxter observes in the History of his Lise and Times (p. 214). Upon the last Day of April 1660, the Parliament kept a Fast for imploring Divine Blessings and Direction in their Affairs; Mr. Calamy and Mr. Baxter were employed to Preach and Pray before the House of Commons that Day, and publickly told the House that they were agreed to be Loyal to their King (Id Ibid. p. 217;) and the very next Morning after this Fast, the Parliament Vote home the King, Nemine Contradicente; Mr. Calamy, Dr. Manton, and Mr. Bowles (with divers others) went immediately to Holland to wait upon his Majesty, who gave them a Gracious Reception, and a great Character. For in his Declaration concerning Ecclesiastical Affairs, he says, 'When we were in Holland, we were attended by many Grave and Learned Ministers from hence, who were look'd upon as the most able and Principal Assertors of the Presbyterian Opinions ---- and to our great Satisfaction and Comfort, found them PERSONS FULL · OF AFFECTION TO US, of Zeal for the Peace of the Church and State". And when his Majesty came to London as he pass'd through the City towards Westminster, the London-Ministers attended him in their Places with ACCLAMATIONS, and by the Hands of old Mr. Arthur Jackson presented him with a rich adorn'd Bible, which he receiv'd, and told them it shou'd be the Rule of his Actions: (Id. Ibid. p. 218) and Mr. Calamy, Dr. Reynolds, Mr. Ash, Dr. Spurstow, Dr. Wallis, Dr. Bates, Dr. Manton, Mr. Baxter, and Mr. Case, The: were made his Chaplains (Id. Ibid. p. 229)

The Great Sir Matthew Hale, and the Learned Conformist in his se-Part 2. The Great DIF Mainew Man, and the Presbyterians the Justice, as to own their Zeal in promoting the Restauration, the latter quoting the sormer with just Applause, in these Words; (p. 65.)

They who are punish'd (i. e. the English Non-Conformists) are as 6 Orthodox Holy Christians as any in the World, out of our ownChurch. They are profitable and peaceable Subjects, notwithstanding many discouragements and provocations from Fellow-Subjects, and hidden · Traitors; more particularly, many of them have deserved well from the Church and State, which in human Probability HAD NE-· VER BEEN RESTOR'D, but for THEIR LOYALTY, Religion and Conscience. This made the most Renown'd Sir Matthew Hale say . ( whose sense may be as soon taken as most Men's alive, for his Wisdom, Loyalty and Integrity, and Impartiality in all Acts of Judg-" ment) " Many of the Non-Conformists had MERITED HIGHLY in the buliness of the King's Restauration, and at least deserved, that " the Terms of Conformity shou'd not be made stricter than they were hefore the War.

Upon the whole, let the World judge, whether the Presbyterians be fairly Treated by our Author, when they are represented by him as Enemies to the King's Restauration; which had they oppos'd, as Matters then stood, the Issue of all other endeavours that were us'd to promote it had been at best very Dubious, if not wholly unsuccessful; of which the King himself was very sensible, when for that very reason he urg'd the House of Lords in his first Parliament, to hasten the Ast of Oblivion, in the following Words, 'My Lords (said he) if 'you do not join with me in extinguishing those Fears, which keep Mens Hearts awake, and apprenensive of Sasety and Security, you keep me from performing my promise, which if I had not made, I'm persuaded neither you nor I had been here. I pray let us not deceive those who brought or permitted us to come together.

Having thus Illustrated. 1. The Scope and occasion of the Bangor-2. The Reasons that justifie is, and 3. The Loyalty of Declaration. the Presbytery who made it, and the Loyalty of the British Presbyterians from 1648 to 1660; In Pursuance of the Method I propos'd,

I come 4thly, to answer what is objected by our Author against this Declaration of the Presbytery of Bangor. And here I must observe, that the Substance of all he advances has been already refuted, while

I have demonstrated that the Presbytery were for owning King Part 2: Charles 2d, asserting his Title, opposing his Enemies, and promoting his Restauration. But our author makes one objection, which I shall further consider. Let the Reader take it in his own words in his second Letter. p. 9, 10. However to give you a perfect view of the Principles upon which the Northern Presbyterians proceed in this period let us Compare one Paragraph of this Bangor-Declaration in 1649, With a Paragraph of a Letter writ to King Charles 2d, from the General Assembly in Scotland, Dated the very same year and recorded in the Alts of the General Assembly.

In the Declaration of Banger, they say, He (i e the Lord of Airds) has now cloath'd himself with a Commission from his Majestie, who as yet resuses to give any satisfaction in Religion to the just demands of the Kingdom of Scotland. Now what those demands were, to which that Presbytery of Banger referred in their Declaration, we find summ'd up in that Letter to King Charles 2d, before mentioned in these words, viz.

*That your Majesty do humble your self under the Mighty hand of God, &c. These are the just demands of the Kirk of Scotland to which the Presbytery of Bangor refers; and which, you may observe they make the SOLE CONDITION of their Allegiance and Subjection. This I Judge sufficient for a specimen of the Untainted Loyalry of the Dissenters of Ireland, and their singular merit from the

<sup>6</sup> Crown and Church in the second period.

Our Author, to make his Argument good, ought to have prov'd two points, viz. 1st, That the demands which the Assembly made were unreasonable; and 2dly, That they were the sole condition of their allegiance to the King: And because he reslects heavily upon the Assembly's Letter, while he quotes but a part of it; and that not only Justice may be done to the Assembly, but also the weakness of our Author's reasoning upon their Letter compar'd with the Bangor Declaration, may surther appear, I shall here Insert the whole Letter, which runs thus:

Most Gracious Sovereign,
(r) We your Majestie's most Hamble Loyal Subjects, the Commissioners

Part 2. missioners from all the Presbyteries in this your Majestie's Ancient Kingdom, and Members of this present National Assembly, having expected to find at our Meeting a Gracious and latislattory return to those humble Representations, made to your Majesty at the Hague by the Commissioners of this Kirk, cannot but express our great Sorrow, and Grief, that your Majestie's Goodness has been fo far abused, as that not only the just and necessary desires presented by them to your Majesty, which so much concern the Glory of God your own honor and happiness, the Peace and Sasety of your Kingdoms are utterly frustrated, as we perceive, by the paper de-'s livered in Answer to them; but also this Assembly hath not received so much as any signification by letter of your Majestie's mind: which Princely condescention had not wont to be wanting in your Royal Father, to former General Assembly's, even in times of greatest distance. Our Witness is in Heaven, and record on high, that we are not Conscious to our selves of any Undutiful thought or Difloyal Affection, that might have procur'd this at your Majestie's hands; And that as we do from our hearts abominate and detest that " HORRID FACT of the Sect aries against THE LIFE OF YOUR ROYAL FATHER, our late Sovereign; so it is the unfeigned and earnest desire of our Souls, that the ANCIENT Monarchical Goverument of these Kingdoms may be Establish'd and Flourish in your MAJESTIE'S PERSON all the days of your life, and be continued in your Royal Family; which by Divine Providence hath without Interruption Reign'd over us and our Predecessors for so many Generations, fince the time that we were a Kingdom; and that there is nothing, under the Glory of God, and cause of our Lord Jesus Christ, for which we do more heartily solicite the Throne of Grace, or wou'd more heartily expose unto hazard ALL THAT 'IS DEAR to us in the World, than for THIS. And now though this very great discouragement might encline us to hold our peace at this time, yet the tenderness and uprightness of our Affection and Love to your Majestie's happinels (which many Waters cannot quench) together with the Conscience of our duty, which our Lord and Master has laid upon us in this our place and station, constraineth us, yea and your Majestie's own Goodness and Gracious Disposition, whereof the late Commissioners have given us so large a Testimopy doth much encourage us, to renew our Addressesto your Majesty growing dangers to your Royal Person and Throne, and of these duties, which the Lord of Lords, and King of Kings calls for from you, as you wou'd look to find favor in his eyes, and to be delivered out of your deep distresses.

'Our hearts are filled with fears and troubles in your Majestie's behalf, when we look upon the sad Calamities which have been already produced by such ways and courses as we perceive your Majesty is entered and in danger to be further led away into by the prevalency of evil Counsel, upon your tender Age: particularly, your refusing to give Satisfaction to the just and necessary desires of the People of God, for advancing the Work of Reformation of Religion, and Establishing and Securing the same in your Majestie's Dominions, which is nothing else but to Oppose the Kingdom of the Son of God, by whom Kings do Reign, and to refuse that he should Reign over you and your Kingdoms, in his pure Ordinances of Church-Government and Worship; Your Cleaving to these Men as your "Trusticst Counsellors, who as they never had the Glory of God, nor good of his People before their Eyes, so now in all their Ways and Counsels, are seeking nothing but their own Interests, to the hazard of the Utter Subversion of your Throne, the ruin of your Royal Family, and the Desolation of your Kingdoms; Your owning the Practices, and entertaining the Person of that Flagitious Man, and most justly Excommonicated Rebel, James Graham, who has exercised such horrid Cruelty upon your best Subjects in this Kingdom; which cannot but bring upon your Throne, the Guiltiness of all the Innocent Blood shed by him and his Complices: And ABOVE ALL, that which we cannot think upon without trembling of Heart and Herror of Spirit, your feetling of lave such a Peace with the Ynsh Papists, the Murderers of so many thousands of your Protestant Subjects, whereby not only they are owned as your good Loyal Subjects, but also there is granted unto them, (contrary to the Standing-Laws of sour Royal Progenitors, contrary to the Commandment of the Most, "High God; and so the high Contempt and Dishonor of his Majesty, -and evident danger of the Protestatt Religion) a full Liberty of their adominable Molary; which cannot be otherwise Judged, but a giving of your Royal Power and Strength unto the Benft, and an Acorf-

Part 2. cession to all that Blood of your good Subjects, wherewith those Sons of Babel have made that Land to Swim.

We do in all Humility beseech your Majesty to consider and lay to Heart what the Mouth of the Lord of Hosts hath spoken of all the Accounts of People, Nations, Kings and Rulers against the Kingdom of his Son, that they Imagin a vain thing, and that he that suteth in Heaven will have them in Derisson, and vex them in his sere Displeasure. Consider, how he hath Blasted and Turned upside 'cown these Years by past all the Devices and Plots of those Men that now bear the Sway in your Majestie's Councils: Consider, how the Anger of God has been kindled even against his dearest Saints, when they have joined themselves to such Men as he Hateth' and has Cursed. Consider, how severely he hath Threatned and Punished such Kings as have Associate with Idolaters; and leaned to their helps.. Surely, Great is the Wrath of God, whereof you are in danger; and yet the Lord in the riches of his Goodness, forbearance and Long Suffering, is waiting to be Gracious to your Majesty, Today if ye will hear his Voice, harden not your Heart, but humble your self under the mighty hand of God; Lamenting after him as for the Iniquities of your Father's House, especialy the Opposition against the Reformation of Religion and Cause of God, the permitting and practifing Antichristian Idolatry in the Royal Family it self, and the shedding of so much Blood of the People of God, so also for' your own entering to walk in the like Courses in the beginning of your Reign. It is high time to fall down before the Throne of Grace, seeking to get your Peace made with God through Jesus Christ, whose Blood is able to wash away all your sins, to walk no longer in the Counsel of the ungodly, nor cleave to such as seek their own things' and not the things of Jesus Christ, nor the Welfare of your Subjects and Government; but to set your Eyes upon the faithful in your Dominions, that such may dwell with you, and be the Men of your Councils, to serve the Lord in Fear, and kess the Son of God, by a sincere and cordial Contributing your Allowance and Authority for ' establishing in all your Dominions, the Reformation of Religion, in Doctrine, Worship and Government, as it is now agreed upon according to the clear and evident Warrant of the word of God by the Assembly of Divines at Westminster, and the General Assembly. of this Church; and also laying aside that Service-Book, which is so stuff'd with Romish Corruptions, and conforming your own Practice Part 2: and the Worship of God in your Royal Family, to that Gospel simplicity and Purity which is holden forth from the Word of God, in the Directory of Worship, and not only to grant your Royal Approbation to the Covenant of these three Kingdoms (without which your. People can never have from you sufficient security either for Religion, or their just Liberties) but also your selt to join with your People therein, as the greatest security under Heaven for your Perfon and just Greatness, and to cause all of them stand to it by your Royal Command, according to the Practice of that Gracious King Josiah, to whom we wish your Majesty in these your Younger Years, and this beginning of Your Reign, to look as to an ensample and Kingly Portrait approven of God. These things if your Majesty do; as we are well affored, that the Hearts of all your Good Subjects in these Kingdoms will be enlarged with all Chearfulness to Embrace your Person, and submit unto your Royal Government, so we dare promise in the Name of our Lord, that you shall find favour with God, Peace and joy unspeakable and tull of Glory-to your Soul, and deliverance out of your sad Assictions, and deep Distresses in due Time. But if your Majesty shall go on in resusing to hearken to wholesome Councils; we must for the discharge of our Conscience, tell your Majesty in the Humility and Grief of our Hearts, that the Lord's Anger is not turned away, but his Hand is stretched out still against you and your Family.

But we hope and shall with all earnestness and constancy pray for better things from, and to your Majesty: and whatsoever misconstruction (by the malice of those who desire not a right Understanding and Cordial Conjunction between your Majesty and this "Kirk and Kingdom) may be put upon our Declaration; Yet we have the Lord to be our witness, that our purpose and Intention therein is no other but to warn and keep the people of God committed to our care, that they run not any course which wou'd bring upon themselves the guilt of bigbest perjmy and breach of Covenant with God, and cou'd not but prove most dangerous to your Majesty and involve you in shedding the blood of those, who are most desirens to preserve your Majestie's Person, & just Rights in all your Dominions. And now we do with all earnestness beseech your Majesty, that you will follow the courses of truth & peace & that when there S · 1 2

Part 2. there is a door open'd for your Majesty to enter to your Royal Government over us, in Peace, with the favor of God, and cordial love and Embracings of all your Good Subjects; You will not ' suffer your self, to be so far abused and missed by the Councels of Men, who delight in war, as to take a way of Violence and blood, which cannot but provoke the most high against your Majesty, & alienate from you the hearts of your best Subjetts, who desire nothing more than that your Majesty may have a long & happy Reign over them: and that they may live under you a peaceable and quiet Life in all Godiness and benefty.

Ldinburgh. 6. Augnst. 1649.

Your Majesties most Loyal Subjects and humble Servants. the Ministers and Elders conviened in this National Asfembly of the Kirk of Scot-. land.

Here cannot be more solemn Protestations nor more Pathetical Expressions, of an Inviolable Regard to Monarchy, a Loyal and dutiful Affection to the Royal Family and the person of their Prince, than these contain'd in the beginning of the above Letter, which therefore is a strong Argument for 'em instead of being matter of reproach. And tho' in the latter part of it they make demands in favor of the Covenant, and against Episcopacy, Littingy and Ceremonies, yet they don't make these things the Condition of their Allegiance to him: and our Author's reasoning proceeds upon this Fundamental mistake, upon which the whole strength of his Argument is built, and with which it falls; viz. That he do's not rightly distinguish between the desires which the Assembly of Scotland made to the King, and the Conditions of their allegiance to him; but whenever he finds any thing proposed by them to his Majesty, he presently concludes that to be the sole Condition of their Subjection to him. His Right to be their King was the condition of their Allegiance; But then I see no reason why they might not desire him to do some things, which they were not for making the essential and sole Condition of their allegiance, but propos'd them only as their earnest desires, infinuating that his granting these things wou'd exceedingly encourage them, to pay their allegiance to him, with more chearchearful affiction, and esteem of his Royal Government: and this is all Part 2. they say, when they tell him, these things if your Majesty will do, we are assur'd that the hearts of your Majestie's Subjects will be enlarg'd, &c.

As to the Matter of these desires, it wou'd quite lead me off the design of this Book, to enter into the controversie about Episcopacy and Liturgies; 'tis enough for my purpose to observe that the Church of Scotland had a right by the Laws of the Kingdom, to demand from the King, a sufficient security for the preservation of their own Constisution against both; and that in their Circumstances they had a great deal to sayfor their using some expressions against Prelacy&Ceremonies, which may seem barsh to people who know not the History of the troubles and confusions brought on that Church and State by the forious Laudensan Prelates of that age; of which I shall here give the Reader a brief account, in the words of two Historians who cannot be suspected of partiality to Scats Presbyterians: The first is the Earl of Clarendon (1),

Li was a fatal Inadvertency (Jays he) that these Canons neither before nor after they were fent to the King, had been ever feen by the Assembly or any Convocation of the Clergy, which was so strictly obliged to the observation of them; nor so much as Communicated to the Lords of the Council of that Kingdom, it being almost Impossible that any new Discipline cou'd be Introduc'd into the 6 Church which wou'd not much concern the Government of the State, and even Trench upon or refer to the Municipal Laws of the Kingdom. And in this Consideration the Archbishop of Canterbury had always declared to the Bishops of Scotland, That it was their part to be sure that nothing they shou'd propose to the King, in the business of the Church, shou'd be contrary to the Laws of the Land, which he conduct be thought to Understand; and that they Shou'd never put any thing in Execution, without the consent and approbasion of the Privy Council. But it was the UNHAPPY CRAFT of those Bishops to get it believ'd by the King, that the work won'd be Grateful to the most considerable of the Nobility, the Clergy and the People (which THEY COU'D HARDLY BE-LIEVE) in order to the obtaining, his Majestie's approbation, and autho-

Part 2. Authority for the execution of that, which they did really believe would not find opposition from the Nobility, Clergy, or people against his Majesty's express Power and will, which without doubt was then in great Veneration in that Kingdom; and so they did not, in truth, DARE TO SUBMIT these Canons to any other Examination than what the King shou'd direct in England.

It was in the next place, as strange that Canons shou'd be pub-Issued before the Liturgy was prepar'd (which was not ready in a year after, or thereebouts, when three or four of the Canons were Principally for the observation of and punctual compliance with the Liturgy; which all the Clergy were to be from to submit to, and to pay all obedience to what was enjoin'd by it, before they knew what it Contain'd. Whereas if the Liturgy had been first publish'd with all due Circumstances, it is possible that it might have found a better reception, and the Canons have been less examin'd.

The Scots Nation, how capable hoever it was of being led by some great Men and missed by the Clergy, would have been cor-" rupted by neither into a barefac'd Rebellion against their King whose person they lov'd, and reverenc'd his Government, nor cou'd they have been wrought upon towards the lessening of the one, or the other, by any suggestions, or Insusions, than such as shou'd make them jealous or apprehensive of a design to introduce Popery; a great part of their Religion confisting in an entire detestation of Popery, in believing the Popero be Antichrift, and having perfectly the perfons of all Papists.

4 The Canons now published, besides (as hath been touched before) that they had paffed no approbation of the Clergy, or been · Communicated to the Council, appear'd to be to many mem Laws, imofed upon the whole Kingdom by the King's SOLE AUTHO-Y' RITY, and contrived by a tew private Men of whom they had no e good opinion and who were strangers to the Nation; so thet it was thought no other than a Subjection to England, by receiving Laws from thence, of which they were most Jealous, and which they most passionately abhorr'd. Then they were so far from being confined to the Church, and the matters of Religion, that they believ'd there was no part of their Civil Government un-invaded by them; and ho persons of what Quality soever unconcerned, and as they thought, unhàrt hurt in them&there were some things in some particular Cmons, how rational soever in themselves, and how distant soever in the words and expressions from inclining to Popery, which yet gave too much alvantage to those, who maliciously watched the occasion, to persuade weak men that it was an approach, and Introduction to that Religion, the very Imagination whereof intoxicated all men and deprived them of all faculties to examine and Judge.

* Some of the suid Canons Defined and Determin'd such an unlimited Power and Prerogative to be in the King according to the pattern (in express Terms) of the Kings of ISRAEL, and such a sull Supremacý in all Cases Ecclesiastical, as hath never be n pretended to by their sormer Kings, or submitted to by the Clergy, and Laity of that Nation; which made impression upon Men of all Tempers, Humors, and Inclinations; And that no Ecclesiastical Person shou'd become Surety or Bound for any Man; That National or General Assemblies should be' called only by the King's Authority, That all Bishops, and other Ecclesiastical -Perfons, who Dye without Children, shou'd be oblig'd to give a good part of their Estates to the Church, and though they ]hou'd have Children, yet to leave somewhat to the Church, and for advancement of Learning; which seemed rather to be matter of State and Policy, than of Re-· ligion, thwarted their Laws and Customs; which had been observ'd by them; lessen'd, if not took away the Credit of Churchmen, and Prohibited them from that Liberty of Commerce in Civil Affairs, which the Laws permitted to them, and reflected upon the Interests of those who had, or might have a Right to Inherit from Clergy-That none should receive the Sacrament but upon their Knees; 4 That the Clergy shou'd have no prevate Meetings for expounding Scripture, er for Consulting upon Matters Ecclestastical; That no Man shou'd cover bis Head in Time of Divine Service, and that no Clergy-Man shou'd Conceive Prayers extempore, but be Bound to Pray only by the Eonin Prescrib'd' in the Liturgy, (which by the way was not seen ner fram'd) and' that no Man shou'd teach a public School, or in a private House, with-' out a License first obtain'd from the Archbishop of the Province, or the Bishop of the Diocess:

All these were New, and things with which they had not been acquainted; and though they might be sit to be commended to a regular and orderly People, piously dispos'd; Yet it was too strong meat for Infants in Discipline, and too much nourishment to be ad-

mi-

Part 2. ministred at once, to weak and queasy Stomachs, and too much in-clin'd to nauseate what was most wholesome, but then, to apply the old Terms of the Church, to mention the Quatuor tempora, and restrain all Ordinations to these sour seasons of the Year, to enjoyn a Font to be prepared in every Church for Baptism, and a decent Table for the Communion; and to direct, and appoint the places where both Font and Lable shou'd stand, and decent Ornaments for either; to restrain any Excommunication from being pronounc'd, or absolution from being given without the Approbation of the Bishops; to mention any practice of Confession (which they look'd upon as the strongest, and most inseparable Limb of Antichrist) and to enjoyn, That no Presbytershou'd reveal any thing he show'd receive in Confession, except in such cases, where, by the Law of the Land his own life shou'd be forseited; were all such matters of innovation and in their Nature so suspicious, that they thought they had reason to be jealous of the worst that could follow: and the last Canon of all provided, that no person shou'd be received into Holy orders or suffered to Prench, or Administer the Sacraments without sirst subscribing to these Canons.

The second Historian, whom I shall quote upon this head is a Reverend Father in the Church of England, whose Testimony as being confirm'd by his Particular knowledge of the Scots affairs, and his Veneration for the Episcopal order, as well as his great Character as an Historian in General, can't with any good Grace be refus'd by our Author and these of his party; 'Tis the Reverend Doctor Burnet Lord Bishop of Sarum, who in his Memoirs of the House of Hamilton (1), gives the following Character and History of the Scots Bithops,

Episcopacy being settled; King Jemes also erected a High-Commission Court, for punishing such as offended against that Constitution of the Church. This Court was made up of Bishops and other Noblemen and Gentlemen; But the Bishops being those who kept the Diess of it best, most of the secular persons absenting themselves, often on design; and the Bishops leading all Mattere in it, it was counted their Court, and the Odiam of all the puffed there fell to their fhare,

. This

This step being made, King James advanced towards an Unifor-Part 2: misy with England in Worship and other Ceremonies, moved to it, either that he might thereby make way for the Union of both Kingdoms, which of all things he most desired, or that he might root the Seeds of Puritanism out of Scotland. But in this he mot with greater opposition, and all the Progress he made in it was that in one Assembly it was Decreed, there shou'd he a Liturgy drawn for the we of the Church of Scotland; and in another at Perth, the five Articles that bore the Name of that place, were settled not without great Contradiction; and these were the Consirmation of Children, private Baptism, private Communion in Cases of necessity, Kneeling in Communica. ting, the Observation of the Holy days of the Nativity, Passion, Resurretton, Ascension, and Pentecost. Those were also establish'd in Parliament Anno 1621, where the Marquiss his Father was Commissioner, and Managed that Affair so dexterously, that it gain'd him an equal. share of effeem and hatred, these things being generally very odnous, As King James was going on warrily in this Design, he Died Lamented and Admired by all the World, and even those who had Irritated him most when alive, did bewail his Death with Deep and just Regrates.

He was succeeded in his Throne by his only Son Charles the First, who was Zealously Conscientious for Episcopacy; so what his Father: begun out of Policy was Prosecuted by him out of Conscience; the Bishops therefore were Cherished by him, with all imaginable Expressions of kindness and confidence, but they lost all their est eem with the People, and that upon divers Accounts. The People of Scotland had drunk in a deep Prejudice against every thing that savour'd of Popery. This the Bishops judged was TOO HIGH, and therefore took all means possible to lessen it, both in Sermons and Discourses, MOLLIFYING THEIR ONNIONS, and commending their Persons, not without some Reflections on the Reformers. But this was so far from gaining their Design, that it abated nothing of the Zeal was against. Popery, but very much beighten'd the Rage against themselves, as fa-

.voring it too much. There were also subtile Questions started some Years before in Holland about Predestination and Grace; and Arminius his Opinion, 'as it was condemn'd in a Synod at Dort, so was generally ill reported of in all Reformed Churches, and no where worse than in Scotland, but Part 2. most of the Bishops and their. Adherents, undertook openly and zea-lously the desence of these Tenets; likewise the Scottish Ministers and People had ever a great respect to the Lord's Day, and generally the "Morality of it is reckon'd an Article of Faith among them; but the Bishops not only undertook to beat down this Opinion, but by their Practices express'd their NEGLECT OF THAT DAY; and after all this, they declared themselves AVOWED ZEALOTS for the Liturgy and Ceremonies of England, which were held by the Zealous of Scotland all one with Popery: Upon these Accounts it was that they lost altebeir Esteem with the People.

Neither stood they in better Terms with the Nobility, who at that time were as considerable as ever Scotland saw them; and so proved both more Sensible of Injuries, and more capable of resenting They were offended with them, because they seemed to have more Interest with the King than themselves had, so that fa-" vors were mainly distributed by their Recommendation, they were also upon all Affairs, nine of them were Privy-Counsellors, divers of them were of the Exchequer, Spottiswood Arch-bishop of St. Andrews was made Chancellor, and Maxwell Bishop of Ross, was fair for the Treasury, and engag'd in a high Rivalry with the Earl of Traquair then Treasurer, which tended not a little to help forward their Ruin. And besides this, they began to pretend highly to the Tyths & Impropriations, and had gotten one Lermonth a Minister Presented Abbot of Lindoris; and seemed confident to get that State of Abbots, with all the Revenue and Power belonging to it, again restored into the hands. of Churchmen, designing also, that according to the first Institution. of the Colledge of Justice, the half of them shou'd be Churchmen. This cou'd not but touch many of the Nobility in the quick, who were too large Sharers in the Patrimony of the Church, not to be very sensible of it.

They were no less hateful to the Ministry, because of THEIR PRIDE, which was cried out upon as unsupportable. Great Comblaints were also generally made of Simoniacal Pattions with their Servants, which was Imputed to their Masters as if it had been for: their Advantage; at least by their Allowance. They also exacted · New Outh of Intrants, (besides what was in the Act of Parliament for Obedience to their Ordinary) in which they were ablig'd to obey the Articles of Perth, and Submit to the Liturgy and Canons.

They

They were also making daily Inroads upon their Jurisdiction, of Part 2. Which the Ministers were very sensible. And Universally their great Rigor against any that savour'd of Puritanism, together with their medling in all secular Affairs, and relinquishing their Diocesses to wait on the Court and Council, made them the OBJECT OF ALL MEN's FURY.

But that which heighten'd all to a Crisis was, their advising the King to Introduce some Innovations in the Church by his own Authority; things had prospered so ill in General Assemblies, that they thought of these no more. And in the Parliament 1633. that small Addition to the Prerogative, that the King might appoint what Habits he pleased to the Clergy, met with Vigorous Opposition; notwithshading the King seemed much concerned for it; those who opposed it being sharply taken up and much neglected by his Majesty, which stuck deep in their Hearts, the Bishops bearing all the blame of it.

At this time a Liturgy was drawn for Scotland, or rather the English Re-printed with that Yitle, save that it had some Alterations which rendered it more invidious and less satisfactory; and after long consulting about it, and another Book of Canons, they were at length agree'd to, that the one shou'd be the form of the Scots Wotship, and the other the Model of their Government; which did TOTALLY VARY from their former practices and Constitutions: And, as if all things had conspired to carry on their Ruin, the Bishops not satisfied with the General High-Commission Court, produced Warrants from the King for setting up such Commissions in their several Diocesses, in which with other Assessor, Ministers and Gentlemen, all of their own Nomination, they might punish Offenders.

That was put in Practice only by the Bishop of Galleway, who though he was a pious and learned Man, yet was Fiery and Passionate, and went so roundly to work, that it was cryed out upon as a Yoke and Bondage which the Nation was not able to bear".

From what both these Historians relate of the Arbitrary Measures and linevations introduc'd by the Seets Bishops, it is evident that the Church of Scotland tou'd not be blam'd for insisting upon good security from the young King, for the Preservation of their Legal Establishment.

But I must not pass another Objection our Author makes against this Part 2. this Declaration of Bangor, in one or the marginal residence of the Lester p. 26. The Words of the Declaration he founds the For (whereas the danger of such Acci-Objection upon are these. 'For (whereas the danger of such Accidents being foreseen) an Article was inserted in the Declaration to acknowledge the King's Command; he Confirming all the Articles of the Covenant, before he were admitted to the exercise of his Royal Power.

> 'Hon which he remarks thus 'It feems then these Loyal Gentlemen would not so much as acknowledge the King's Commands how Lawful f foever, except he first mould Confirm all the Articles of the Covenant, p not one excepted.

Andw. That that Presbytery approved of the Covenant and would gladly have procur'd the Royal Approbation of it too, is indeed to vident from that part of their Declaration, last quoted: But 'tis deny'd, that they made the King's confirming all the Articles of the Covenant, the Condition of their Allegiance. They did indeed propose that he shou'd confirm them, before be were admitted to the exercise of his Rogal Power; but they do not put the case of his Refusalto confirm them, nor offer their opinion, that they wou'd reject his Authoricy altogether, if he did refuse to do it. Nay, it is plain that their principles oblig'd 'em to own him for their King, though he hou'd not confirm nor own the Covenant: for belides, that they had all unanimoully received the Westminster Consession, which expressly says, that Infidelity and difference in Religion doth not make woid the Magistrate's just and legal Authority, nor free the people from their due Obedieuce to hung Mr Dry/dail in his Answers to Fenables's objections from the Covenant which was against all Malignants (see p. 296) clears this Matter, by letting us see, that they knew the King to be the head of that party when they made the Covenant, yet they put a difference between him and other Malignants; they swore to him not to diminish his just power and greatness, but to preferve his Royal Perfon; which demonstrates, that they did not intend to make his Alteration of his principles in that point, any effential condition of their Allegiance and Subjection to him.

I shall next come to consider the behavior of Presbyterians in the 2d period of this Reign, viz. From the Restauration to it's conclusion During which time, Our Author exhibits his Libel against 'em in his first Letter (p. 12.) in these Words! I cannot at present produce a any expressions relating to them from King Charles the second; but Part 2. Let the Laws of the Land made against them in his Reign in the three Kingdoms, speak for him; Let the Proclamations from the Government, not only in England and Scotland, but in Ireland speak for him; particularly, that from the Government of Ireland Dated the 30th of April 1662. In these words; Whereas Indulgence to and forbearance of Dissenters and Non-conforming Persons of Several Persuasions hath been long time used, and yet the event hath not answered

Expettation; but Recusants, Non-conformists & sectaries have grown worse by clemency. Therefore &c. Let these Laws and Proclamations speak the Prince's lense of them.

And let the Rye-house-Plot in England, the Murder of the Archbishop of St. Andrews, and the Rebellion subsequent to it in Scotland, the Attempt of seizing the Duke of Ormond in Ireland, in each whereof the Presbycerians had the greatest hand; Above all, let their opposing his Restauration both from the Kirk Assemblies in Scotland and · Ireland, as I will make appear, and the Unchristian and scandalous

Aspersions thrown upon him in their Letter from the Assembly to him Dated from Edinburgh, which I will presently produce, speak for their Untainted Loyalty in that Turn of Government' Where he enlarges upon any of these heads in his second Letter, they shall be considered.

To his first Argument against Presbyterians, taken from the Lans made against 'em; I answer, that 'tis inconsequential,' and proves nothing against their Loyalty, if ever one Protestant was persecuted by another, it must be own'd, that the Presbyterians were persecuted under a Protestant Government during this period, tho' by the Influence of Pepish Councils. I have three remarks to offer to the sober and Conscientious Protestant Reader, which I hope will convince him that skese Laws are no just ground of Accusation against Presbyterians.

1st. That the Chief Promoters of these Laws were either Papists, or influenced by Popith Councils, or pervish sividing Protestants, who out of pique and revenge were betray'd, though without a design on their part, into mansares that tended to the advancement of Popery and Arbierary Pewer, or by Temperizing Favorites; who had no other fix'd Principle, but to please the Court and to sacrifice all to it.

2dh. That these Eaws were executed against Presbyterians at such times and in such a manner as tended to the weakening of the Protestant

Part 2. Interest, stissing of the Popish Plot, and entailing the Misery and stavery of a Popish Successor upon the Nations.

adly, That in every Parliament in this Reign, the House of Commons were sensible that these Laws were dangerous to Religion and Liberty: and brought in Bills to repeal them, & made Votes against the execution of them; which was done even by that very house of Commons that fram'd them, after several Years experience of the evil of them: and that all Good Bills for the uniting of Protestants were still deseated by the Influence of the Court and Popish Councils, at that very time when the discovery of the Popish Plot was discourag'd, and when Arbitrary steps for enslaving the Subject were taken, and when the Union of Protestants was most Necessary and desireable.

If I prove these remarks to be just, the Argument will turn upon our Author: and Instead of doing any harm to Presbyterians, 'twill be an effectual Vindication of 'em, as true friends to the Prote-Stant Religion, their King, and Country : and conclude them Enemies to Popery, Popish Plots, and a Popish Succession, Arbitrary Government in the Prince, and an Abject slavery in the People.

To Justifie these observations, I shall lay before the Reader several passages of the Proceedings of the Parliaments during this Period, Speeches of the Honorable and Worthy Members, and of some of the most Celebrated Pieces written upon this Subject; placing them in that Order as may best tend to the Illustration and Proof of my three Remarks; and without the Interruption of my own Reflections upon them, until I come, upon the whole, to Sum up the evidence.

The first I mention is a part of a Treatise, call'd, The Ill Effects of Animosities, in the State Tracts (u).

Though all English Protestants have ever been at an Accord in all the Essentials and Vicals of Religion, yet from the very beginning of the Reformation, there have been differences among them concerning Ecclesiastical Government and Discipline, and about Forms, 4 Rites & Ceremonies of Worship; and had they consulted wither their Duty to God, or the common interest of Religion, they might have found Ways either for removing the occasions of them for they ought to have lived together as Brethren, notwithstanding the differences which were among them in those things. But how much miser Part. 2. are the Children of this World, then those of the Kingdom of God and of Jesus Christ? For, tho' the uisserences among the Papists do far exceed ours, both in their Number and in the Impertance of those things wherein they Disagree, yet they do mutually Tolerate and bear with one another: The Mitters wherein they differ are neither made the Terms of their . Church-Communion, nor the Grounds of Mutual Excommunications and Persecutions. But alas, one Party among us hath been always endeavoring to cut or stretch others to their own Size, and have made those things which themselvesStyle indifferent, both the Qualifications for Admisfionato the Pastoral Office, and the Conditions of Fellowship in the Ordinances of the Gospel: Nor is it to be express'd, what advantages were hereby Administred all along to the Common Enemy; and what Sufferings PEACEABLE and ORTHODOX Christians were exposed unto from their PEEVISH and ANGRY Brethren: And though these things, with the Heats begotten among all, and the Calamities undergone by one side, were not the Cause of that funestous War betwixt Charles the First and the Parliament, yet they were an occasion of Diverting Thousands from the side which the Persecuting Church-Men espoused; and engaging them in the behalf of the Two Houses in the Quarrel which they begun, and carried on against that Prince for Defence of the Civil Liberties, Privileges and Rights of the People. But some of the Mitred Clergy were so far from being made wife by their own and the Nation's Sufferings, as upon their Restauration to hearken to Moderate Counsels, and to Decline their former Rigors and Severities; that they became the "Tools and Instruments of the Court, not only for Reviving but for HIGHTENING and enflaming all the differences which had been sprenerly among English Protestants. For the Royal Brothers finding nothing more adapted and subservient than this to their design. of elering the Government and subverting Religion, they Animated those WASPISH and IMPOLITIC ECCLESIASTICS not only to pursue the Restoration of all those things which had given Rise and Occasion to former Dissentions and Persecutions, but to lay new inares for alienating many Perlons of unspotted Lives and tender Consciences from the Church, and of rendring them obnoxious to suffer in their Names, Persons, and Estates. And what a Satisfaction was it prepared through Principles of Revenge, as well as from Love of Domination, Ambition and Covetousness, to fall in with the design, not only of Increasing Divisions among Protestants, both by making the Conditions of Entring upon the Pastoral Function narrower, and for Screwing with the Church in her Forms and Ceremonies of Worfship, into Tests for Admission to Magistracy and Civil Trusts, but of obtaining several Laws against Dissenters, wherebythe Penalties to which they foresaw that People wou'd become Liable, were readered greater than they had been before, and their Sufferings made more MER-CILESS, INHUMANE, and INTOLERABLE.

Part o

The next is Coke in his Detections (w) The Commons in Parliament (says he) for the first ten years of this Reign were Tories, and all their business was against the Protestant Dissenters from the Church, scarce taking notice of the Papists, till the breach of the Triple Alliance; the second Marriage of the Duke of Tork, the second Indulgence for Liberty of Conscience, The attempt upon the SmirnaFleet; the shutting up of the Exchequer, the King's making War with the Dutch in Conjunction with the French (these they successively acted) OPENED THE EYES of the greater part of the Commons, that for their own and the Nation's safety they became more numerous in the House than the Tory-partie, yet retain'd their Loyalty to the King, I verily believe, as firm as any English men before them.

The Next evidence I adduce is the Author of that Celebrated

Pamphlet, Faults on both Sides, who speaks thus p. 7, 8.

of Distinction (viz. Whig & Tory) are taken from words fignifying Parties differing in their Religious Sentiments, the World has been led into, and still persists in a mistake, as if the one fort were altogether Dissenters, and the other included also that were true Church of England-men, whereas there has always been a great number of the Whig-Party, even of the Clergy as well as the Laity, who are as zealous for the Episcopal Church Government as the Tories them. Selves: so that they are indeed more truly to be accounted Factions in the clark.

the State than in the Church, nor can we have a more just Idea of the Part 2. real difference between them, than that in the beginning, the Whigs consider'd that the Duke of York was a Papist, and gave life and strength to that Party; that if he show'd live to laherit the Crown, our Religion and Liberties wou'd be in the utmost danger: that he had a great Influence over the King his Brother: that such Ministers were employ'd in the Administration of the Government as were in his Interests, and who were evidently inclin'd to Arbitrary measures. They every where us'd their monest Diligence in the Elections of Magistrates for Corporations, and Members for Pars. liament, to chuse such as they believed to be zealous for the good of " the public, and would oppose the designs of the Court in any thing that " might tend to the prejudice of the people in their Religious or Civil Rights, they foresaw and endeavor'd to prevent the many mischiefs that have since fallen upon us, so' that all men of Candour must Confess that they were then true Patriots, and had espous'd the best Cause. On the other hand the Tories applauded the Duke of York, and promoted his Interest all they could, they Consended for such Elections as shou'd then be ENTIRELY DEVOTED TO THE COURT; the Magistrates of that side oppress'd the Whigs with vexactions Prosecutions, viclently perfacuted those that were Dissenters, and went to far as by PACK'D JURIES and STRAIN'D LAWS to destroy some of the BEST MEN in the Kingdom; in short, that Generation of Tories gave themselves up to fulfit the will and Pleasure of the Court in EVERY THING that lay in their Power, and, what we have since seen come to pass, his exident that they engag'd on the wrong side, and were made the very INSTRUMENTS TO BRING ABOUT those evil Deligns of the Duke of York, and the Papists, which broke out upon the Nation in the next Reign: I will not yet doubt, but that many hones nell meaning men, zeelous for the Monarchy or the Church, were impara upon by the leaders of that Party, (who were all the while playing their game at Court preferments) and deluded into a groundless Jealousy, that the Dissenters were aiming at the destruction of both. et us next consider what is said in the Relation of the most conside-

Part 2: derable things handled in Parliament, relating to Religion, property, and Liberty, in the State-Trasts (x), in these words.

6 February 26.1672.

The Parliament, where notwithstanding his Majesty told them in his speech, he wou'd stand by his Declaration of Indulgence, yet the House of Commons February 10. Upon reading it, resolved that penal Statutes in matters Ecclesiastical cannot be suspended but by Act of Parliament.

But yet it appeared that the sense of the House was not, against the matter of Indulgence pretended to be granted by that, Declaration to Protestant Disserters.

For February 14. Resolved in the House of Commons nemine Con-

That a Bill be brought in for ease of his Majestie's Protestant Subjects that are Dissenters in Matters of Religion, from the Church of England, and the House to be in a Committee on Monday to consider the Subject " matter of this Vote.

A Bill being drawn accordingly, received no great opposition in the House, but was look'd upon by the Major part of the Members, as the only Means to keep popery from flourishing in this Nation, and in time to expel that Religion, whose professors have in all kingdoms and nations endeavored by all ways to establish their superstition and to that end and purpose, have troubled, as they have had opportunity, the peace of the Christian World; but had now, by their GREAT INTERESTAT Court, sufficiently strengthen'd (as they imagin'd, and most bonest Menseared) that party, to the verthrow of the Protestant Interest:

The Cliffordian and French Designs were carried on in the Interval of this Session, in as pernicious the different Manner from their sirst design, whose method they were forced to Change, by reason that the Act of Parliament for the suppression of the Growth

Growth of Popery, was so made that it executed it self; and the Part 2. Means of Introducing that Religion feeming then at a stand, they thought of a new project that in Probability might not receive of seat opposition, nor attract that envy as the Preferment of the · Papists in several great offices and places of Trust had done, yet the same ends might be More certainly and enfely, tho' possibly not 6 so soon obtained. And to this end, a Marriage between his Royat Highkess, and the Princess of Modma; Sister to the Present 4 Duke thereof, was proposed; and the better to advance the same and make the Match appear more Considerable, his most Christian Majesty had declared her an Adopted Daughter of France, and would give her a portion suitable thereunto; which Match-was concluded wichous amy gress Difficulty, by the Earl of Peterborough; and afterwards confirmmated by the same Person, by his Majestie's Royal Consent and Authority; according to the form used among Princes (as His Majesty was pleased to express it).

Hereupon the Popish and French party were grown extreamly Infolema, having in most Mon's Judgments received a less Check from the late Act of Parliament than Encouragement from the Marriage.

But before his Highness cou'd arrive in England, the Advisers of this Matriage perceived that the Twentieth of Offober wou'd come, and that it might probably receive someObstructions from the Parliament, and that some other things contrived at their Meeting in March before, to their Prejudice, might Chance in a short time to be persected; and therefore Ordered it so, that the Parliament shou'd be Prorogu'd till the 27th of the same October; whereby an end shou'd be put to that Session; and all the Business then unperfected; fall to the Ground, contrary to his Majesty's Gracious Assurances & Promises, in March last; proposing these Consequences as certain; first, thereby to prevent and remove from his. Majesty all Temptations to break the intended Marriage and the French Alliance, knowing that the Parliament wou'd use their utmost endeavors to prevent the Consummation of that Marriage, which was likely to render both the Popish Religion and the French Alliance impregnable. Secondly, Considering that a Bill of Ease for Protestant Dissenters (whereby 'twas intended that the Major part of them shou'd have Liberty of Conscience, and be capable of Church-preferment) had passed the U u 2

Part. 2. the House of Commons, and now would not long stick there (as before, where it then remain'd, and would not long stick there (as they scared) before it shou'd obtain the Royal Assent; which if once effected, they did imagine and foresee, that this Wanting of Interests would rend greatly to the Suppression of Popery; and coulequently no hopes of Replanting thereof in this Nation. But if they cou'd by any means whatsoever prevent the passing of that Bill, they doubted not, notwithstanding all the Parliament could do, to be sale amongst so many Dissensers, and drive son their designs undethand for the ruin and destruction of all Parties but their own.

Compare this with the following Passage, to be found in the Conferwift's second Pleu for Non-Conformists (p. 12.) That which gives strength to my Argument is this, That at the next Meeting of Pathiament, which began Febr 24th, 1672. An Act passed against the Papille, and a Bill was presented by the House of Commons to the Lords, in favour of Differency, and for Uniting Profestants, which (as some that have as much reason to know at any who Writ) would have passed, if they had had sime to sir; And from that time, that long Patliament, who had made the Act against Conventicles, how resolute soever they were against an Indulgence, Feb. 15th 1662; they saw the INCOMPATIBILITY between the Execution of their own Lian,. and the PRESERVATION of the Protestant Religion, and law antceffiny of Uniting Protestants at the same time, when they saw our increating Dangers from the Increase of Popery. And our several Parbliaments fince; have reasoned upon the same Principles and Foundations once again to far as to commit a Ball to Ubite all Protestants. And now I have prepared my felf for this Argument; it is not well done, and cannot be good for the Church or Kingdom (and if not good to them, it shou'd not be thought good by Protestants) which that very Perliament that made the Act, and many other Parliaments thought not good for the Church and Kingdom. For some particular Magistrates, upon the information of some self-feeking informers, to Execute the Laws against the Sense of the Ligislators, Who shou'd (and certainly did) best know what was for our good, is to "oppose a privace opinson to a public Deliberation, and a privace Spirit against a public. That I may draw these reasonings to a conclusion, it is not a due Execusion of the Laws, except it beupon the Persons, and to the end intended in the Laws. But if you would execute the.

the Laws upon the proper Objects, you must Execute them upon Sedicious Sectaries, Disloval Persons, very Hypocrites that do under the Pretence of Religious Exercises, infist Principles of Schism and Rebellion into the minds of the King's Subjects. The Law goes upon such a supposition, and to prevent such Mischiefs; but if there be no such Meetings, to such a tendency, there are no Persons that deserve such Executions: If there be, let them be tried; if there be not, of all times, is there no time but this for Protestant Magistrates to go upon the information of Informers, to give countenance to a Scandal, that Protestant Dissenters, are as pernicious to the Government, as Consederated Papists? and that Protestants shou'd Act contrary to their Principles, contrary to their Interests, to bring certain ruin upon themselves, Families and Friends, without any the least hope of Relies, or mending their Condition! A game indeed! to set informers to find a hare, when they shou'd run down the Fox.

Let the following part of a Letter of a Parliament-Man to his friend concerning the Proceedings of the House of Commons in 1675; in the Seme-Trasts (y); be seriously considered.

For missing our True Footing, you see we have run in the mistaken " Notion of being for the Church so long, till we have almost destroyed" the State, and advanced Prerogative, so much by suppressing Non-'Conformity, that 'tis well nigh beyond our Reach or Power to put a Check to it; and had not time, and but an indifferent Observation, showed us how much we were abased in this Matter, and that a Lay-Conformiat and a Fanatick can Live as quietly and neighbourly together (won'd the Prelates but suffer them) as any in the World, we had ruin'd our selves pust all Recovery; for by our buoying up the Bishops in their barsh and irreconcilable Spirit, instead of Healing. we have so sed and nearish'd the Discontents throughout the Kingdom, that I think nothing keeps the Fire from flaming out a fresh, and in another Intestine War, but the bare Circumstance of Opportunity only; and how long that will be able to restrain Passions that are made wild by Oppression, is worthy a very serious Consideration; and therefore there is hardly any thing more a wonder to wise Men, than to see the Clergy run at this rate upon the Dissen-

Part 2. ters: Wherefore, since the Non-Conformists have given so large and ample a Testimony of their willingness to live Peaceably, if yet notwithstanding the Clergy will not suffer them to be quiet in their Families and their Houses, I doubt, they may at one time or . other drive them into the Field, and then it may exceed their Divine Art to Conjure them down again; for he sees but little that sees not the English Temper is better to be led than driven. And therefore I think it wou'd not be more a Vanity, to compel the Ladies to wear Queen Elizabeth's Ruff, than to force the Non-Conformists to be drest in her Religion.

Let a Person of Quality be heard in his Letter amongst the State-

Traits (z); Thus our Church became-Triumphant, and continued so for divers years; the Discenting Protestant being the only Enemy, and therefore only persecuted, whilst the Papists remain'd undisturb'd being by the Court thought. Layal, and by our Great Bishops not dangerow, they differing only in Destrine and Fundamentals, but as to the Government of the Church, that was in their Religion in the highest Exaltation.

This Dominion continued unto them, until the Lord Clifford, 2 man of a daring and Ambitious Spirit, made his way to the chief " Ministry of affairs by other and far different measures, and took the Opportunity of the War with Holland, the King was then eagag'd in, to propose the Declaration of Indulgence, that the Disferters of all Soris, as well Protestants as Papists, might be at 1est, and so a vast number of people not be made Desperate at home, while the King was engag'd with so potent an Enemy abroad This was no sooner propos'd, but the Earl of Shaftsbury, a man as daring, but more able, (tho' of Principles and Interest diametrically opposite to the other) presently clos'd with it, and perhaps the Opportunity I have had by my Conversation with them both, who. were men of Diversion, and of free and open Discourses where they had a Confidence, may give you more light into both their designs, and so by consequence the aims of their Parties, than you will have from any other hand. My Lord Clifford did in express terms terms tell me one day in private discourse, That the King, if he Part 2. would be sirm to himself, might settle what Religion he pleas d, and carry the Government to what height he would; for if men were afsur'd of the liberty of their Consciences, and undisturb'd in their Properties, able and upright Judges made in Westminster-Hall, to Judge the Causes of Meum & Tuum; and if, on the other hand, the Fort of Tilbury was finish'd to bridle the City, the Fort of Plymouth to secure the West, & Arms for 20000 in each of those, & in Hull for the Northern parts, with some Addition which might be easily and undiscernably made to the Forces now on foot, there were none that wou'd have either will; Opportunity, or power to resist. But he added withal, he was so sincere in the maintenance of Property and liberty of Conscience, that if he had bis Will, the he should Introduce a Bishop of Durham (which was the Instance he then made, that See being then vacant) of another Religion, yet he would not difturb any of the Church beside, but suffer them to die away, and not by his Change (how hasty soever he was in it) overthrow either of those Principles, and therefore desir'd he might be thought an bonest man, as to his part of the Declaration, for he meant it really. The Lord Shaftsbury (with whom I had more freedom) I with great affurance ask'd, what he meant by the Declaration? For it seemed to me (as I then told him) that it assumed a power to repeal and suspend all our Laws, to destroy the Church; to overthrow the Protestant Religion, and to tolerate Popery; He reply'd all angry, That he wondred at my Objection, there being none of these in the Case; for the King assum'd no power of repealing Laws, or suspending them, contrary to the Will of his Parliament or People; and not to argue with me at that time the Power of the King's Supremacy, which was of another nature than that he had in Civils, and had been exercis'd without Exception in this very case, by bis Father, Grandfather, and Q. Eliz. under the Great Seal, to Foreign Protostants, become Subjects of England, not to instance in the suspending the execution of the two Acts of Navigation and Trade .-

of the Declaration than you can receive from any other Hand,—

At the next Meeting of Parliament the Protestant Interior was run so high, as an Act came up from the COMMONS to the House of Lords in FAVOUR of the DISSENTING PROTESTANTS, and had passed the Lords, but for WANT OF TIMES Beside

Part 2.

Besides another excellent All passed the Royal Assent, for the excluding all Papists from Office, in the Opposition of which the Lord Treasurer Clifford sell, and yet to prevent his Ruine this Session had the speedier End. Notwithstanding, the Bishops attained their Ends, the Declaration being cancell'd, and the Great Seal being broken off from it, the Parliament having passed no Act in favor of the Dissenters, and yet the scuse of both Houses sufficiently declar'd against all the Indulgence but by Act of Parliament. Having got this point, they us'd it at first with seeming Moderation; there were no general Directions given for Persecuting the Non-Conformists, but here and there some of the most Confiding Justices were made use of to try how they could receive the Old Persecution, for as yet their zeal rais'd againsh Papists was so great, that the worthing est and soberest of the Episcopal Party thought it NECESSARY to UNITE with the Diffenting Protestants, and not to divide their Party, when all their forces were little enough: In this posture the Sellions of Parliament that began October 27. 1673. Found matters, which being suddenly broken up, did nothing.

The next Seffiens, which began Jan. 7. following, the Bilhops continued their real against the Papists, and seem'd to carry on, in Joining with the Country Lords, many excellent votes in order to a bill; as in particular, That the Princes of the blood Royal should only marry Protestants, & many others; but their favor to diffenting Protestants was gone, & they attempted a bargain with the Country Lords, with whom they then join'd, not to promote any thing of that Mature, except the Bill for taking away Affent & Consent, & renouncing the Coverant This Sellion was no froner ended without doing any thing, but the whole Clergy were instructed to declare That there was no more danger of the Papists: The Phanatick (for So, they call the Differing Protestant) is again become the ONLY DANGEROUS ENEMY; and the Bishops had found a Scotch Lord, and two new Ministers, or rather great Officers of England, who were desperate and rash! nough to put their Master's business upon SO NARROW and WEAR a bottom: And that Old Coveranter Landerdale is become the Patron of the Church, and has his Coach and Table fill'd with that Party.

Our Statesman and Bishops being now as well agreed as in old and's time, on the same Principles, with the same Passion, to attain their end end, they in the first Place gave Orders to the Judges in all their Circuits to quicken the Execution of the Laws against Dissenters; a new Declaration is published directly contrary to the former, most in words against the Papists, but in the Sense and in the Close did fully serve against both, and in the Execution it was plain who were meant. A Commission besides comes down, directed to the Principal Gentlemen of each County, to seize the Estates of both Papists and Phanaticks, mentioned in a List Annexed; wherein, by great Missortume or SKILL, the Names of Papists of best Quality and Fortune (and so best known) were mistaken, and the Commission rendered inessectual, as to them.

Let the Author of No Protestant Plot have Liberty to speak upon this Subject, who in his third part (a) reasons thus:

Nay, so great is their (i. e. Papists) Interest and Power, by means' of the Duke of York, and such whom he either everaweth or otherwife influences, that they do not only escape the Punishments which * they are liable unto for their Treafons; but THEY HAVE OB-"TAIN'D to have the Laws made against Protestant Dissenters, to be Executed with the atmost Rigor and Severity, while in the mean time themselves are as good as conniv'd at in the Violation of all the Statutes Enacted against Popish Recusancy. For this cannot be thought to proceed Originally from the King, being so inconsistent with that Princely Wisdom which he bath always Manifested, when not over-ruled by the Importunity of ill Men. How unlikely is it, that a Prince who receiveth and indulgeth Foreign Protestants, should at the same time encourage the distressing his own Subjects, that do no otherwise differ from the Church of England, than as those foe reigners do? Nor can it be the Advice of any fincere and true Prorestant, to have the Laws Executed at this Season and Juncture again & * Phanaticks, It being so Apparent a weakning of the whole Reformed Interest in those Kingdoms, and a betraying all the Protestant Party into the Power and Hands of their worst Exemies. none but the Papists can reap any benefit or advantage by it, it must be THEY and none elfe that were the first Mathers, and continue to be the Promoters of such Councils. And as some of those Laws

Part 2. were procured by the means of Sir Thom. Clifford, Sir Thom. Strick-land and others, who have since appear'd to be Papists; so it is not unpleasant to observe how they have endeavor'd to get them either ' suspended or Execured, according as this or that have lyen in an ulefulpess to their-Designs. Nor can we otherwise believe, but that s as some of our Ministers obtain'd them to be dispensed with 1672; in favour of the Papists, so others pursue the having them put in Exe ecution in 1682. out of friendship to the same People. Thus the Laws, which were presended at first to have been made for the Pre-· servation of the Church of England, have been from time to time · MANAGED TO SET FORWARD the CONCERNMENTS of the CHURCH of ROME, and advance the projections of the Pae pists. Accordingly we have held them suspended for divers Years, when both most of the English Clergy were earnest to have had 'em · Executed, and when the Execution of them seem'd to lye in a sub-· serviency to support the Grandess of the Church; but now when e neither the Church can be able to subsist, nor are any means lest to 4 the preservation of the Protestant Religion, unless Moderation and Lenity be exercis' d to Dissenter we are made daily and sad Speciators of Oppression, Spoil and Haveck brought upon a QUIET, IN-4 DUSTRIOUS and USEFUL People, by the Execution of these very Laws. And we may be sure the Papists hug and solace theme selves, to find that thro' the Ascendency which they have over some · public Persons who Influence all our Councils, they can apply the · Laws to the Ruin of many Protestants; and in Revenge for their having escaped their Murderous and Bloody Hands, engage the Goe vernment and Authority of the Nation against them. Nor is it e less than a matter of Triumph to them to think that when the Come mons of England in Parliament Assembled had not only Read and 6 Committed a Bill for the Uniting his Majestie's Protestant Subjects; but Resolved it as the Opinion of that House, That the Prosecution of · Protestant Dissenters upon the Penal Laws, is at this time Grievous to the Subject, a weakning to the Protestant Interest, an encouragement to · Popery, and dangerous to the Peace of the Kingdom; they should not conly be able to alienate and exulperate us more from and against one another, than ever we were, but procure one Protestant to Prosecute another upon the Penal Laws, to the Scorn and Concempt of the Wifdom of Parliaments, and the Proclaiming to all the World of how e little esteem and value their Counsel and Advice are. The The Ingenious Conformist in his third Plea for Non-Conformists, gives Part 2: us the Character of those by whom, and from whom, and through whose means the Protestant Dissenters were again exposed to Sufferings p. 8, 9, 10.

They are, 1. Such as cannot take it ill to be called Addressers and Abhorrers, but they (as far as I can look about me and see) particularly that have thanked the King for declaring his Resolutions of Ruling by Law, which if any of the Non-Conformists had express'd a doubt or sear of, had been a far greater Offence than their Non-Conformity.

2. And by Consequence, they are such as have declared a Dislike of the Proceedings of our late Parliaments, and in that particular of endeavoring the uniting of Protestant Dissenters, in which alone I am concern'd to take Notice of them, Act directly contrary to the Vote of the House of Commons, which resolv'd, That it is the Opinion of this House, that the Prosecution of Protestant Dissenters upon the Penal Laws, is at this time grievous to the Subject, weakning to the Protestant Interest, an Encouragement of Popery, and Dangerous to the Peace of the Kingdom; And by the Rule of Opposition, they must in their Opinions turn this Vote backward, as if they thought that the Prosecution of Protestant Dissenters upon the present Laws, is not grievous to the Subject, is not a weakning of the Protestant Interest, is not an Encouragement of Popery, nor dangerous to the Peace of the Kingdom.

3. A. Third Branch of the Description of the Prosecutors. They are such as do non, yea cannot understand the State of the Kingdom, and Religion so well as the House of Commons did.

1. No one Man of them can understaad the true State of the Kingdom, as a Grand Assembly of our Representatives did.

dom met, and saw what was invisible to origin; there was a Collection of Observations, and the Eyes of most of the Kingdom moved in that great Body, and their Debates and Reasonings were mature and sull. And tho' a Vote have not the Formality and Force of an Ast, yet it is the sirst matter and Original of an Ast, out of which an Ast doth arise.

2. This Vote was not of private Concernment, in which Intetest makes Men Partial, but it was of Concernment to the Church X x 2 Part 2.

and Kingdom. But many of the first Movers in the Prosecution, and of the instruments in it, At from a private Spirit, and a particular interest, and find neither Concurrence from any, that are at liberty and Ast as Freemen, nor Approbation from the Standers by; except the sew that know not what they do, and care not what one thers do, any more than Gallie.

Laftly, the Inferior Sort, are Informers & InferiorOfficers, Constables and Church-Wardens, &c. Of these, there is not one of many, but what abide severe Threatnings, and heavy Fines, confidering their Estates, before they distrain. This way is contrary to the very common sense of Christians, and ordinary men. But the Informers are a Select Company, whom the long suffering of God permits for a time, of whom I will lay but little in this place: they are of no good Reputation; for their Knowledge in the Country. they do not know the names, or persons of some of them that are molested by them, they go by report of their under servants and Complices; they are unknown to them that suffer by them, until they suffer: they come two or three Counties off to set up this new trade : whether they are Papists or (nominal) Protestants, who can tell? they never come to Church, nor to their own Parish-Churches, but lie in wait and Ambosh, their Estate is invisible, their Country unknown to many; their Morals are as bad as the very Dregs of the Age. These are they that direct and rule many of the Magistrates, and live upon the spoil of better Christians. and Subjects than themselves; And who go away with honest men's goods, honestly gotten, but they?

And the same Author in his 2d plea for Non-Conformifts, illustrates the matter thus, p. 23, 24, &c.

'The second fort of Arguments is drawn from the fact, for which the Dissenters are to suffer.

The Crime, prima facie, is preaching in a manner different from the Church of England, and not according to the Liturgy, to numbers above four, besides the Houshold. This is the Fact. The Proof of it, is either by Consession of the Parties, which we will not suppose, or the Notoriousness of the Fact; which needs further Proof; it all depends upon the oath of two Witnesses. What do they depose? they (who perhaps know not what an oath is, nor what a Sin Perjury is) depose that A. B. preached at such a time time or times, in such a place or places, to such Numbers against Part 2

the Statute. But what if the Preacher preach'd true Doctrine?
Exhorted to peace and Holiness, Obedience, Justice, Mercy, and not one word tending to Schism or Rebellion? What if the Person be a Loyal Subject? These things are out of the Question, out of the Deposition. But if these Witnesses cannot depose that such a Preacher is a Disloyal Person, his preaching to be to instil Schism or Rebellion, or to move to Insurrection: then if the Execution be according to the Deposition, it is Execution upon Persons not intended by the Law, and for preaching not forbidden by the Law; for the Law forbids not preaching, but to such an end. There is one catching Circumstance, it was above the Legal Number: But yet one would think, that that should not be a Crime, except Rebellion and Insurrection be the Intention of the Person, and the effect of the thing. For many, for five hundred to hear a good Sermon, in a peaceable manner, is in it self no Crime; the Number, and the preaching, must be to an ill Design, in the Intention of the Law:

For it were impious, to forbid preaching in it self. The Evil of it must be in the Evil of the matter, and evil of the Design; and by

Consequence, only such Preaching, and such Numbers, are liable to the Penalty, that is, of a Destructive or Offensive Design; unless you punish for preaching, which is good, separate from the Design, as evil. This premis'd, my Argument is this;

It is not good but evil, to punish well doing, as if it were evildoing, and to punish Preachers and Hearers, that never preach'd nor heard Rebellion or Sedition, as if they were the Highest Criminals in a Kingdom.

But to issue out Warrants, and execute them upon Persons, when nothing is prov'd against them, but what is good and not prohibited by the Law, as evil in it self, but as evil to an evil end, viz. Preaching, is not good, therefore it is not good to punish them, &c.

To punish a Fact, that in the intention of the Persons, or nature of the thing, hath no tendency to Mischief, to be prevented by the Law, is not good but evil : because the Execution is not directed to the end of the Law, and by Consequence it is no Legal Execution.

But to execute the Law for Preaching, and hearing, uponfreachiers and Hearers, whose preaching and hearing hath no evil tendens cy to Sedition, Rebellion, Insurrection, or Schism, is such an Execution: therefore it is not good but Evil

The Minor is prov'd from the PEACEABLENESS of the Nonconformists, Prety of their Principles, from the many years Experience and effects; and Seditious, or Rebellious, or Schismatical matter, are not the things sworn against them, or CAN BE SWORN, but preaching to such Numbers, and hearing in such Number's, and in a manner different from the Church of England, which may be, and yet not ill, and may not be so for all the Informers know.~

— 'It is not good, but evil, to use Dissenting Protestants, worse than ever Papists have been used.

But to execute those Laws upon Dissenting Protestants neither for Rebellion nor moving Insurrections, is to use them worse than ever Papists have been used. Therefore it is not good to execute the Laws upon them.

It is to be more rigorous towards our Brethren, and such as agree in one and the same King, same Laws, same Worship as to the Subftance of Christ's Ordinances, and are willing to unite, than you are towards men that own another Supremacy, King and Bishops, are Idolatrous in their Worship, and are for rooting us out, and not taking us in, without hazard of the truth of Christ, and Hypocrisy and Eternal Life.

To punish Dissenters for preaching, and other Exercises of Religion, because to such numbers, and not in such an Uniform manner, is to punish them for Religion. If Religion be the Cloak, and Rebellion or Sedition he the Mischiefs to be conceal'd and convey'd under it, then Religion is but a Pretence and that cannot excuse them from fuffering, which doen highly aggravate the Sin. But it neither be inferr'd from their Principles, nor infused into their Exercises, then there is no danger to the King, in his Life, Prerogative nor 4 Authority. If neither have been found in any of them, it is not ' Justly imputable to them; and then if their Preaching and prayer be the Fact, for which they suffer, they suffer for that which no Papist ever suffer'd for alone.

Let us hear the observations of 16 Noble Peers of the Realm in their humble petition and advice Delivered to the King January 25,

, 1680. State-Tracts 2 Vol. p. 129, 130.

Under King Charles II.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty. The Humble Petition Part 2: and Advice of the Lord's undernam'd, Peers of the Realm.

· Humbly Sheweth,

That whereas your Majesty hath been pleas'd, by divers Speeches, and Messiges to your Houses of Parliament, rightly to represent to them the Dangers that threatned your Majesty's Person, and the whole Kingdom, from the Mischievous, and wicked Plots. of the Papists, and the sudden growth of a Foreign Power, unto which, no stop or remedy could be Provided, unless it were by Parliament, and an UNION of your Majesty's Protest ant Subjects, in one mind and one Interest.

And the Lord Chancellor, in Pursuance of your Majesty's Commands, having more at large demonstrated the said dangers to be as great. as we in the midst of our fears could imagine them, and so pressing, that our Liberties, Religion, Lives, and the whole Kingdom would be certainly lost, it a speedy Provision were not made against them.

And your Majesty on the 21st of April, 1679. Having call'd into your Council, many Honorable and Worthy Persons, and declar'd to them and the whole Kingdom, that being sensible of the evil Effects of a single Ministry, or private Advice, or Foreign Committee, for the General Direction of your Affairs; your Majesty would for the future refer all things unto that Council, and by the Constant Advice of them, together with the frequent use of your great Council, the Parliament, Your Majesty was hereaster Resolved to govern the Kingdoms; We began to hope we should see an end of our Miseries.

But to our unspeakable Grief and Sorrow, we soon found our Expectations frustrated. The Parliament, then sublisting, was Prorogued and Dissolved, before it could perfect what was intended for our Relief and Security; and tho' another was thereupon: called, yet by many Prorogations it was put off, till the 21st of Ottober past; and notwithstanding your Majesty was then again' pleas'd to acknowledge, that neither your Person, nor your Kingdom could be safe, till the Plot was gone thorow, It was unexpectedly Prorogu'd on the 10th of this Month, before any sufficient or-. der could be taken therein; all their Just and Pious Endeavors to iave:

Chap. 2. The Legalty of Presbyterians

Part 2.

344

fave the Nation, were overthrown; the GOOD BILLS they had been Industriously preparing to UNIFE all your Majesty's Protessant Subjects brought to nought; the Discovery of the Irish Plot STIFLED, the Witnesses that came in frequently more fully to declare that, both of England and Ireland, DISCOUR AGED. Those Foreign Kingdoms & States, who by a happy Conjunction with us might give a check to the French Power, dishearened, even to such a Despair of their own Security against the growing greatness of that Monarch, as we fear may induce them to take new Resolutions, and perhaps such as may be satal to us: The Strength and Convage of our Enemies both at home and abroad encreased: and our selves less in the utmost danger of seeing our Country brought into utter Desolution.

In these Extremities, we had nothing under God to Comfort us, but the hopes, that Your Majesty (being touch'd with the Greans of your Perishing People) would have suffer'd your Parliament to meet at the Day unto which it was Prorogued: And that no further Interruption should have been given to their Proceedings, in Order to their saving of the Nation. But that failed us too: For then we heard that your Majesty by the private Suggestion of some Wicked Persons, FAVOURERS of POPERY, Promoters of FRENCH DE-SIGNS, and ENEMIES to your Majesty and the Kingdom, without the Advice, and as we have good reason to believe against the Opinion, even of your Privy-Council, had been prevailed with to Difsolve it, and to call another to meet at Oxford, where neither Lords nor Commons can be in Safety, but will be daily expos'd to the Sword of the Papifts, and their Adherents, of whom soe manyare srept into your Majesty's Guards. The Liberty of Speaking according to their Gonsciences, will be thereby destroy'd, and the validity of all Acts and Proceedings consisting in it, lest Disputable. The straitness of the Place, no way admits of such a Concourse of Perfons as now follows every Parliament; the Witnesses which are necessary to give Evidence against the Popish Lords, such Judges, or others whom the Commons have Impeach'd, or have resolved to impeach, can neither bear the Charge of going thither, nor trust emselves under the Protection of a Parliament, that is it self evidently sunder the Power of Guards and Soldiers.

The Premises coalidered, We your Majesty's Prinimers

Under King Charles II. Chap. 2.

council (which the Authors have not dar'd to avow) and the direful Apprehensions of the Calamities and Miseries, that may ensue thereupon; do make it Our most Humble Prayer and Advice, that the Parliament may not Sit at a place, where it will not be able to Act with that Freedom, which is necessary; and especially to give unto their Acts and Proceedings that Authority which they ought to have amongst the People, and have ever had, unless impaired by some Awe upon them, (of which there wants not Precedents:)

And that your Majesty would be Graciously pleas'd to Order it to Sit at Westminster (it being the usual place, and where they may Consult and Act with Sasety and Freedom)

And Your Petitioners shall ever Pray, &c.

Monmouth	Salisbury	Shaftsbury	Grey
Kent.	Clare	Mor dans	Herbert
Huntington	Stanford	Evers .	Howard
Bedford	Essex.	Paget	Delamer.

Let us next hear what past upon this Subject in Two free Conferences between Father La Chese, and sour considerable Jesuits in the State Tracts 3 Vol. p. 414 &c.

Sir John Warner:

Anort our Account how the Interests in England are divided; to do which, I must be forced to look back to the Year 1660. You know well, how much all wise and good Catholicks did apprehend, upon the King's return that those HAPPY DIFFERENCES between the Episcopal and Presbyterian Parties would have been composed. The King's Declaration made us think that he saw his true Interest, and would pursue it. And one would have thought that the Contenders, should have grown wifer, and used the true way for the sure to avoid those animosities which had cost them so dear. But it was so bappily ordered, that the most discreet and bettest of the Yy

Episcopal Clergy were entireled with the management of this affair; who being full of Revenge for what they had fuffer'd, did not bring. with them that Temper, which was necessary to the good Conclusion of such a business. Some alterations were made in the Liturgy; but such as gave no satisfaction; Ecsoon after, an exalt Conformity upon harder Terms, than over, was required under the Severest Penalties: And Informers were everywhere encourag'd to a severe puting of those Laws in Execution. Every mercenary Pen was employ'd against them. The People were taught that Rebel & Presbyterian were Synonimous Terms; and that it was Impossible to be a Dissenter from the Goromonies of the Church, and not be Factious and Seditious; aitho' they have no Dependance one upon another. In the Universities the Youth were taught to look upon those asthe worst of men, who would not come up to every Title of what Land in the late King's Reign would have introduc'd. Nay, they went so far, as that some of the Dignissed Clergy told the World in Print, that to reject any of the enjoyned Forms or Ceremonies, was a greater finthan to commit the greatest Immoralities. Nor were they content to represent these as the worst os Villanies unless they made them the greatest of foels too. And therefore the most Scurrilous Pens were chosen out to dress them up in as Ridiculous a sort as they could devise. I mention those things to your Reverence, because they were the OCC ASION and ENCOURAGEMENT, whereupon WE VENTUR'D to attempt the Regaining of that Kingdom. We observ'd how deep a discontent this sort of Behaviour towards them had fixed in the hearts of all the oppressed Party, and we did conclude they were men, and would resent it, when they had Opportunity, and we did infinuate as much as we could, their fears into the minds of the English Clergy. At Court WE REPRE-SENT their numbers as dangerous, while the Episcopal Party were as busie in representing their Principles as Intolerable. we were fure to have THE MINISTERS ON OUR, SIDE: For a great many of the most wealthy, Sober, and observing men, being of twat Persuasion; that alone was sufficient to make them obnoxions and hated, in a luxurious Court, where mony will ever be wanting; and no way to get it, be look'd on as unjustifyable. The King was no less displeased with them, for when by our Interest with the D, and the Lord CL, we had procur'd the Declaration

Under King Charles II: Chap. 2.

tion of Indulgence to be set out in the year 167; the Presbyterians Part 2:
presently SUSPECTED THE KINDNESS, and, like wise men, closed with the Conformists and resused the Bait; however specious it seem'd, when they saw the Hook that lay under it. This thing

•

(Sir Thomas Proflon,)

did highly exasperate the King against them.

' You fee what Invitations we have to attempt what I propose, which if Joyn'd with Common Discretion and Ordinary Diligence, will without doubt be very Successful. If we would see up some in London, or near it, to present Petitions for putting the Laws in Execution against Diffenters, upon account of their late Insolent (as it must be called) Petition, or by burning the Rump again, or some such other public reviving the Resentment of the "Court against the Actions of the late times, where we should 'Revenge their Petitioning, and their Burning of Popes, and prevent them for the future. Or if we could but get these things done, either by OUR FRIENDS AT COURT, or any how, so they were done, we might make very good use of them, especially if as Preparatory thereusto, some Reformation were made upon the Benches at Westeminster, and in the Country, and all Courts of Judicature were filled with men of warm Tempers, who have malice enough to the dissensers, to execute the Laws in good earnest against them. The Imprisonments and Fines, and the Banishment from Corporations, would so pursue both the Preachers and the People, that it would be easy, with good management, to provoke them or at least some of the meanest, who are usually most zealous, to no little Excess.

* (Father Conyers)

The King once more set right in their good opinion, and the · Persecuting of the Presbyterians Justify'd, as being only the Consequence of a Resolution in his Majesty to regain the honor of the Government by an effectual and impartial execution of the Laws, THEN it may be a SEASON to think of a Parliament. Then 'twill be fit to diffolve this, from whom no possible good can be expected, and to summon a New one. For by that time all the Presbyterians · Y y 2 will

348. Chap. 2 The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part 2.

will be under the lash of the Penal Laws, SEVERELLY EXECUTED and under suspicion of horvid Conspiracies, by the METHODS PROPOSED; and consequently will not dare to pretend to be elected, or to Interpose at Elections, and so we may once more have A Parliament like the last Long one. And if we can once again get such a Parliament, then the Presbyterians themselves will look upon a General Act of oblivion as a Grace, and consequently thereby all our Friends may be set at liberty.

I conclude this head with the Humble Address of the Commons in Parliament assembled, presented to the King Munday November 29th. 1680. in answer to his Message about Tangier, wherein the Reader will find a most comprehensive History of the Managements of the Court in that Reiga. It is in the State-Tracts. 2 Vol. p, 104

&c.

Reliance upon this House for the support of Tangier, and a Recommendation of it to our speedy care, we do with all humility and reverence give this answer, that although in due time and order, we shall omit nothing incumbent on us, for the preservation of every part of your Majesty's Dominions, and advancing the Prosperity & Flourishing Estate of this your Kingdom; yet at this time when a Cloud which has LONG THREATNED THIS LAND is ready to break upon our heads in a storm of Ruin& Consustant, to come to any surther Consideration of this matter; especially, to come to any Resolutions in it, before we are essectually secured from the IMMINEN I and APPARENT DANGERS arising from the Power of Popish Persons and Councils, We humbly conceive will not consist either with our Duty to your Majesty, or the trust reposed in us by those we represent.

It is not unknown to your Majesty how restless the Endeavors and how bold the Attempts of the Popish Party, for many years last past, have been, not only within this, but other your Majestie's Kingdoms, to introduce the Romish, and utterly to extirpate the true Protest ant Religion. The several Approaches they have made towards the Compassing this their design (assisted by the Treachery of persidents Protest ants) have been so strangely successful, that its matter of Admiration to us, and which we can only ascribe to an Over-ruling Providence, that your Majesty's Reign is still continued over us, and that we are yet Assembled to consult the means of Part 2. our Preservation: This Bloody and Restless Party not content with the great Liberty they had a long time enjoy'd to Exercise their Lawown Religion privately amongst themselves, to partake of an equal. freedom of Persons and Estates with your Majestie's Protestant Subjects, and of an Advantage above them, in being excused from chargeable Offices and Employments, hath so far prevail'd, as to find Countenance for an open and avowed Practice of their Superstition and Idolatry, without Controps in several Parts of this Kingdom. Great Swarms of Priests and Jesuits have resorted hither, and have exercised their Jurisdiction, and been daily tampering to per-, vert the Consciences of your Majestie's Subjects. Their Opposers they have found means to disgrace, and if they were Judges, Ju-Rices of the Peace, or other Magistrates, to have them TURN'D OUIT OF COMMISSION: And in Contempt of the known Laws. of the Land, they have practifed upon People of all Ranks and Quabities, and gained over divers to their Religion; some openly to profels it, others secretly to espouse it, as most conduced to the Service : thereof.

oveľ

' After some time they became able to INFLUENCE MATTERS. OF STATE and Government, and thereby to destroy those they. cannot Corrupt. The Continuance or Prorogation of Parliamentshas been Accommodated to serve the purposes of that Party. Money. rais'd upon the People to supply your Majestie's extraordinary Occasions, was by the PREVALENCE of POPISH COUNCILS. imployed to make War upon a Protestant State, and to advance and Augment the Dreadful Power of the FRENCH KING, though tothe Apparent hazard of this, and all other Protestant Countries. Great Numbers of your Majestie's Subjects were sent into, and continued in the Service of that King, notwithstanding the Apparent Interest. of your Majestie's Kingdoms, the Addresses of the Parliament, and your Majestie's Gracious Proclamations to the contrary. Nor can we forbear to mention, how that at the beginning of the sameWar, even the MINISTERS of ENGLAND were made instruments to Pressupon that State, the acceptance of one-demand, among others, from the French King for procuring their Peace with him, that they should admit the public exercise of the Roman-Catholic Religion in the United Provinces, the CHURCHES THERE to be DIVIDED, and the Romish Priests MAINTAIN'D OUT OF THE PUBLIC RE-VENUE. AF

Chap. 2. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part 2. At home, it your majerty one at any time of Parliament, Command Privy Council, or of Your Two Houses of Parliament, Command Papills. even FROM At home, if your Majesty did at any time by the Advice of your the Laws to be put in Execution against Papists, even FROM 'THENCE they gained Advantage to their Party, while the Edge of those Laws was surmed against Protestant Dissenters, and the Papists escap'd in a manner untouch'd. The Act of Parliament, enjoining a Test to be taken by all Persons admitted into any public Office, and intended for a security against Papists coming into Employment, had so little Effect, that either by Dispensations, obtained from Rome, they submitted to those Tests, and held their Offices themfelves, or those put in their places, were so favourable to the same "Imerests, That Popery it self has RATHER GAINED THAN " LOST GROUND SINCE THAT ACT.

But that theirbusiness in hand might yet more speedily and strong-'s ly proceed, at length a Popish Secretary (since executed for his "Treasons) takes upon him we set a foot and Maintain Correspondencies at Rome (particularly with a Native Subject of your Maje-Aly's, promoted to be a Cardinal, and in the Courts of other Foreign Princes (to use their own Form of Speech) for the Subdaing that Pestilent Heresy, which so long domineer'd over this Northern World; that is, to root the Protestant Religion out of England, and thereby to make way the more easily to do the same in other Protestant

6 Countries.

"Towards the doing this great Work, (as Mr. Coleman was pleas'd to call it) sesuits, the most dangerous of all PopishOrders to the Lives and Estates of Princes, were distributed to their several Precinits within this Kingdom, and held Joint Councils with those of the same Order in all Neighbour Popist Countries: Out of these Councils and Correspondencies was hatcht the Dannable and Hellish Plot, by the good providence of Almighty God brought to light above two Years fince, but still threatning us; wherein the Traitors impatient of longer delay, reckoning the prolonging of your facted Majesty's Life (which God long preserve) as the great Obstacke in the way of the Consummation of their Hopes, and having in their prospect a Proselyted Prince immediately to succeed in the Throne of these Kingdoms, resolved to begin their Work with the Assissinstion of your Majesty, to carry it on with Armed Force, to de-Aroy your Protestant Subjects in England, to execute a second Masfacre in Ireland, and so with ease to arrive at the suppression of Part 2.
our Religion, and the subversion of the Government.

When this Accursed Conspiracy began to be discover'd, they began the smallering it with the Barbarous Murder of a Justice of the Peace, within one of your Majestie's own Palaces, who had taken some Examinations concerning it.

Amidst these Distractions and Fears, Popish Officers, for the Consmand of Forces, were allowed upon the Musters by special Orders (surreptitiously obtain'd from your Majesty) but Countersign'd by a Secretary of State, without ever passing under the Tests Prescrib'd by the forementioned Act of Parliament. In like manner above FIFTY NEW COMMISSIONS were granted about the same time to known Papists, besides a GREAT NUMBER of desperate Popish Officers, though out of Command, yet entertain'd at bass pay. When in the next Parliament the House of Commons were prepared to bring to a legal Tryal the Principal Conspirators in this Plot, That Parliament was first Proregued and then Dissolved. The Interval between the Calling and Sitting of this Parliament was so long, that now they conceive hopes of covering all their pastCrimes, and gaining a seasonable time and advantages of Practising them more effectually.

Witnesses are attempted to be Corrupted, and not only promises of Reward, but of the favour of your Majestie's Brother, made the Motives to their Complyance. Divers of the most considerable of your Majestie's Protestant Subjects have Crimes of the highest nature FORGED AGAINST THEM, the Charge to be supported by SUBORDINATION and PERFURY, that they may be DESTROY-

ED by FORMS OF LAW AND JUSTICE.

A Presentment being prepar'd for a Grand-Jury of Middlesex, against your Majesty's said Brother the Duke of Tork, (under whose Cauntenance all the rest shelter themselves) the Grand-Jury were in an unheard of and unprecedented, and illegal manner discharg'd; and that with so much haste, and fear less they should finish that Presentment, that they were prevented from delivering many other Indistruents by them at that time found against other Popish Recusants. Because a Pamphlet came forth Weekly, called, The Weekly Pacquet of Advice from Rome, which exposes Popery (as it deserves) as ridiculous to the People, a NEW and ARBITRARY Rule of Court Part 2. Court was made in your Majesty's Court of King's-Bench (rather like a Star-Chamber than a Court of Law) that the same should not for the future be Printed by any Person what sever.

We acknowledge your Majestie's Grace and Care in Issuing forth e divers Proclamations since the Discovery of the Plot, for the Baonishing Papists from about this great City, and Residence of your . Majesty's Court and the Parliament; but with trouble of mind we , do humbly inform your Majesty, that notwithstanding all these · Prohibitions, great numbers of them, and of the most dangerous fort to the Terror of your Protestant Subjects. do daily resort hither and abide here. Under these and other sad Effects and Evidences s of the Prevalency of Topery, and its adherents, We Your Majestic's · Faithful Commons sound this your Majestie's Distressed Kingdom; and other Parts of your Dominions labouring, when we Assembled. And therefore from our Allegiance to your Majesty, our Zeal to our Religion, our Faithsulness to our Country, and our Care of Poherity, We have lately, upon mature Deliberation, proposed one Remedy of these Great Evils, without which (in our Judgments) all others will prove vain and fruitless, and (like all deceitful Secu-4 rities against certain Dangers) will rather expose your Ma-. jestie's Person to the greatest hazard, and the People, together with all that's valuable to them as Men or Christians, to utter Ruin and 6 Destruction. We have taken this Occasion of an Access to your . Majestie's Royal Presence, Humbly to lay before your Majeky's . Great Judgment and Gracious Consideration this MOST DREAD-FUL DESIGN of Introducing Popery, and, as necessary Consequences of it, all other Calamities, into your Maj. stie's Kingdoms. And if after all this, the private Suggestions of the Subtile Accomplices of s that Party and Design should yet prevail, either to Elude or Totally . Obstruct the saithful endeavors of Us Your Commons for an Happy Settlement of this Kingdom, we shall have this Remaining Comtort, that we have freed our selves from the Guilt of that Blood and Desolation, which is like to ensue. But our only hope, next under God, is in Your Sacred Majesty, that by Your Great Wisdom and Goodness, We may be effectually secured from Popery, and all the Evils that attendit; and that none but Persons of known sidelity to your Majesty, and sincere Affections to the Protestant Religion, may be put into any employment Civil or Military; that whilst we shall give give a supply to Tangier, we may be assured we do not Augment Part. 2.

the strength of our Popish Adversaries, nor encrease our own dan eres. Which desires of your faithful Commons, if your Mainstre gers. Which desires of your faithful Commons, if your Majesty hall graciously Vouchsate to grant, we shall not only be ready to affilt your Majelty in desence of Tangier, but do whatsoever else all be in our Power to enable your Majesty to protect the Protefant Religion and Interest, at home and abroad, and to resist and repel the Attempts of your Majestie's and the Kingdom's Enemys.

I must put my Reader in mind that I have adduc'd all these evidences, to prove three Remarks I made (p. 325) upon the Laws made against Dissenters in this Reign, and upon the prosecution of em, according to these Laws. And I submit it to the judicious, whether these agreements be not made evident, from the Testimony of many Noble Peers; from bath Houses of Parliament; from Votes and Addresses of the House of Commons; from the best Pieces extant, that were written in that Reign, for Liberty, and property, and for the safety of the Protestant Religion; as well as from some later Authors: And my Remarks being but the very Marrow and Abridgement of these Collections, I shan't spend the Readers time (and my own) in making any summary Recapitulation of the heads of what has been insorted at large, instead of which I shall only repeat the Remarks themselves.

Remark of. That the Chief Promoters of these Laws were either Papists or influenc'd by popula Councils, or possibly dividing Protestants, who out of pique and revenge were betray'd, though without a design on their part, into measures that tended to the advance-ment of Popery and Arbitrary power; or, by Temperizing Favorites; who had no other fixed Principle, but to please the Court and to sacrifice all to in

Rem. 2d. That these Laws were executed against Presbyterians at such times & in such a Manner as tended to the weakning of the Protestant Interest, stiffing of the Popish Plot, & emailing the Misory and savery of a Popula Saccaffor woon the Nations.

Rom. 3d. That in every Parliament in this Roign, the House of Commons were sansable than these Laws were dangerous to Religion, and Liberty and brought in Bills to repeal them, and made Votes at gainst the execution of them; which was done even by that very House

Zz

of

Chap: 2. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part 2.

354·

of Commons that fram'd them, after several years Experience of the evil of them; and that all good bills for the uniting of Protestants were still defeated by the influence of the Court and Posific Councils, at that very time when the discovery of the Popish Plot was discourag'd, and when Arbitrary steps for ensiving the subject were taken; and when the Union of Protestants was most necessary and desireable.

Having thus demonstrated that the Laws in England made against the Protestant Dissenters, are no Argument against their Loyalty; it is easie to apply what has been said, to the Declaration of the Parliament of Ireland in 1661. and to the Proclamation of the Government and privy-Council there, in 1662, both which are quoted by our Author in his second Letter p. 10, 11. But seeing much harder and more severe Treatment in England did not prove 'em-Disloyal, but flowed from another spring: these Actings of the Parliament and Council of Ireland, which were but in compliance with the Court of England, can prove nothing to our Author's Purpose; tho' he endeavor's to make it out by a very unfair Method: for he adduceth Ware's Annals, and quotes him in these words, ' Note (fays he) That Indulgence to Diffenters was published by the Government May 1662. And that they conspired to seize the Duke of ORMOND May 1663.

Any one who is disposed to take this Quotation upon trust, wou'd imagine that the Author (from whence it's quoted) had wrote not only the very words recited here, but in the very order recited here; but by consulting the Book it self we'll find the Contrary. For in Geffa Hibernorum p. 184 (the very page he refers to) we have these words Anno 1662 An Indulgence to Dissenters publish'd by the Lords Justices 'After these words, an account is given of 5 several particulars, which have no connexion with the said words, and after these 5 heads in the next page, we have these words ' Anno. 1663. The Plot of Jepson, I hompsons, Blood, &c. Toseize on the Castle. of Dublin, was discovered, and prevented; and 4 persons executed.

. Our Author has jumbled together these two passiges, as if they had stood connected in his Author; and alter'd the Words, as if the Plotters had been as extensive as the Party Indulged, or rather the James with them; and thereby perverted the Sense of his Author, to-tavor this Calumny.

Ost

Our Author's next Objection against the Presbyterians during this Part 2; Period, is the Rychouse-Plot in England. But I'm persuaded, all sober Men who will give themselves leave impartially to reflect upon the Transactions of those days, will think our Author very unwary in making this Objection 4 by which he falls in with the Papists, who forg'd that Plot, as they did divers others, to cover their own Popila Plot, and to destroy under the colour and forms of Justice some of the best Men in England. The above mentioned Conferences between Father Le chese and the 4 Jesuits is a Demonstration of it, of which I must lay the following part before the Reader, vide State-Tracts Yol. 3. P. 414. &c.

Sir John Warner:

"Tis known how dexteroully we have laid our Delign, how cere tainly the Guilt of the King's Death, would have been laid on the Presbyterians, if we had succeeded in that Attempt. And I am ftill of Opinion, that there is no other means to divert the storm from the Catholicks, but by contriving some way to make the Presbye teriens Guilty, or at least seem so, which does OUR BUSINESS altogether as well _____

- 'A Gentleman of good Quality who came lately to Paris assures me, That it a stranger were to hear the Sermons and Discourses of the Generality of the Dignify'd Clergy, he would indeed guess, that there had been discover'd of late a horridConspiracy against the King and Government, but he would never guess that the Citholicks had been accus'd of it. Consider, if you please, the numerous Party we have there ready to receive every Impression to the Diladvantage of Presbyterians.

A Numerous Party are longing for some Evidence of a Guilt, which is found only in their-actives. Heaven does not only inspire us with this project, but assists and instructs us in it. Let us therefore go on with our usual diligence and Constancy. Every day DE-E VISE NEW TALES to encrease the Jealousy against the Presbytee rians. Let us whisper abroad the greatness of their Numbers, the INCORRIGIBLENESS of their Principles. Let us, when things are got to a little more Maturity frengiben that Evidence which we have ALREADY PREPAR'D against them.-

.Z z 2

Chap. 2. The Logalty of Presbyterians

7:

Part 2. Greater bappiness could be wish'd in this juncture, than to be able to Warren, I am perfectly of Sir John Warner's Opinion. That no fix any seeming Plot upon the English Poanaticks. It would be like fresh Gime started, and would certainly tempt the ber-headed bansers to leave the old Chace of the Papists, as they call us, and purhe the new Discovery. I know very well that is would be a very A great weeksing of the Common Ruemy, and make another Civil War samongst Protestants. I know, however their Learning be despis'd: by the presended Church of England, That yet that Severity which they keep up in their Manners, and to constantly Press on their Difciples, has in an extraordinary manner OBSTRUCTED the Advancement of the Catholic Religion in England, by hindering that general: Debanchery and Corruption of Manners, amongst those Hereticks, which would have let them in upon us fo easily. As may be demon-Afreted by OUR SUCCESS IN THE COURT, and other places where some of those Intractable Whining Stoicks come. I am not ignorms that any Reconcilizaion betwixs us and them is Impracticable. There have been Bramballs, and Lands, and Grovinses, and Lloyds, have funcial is possible to reconcile orner fore of Protestants to us, but there never was yet a Man to fond as to hope for any Union between the Catholicks, and the Disciples of Calvin. I am also very sensible that NO SORT OF MEN have been so industrious in ruining our late hopeful Contrivances, nor none sh jealous of us; and consequently, so careful to Watch in what shape the designs. of the Society will next appear. But let us put your Reverence in mind, that it would be ever fatal to us, to set on Foot such an attempt at such a time and fail in it.

We have more than once attempted the same thing? and have been Defeated. Sir John Warner mentioned to your Reverence the ill Success of the Design upon Claypole, but he forgot to tall you of the later Detection by Dangerfield.

Six Themas Preston,

I agree with Father Warren (faid Sir The. Preston) that it's of about solute necessity that we sould not seffer Parliaments to Sit, but ! must add with Sir John Warner, that it is no less necessary for us to fix same Conspiracy upon the Presbyterians immediately. Take the Counsals of both the Rubers together, and we cannot fail of Success. Our COUNTEREEIT PLOT will be discover'd, if the PAR-LIAMENT

* LIAMENT SIT. And the Parliament must meds sie in a little Part 2. time; if we cannot charge a Plot upon the Presbyterians. (By Presbyterians, I do not mean those only that are really, but we must Order it as Arch-bishop Lane did, who called every one a Puritan, who was not for his sort of Government in Church and State.) Notwithstanding all that sera in fundo parsimonia, that new good Huss bandry taken up at Court, the want of Money will encrease so fast. that it will be impossible to hinder the K. from Calling the Parliae ment together in a little time, if you do not make him afraid of shem; and that can be done by no other means than by persuading. in that they are generally Presbyrerians in the House of Commons, and that the Presbyterians are at this I: Stant contriving against Nay, what is it " his Crown. we can despair of, after we have seen Mrs. C. and Mr. G. admitted as Evidence to prove a Presbycerian Plot upon Sir R. P. when the " Contrivance of the Forgery had been before D!RECTLY PROV'D: 6 upon those very Persons, by the Testimony of Danger field, con-" firm'd with many Circumstances? 'Tis Cowardise to fear after such • Success; and 'tis tolly to have too good an Opinion of our Adverfaries. Do we not see they help us all they can? Do not a great Par-4 19 amongst the Hereticks Labour as beartily to SERVE OUR INTE-* REST, as if they were of our Religion, and more ready to be gull'd' · into a belief of some Presbyterian Conspiracy, than we are to form f one?-

LeChese, The Debate of these weighty matters has given me abundant Satisfaction, and a great light into the Affairs of England. I am clearly of Opinion that to secure that Kingdom, every one of your Counsels must in some degree be pursued. Parliaments must be kept off, the Laws must be put in Execution against the Dissenters, and they must be either DRIVEN into, or CHARG'D with some Treasonable Conspiracy'.

Plot to lay it upon the Presbyterians; and you may perceive they Argue here from such Topicks, as all England know to be true, viz. the Artifices us'd to disgrace Presbyterians, & Impose upon the Credulity of weak and bigotted Churchmen. The Plot they mention here discover'd by Dangersield was that commonly called the Meal Tub-plot, the Account whereof is in most of the Histories of these times, but I chose Coke's

Chap. 2. The Loyalty of Presbyterians 358

Coke's, because of its being so succinctly narrated, vide Coke's Detect. (b) Then a design was set on Foot to throw the Popish Plot upon the Presbyterians, by leaving Papers of a Plot in the Lodgings of the e Principal Persons, who were Active in the Discovery of the Popish · Plot, and then to search their Houses, and prosecute them upon it, and these Papers to be given in evidence against them. · Cellier was a Principal Agent herein and Dangersield as her Instrue ment at first made an Attempt herein, upon Collonel Mansel who was prosecuted upon it; but the Examination of it was referr'd to 4 Sir William Jones, then Attorney-General, upon whose report of it to the Council, they thereupon Voted Collonel Mansel Innocent, and L Dangerfield Guilty, and that this was a design of the Papists to lay the e Plot upon the Dissenters Charge, and a further proof of the Popish e Plet. But this was such a Crime in Sir William Jones, that he was . soon after put out of his place, and Sir Robert Sawyer put in it, who . wou'd not venture the loss of his Place for such another Report. By this time my Lord Chief Justice's Zeal, which he Professed for the Discovery of the Popish Plot, was inverted into the quite contrary, and he was not or the Opinion of the Council: For after this Dangersield procured his Pardon, and then discovered the whole 4 Plot, which he Printed; Hereupon Mrs. Cellier was Prosecuted and Tryed before my Lord Chief Justice Scroggs, upon the 11th of . June, 1680. and Mrs. Cellier excepting against Dangersteld's evidence. the having his Pardon, the Case was sent to the Court of Commone Pleas, for their Judgment upon it; who gave it that Dangerfield's evidence was good; yet let any 'Man Read the Tryal, and see how the . Chief-Justice Raied and Vilify'd him, so as Mrs. Cellier was quit; and after the Tryal, Committed Dangersield to Prison, upon the Account there was a Defect in his Pardon, tho' it were not then before him, whether there was any Defect in his Pardon or not'.

The House of Commons perceiving this Intrigue of the Papists for raising Sham-Presbyterian-plots to disguise their own, and turn the scent of the Nation another way, took the Alarm, and so far was this Presbyterian plot from gaining any Credit with them, that they prosecuted some who had been the scandalous Reporters of it, and made the following Resolution and orders October 28th, 1680.

Re-

Resolved,

That it doth Appear by the evidence this day given to this House, that Sr Robert Can is guilty of publicly declaring in the City of Bristol in October 1679 That there was no Popish Plot, but a PRESBYTERIAN PLOT.

Part 2:

Ordered,

That Sr Robert Can a Member of this House be committed to the prison of the Tower, and that he be EXPELL'D THIS HOUSE.

Order'd,

That Si Robert Yeamans be sen for in Custody to answer for publicly declaring in Billtol, that there was no Pipish Plot, but a PRESBY-

TERIAN PLOT. vide a display of Tyranny (c)

The House pursu'd this matter so far, as to appoint a Committee to examine the infamous Parson Thompson of Bristol, for the same. report. The Committee examin'd eight witnesses, divers whereof declar'd that the said Thompson in a Sermon on the 3 orb of January 1679 said there was nothing but a Presbyterian-Plot, abusing those of that persuasion most gross, and saying, upon that and other occasions, many scandalous things both against Church and State. The report of the Committee and the vote of the House upon it the Reader may see at large in the State-Tracts (d). I shall content my self. with transcribing the Vote of the House, which was made December 24th 1680.

Resolved, Nemine Contradicente,

That Richard ThompsonClerk hath publickly defamed his Sacred Mafesty, preach'd sedition, vilisy'd the Reformation, promoted Popery, by

4 Asserting Popish principles, decrying the Popish Plot, and TUR-

• NING THE SAME UPON THE PROTESTANTS and endea-

4 vored to subvert the Liberty and property of the Subject and the Rights and Privileges of the Parliament, and that he is a scandal and reproach to his Function.

And that the said Richard Thompson be IMPEACHED upon the · said Report, and Resolution of the House; and a Committee is ap* pointed to prepare the said Impeachments, and to receive farther Instruction against him, and to send for persons, papers and records.

(e) part ist. p. 8. (d) vol. 2d. p. 117, 118, 119.

Chap. 2. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

I must observe, that the above-mentioned Conferences between Part 2. I muit odierve, that the four Jesuites, were after the discovery of the Monsieur Le-Chese & the sour Jesuites, were after the discovery of the Rue house. Meal-tub-plot by Danger field, & hefore thebreaking out of the Rye-houseplet: and pray let the Reader compare the Scheme laid by these Jesuits. with the History of what immediately follow'd. The Jesuics had contriv'd to have the penal Laws executed against Dissenters; and in order to that, to make 'em odious to the Court and people, to get Sheriffs and Juries to their mind that they might convict persons of their Sham-plot, to procure Credit to it, that it might not miscarry like the former: and accordingly all this happened. These occurrences are so briefly told and judiciously compar'd by the Author of the Cintinuation of Sr Walter Raleigh's History (e) that I must beg the Reader's patience to consider what follows,

The Popish Party (says be) encouraged by the differences between the King and Parliament, contriva a Plot known by the name of the Meal-tub, to throw the odium of the Conspiracy on the DISSENTERS and MODERATE CHURCHMEN. Several names. were put to an Association against the King, and a Declaration was drawn up by the Conspirators full of Invectives against the Government, and Instigntions to Rebellion, which they designed to drop in the Houses of many popular Lords and Gentlement and then have them search'd; that being found there, those were thy Patriots might be taken off, as that ILLUSTRIQUS one the Lord RUSSEL was, soon after. Fitzbarris, one of the Confpirators shewing some inclination to confess who set him upon it. the House of Commons resolved to examine him themselves; and fearing 1e might be tryed, and Hang'd out of the Way before thep finish'd his examination, they sent up a bill of Impeachment to the House of Lords, when the Parliamens met at Oxfords, against Fitzbarris; that they might have cognizance of the matter:but the Lords threw it out, which so offended the Commons that they were very free with the Peers in their speeches, and by a Vote forbad any Judge, Justice or Jury, to proceed upon Fitzharrin. They also brought in the Bill of Exclusion again; ANOTHER, ACT IN FAVOR OF DISSENTERS, and another to profecute the Lorde

And

Under King Charles II:

Pewis, Arundel, Petre and Bellasis, who were Prisoners in the Tower Part 2. for the Popish Plot; but every body guest by THESE PROCEED. INGS, that they wou'd not fit long; and accordingly fix days after they met, they were Dissolved, to the great Terror and Surprize of the Nation. Fitzharris was hang'd, notwithstanding the Parliament's Votes; and Stephen Colledge, a poor busy Joyner Indi-4 Sted of High Treason, for going Armed with the Earl of Shaftshury to Oxford, and other offences taken against him. Jury returned an Ignoramus on the Indictment; Yet Colledge was * removed to Oxford, a new Indichment preferr'd against him, and the Judges did not doubt of getting such a Jury there as wou'd find the Bill. It appears by Sir John Hawles, the late Sollicitor-General's Learned Remarks on this Tryal, that the whole was nothing elfe but a COMBINATION of the JUDGES to destroy him; and 'tis 4 just the World show'd know the chief of those Judges was Sir Thomas North. Colledge was by the Oxford Jury, Condemn'd and Executed; but that unjust Judgment has been REPEAL'D BY AGT OF PARLIAMENT. The Earl of Shaftsbury himself committed to the Tower, and Indicted of High-Treason; but the Grand-Jury ereturn'd Ignoramus on the Bill, and the Irish Witnesses which swore against him, with difficulty escaped the fury of the Multitude. The Dake of York having been sent to Scotland with the Character of Lord High-Commissioner, behav'd himself so Arbitrarily, that he gave general Discontent, the Papists and their Adherents, being the only Persons that were pleased with his Government. Earl of Argyle on a Malicious Prosecution, for explaining his Meaning when he took the Test there, was found Guilty of High-Treafon, and had he not made his escape had lost his Head four Years fooner than he did. The bold behaviour of the two juries abovementioned, so offended the Court, that a Que Warrance was brought against the City of London, the Dissenters were every where PER-* SECUTED without Justice or Mercy: And a few Miserable Inhabitants of most Towns and Counties in England, engaged to send up Address in Approbation of these Proceedings. At the head of these were the lend fort of Gentry, who thought their falle Leyalty wou'd make amends for the neglect of their Duties to God and their Neighbour. Sheriffs were impos'd on the City by Violence, or North & Richt ad neverhad that Honour, the Charter was taken away in 1683.

"And tho' the Meal-Tub Plot fail'd, that of the Rye-bouse succeeded to Part 2. And the Meat-1 no rive 1311 u, was Armstrong, Captain Wallcoat, well, that the Lord Russel, Sir Thomas Armstrong, Captain Wallcoat, and others, were Executed for it. Let who will take offence, this Teltimony must be born to the Merit of that brave English-Man: That fcarce all the Misfortunes that have attended his Enemies since, have been sufficient to attone for the Righteons Blood of so-noble and so 6" Innocent a Sentleman, whose Death the Parliament of England have. "fince SOLEMNLY DECLARED TO BE A MURTHER. The Earl of Effex was found Dead in the Tower with his Throat Cut, and a famous-Writer put upon giving an eloquent Account of the Conspiracywhich was publish'd in the King's Name. CollonelSyd-"ney, the Earl of Leicester's Brother, was Condemn'd and Executed for Writing a Book which was not then Printed; but of late it has palfed the Press, and no Treason appear'd in it. Bateman the Chirurgeon, * Reuse and others were serv'd in the same manner, and 'cis well, Popish Saints, who suffer'd for that Conspiracy. Que Warrantes were. fent against most of the Corporations in England, that wou'd not surrender their Charters; and there were not wanting in all Burroughs "-certain Tools to forward the delivery of these Charters: They were. egenerally Men of no Morals nor Fortune, and consequently fit for. any bad Service they were put upon. All their Merit consisted in their ZEAL AGAINST DISSENTERS; with the Plunder of whose 6 Houses, Shops, Barns and Fields, they maintained their Riot and De-· banchery; some thoughtless People were engag'd to side with them out of Bigotry or Fear, and some out of a natural Inclination to Rule; for by their cry of Rebellion against their Enemics, and of Loyalty. in themselves, all this Party then called Tories were Tyrants in 4 the places where they lived. Enough of these Wretches, who are long fince Perish'd, and may no worse Faction ever Rise out of their · Corruption.

> I shall further-recommend to the Impartial Reader the perusal of. the Book Entituled, No Protestant Plot, in three Parts; wherein he'll. find the Villany of the Witnesses against Shaftsbury, and many other . things Detecting the whole Forgery; and in the Book, icall'd Tyranny Displayed, Part ist, He'll be furnish'd with such Remarks upon the Tryals. of the Great Lord Ruffel, Collonel Sydney, Sir Thomas Armstrong, and poor Colledge and others, as may convince him, that they and others.

after.

er and a Popish Successor, were plainly Murthered in the form of Justice, and all by the Popish contrivance of the Rye house-Plot. And therefore I cannot but differ in Opinion from our Author, who thinks the Rye-House-Plot an Argument against the Loyalty of Protestant Dissenters, whereas the Papists wou'd never have put such a Plot upon them, had they not been assured of their being Irreconcileable Enemies to Popery and Slavery, and staneh friends to his Majestie's Person, Crown and Dignity; against which they were carrying on their Hellish Conspiracies.

What do's further prove this fham-plot to be a meer forgery of the Papists, is, the Voucher our Author has produc'd for fixing it upon Protestant Dissenters, I mean, Dr Spratt's History of the Conspiracy; for that Book was published in the year 1685, by the special order and Command of the late King James, prefixt to it. The Book it felf is Entituled, A True Account and Declaration of the horrid Conspiracy against the late King, His present Majesty, and the Government, as it was ordered to be published by his Late Majesty. And had not the book been very Subservient to the designs of that Prince, for advancing Popery, and Arbitrary Power, he wou'd not have taken that notice of it, he did: nor wou'd he have been to fond of it's publication. And let any sound Protestant, who loves the Liberties of his Country, peruse the Book seriously; and try, if he can possibly be of another Judgment. There are two things in it which makes that matter as plain as any thing of that kind can be, viz. 1st, The Commendation and Applause which is given in it to some of the most Arbitrary Methods that were taken in the Reign of King Charles 2d. 2dly, The Representation it gives of the Complaints of the danger of Popery as groundless.

As to the first, it is indisputable that the breaking the Charter of the City of London, and the compelling the other Corporations of England to Surrender their Charters and give up their Liberties, was the direct road to the enslaving of the Subject, and the destruction of the freedom and Privileges of Parliament, and consequently of the whole Constitution. And yet this Book bestows, very ample Encomiums upon those practices of the Court, and makes em to be the peculiar Glory of that Reign, in these words, p. 8, 9.

Wherefore his Majesty foreseeing how destructive, in time, the A a a 2 Estects Part 2. Effects of so great and growing a Mischief would be, resolved at length, after many intolerable Provocations, to frike at that which he had now found to be the very Root of the Faction.

"This his Majesty and all wise and good Men perceiv'd, could be no otherwise done, than first by REDUCING the ELECTIONS of the Sheriffs of London to their ancient Order & Rules, that of late were become only a bulinels of CLAMOUR & VIOLENCE: And then to make Inquiry into the Validity of the City-Charter it self; which an ILL PARTY of men had abused to the Danger, and would have done it to the Destruction of the Government, had they been suffered to go on never so little farther Uncontroul'd.

In both these most just and necessary Undertakings, the Righseonsacts of his Mujestie's Gense met with an answerable Success. First, Notwithstanding all the Tumulmous Riots the Factious party committed, to disturb the peaceable issue of that Affair; yet the undoubted Rights of the Lord Mayor's Nominating the eldest Sheriff, was restor'd and established: And so the Administration of Justice once more put in a way of being chared from Partiality. " and Corruption; and then a DUE JUDGMENT was obtained, by an equal process of Law, against the Charter it self, and its Franchises declared forseited by his Majesty. and in page 164, 165. We have these words 'His Majesty cannot here forbear to let the world know, what entire satisfaction he has taken in one special Testimony of his Subjects Assections; whence through God's Gracious Providence the Monarchy has guin'd a most considerable advant tage, by means of this very Conspiracy; and it is, that so great a number of the Civies and Corporations of this Kingdom, have finetso freely resign'd their Local Immunities and Charters into his Majo stie's Hands; least the Abuse of any of them should again hereafter prove hazardous to the Just Prerogenives of the Crown.

This his Majesty declares he esteems as the PECULIAR WOL NOR of his Reign; being such as none of the most popular of all his late Royal Predecessors could have promised so themselves, or hoped for.

This is Demonstration that that Rye-benfe-plot was constitled and forg'd to advance Arbitrary Government, and destroy the Liberty of the Subject: and that Spratt's History of it, commends Slavery

FUL

Under King Charles II. Chap. 2.

2dly, Tho' what I have advanced from the Addresses and Votes of Part 2. rliaments, and other undervable Taninaria addresses and Votes of for Loyalty, and Arbitrary Power for just Prerogative. but Parliaments, and other undenyable Testimonies show that the Nations were in eminent danger, of being overrun with Popery and flavety; yet that Book affects p. 162. All these complaints, to have been but Groundless Rumours of Popery, slavery, and Arbitrary Power. Let us compare what has been faid with the account, given by the ingenious Mr Pierce in his Answer to Dr. Nichels. The Doctor in his Book Entitul'd, Defensio Ecclesia Anglicana, had objected the Rye-house-plot against Dissenters, and quoted Spran's History of it (as our Author has done) in desence of his Allegation. To which Pierce answers p. 108,

109. Which I translate thus:

Now follows in the Author the Rye-house-plot, as it's called; a fibulous story, as he describes it, which never deserv'd Credit, among wise men, and is now held by all to be ridiculous, Themas Spratt Bishop of Rochester who wrote the History of that Conspiracy, and is commended by the Author, did after King William's Acecssion to the Crown, publish a book which has as much of the e nature of a Recamation as of an Apology: His words written in his own defence are very observable, viz. I cou'd not prevent their Deuth the means of those who suffer'd on account of this shamplot) but I was not in the least accessary unto it. Nay, I lamented it, and especially that of the Noble Lord RUSSEL, after the Reverend Dean of Canterbury had inform'd me of his distinguishing Probity, and of the detestation be had always conceived against deseivsulness. But had there been such a plot as the Author Asserts, Russel and all his Accomplices in that horrid Villany (whom notwithstanding the Parliamene has declared to be unjustly put to Death) had deserved not only the Mortal hatred of all good Men, but the Direful Punishment they suffered, nor would Sprate have needed any such Defence or Excuse. Desides, the same Bishop declares that his Manuscripe was Perused and Altered in several places by King James, before is was Printed. And therefore what can be depended upon for certain in fuch an History."

I leave it to every Judicious Reader to form such Restections upon what has been said upon this Head, as will naturally arise in his own mind, for the just Vindication of the Innocenoe and Loyalry of Presbyterians; and for evincing how little Credit is due to Sprate's History.

Chap. 2. The Loyalty of Presbyterians 366

Part 2. disown'd by himself, alter'd by King James, Calculated for the Advancement of Popery and Slavery, and Publish'd by that unhappy Prince, while he was eagerly pursuing the Measures that were destru-Aive of the Welfare of his good Subjects. And I heartily wish our Author, for his own sake as well as for the sake of Truth, wou'd forbear this Method of imposing upon his Reader, by his referring us to such Popish Forgeries, in Defence of his Allegations against Presbyterians.

I come next to consider the Murther of the Archbishop of St. Andrews, another Crime Objected to the Presbyterians in this Reign; but this was a Fact Condemned by the Presbyterians, and therefore I can't see what Ground there can be for charging them with it, as our Author does. For suppose him to be Murthered by some sew of that Persuasion, who were his Tenants enraged against him by Oppression, I don't see how Presbyterians are accountable for their Crime, any more than ail the Murthers, Rebellions, Adulteries, and other Crimes committed by Men of other Persuasions are chargeable upon the Communities to which they belong.

As to the Rebellion (as our Author calls it) subsequent in Scaland upon this Murther, it was the Act not of the Body of Presbyterians, but only of a Part of them made Mad by unexampled Oppression, which scems to have been contrived by the then prevalent Faction, of purpose to raise a Rebellion, and take occasion from thence to ruis the Nation and make way for Popery; as the Noble Earl of Shaftshury observes in his Speech in the House of Lords, March 25. 1679, vide

State-Tracts p. 71, 72. Vol. 2.

Popery and Slavery like two Sisters, go hand in hand, sometimes one goes first, sometimes the other in a Doors; but the other is always following close at hand. In England. Popery was to have brought in Slavery; in Scotland, Slavery went before, and Papery was to follow. I do not think your Lordships or the Patliament have any Juris d'ction there; it is a Noble and Ancient Kingdom; they have an Illustrions Nobility, & Gallant Gentry, a Learned Clergy, and an Understanding worthy People; but yet we cannot think of England as we ought, without reflecting on the Condition therein. They are under the same Prince, ai d the I fluence of the same Faverites, and Councils; when they are hardly dealt with, can we that are the Richer expect better Usage? for 'tis certain, that in all Absolute Governments, the poorest Countries are always most favorably deals Part 2. with.

When the ancient Nobility and Gentry there can not enjoy their Royalties, their Shrevaldoms and their Stewardries which they and their Ancestors have possessed for several burdreds of Years; but that now they are enjoined by the Lords of the Council to make Deputations of their Amborities to such as are their known Enemies. Can. we expect to enjoy our Magna Charta long under the same Per-Jons, and Administration of Affairs? Is the Council-Table there can Imprison any Nobleman or Gentleman for several Years, without bringing him to Tryal, or giving the least Reason for what they do; can we expect the same Men will preserve the Liberty of the Subject here? 'I will acknowledge. I am not well vers'd in the particular Laws of Scotland; but this I do know, that all the Northern Countries have by their Laws, an UNDOUBTED and INVIOLABLE RIGHT. to their Liberties and Properties; yet Scotland hath OUT-DONE. 'all the Eastern and Southern Countries, in having their Lives, Liberties and Estates subjected to the ARBITRARY WILL and PLEASURE OF THOSE THAT GOVERN. They have late-' ly plunder'd and barrass'd the Richest and-Wealthiest Countries of that Kingdom, and brought down the Barbarous Highlanders to-DEVOUR THEM; and all this without almost a Colorable Presenceto do it. Nor can there be found a Region of State for what they have done; but that those wicked Ministers design'd to PROCURE. "A REBELLION AT ANY RATE, which as they minag'd, was only prevented by the Miraculous Hand of God, or otherwise all the Papists in England wou'd have been arm'd, and the fairest oppor-, tunity given in the just time for the Execution of that Wicked and Bloody Design the Papists had and it is not possible for any man that duly considers it, to think other, but that those Ministerswho acted that, were as guilty of the Plot, as any of the Lords that are in Question for it.

My Lords, I am forc'd to speak this the plainer, because till the Pressure be fully and clearly taken off from Scotland, 'tis not possible for me, or any Thinking man to believe that Good is meant his here.

We must still be upon our Guard, apprehending that the Principle is not chang'd at Court, and that these men that are still in place.

368 Chap. z. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part 2. place and Authority, have that Influence upon the mind of our Excellent Prince, that he is not, nor cannot be that to us, that his own Nature and Goodness wou'd incline him to.

Coke, the' no friend to Scotch Presby teriant, gives us an Account of the Barbarous Treatment they met with in very moving Terms, Detrett. Part 2. p. 198, &c. 'And that he (i. e. Landerdale) might not be less active in Scotland, than his Brother Clifford was in Ene gland, and Buckingham and Arlington were in Holland, being arm'd with these other Powers, he made all sorts of People depose upon Oath, their Knowledge of the Persons of Dissenters, not Popish Meerings, in the Exercise of their Worship, upon Penalty of Fining. Imprisonment, Banishment, and Transportation, and to be sold for slaves, Imprisoning all Outed Ministers, who shall preach out of their Families, till they give Security of 5000 Merks Scots, not to do the same again: every Hearer being a Tenant, to pay 25 l. Scots, and Cotter 12, Toties. Quoties, they shall offend: and that IT SHALL BE DEATH for any to preach in Fields or Houses, where any are without Doors: and 500 Merks Reward for any to secure such. DEAD OR ALIVE; and gave orders, That every man for himfelf and all under him, show'd give Bond, not to go to Field-meettings, and to Inform against, Pursue and Deliver up, all outed Ministers to Judgment.

The Execution of these Orders was not by Legal Officers, but by an Army of Highland Robbers, who Quarter'd upon the Country; so that it may be a question, whether the French King did not take his Measures in his Dragoon-Reformation, by the Ground-Work alaid by Landerdale.

But his Grace (which it seems did Work Irresistibly) did not stay here; for his Highland Army which consisted of eight or nine thousand Men, not only liv'd upon free Quarters, upon all Sorts of the King's Peaceable Subject, but in most Places Levied great Sums of Mony, under the Notion of Dry-Quarters;

The King's Subjects were denounc'd Rebels, and Captions issu'd out for seizing their Persons, for not entring into Bond, that neither they nor any under them, shall go to field-Conventicles.

But he that wou'd be let into the whole Management of these affirs ought to read the Book, Entituded, An Account of Scotland's Grievances by reason of the Duke of Lauderdale's Ministry, whereof I shall transcribe the following part to shew how the Faction manag'd in Part 2. Church Assairs. vide State-Tracts Vol. 3, p. 209, 210.

The Second Remark shall be concerning my Lord Landerdale's Administration in Church-Affairs. It is mos necessary to remember, how that Earl Middleton, in-his Parliamontathought: fix to correct the Rigor of Presbytery by, the Heights of Prelacy, and what a severe Vengeance of Conformity the Bishops, did thereaster execute upon the whole Country, for their formet Compliance with, and retain'd Affection to their Brethren of that Ministry; O when shall Princes know wherein the stue. Power and Pineaubleness of the Gospel doth lie, and deliver themselves, and the People from the Prodantry and Hypocrific of all Church-Pretenders !! However, the extreme Distress whereinto, these Episcopal Persentions had brought the Country, did in the Year 1669, (As I have before related), move the Compassion of some more moderate: Persons, to obtain for it the ease of that small Indulgence, which was then granted; for the better Establishment whereof, it was supposed (as I have said) that the Supremacy was the reafter in Parliament enacted. Buthat the Country might the better relish this favor, & know how to discern his Majestie's from his Commissioner's Grace, it pleased my Lord Landerdale that in the Year 1670. Conformity should be again commanded, and • pressed by new Acts of Parliament, and those in my Opinion, of a greater Severity than the Highest Points in Christianity con'd have albw'd: For by the fifth Act of that Session (as: also by the seventeenth Act of the third. Sellion) it is Statuted, That no Non-Conform Minister, not licens'd by the Council, or other Person, not authoriz'd by the Bishop, shall (so much as) pray to God in any meeting, except in their own Houses, and to those of their own Families, and such as shall be present, not exceeding the Number of four, and that all Accessary to the contrary shall be guilty of keeping Conventicles, and pumish'd with the Pains there specify'd, the Article of the Apostolic Creed, I believe the Communion of Saints, notwithstanding. by the same Act it is declar'd, That whefeever without Livense or Anthority-aforefasd, shall Preach or Pray awany Field-Meeting, or in any House where there be more Personsthan the Hause contains, so as some ef them be without Deors, (who may only be swo or three, and posted there by Malice) or who shall Convocate these Meetings, shall be punish'd with Death and Confiscation of their Goods, and the Soizers of Juolo Persons.

Part 2.

Persons are not only indemnify'd for any Slaughter that shall be committed in the apprehending, but also assur'd of sive hundred Merk Scots of Reward, for each Person of them seiz'd and secur'd. So mortal a thing is this Field-Conventicling, the Mass and all its Idolatry both nothing in it so deadly.

hath nothing in it so deadly. Thirdly, by the sixth Act of that Session, there are considerable Pecunial Pains ordain'd against disorderly Baptisms; such as those are reckon'd to be. That are perform'd by Outed-Ministers, not Licens'd, or by any other than the Parish-Minister, without his Certificate, or in case be be Absent, the Certificate of one of the Neighbouring Ministers. Fourthly, by the seventh Act it is appointed, That all his Mae jesty's Subjects of the Reserved Religion (For Papills that are without, God judgeth) shall attend Divine Worship in their own Churches, under the Pecunial Pains there mentioned, toties quoties, &c. and in Case any landed Man shall withdraw for the space of a Year, notwithtanding their being therefore fully Fin'd, They are to be presented to his Majest's Council, who are Authoriz'd to require of them a Bond, not to rife in Arms against his Majesty, or his Commissioners (as if a Man cou'd not be so far dissitisfy'd with a pitiful Country Curate, but be must also be suspected tor Disassication to his Majesty) which if they refuse or delay, they are to be imprison'd or banish'd, and both their single and Life-Rent-Escheat doth immediately tall to his Majesty, And lastly, by the second Act of that same Session, It is Statuted & Ordain'd, That all Persons thereto call'd by the Council, or others having his Majesty's Authority are oblig'd in Conscience (very fair !) and Duty, to declare and depose upon Oath, their Knowledge of any Crime, and particularly of any Conventicles, and of the Circumstances of the Persons present, and things done therein; may not then any one be brought from the Streets, and urg'd to become upon Oath, Informer, Accuser or Witness, upon all that he ever saw or heard in his Life, against himself, his Friend, Father, and all Men else? or if be shall be so perversly wicked or disloyal, as to refuse or delay, he is to be punish'd by bining, cluse Imprisonment, or Banishment, by sending him to the Indies, or elsewhere, at the Council's Pleasure. Suie I am, the Spanish Inquisition hath no broader Warrant. And yet notwithstanding all these, my Lord Lauderdale by a new Act of the third Session of this Parliament, procures the Execution of the above mention'd Acts against Conventiclers, and withdrawers from public Worship, to be enjoin'd to all Sheriffs and Magistrates, with an express Provision, that they frou'd

Under King Charles II. Chap. 2

* shou'd render an Account yearly of their Diligence, under the Pain Part 2. of five hundred Marks Scots.

If we consider the Birbarous Treatment the Scotch Presbyterians met with before that lusurrection at Bothwel-Bridge, the Proceedings against 'em being as Odious and Unjustifiable as those of the Spanish Inquisition; and a manifest violation of the Law of Nature and Essential Liberties of Mankind; their Deplorable Case ought rather to be mention'd with that Compassion which the Christian Religion, and even Human Nature it self makes Due to them; and with a just Abhorrence of the Unnatural and Cruel Oppression by which they were driven into Desensive Arms, than with these hard Terms of Distoyalty and Rebellion. The Parliament of Scotland (who were better Judges of that Matter than our Author) were so far from Calling that Practice Rebellion, that they pass'd an Act July 4. 1690, Entitled, Act Resainding Forseitures and Fines, past since the Year 1665. From whence it appears, that in the Judgment of that Parliament, the Persons who made and were Accessary to the said Insurrection were not accounted Rebels. The following Words of the faid Act do clearly prove this Point.

OUR SOVEREIGN LORD and LADY, the King and Queen's Majesties, and three Estates of Parliament, in PROSECUTION OF THE CLAIM OF RIGHT, and for Relief of their Majestie's goodSubjects, and the betterSettlement of thePeace, Quiet and Tranquillity of this Kingdom, by the Tenor hereof, Dec lare, tutute and Ordain, that the Decreets and Dooms of Forefaulture pronounc'd against the Persons after Nam'd viz'. (here follows a vast Number of the Names of many of those who were at Pentland and Bothwel-Bridge) 'and generally, and what soever Decreets and Dooms and Forfeitures, given and pronounc'd against any of the Subjects of this Kingdom, either by the High-Court of Parliament, or Ordinary, or Circuit Courts of Justiciary, or any other Court or Commission, from the first of January one thousand six hundred sixty five, to the fifth day of November one thousand fix hundred eighty eighth, with allEscheates fallen upon the Ground of the said Forfeitures, since the faid day, are, and shall be void, and of na avail, Force, strength, nor Effect in all time coming; Rescinding and Reducing the same for ever, except the Decreets of Forfeiture pronounc'd against' (here are some Persons Nam'd who were justly sorfeited for Atrocious Crimes): Bbb2 And

Chap. 2 The Loyalty of Presbyterians.

Part 2.

And in like manner, all and funday Infestments, Chapters, Precepts, Instruments of Seasin, Presentations, and other Rights what over of Lands, Heritages, Teinds and Possessions, made and granted, and proceeding upon the said Porseitures, and Hornings, to, and in favors of whatsoever Persons, mediately or immediately, with all DECREETS and SENIENCES given and pronounc'd by ANY JUDGES conlequent, depending upon the said Forefaultures and Harnings, ARE VOID and NULL FROM THE BEGINNING, and of no Force, Stronge b nor Effict, and that without any special Process of Reduction, or other Declarator to follow thereupan. Declaring this present Ast as sufficient to all Parties coacern'd, as it the said Sentences of Firefaulure's and Hornings, with the said Charters, Dispositions, and other Rights and Titles what loever, with the Decreets and Sentences following thereupon, were specially and orderly Retreated and Reduc'd, and as all Parties having Interest had been specially call'd thereto. Likeas, their Majesties, and three Estates, Re-babilitats, Re-integrates and Restores so many of the said Persons as are living, and the Memory of them who are Decas'd, their Heirs, Successors and Posterity, to their Goods, Fame, and Worldly Honor, and to use all lawful Acts and Deeds in Judgment, and out-with the famine, and to all and fundry their Lands, Heritages, Tacks, Steadings, Debts, and Possessions whatsoever, which they, or any of them had, the time of the leading of the said Process against them. -And further, Their Majesties and three Estates, Ordain the Rersons forefaulted, and the Heirs of them, who are Deceased, to be fully Re-possess'd to their Lands, Teinds, Heritages, Tacks, or Possessions, whereof they or their Predecessors were in Possession, the time when they were challeng'd for the Deeds whereapon the-Forefaultures followed, with full Right and Access to all Bygones since the Time of Martinosass 1688. inclusive, with all other Bygones, yet resting unuplifted, in the Tenants bands: As! likewise, to all bygones what somever, intromested with by any Donatar, or his Assigneys, in the case of special Reasons, and Acts to be past thereanent, in manner aftermention'd. Likeas, their Majesties with Advice and Consent of the said Estates, do discharge all Fines yet unpay'd, which were imposed by Souteness from the first of January, one thousand fire hundred fixty five, so the fifth of November, one shouland fix bundud tighty sight, upon any Person or Persons for Church-Irregularities, tions and Oaths, or for not obeying Acts, Proclamations, or Orders thereanent, Refetting of, or Converling with Rebels, for the Caufes forelaid, refusing to depone on Libels against themselves, in Capital Cases, albeit restricted to Arbitrary Punishment, and any Bonds granted for these Fines, with all Hornings, Denounciations, and the Intercommunings, Given, Pronouncid, and issu'd forth in Parliament, or by any other Court, Commission, against any Persons, FOR THE SAID CAUSES: -And seeing many of the Liedges were Spuilzied and Plundered "without any Previous Sentence, and Bonds and other Rights: were ex-"terted or exacted from them through Fear and Terror: Their Majesties,. with Advice and Consent foresaid, ordains the Creditors, or others having Right, to deliver up to the Debitors, all Bonds, and other Rights extorted or exacted upon the Accounts foresaid, and where: the Bonds are registrat, to grant Discharges thereof, bearing a "Clause of Registration, and that betwixt and the first of November next under the Pain of the double of the Penalty in the Bond; to be decern'd against them, without any Modification, in case the Bonds. be found to have been extorted, or exacted in manner foresaid, and insisted for, or not deliver'd up to the Debitors therein. And likewise * ordains the Clerks of the Privy Council, and the Clerks of any other 4-Courts, general Receivers, and others who have in their Hands, Bonds which were extorted, or exacted, on the Accounts foresaid; to deliver up the same to the Debitors, if they be requir'd : and allows the forelaid Persons Spuilzi'd and plundered, to pursue for * Repetition of the Damages and Spullzies, on the Accounts forefaid, for which Bonds were not granted, either before the Comnithen appointed by this act, or the Judge ordinary, as they please; And appoints the Lords of Session, upon probable Grounds, to grant Sufpension of any Charges to be given on the foresaid Bonds, without Caution or Configuation, and that gravis, without Payment of any Dues. And their Majesties, and Estates of Parliament, being willing, that this present Act be inviolably keep'd, Ordains the fame; and whole Claufes thereof, to be interpret by all judges and Ministers of the Law, in the most extensive Sinse and Construction the Words can bear, in favors of the Perfons Forfeited. Fined. Denount'd or OTHERWISE LESED as Said is:

Chap. 2. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part 2. as valid and effectual to all others Our Liedges Forseited, Flaed, or otherwise Lesed, as foresaid, from the said first day of January one thousand six hundred sixty sive, to the sifth day of November one thousand six hundred eighty eight, and not here nam'd, as if they had been particularly here insert: Declaring likewise, that this present Act is without Prejudice of any who have been For-4 feited, Fined, or otherwise Lesed in manner, and upon the Grounds foresaid, in the Reign of King Charles 2d. before the Year one thoufand six hundred sixty sive, to bring in their Processes or particular 4 Acts before the Parliament, or such as they shall appoint for that Effect, and to crave and receive Redresses, according to the Merit of their Causes, as Accords of the Law:

Many other Privileges are declar'd by the above Act to belong to the Foseited Persons therein mentioned, too long to be here inserted. But from the whole Tenor of the Act, their Majesties K. William & Q. Mary of Glorious Memory, & the Scots Parliament who fet the Crown upon their Heads, and approv'd of the late Happy Revolution, did not account the Insurrections at Pentland and Bothwel-Bridge to be. Acuof Rebellion. For if they had thought them to be such, why shou'd they have declar'd the Persons who were forseited upon these Accounts to BE LESED? Certainly a Rebel forfeited for his Rebellion can't be said to have been lesed or injur'd, by his losing Life, and L-state, which he has justly forfeited: and 'cis very observable, that this Law is not an Act of Grace, but of Justice, for it is founded up. on the Claim of Right; and accordingly, it does not only render the Disposal of the forfeited Estates null and void for the future, butexs presly declares all Infeftments, Charters &c. and all Decreets and Sentences of any Judges &cc. to have been null and woid from the beginning,

No Law can justly make the Sentence of a Judge concerning the Forefaulture to be void null from the beginning, when that Law is posterior to the Sentence of the Judge, unless the saidSentence be void in it self from the beginning; And that sentence can't be vold in it self, but for ene of those two Reasons, either because, 1. The Person is condemn'd for a Fact, which tho' clearly prov'd against him, is in itself no Crime, & so can't render him obnoxious to a Penalty, or 2. Because there is not suficient, Proof, of the matter of Fact, tho' it be a Crime. Now, let us apply.

apply this to the Case of these forfeited for being at Pentland and Both- Part 2. well-Bridge. Many of them were upon Trial clearly and evidently prov'd to have been engag'd and concern'd in those Insurrections, and therefore the Sentences pronounc'd against 'em cou'd not have been void for want of proof of the Fact charg'd upon them; and consequently the Proceedings must have been declar'd void, for the first Reason, vien Because the Parliament Anno 1690 cou'd not think it a Crime for them to defend themselves by Arms against the Cruelty, Violence, Oppression, and Insringment of the Vital Liberties of Mankind as well as the Nation, under which they lay groaning. The Retrospect which is in this Law can never be justify'd upon any other Supposition than this, that they look'd upon the whole Proceedings against these People to have been in themselves unjust; and a necessary Consequence from that is, that they did not believe them to be Rebels, otherwise they wou'd have been to Absur'd as to affirm that Rebels ought not to be forfeited nor ponish'd; & seeing the Legislature hath appointed this Law to be interpreted in the most: Extensive sense and Construction the Words can bear, in favors of the Persons Forseited, Fined, Denounc'd, or otherwise Lesed, upon these Accounts; and have taken a Peculiar care of, and shown a Veneration for the Memory of those who were deceas'd, so as to have 'em restor'd to their Fame ( which is inconfistent with the Opinion of their dying in Rebellion) I am persuaded this Law will bear me out in the Consequences I have drawn from ĬL

But it is time to come now to our Author's last objection against the Loyalty of Presbyterians during this Reign. And here he has an Irish Plot to fix upon 'em viz. the Attempt of soizing the Duke of ORMOND in Ireland: he makes a great noise about this in his second Letter p. 11, 12, 13. And all that he advances to prove them guilty of it is, A Declaration of the Parliament of Ireland, Anno. 1665. I don't question but there was a Declaration made by that Parliament relating to that Plot, commonly call'd Blood's Plot (from the Person's name who headed it); and at the time mention'd by our Author: But I have not yet seen the Declaration it self. If there be nothing else in the Declaration, for sastning this Plot upon the Presbyterians, than what our Author has quoted from it (and I presume there is not, otherwise he wou'd not have miss'd it) their Reputation will be safe enough; for the Words of the Declaration he quotes are these,

Chaps 2. The Loyalty of Presbyterians.

Part 2. That they did most traiterously and unasyan, Rebellion in this Realm, and particularly had design'd on the said. 21st of May in the said Year to surprize and take his Majesty's * Castle of Dublin &c. And to seize on the Person of his Grace the Ld. Lieut. '&c'. To infer from hence that the Parliament believed there was such a Plot as they describ'd, is a very native Consequence; but then, how shall we know upon what Party they fix'd the Guilt of it? For the Words quoted by our Author (unless they be compar'd with some other part which he hath not quoted, and of which I can make no Judgment). don't, in the least decide that Question; in order to which, it must be inquir'd what Denomination or Party, they were speaking of in the preceding part of their Declaration, with which the Words quoted by our Author, are connected. And to make his Argument good, he must produce some Words which necessirily infer that this Passe is to be apply'd to Presbyterians or Protestant Diffenters; and he must yet go one step farther, and prove the Parliament fix'd this Plot upon the Collective Body of Presbyterians or Protestant Diffenters in Ireland, and that they did not confine it to some few of these Denominations. Our Author indeed inserts a parenthesis of his own thus 'They (i.e. Diffenters) did most Traitorously and Disloyally conspire to raise a Rebellion in this Realm &c.'. But I am not sure that he has not mig staken the Parliament's Meaning and Words, and that he has not puta Gloss and Commentary upon them which they will not bear. The Account which I will presently give of the Innocence of the Presbyterians as to the Matter of Blood's Plot inclines me to believe that our Author, has not rightly, apprehended the Parliament's Sense, who knew better things than to be Guilty of that mistake. Of the same Nature is that precatious Assertion of his, But firther, as an Instance of the Indefatigable Applications of the Distenters of those Days, and the Actful manner of their Address, in life ting Persons of all Ranks into their Service; They had not only in-

4 fluenc'd many of the Common-People whom they judg'd able to sustain 'em, had they succeeded in that Conspiracy against the Church and State; but they had brought over several Members of the Houle: of Commons to be Actors and Abettors. in their Plots, of which the Parliament takes notice in the same Declaration, in these Words

· vix. And whereas one of those Persons. So justly Execused, and some others also &c.

Under King Charles II: Chap. 2.

Upon Reading this Passage, I expected our Author wou'd have prov'd two things by this Declaration. 1. That the Members of Parliament Guilty of Blood's Plot, were brought into it by the Dissenters, for that he pretends to be set forth in the Declaration. And 2ly, That the Dissenters were Guilty not of this single Plot only, but of more, be cause he speaks of their Plots, and that they had drawn Members of Parliament into them all, and that the Declaration clears these points. But I find my self disappointed; for the Declaration (so far as he has quoted it) says not one word of the Persons by whom these Parliament-men were ensured into this Plot, nor does it make the least mention of any other Plot, in which those Members were engag'd: This Author's loose way of Reasoning, and pretending to prove things by what will hardly amount to an innuendo, can never convince the Judicious, tho' it may go well enough down with the Weaklings and Bigots of a Party.

To show that I have not wrong'd our Author, by afferting that that part of the Declaration he quotes, proves none of the Points for which he adduceth it, I shall here transcribe so much of the Declaration as he himself hath set down (for that purpose) in his Book, And whereas one of those Persons so justly Executed, and some others also who were involv'd in the Guilt of that Hideous Conspiracy, were Members of the Commons-House of Parliament, which we mention with inward Sorrow and Grief of Heart, and with Horror and Detestation, to find that any Persons, who had the honor (under the Protection of his Majesty's blessed Government), to be Members of this House, &c. should be so ungrateful, nay Trayserous and Disloyal, as to Conspire against that Government, they were bound by the Laws of God, and Nature, to contribute their best endeavors to preserve and Maintain &c. And this House doth also declare the deep Sense it hath of his Grace the Duke of Ormand's great Prudence and Seasonable Prevention of the Sad, Bloody, and Dreadful Effects, which might have follow'd thereupon throughout this Kingdom; for which his continu'd Watchful Endeavors for the Safety of the King and Kingdom, We do return his Grace the most humble and hearty Thanks of this House &c. And that this House may not fail in any point of Duty to his Majesty, We are fully resolv'd to make strict Enquiry, what Members of this House have been so wicked, as to have had any hand in those Hor_ C c c

Chap. 2. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Part 2. Horrid Guilts, so hateful to God and Man, &c. And to the End this Declaration may be deliver'd over to Posterity, &c. It is ordered, that this Declaration be entred in the Journal Books of the Proceedings of this House, Dated the 2d of November, 1665.

But I shall here give some short Account of Blood's Plot, from whence the Innocency of the Presbyterians will be evident. The Character of Blood the main Projector, and who was to have been the Principal Actor in it, together with a short Abstract of the Occasion and Design of the Plot, is given more succincily in Mr Baxter's Life, part 3. p. 88: than in any other Book I have met with.

' There was (Says he) this Year a Man much talk'd of for his Enterprizes, one Major Blood an English-man of Ireland. This Man. had been a Soldier in the Old King's-Army against the Parliament, and seeing the Cause lost, he betook himself towards Ireland, to live upon his own Estate. In his way he fell in Company with the Lancashire-Ministers, who were then Writing against the Army, and against all Violence to King or Parliament: Blood being of an extraordinary Wit, falls acquainted with them, & not thinking that the Presbyterians had been so true to the K. he is made the more capable of their Counsel, so that in short he became a Convert, & Marry'd the Daughter of an honest Parliament-Man of that Country; And after this in Iroland he was a Justice of Peace, and Famous for his great Parts, and upright Life, and Success in turning many from Popery. When the King was restor'd, and he saw the Old Ministers. silene'd in the three Kingdoms, and those that had surpriz'd Dublin-Castle for the King from the Anabaptists, east aside, and all things go contrary to his Judgment and Expectation, being of a most bold and resolute Spirit, he was one that Plotted the Surprizing of the Duke of Ormond, and of Dublin-Castle. But being detected and. prevented, he fled into England?

Blood had a Brother-in-Law, one Mr Lecky a Dissenting Minister. who had been a Fellow in the Colledge of Dublin, was a Man of Parts, and was engag'd in this Plot; Blood and he us'd their utmost Interest to bring into it as many as they cou'd. But they cou'd prevail with few or none, but with those who had been Sectaries, and Gremwelians as they were call'd. There were three Memorable Attempts that Blood& Lecky made upon the Scots Presbyterians, two in the North of Ireland and one in Dublin: In all which they were repull'd with:

Under King Charles II.

Chap. 2:

with a Peculiar Loyalty and Steadiness, by a People who were then Part 2. in hard Circumstances, and us'd otherwise than their loyal Appearance and Sufferings for the King gave 'em reason to expect they shou'd have been. Blood and Lecky took a Tour to the North, and first made an Attempt upon two Presbyterian Ministers and a Gentleman in the County of Down in or about December Anno 1662. The two Ministers were the Reverend Mr John Greg of Newtown, and Mr AndrewStuart of Donnaghadee, whom the twoPlotters hadgot together with Captain James Moor in Mr Greg's house; and propos'd to them, that in regard of the Iniquity of the Times, the Usurpation of Bishops, and the Tyranny of their Courts, the Increase of Popery, and the Male-Administration of the Civil Government, there was a Party that were Well-Wishers to a Reformation & desirous of having these abuses Redress'd, Ethad form'd a design for doing it, without wronging the King's just Authority; and that if the Ministers and People in these Parts wou'd give 'em any assurance of their Concurrence, they shou'd be let into the Secret; and urg'd those three men to send their thoughts of it to Dablin. Captain Moor and the two Ministers immediately reply'd, That they would not ENTERTAIN A THOUGHT, nor suffer a Word to be spoken in their Company that was PREJUDICIAL TO LAWFUL AUTHORITY; and that they abborr'd any Plot or Enterprize that tended that way, that they would not stain their Profession with any undutiful and Disloyal Attempt, for preventing the Sufferings that God might call them to: That for their part, they knew nothing of BLOOD'S Designs nor of his Scheme for the accomplishing of 'em; and therefore cou'd only say in General, that God's ends by lawful Means could not be rejected by good Men: But if he and the Party he spoke of had any unlawful Means in View, Religion and good Principles wou'd not allow 'em to fall in with 'em. These three Loyal Persons were so wary in what they said to Blood, and did so soon discover their Principle and Inclination, as prevented his proposing any thing to 'em which was Treasonable; and by this means their concealing of what pass'd between 'em (until they were examin'd afterwards, of which I shall presently give an Account) was not chargeable with the Imputation of Misprision of Treason, as their Judges acknowledg'd. They made such an Attempt in the County of London-Derry upon the Reverend Mr John Hart, making the same proposal to him which they had made in the County of Down, but had no bester Success. And in Dublin they made an Experi-Ccc2

Part 2. ment upon Mr Thomas Boyd an Eminent and Wealthy Citizen, of the Presbyterian Persuasion, and met with the same Repulse.

The Plot being discover'd, & some of the Principal Plotters apprehended upon the very day upon which it was to have been executed, viz. May 21 1663, The Adversaries of the Presbyterians father'd it wholly upon them, & possess'd the Government with a violent Suspicion that the Scots in the North were universally guilty of it. Two things were Improved by 'em; as an handle for propagating that Calumny. First, The Character of Blood& Lecky the Principal Conspirators, who own'd themselves to be of that Persuasion; and Secondly, Three Eminent Presbyterian Ministers of the Notth viz. Mr Adair. Mr. Stuart, and Mr. Semple, had been in Dublin in the Year 1662, about the time when theConspirators were hatching their Plot. Those three Ministers were attending his Grace the Duke of Grmond, then Lord Lieutenant, with an humble Address from their Brethren in the North, and were oblig'd to stay there for his Grace's Answer. But they were Misrepresented, as staying there upon another Errand, as Promoters of the Plot, to which they were perfect Strangers. And yet upon this Suspicion, the Government gave Directions for bringing those three Ministers Prisoners to Dublin. The Earl of Mount-Alexander being affor'd of the Loyalty of Mr Stuart, prevented his being apprehended at that time. The Lord Massareen interceeded in like manner for Mr Adair, and procur'd an Order from the Duke, that Mr Adair should not be brought up with a Guard, but come up upon the Command of the Government for his own Vindication. When he came to Dub-Lin, the Lord Massareen bail'd him; he stayed there three Months, and frequently petitioned either to be brought to a Tryal, or Difcharg'd: And there not being the least proof against him, nor the least ground for suspecting his Loyalty, he was dismiss'd; and commanded to live peaceably and quietly, which he ever did.

In the mean time, great Jealousies of the Ministers and Gentlemen. in that part of the North about the City of London-Derry call'd the Lagan; being industriously infus'd into the Duke; he dispatch'd Sir Arthur Forbes to inquire into that matter, who after the most Critical and Severe Examination be cou'd make, cou'd not find any ground of Acculation against either Ministers or Gentlemen in that Country; only he took notice, that in Mr. Harr's Examination, he had Ingenuously own'd his Conference with Blood and Lecky, giving the same Account of it, as I have done already; believing that it was so far from being Part 25 Criminal on his part, that 'twas a considerable Vindication of his Loyalty. And Sir Arthur was of the same opinion. But Mr. Hart dropt an Expression in his Examination, which tho' it occasion'd much Trouble to some Worthy Gentlemen and Ministers, yet it gave 'em an opportunity of doing themselves and their Reputation Justice: For while he was giving an Account of his abhorring any Traiterous Conspiracy against the Government, he added these Words, as Mr. Boyd of Dublin well knew. What he meant by that expression was no more thanthis; that Mr. Hart being in Company with Mr. Boyd in Dablin the Winter before that, they discours'd and communicated to one another the Conferences which Blood and Lecky had entertain'd with them, and fortify'd one another in their Loyal Principles and Resolutions. But the Expiession, as it stood in the Examination, and was return'd by Sir Arthur to the Government, being short and obscure, Mr. Boyd wasraken up and examin'd; and he knowing nothing of Mr. Hart's using that Expression concerning him, and fearing that in such a Critical and dangerous time, when a powerful prevailing Party were refolv'd to run down the Protestant Dissenters at any Rate, the most innocent Words that had pass'd in that Conference upon his Part (and he was. not conscious to himself of any thing else) might be stretcht, and a bad' Construction put upon 'em to his Prejudice; he wav'd any particular' Narrative of it, and vindicated himself (as well he might) by strong. Protestations of his Innocence in general: But the Duke being Irritated, and having shown him Mr. Hart's Examination, Mr. Boyd told. his Grace the whole Story as I have related it; and farther acquainted him, that he believ'd the Ministers and Gentlemen in the North, whom Blood had made any Essay upon, utterly discourag'd him from thinking upon any thing that was Treasonable or Disloyal, and particularly instanc'd Mr. Greg, Mr. Stuart, and Capt. Moor: For Blood had told Mr. Boyd what they had said to him. Before this Examination of Mr. Boyd, the Enemies of the Northern Presbyterians put the Duke upon the severest Measures they cou'd against 'em; many of the Ministers were imprison'd upon bare and groundless Suspicion; And particularly seven of 'em viz. Mr. Drysdail, Mr. Greg, Mr. Stuart, Mr. Alexander Hutebeson, Mr. Richardson, Mr. Ramsey, & Mr. Gordon, were very ill us'd and imprison'd in Carlingford; all the Scots in the Country were disarm'd without Distinction.

Under King Charles II. Chap. 2.

Upop

Chap.2. The Loyalty of Presbyterians

Upon Mr. Boyd's Examination, Mr. Greg and Mr. Stuart Were Part 2. brought to Dublin under two several Guards, had not the benefit of conversing with one another, and were kept close Prisoners in Dublin; Mr. Stuart was examin'd in Prison by the Earl of Mount-Alexander and the Lord Dungannon; and he upon Advice of a true friend who had fent him private Information of what Mr. Boyd had told concerning his Conference with Blood, frankly open'd up the whole Story with all its Circumstances, as before related; Whereupon these Noble Peers told him, that if there was no more between 'em, he was in no hazard. But Mr. Greg, having no Intelligence of what either Mr. Stuart or Mr. Boyd had acknowledg'd, Desir'd his Accusers to prove what they alleg'd against him, and gave Answers to the same purpose (and for the same Reasons) as Mr. Boyd had done before he knew of Mr. Hart's Examination: This Irritated the Government against him and his Brethren, who were severely Treated for some time; but upon the Recommendation of divers Persons of Quality, and Gentlemen of good Figure of the Establish'd Church, who thought themselves oblig'd both from Principles of Justice and Compassion, to give a Testimony for the Loyalty of these Ministers and Gentlemen, they were dismiss'd: There was never one of them convicted of the Gailt of that Plot, nor was there so much as one single Witness produc'd against any one of them; there was nothing cou'd be said to them, but what they confess'd themselves; and that could never militate against them, seeing 'twas neither Treason nor Misprisson of Treason; but a Vindication of their Loyalty and Innocence. And let any Man Impartially consider the Severity of those Times against Dissenters, the narrow Inquiry, and Sisting Examinations they underwent, and all the fair Opportunities their Adversaries then had of finding out their Guilt, if it cou'd have been justly laid to their Charge; and from these and the other Circumstances and Facts I have mention'd, let him judge whether the fixing of Blood's Plot upon the Body of the Presbyterians in Ireland be not a groundless Aspersion. And the Duke himself was at length fully convinc'd of the Innocence of a People, upon whom he had been advis'd contrary to the goodness of his own Temper, 10 put very great hardships, upon a bare Suspicion of Guilt: And for that very reason he continu'd the Indulgence to them for some Time; , which is particularly observed by the Author of a Letter published in Cox's History Part 2. In the Reign of King Charles II. p. 6.

The Facts I have related in this short Narrative sare known to ana

and can be attested by divers Credible Witnesses yet alive. Mr. Greg, Part 2: Mr. Stuart, and Mr. Hart have frequently told these Passages to their Brethren, and to many other Gentlemen, who exactly remember 'em. The Noble Lords above-mention'd gave the same Account to feveral Ministers and Gentlemen; some whereof are yet alive and can attest it. And Mr. Adair, as he frequently told those Passiges to his Friends and Acquaintances, so he hath given a full Account of them in his Manuscript-History, out of which this Abstract is taken: And to confirm all, I shall offer two things, 1. Let any Man produce a Record for Convicting any Presbyterian in the North of Ireland of being in the least Accessary to that Plot, or produce one single Examination of one Credible Witness for fastning that Imputation upon any one of them. As for those in the South of Ireland, there was indeed Mr Lecky, as has been noted, who was guilty of it, and not another Minister but himself, that I ever heard of: Blood likewse feem'd to own that Persuasion; but it were highly injurious, to upbraid the whole Body with these few Instances. But 2ly. Let the time when King Charles 2. granted his Royal Pension to the Presbyterian Ministers of the North of Ireland, be considered: it was near ten years after Blood's Plot, and it is not supposable that he wou'd have granted it, unless his Majesty and Sr. Arthur Forbes (afterwards Harl of Granard) had been fully satisfy'd of the innocence and Loyalty of those in whose favor the Royal Grant was made. Tis just, the world shou'd know the first Motion that was made for that Pension, and the Consideration upon which 'twas granted, and has been now contiau'd these forty Years past without Interruption, except during the Reign

Anvil. The Account I am to give of this Matter was drawn up by the late Reverend Mr. Alexander Hutcheson, Presbyterian Minister at Tannagh-Nive in the County of Down; he and three Ministers more, viz. Mr. Patrick Adair, Mr William Semple, and Mr Archibald Hamilton, did all concur in the same Account to the rest of their Bremilton, milton, did all concur in the same Account to the rest of their Brethren, affirming that they had it from Sir Arthur Forbes's own mouth. And they were all men of so much Candor and Veracity, as no man of any good Character, of whatsoever Persuasion, wou'd have call'd of King James 2d. And a very few years in the latter end of the Reign of King Charles. 2, when the Ruin not only of Presbyterians, but of all fo-ber Church-men, and of the Protestant Religion it self was upon the in Question the Truth of what any of them said, and far less of a Fact they all agreed in. The Account it self I shall give in Mr Hutcheson's

OM!

Į,

Part 2. own Words, as he has lest them under his hand, which is as follows: The truly Honorable Sir Arthur Forbes, the fledfast and real friend. of the Ministers and people in that part of the Country, wrote for four Ministers to come to him to Dublin, that he might communicate to them a matter wherein they were highly concern'd. The Ministers were Mr Patrick Adair, Mr William Semple, Mr Alexander Hutcheson, and Mr Archbald Hamilton, who all went to Dublin about the middle of October 1672. The matter was, as he related it himself, as followeth: He being a little time before in London, and being in Conference with the King, who had a great Kindness for im (and deserveal) the King amongst other things relating to this Kingdom enquited at him, concerning the Presbyterian Ministers and People in the North: How the Ministers lived, and that he had always been inform'd, that they were Loyal and had been sufferers on " that account, and were peaceable in their way and Carriage, notwithstanding of the hardships they were under.

Sir Arthur reply'd, 'twas a true account bis Majesty bad keard of them; and as to their present Condition, they lived in no great plenty, tho' they had the affection of the people, where they did reside; but that they were not in a Capacity to afford them a Comfortable subsistance, being under many beaux burdens. The King of his OWN MEER MOTION told Sr Arthur, that there was twelve bundred pounds a Year in the Settlement of the Revenue of Ireland, which he had not yet disposed of, but design'd it for a charitable use; & he knew not how to dispose of it better, than by giving it to these Ministers; and told, he would forthwith give Order & desired Sr Arthur to being the Secretary to him to morrow, that the order might be pass'd under the King's Privy-Seal; and the mony to be pay'd to Sir Arthur quarterly, for secret Service, 25 the Order run; but when the Secretary came to the King, it was found there was only six hundred pounds to be dispos'd of, which he order'd to be paid as is formerly related. Sir Arthur sent for the four Ministers, partly to give account of the King's business to them, partly that they might cansider how to divide it, which they considering apart, agreed on this Method, that each Minister which was in the Country in the year 60 should have an equal Proportion, and that the Widows and Orphans of these who were removed by Death might share of the King's Bonnty; and when they told this to Sir Arthur, he was much pleas'd with what shey had done, and order'd the present payment for the first quar-

An Appendix to Chap. 2.

fignify, by a Letter of Thanks to the King, the Sense they had of bis Majesty's singular savor; and another Letter to Duke Lauder-dale, a third to Sir Robert Murray, who were ready to do what Service they could for their Country-men here, and had spoke in their savors; all which Letters were drawn, and communicate to Sir Arthur, and by him sent over to London; which were Graciously Accepted; as both D. Lauderdale, and Sir Robert Murray signify'd by their Letters to Sir Arthur, which they desir'd him to communicate to the Ministers, which he did as Opportunity offer'd.

An Appendix to the Preceeding Chapter, concerning the Reign of King James II.

Reign, were the Hideous Spawn of those Wicked Councils which govern'd the Preceeding Reign; and those Patriots who foresaw and foretold 'em, and for that Reason had urg'd for the Bill of Exclusion, as the only expedient for the Preservation of Religion and Liberty, were now proved to all the World to be true Prophets. The present Generation have (or at least ought to have) so deep an Impression and so fresh a Remembrance of the Melancholy Circumstances of our dear Country during that Reign, as gives a full proof of the Necessity, Justice and Glory of the late HAPPY REVOLUTION.

Our Author mentions but one Objection against Presbyterians during this Reign, which he sets off in his sirst Letter p. 12, 13. in these Words, It must be own'd that King James 2. treated them kindly, and gave them good words, and that they were not behind with him, for his granting them a Toleration by his absolute Authority against the Laws of Scotland,' And then he quotes the Address of the Scots Presbyterian Ministers to the King upon that occasion, in these words, For which Royal Favors, his Majestie's most Loyal Subjects the Ministers of the Presbyterian Persuasion in Scotland, from D d d

An Appendix to Chap. 2.

X

Part 2. the due Sense they had of his Majesty's most Gracious Favor, &c. do most earnestly desire his most Gracious Majesty to accept of their most Humble Address, as proceeding from the Plainness and Sine cerity of Layal and Thankful Hearts, much engaged by his Royal 4 Favor, to continue their Fervent Prayers to the King of Kings for 4 all Blessings Spiritual and Temporal ever to attend his Rayal Perfon and Government.

Let the Barbarous Sanguinary Laws against Scots Presbyterians which destroy'd at once Life, Liberty, and Property, and which were procur'd by this King both before and after his Accession to the Crown, Declare, whether he treated them kindly, as our Author alledges: Instead of which, their Zeal for the Protestant Religion, and for the Bill of Exclusion, made 'em the Objects of his Implacable Fury. 'Tis true, he published A Liberty of Conscience to them, but all the World knows, that he design'd no Benefit of Kindness by it to any, but to the Papiks, upon whose Account, he Arbitrarily Dispens'd with the Penal Laws; And now the Question is, Whether the Presbyterians were blameable for taking the Benefit of that Liberty to themselves, and for Addressing him upon that occasion? I humbly conceive they were not: For had they refas'd to make use of it, That wou'd never have hinder'd the Papists for reaping the Benefit of it, but on the contrary, wou'd have strengthen'd Popery, by putting themselves out of Capacity to oppose it: Besides, the Penal Laws against Presbyterians were of themselves so Inhuman and Unchristian, as they thought, that they were obliged by the Word of God the Supreme Law, to make use of all Opportunities of Worshipping and serving him according to their Consciences, eny Human Law whatsoever to the contrary notwithstanding. And accordingly Divine Providence Overrul'd that Popile Project of K. James, so as to make it one of the visible Means of Defeating the End which he himself had designed by it: For the Presbyterians, being relieved from the Barbarous Severities which had ruined Multitudes, and Dispirited the most of them, got new Strength; which they had no sooner got, but they improv'd it vigorously in Conjunction with other Loyal Protestants, for promoting the late Happy Reve-Lucion.

The same Objection is made against the English Presbyterians by some of our Author's Faction; and the Argument is manag'd at large by Mr Wesley and Mr Palmer. The latter publish'd Anno. 1705. a

Concerning King James II.

Vindication of the Learning, Loyalty, Morals, and wost Christian Beha. Part 2: vier of the Dissenters toward the Church of England. He states the Objection and resutes it p. 70, 71. in these Words, But the most Plausible Argument of our Enemies upon this Head is, that the King having usurped the power of dispensing with the Laws, and the Declaration of Favor to us; being founded upon such usurped Powers; consequently our thanks to the King was an Acknowledgment and Allowance of it; but we have several things to Reply to this in cur Defence. And, 1. We say, 'tis Unaccountably hard to make our Address of Thanks a Crime, and an acknowledgment of that Ulurped Power which they themselves advanc'd, Supported, and Voluntarily Conferr'd upon the King. Thus when they had preach'd up Absolute Obedience, when they had taught that the Word of the King was Law, when they had fet up an Imperial Sovereignty, which they said was above the Political Power, and might Over-rule the Legal Authority: I say, when they themselves had thus set up a Usurped Power, to charge us with acknowledging of it as a Crime, is a most unaccountable Conduct, and nothing else but as their own Poet has it;

The self same thing they will abhor

one way, and long another for:

6 All Piety consists therein

In them, in other Men all Sin!

But 2dly, We Urge, that when they had taught, that the King was Head of the Church, and had a Plenary Ecclesiastical Capaeity and Power to Rule st. And when the Declaration for Liberty of Genscience was a meer Ecclesiastical Act; How cou'd it be our Crime to acknowledge that Capacity, which the Church did give him, by our receiving the Benefit and Advantage of the Exercise of it. And 3dly, We deny the Consequence, viz. That our Address of Thanks was an Acknowledgment of any such Usurped Power, to belong of Right to the King. For as there's no Address of ours ever made that Acknowledgment in Terms; so in the Thanks that we offer'd e we only afferted our Right to that Liberty of Religion, to which in the Nature of the Thing, and by the Law of God; we had a Right · Prior both to the Laws made against us, & the Declaration that pretended to annul them. And if a Man might not thankfully acknow-Ledge a good Act, as this in its own Nature was, being an Act of Mercy, without acknowledging the Usurped Power, that shewed this D d d 2

An Appendix to Chap. 2.

Part 2.

this mercy and Goodness to him; 'I would be worse living under a Conquering and Ulurping Power than it has higherto been, and men would be barr'd from any means of softning the Tyranny of Oppressors. At this rate of Arguing Tully cou'd not have Complimented Cafar into Clemency to Marcollus, if his so doing must be ' judged a wicked Allowance of Cafar's Right to destroy the Repub-· lic; and in the same manner, if the Compliments paid to Crommel for some particular Acts of Goodness done by that Userper to the Friends of the King, were to be interpreted to be an affent to his "Usurpation ; I doubt some great Chuerh-men wou'd be found as "guilty as any of the Phanaricks in their Addresses to him. And that we ought not to be charg'd with allowing the Dispensing-Power upon the account of our Thanks for this particular Favor is Evidens, because 'twas not we, but the Church-men that advanc'd it, the Judges that affirmed it were Members of the Church, and of the two Universities of Oxford and Cambridge. We at that very time declared our Abharrence of it, and as soon as we could, we joined the Prince of Orange to rollit and oppose it, the we had Reafon before to Rejoyce, that we were delivered from the Oppresfions under which for so many Years we had greaned, till that Declaration relieved us.

Let the World judge, whether that Faction had any Reason to accuse Presbyterians of paying Excessive Compliments to King James, when themselves had so shamefully exceeded all Bounds of Decency in that matter, as will fully appear by the following Collection which Palmer has made of their Addresses in the Reigns of Charles 2, and James 2. from the Gazetter, (ibid. p. 66, 67, 68.) Ripon (v) Address esteems it a manter of the highest Joy and Satisfaction that they were delivered from the Unwarrantable and Arbitrary Proceedings of the Klouse of Commons! That of Richmond (d) is a very strong piece of Enthusias, where they tell the King that the Special Spirit of God in spired bim to dissolve the Parliamene. High-Church too, is seems, has a great Respect for the Light within! The University of Cambridge (e) thank him for giving so seasonable a Check to the Arbitrary and Insolent Undertaking of the Commons! And Chefterfield

Concerning King James IL

3895

telle us, that this Arbitrary Usurpseion was Imprisoning his Majesty's Part 2 Subjetts! Thus the Right of the Commons to Imprison was deny'd when it was for their Turn! Durbam (f) makes a Gracious Offer, to give Mony without Consent of Parliament, to secure the Throne to a Popil Successfor; and they were so wonderfully fond of this great. Bleffing, that Lyn, Norfalk and York (g) do extremely Rejoyce that a Papist was Return'd to the Councils and Presence of the King. Poresmouth (h) is angry beyond Measure with the Dissenters for crying out so severely against the Heretical Church of Rome, a very Reasonable Complaint this, from the Members of the Church of England! " Cornwal has a presty Complement, and being Resicrucians talk of Sublimated Sedition, and well the King, that what they promised in a " black Charatter they shou'd be ready to perform in Red, in Red! Yes yes, we know blood was their Delire, for 'tis a very great Mistake, if we think these Gentlemen intended to venture their own Blood in the Service of their King, no, no, rowas ours they intended should transform the Character of their Address from Black into Red; And Issaich, to make sure Work, tell the King, that Jurors were only to Inquire, not to Determine, and Acquit the indicted! This I suppose was to hew their Skiff in the Law, & how little they knew them lelves Worthyof the Priviledge to be try'd by a Jury, & that the very fountain our Law might be brought into Contempt; the very Loyal Addresses of Worcester, speaking of the Votes of the House of Commons, call "em the Sawcy and Suditions Votes of our Senate! And if any thing like this can be shows in Dissensers Addresses, I have done! But this was but the Preludium, and to Pave the way to our Ruin. This was under pretence, that they had hopes the Duke was not a Papist, or that if he was, yet he wou'd not be an Arbitrary King: But when they selt the Essels of their own Polly, they were resolved to pursue it, and the Frolick must go round in the Glorious Reign of James II. Thus the Merchants make a surrender of the Customs to the King, and hug the Arbitrary Yoke, which his illegal Proclamation put upon their Servile Necks but a few Days before, (i) and that this

(f) March 20. (g) March 27. 30, 1682. (b) April 10. (i) Gaz. Feb. 19. 1684.

An Appendix to Chap 2.

Part 2.

this might have the Sanction of the long Robe, the middle Tem. plers sent up their Address by the Hand of Sir H. M. in which they tell the King, That he had a Right to take the Customs that were expir'd, without Consent of Parliament. Tho' this is declar'd to be a high Illurpation by the Law (k)! The Men of Winchester (1) were so far, and so early in the design of the Imposture that was afterwards put upon us; That they Solicited the Queen to divert her self in their Country, that their Excellent Air might Work that Miracle, which the Virgin Mary afterwards permitted to be done by the Catholic Waters of the Bath! And to do these Gentlemen Justice, it must be confess'd, that they have been even both with that Queen and the Virgin, for Aighting their Complement by a very Zealous Address against their Miraculous Son! Glocester's Address is very free with the Parliament, and calls 'em a Parcel of Bloodthirsty Villains, for endeavoring to Exclude a Subject from the Thron! Worcester (m)can't forbear Complementing themselves for their own Voluntary, Free and Unanimous surrender of their Charter! But to close all; now we are almost tyr'd, North ampton (n) Address will be extremely refreshing; for they say, they were refter'd from Deathte Life, and this cou'd not but beget all imaginable Veneration in their Minds and as an Evidence Of it, they offer up their Lives and Fortunes to serve his Majesty WITHOUT RESERVE. Without Reserve! That's very much indeed. But then they give us a very good Reason for it; for when they had made the King a God, it was but fit they shou'd worship him, and make an Absolute surrender to him, and therefore they add in the same Address, That they had that Reverence for all his Majesty's Declarations, particularly for that which relates to our Religion as by Law Establishid, as if they came to us from HEAVEN IT SELF! But what became of their Reverence for the King's Declaration for Liberty of Conscience, did they think that came from Heaven it self? Did they esteem it equal to the Declaration of Heaven? No they trampled upon it, and forsook their Heaven, & found that they had a Reserve, for they never meant to pay this Reverence to any of his Declarations, nnless he shou'd publish one to .. oblige 'em to read a Book of Sports, or Persecute us! 'Tis time to be weary of Franscribing these Impertinent and Impious Addresses; Part 2.

Concerning King James II.

and I shou'd never have done it, but that I might evince the Falshood of Mr. Wesly's Assettion, viz. That we made much greater Complements to King James II. than the Gentlemen of the Church; and we join Muchere too, and leave there few to be compar'd with all the Dissenting Addresses, and if such Insolent Expressions to Parliaments, such Complimenting Arbitrary Power, such surrendring of Property, such Encouragement of Popery, and of Usurpation upon the Rights of the Kingdom, and with all such Nauseous insipid

Flattery as is here, and may yet be produc'd; Nay, as is in this single Northampton Address, can be charg'dupon us, We deserve the Censure of Mankind for our folly; but even then too, we desire to be corrected by honester Hands than those of the Faction that oppose us, who are thus Guilty of the same, of which with so much Bigotry.

and blind Rage they accuse us.

I must observe that the Character, which honest British Protestants contend for with respect to their Behavior under this unhappyReign is not about their Loyalty, but about their Disaffection to that oppresfive Government; They vie with one another, and bappily contend for the bigber Praises and Superior Merit for giving the briskest Opposition, and making the bravest Stand against the Measures of that Unfortunate Prince: I call this an Happy Contention, because it Mues in a Noble and just Agreement against the late King James, and all his Abettors: For feeing all sides look upon their Non-Compliance with his illegal Courses to be a brightning of their Character, and an Establishing of their Merit; Their contending with one another about that Question, which of them was most Vigorous and Early in that Glorious Enterprize for Rescuing our Religion, Liberties and all that's dear to us, from his violent Popish Councils, is (under God) one of the best Securities we can have against the Return of that Intolerable Bondage; Which neither we nor our fathers were able to bear, or shake off, unless the immediate Hand of God (by an almost Miraculous Providence) had interpos'd, in our greatest Extremity, for our Relief. The Effectual way for deciding that Question will be this; for all Parties, to perpervate that lucky and Loyal Debate for the future, and contend with one another, which of 'em shall be the most Active and Zealous in opposing the Pretender, in Extinguishing all his Hopes, and Defeating all his Measures, and to be true to the Queen and the Protestant.

An Appendix to Chap. 2.

tessant Succession in the Illustrious House of HANOVER: It was a Part 2: great Happiness to the Nations, that many of the Gentlemen and Clergy who were so Frolicksome as to gratify K. James with their Losty Addresses, in favor of Arbitrary Power in the Prince, and Passive Dedience in the People, were so honest as to repent, and join in a good-Cause. I know of no Party of Protestants who have stuck so close to the Professions they made in favor of the late King James, as the Sees Bishops, and their Adherents; who upon the Birth of the Prounder, and the Rumor of the Glarious Design of the Prince of Orange to deliver these Nations, from Popery and Slavery, Address'd the King in these Words, .... 'We Magnify the Divine Majesty for Blessing you with a Sor, and us with a Prince, whom we Pray Heaven may Bless and Preserve to Sway your Royal Scapter after you, and that be may Inherit with your Royal Dominions, the Hustrious and Herois Virtues of his August and most serene Parents.

We are Amaz'd to hear of the Danger of an Invalion from Hol-Land, which excites our Prayers, for an Universal Repentance, to all Orders of men, that God may yet spare his People; preserve your Royal Person, prevent the Essuson of Christian Blood, and give such Success to your Majestio's Arms, that all who invade your " Majesty's just and Undoubted Right, and disturb or interrupt the Peace of your Realms may be Disappointed and Cloathed with same!

of so that on your Royal Head the Crown may still flourish. As by the Grace of God we shall preserve in our selves an Un-! Shaken and firm Loyalty; so we shall be careful and zealous to pro-. mote in all your. Subjects an Intrepid and Stedfast Allegiance to your Majesty, as an Essential part of their Religion, and the Glory of our holy Profession: Not doubting but that God in his great Mercy. who hath so often Preserv'd and Deliver'd your Majesty, will still Preserve and Deliver you, by giving you the Idears of your Subjects and the NECKS OF YOUR ENEMIES.

CHAP.

CHAP. III.

The Loyalty of Presbyterians during the Reign of King WILLIAM III. of GLORIOUS MEMORY.

Free all the Tragical Labyrinths of barefac'd Popery, and the Prodigious Destructive Mass of Arbitrary Power, under which the Nations lay Gasping, ready to breath out their last, with the Expiring Grouns of a Perishing People; Heaven open'd to us, all of a studden, the Amazing and Pleasant Scene of the late HAPPY REVO-LUTION, Anno 1688, which brought us our Great and never to be forgotten Deliverance by King William of Glorious and Immortal Memory. Divine Providence had made him the Great Instrument of Saving the Dutch from utter Ruin, and of Preserving the Protestant Religion Abroad; and then sent him to us to Work our Deliverance: The Ballance of Europe was put into his Hands, and he became the Restorer and Guardian of our Religion and Liberties; which made the Nations receive him with open Arms, and place, with Universal Joy, three Great Imperial Diadems upon his Head, and upon that of his Royal Confort Queen Mary; a ROYAL PAIR, of such Illustrious Princely Virtues, as added more Lustre to the Throne than what they receiv'd from it.

The Presbyterians Exerced themselves in the three Kingdoms with E e e

Ch. 3. The Loyalty of Presbyterians under

Part 2. so much Activity and Zeal for Essecting that Happy Revolution, which set him upon the Throne; and behav'd with such Inviolable Regard, and Dutiful Affection to his Person and Government, as leaves no Ground of Doubting their Conscientious Loyalty to him. And to this Day, no People in the World have a Greater Veneration for his Glorious Memory, when others Traduce and Insuk it. In Scotland, the Restoring and Establishing their Constitution was a Reward of their Loyalty. They subdu'd the Rebels that fought under Dundee againsthim; Preserv'd that Kingdom in a Peaceable Subjection to him, and overaw'd those who were Disaffected to his Government. Their General Assembly never met during his whole Roign, without a Remarkable Testimony and Acknowledgment of their Loyalty and Faithfulness to him by his Royal Letters. They chearfully supported his Government, by their Fortunes at Home, and by their Lives Abroad, and fought his Battles with as much Bravery and Loyalty as any in his Army. And all Ranks (Ministers and People) took the Oath of Allegiance, and Subscrib'd the Assurance declaring him to be King de jure, as well as de facto.

In England, they were as Early & Active in Loyal Associations for the Support of his Government, as any, discharg'd all the Places of Trust both Civil & Military with which they were honor'd, with usshaken Fidelity, and none were more forward in that Kingdom than the Protestant Dissenters, for supplying his Necessities; and advancing Mony before hand upon the public Funds. I never heard of so much as one amongst 'em, that resultd the Oaths to him, or was Disaffected to his Government. They were deliver'd from Persecution by the Toleration-Act, and honor'd with many kind Hints in his Majesty's Public Speeches from the Throne, Expressing his Royal Sonse of their Steady Loyalty and Affection to Him, and his Besign to maintain their Legal Liberty of Conscience inviolably: And tis well known, that he had so great a Value for 'em, and for the Peace and Unity of Protestants, that he was most desirous of having 'em comprehended in the Legal Establishment; Queen Mary the Glory of bor. Sext, in whom all the Virtues that cou'd adorn an Emineus Christian, a Great Queen, atrue Britein, and a good Wife did happily Conter, had that buintly at Heart, and set the Great and Pious Tilletson at Work; but the Almighty soon exalted her to the Crown of Righteensness, and at once both Released her form the Cares that attended her Earthly Diadem,

and.

and deprived us, for our Sins, of the Many Great Blessings that Part 2. might have been expected from the Continuance of so Precious a Life: Mean while, all these things are Undeniable Proofs of the Loyalty of Presbyterians in England to the Great King William.

In Ireland the Presbyterians Exerted themselves with the utmost Vigor, Zeal and Activity for Accomplishing and Maintaining the late Happy Revolution 1688, Their Ministers in the North were so early in Countenancing that Glorious Work as they make Choice of two of their Number viz. the Reverend Mr. Patrick Adair, and Mr. John Abernet by as their Commissioners to wait upon his Highness the Prince of Orange, before he was Proclaim'd King, to Congratulate his Safe Arrival, and Encourage him in the Great Enterprize he had then in View, and which (by the Blessiag of Almighty God upon his Endeavors) was brought to pass. The Ministers of that Persuasion had frequent Meetings. Anna 1688. With some of the Nobility, and most Lminent of the Gentry of the Established Church, with whom they Concerted joint Measures for putting the Country into a Posture of Defence against the late K. James and his Adherents, and for rendring 'em. capable of Afferting their Liberties, and joining with King William the Glorious Restorer of 'em. The Blessed Union of Hearts and Interests, which then show'd it self in the Conduct of all true Protestants in Ireland, was (under God) the happy Means of their Common Preservation and Safety. In Bursuance of the Measures Concerted in their joint Councils, they fought with the utmost Bravery and Resolution, of which their Gallant Behavior in the Siege of London-Derry, and upon many other Occasions, is an undeniable Proof. And 'tis hop'd, That no Honest Gentleman of the Establish'd Church will ever be so much under the Dominion of Blind Prejudice and Ingratitude as to Disawn it.

The Royal Testimony of the Great King William, and the Public Testimony of the House of Commons both in England and Ireland, in favor of the Services, Sufferings and Loyalty of the Presbyterians, are lasting Monuments of this Truth. And from a just Regard to the late Happy Revolution, and from Gratitude to the GLORIOUS ME-MORY of King WILLIAM, and from a due respect to those Worthy Patrioss in book Kingdoms, I shall here insert some of those Decharations (among many more that might be Nam'd) made by his E'eea Ma'-

396 Ch. 3. The Loyalty of Presbyteriant under

Part 2. Majesty and the House of Commons, to the Purposes abovemention'd; The first I shall take Notice of is the King's Letter to the Duke of Schomberg, which I publish from a true Copy of it, attested by his Grace the Duke of Shremsbury, who was then one of the Principal Secretaries of State, and gave Mr Adair and Mr Abernetby, the said Attested Copy, for the Benefit of their Brethren. It runs thus;

- * To Our Right Trusty and Right Entirely Beloved Consin * and Counsellor Frederick Duke of Schomberg General * of our Land Forces.
- Right Truity and Right Entirely Beloved Cousin and Counsellor, we Greet you Well. Whereas some Ministers of the Presbyterian Persuasion have humbly besought us in behalf of themselves, their Brethren, and their Congregations in the Province of Ulster, in our Kingdom of Ireland, That We wou'd take them under our Gracious Protection, And as an Assurance thereof, That We wou'd: please to Recommend them to you or other Our Chief Governor or Chief Governors of the said Kingdom for the time being. And We being ENTIRELY SATISFY'D OF THE LOYALTY, and FIDELITY. of Our SAID SUBJECTS, and Commiserating the Suffrings and Calamities they have of Late lain Under; Which We are Desirous to put an End to, as far as We can Contribute towards it: We have thought fit to grant their Request. And accordingly We do hereby Recommend to You in a PARTICULAR MAN-NER the said Ministers and their Congregations, Requiring you to give them that Protection and Support that their AFFECTION TO OUR SERVICE DOES DESERVE: And to shew them all fitting Countenance, that they may Live in Tranquillity, and Unmolested under our Government; And so We bid you very Heartily farewel. Given at Our Court at Whitehal the 9th. day of November 1689. in the first Year of our Reign; This is a true Copy of the Letter
  - This is a true Copy of the Letter written to the D. of Schonberg.
    SHREWSBURY

Another Declaration to the same purpose is to be found in his Majesty's Order to the Collector of Belfast for the Payment of his Royal Bounty to the Presbyterian Ministers in the North of Ireland, the Part 2. true Copy whereof is as follows.

the.

WILLIAM R.

HEREAS upon Our Arrival in this Kingdom at Belfast; We receiv'd aLoyal and Dutiful Address from Our Trusty and Well-beloved Subjects, Patrick Adair, Archbald Hamilton, William Adair and Others in the Name of themselves, and the rest of the Presbyterian Ministers of their Persuasion in these Northern Parts of our Kingdom: And calling to Mind how Early they also were in their Address unto us, upon Our Arrival unto England, And the Promises We then made them of a Pension of Eight Hundred Pound per Annum for their Subsistence, which by reason of several Impediments, hath not as yet been made Effectual unto them. And being affur'dof the Peaceable & Dutiful Temper of our faid Subjects, and sensible of the Lossesthey bave sustain'd, and I'HEIR CONSTANT Labor TO UNITE THE HEARTS OF OTHERS. • IN ZEAL AND LOYALTY TOWARDS US. We do hereby out of Our Royal Bounty give and grant unto them the Sum of Twelve Hundred Pounds per Annum, to be paid by Quarterly Payments, the first Payment of Three Hundred Pounds Sterl. to begin upon the 24th day of this instant June, and so forward: And Our Will and Pleasure is, That you or the Collector of our Customs at: Belfast for the time being, do make due Payments of the said Pen-6 sion into the Hands of Mr. Patrick Adair, Alexander Hutcheson, Archbald Hamilson, Robert Craighead, Hugh Wilson, Robert Henry and William Adair, or to the Person which they or any five of them 's shall appoint, to be by them Distributed among the Rest. And the Commissioners of our Revenue for this Kingdom are hereby Requir'd to allow upon your Accounts all such Sum or Sums of Mony, as shall appear by you or any other Collector of Belfast, to have been paid in Virtue of this Our Grant. And for so doing this shall be your Warrant. Given at Our Court at Hillsborough the 19th Day of June 1690. in the Second Year of Our Reign. To our Trusty and Welbeloved Christopher Carleton Esq; Collector of our Port of Belfast.

Add to these Royal Testimones of that Great Prince, the Vote of

Ch. 3. The Loyalty of Presbyterians under 398

Part 2: the House of Commons of England Anno 1698, which runs thus, 'Resolved, That the Services and Sufferings at London-Derry were very Eminent and of Great Consequence to his Majesty's Service and the Preservation of the three Kingdoms". And the late House of Commons of Ireland in their Address to the Lord Lieutenant May 1705; with a Remarkable Unanimity (of which his Excellency took Notice in his Answer) express'd themselves in these Words, "We cannot be either so Negligent of our Common Safety, or Unmindful of the Hearty Affection, & Courage which the Dissenting Protestants used in Conjunction with their Prethren of the Establish'd Church against Itish and French Papists, and the happy Consequences of their JOINT GALLANT BEHAVIOUR to the Welfare and Liberties of all Europe, as to think it Reasonable, that those who have hitherto given and shall continue to give all Testimonies and Assurances of being faithful to the Government, and Abjure the Pretender, shou'd be laid under any Uneasiness in the Exercise of their Religious Worship, a Liberty enjoy'd by our most Dingerous Enemies.

> From all which it abundantly appears that the Presbyterians of Ireland were as truly in the Interest of King William, and as Loyal and Dutiful to him, as any of his other faithful Subjects whatscever; and what farther demonstrates the Truth of it is, that the King and they had Common Friends and Common Enemies: For the greatest Enemies the Presbyterians had or have to this day where those who were Disassected to his Government; and his stanchest friends were their greatest Patrons.

Our Author is forc'd to Acknowledge the Loyalty of Presbytetians during this Reign; and yet he has Advanc'd many Things against 'em and their Behavior, especially in Ireland; for in his second Letter, one of the Periods wherein he proposeth to trace the Untainted Loyalty of the Dissenters of Ireland (p. 6.) is, from the Revolution tell the passing of the Test-AE which includes the whole Reiga of K. William, and a little of the beginning of the Reign of our present Gracious Sovereign Queen Anne; during which time he accuse th em of several things, which are either not true in Past, or, if true are not faults, or supposing they were Faults, can't be justly term'd Ads Disloyalty. But before I come to examine 'em, i stall consider one Objection he makes in his first Letter against the Church of Scooland which is the only one he makes in any of his Pamphlets against the Part 2. Presbyteria's in Great-Britain during this Reign. His Objection is in these Words, (p. 13) 'So it is as certain that they were Fauthful and UN Loyal Subjetts to that Glorious PRINCE (he means K. William) in that Turn of Government, though it be also as Notorious, after all the Concessions he made them, how they press'd upon him, and teas'd him at last, and how little Regard the General Assembly Sitting in Scotland (after the Establishment of the Kirk) had to the Repeated: Letters, He writ to them in behalf of the Episcopal Dissenters, who were Rabbled and Persecuted there.

That the World may see with how little Reason the Church of Scotland is Reflected upon by this Author, and by Men of his Kidney, as if they had been Acted by a hot Persecuting Spirit, as their Adversaries were; I shall here show by some Remarkable Instances, their Christian Moderation with respect to their Episcopal Brethren: I find them so Ingeniously and shortly Sum'd up in a Book Entitul'd, An Account of the Prozeedings of the Parliament of Scotland, which met at Edinburgh, May 6, 1703; That I shall set 'em down in the Words of that' n hor, who proves what he says from the Public Records of that Church and Kingdom. He proceeds thus (p. 89, &c.),

An Account of she Ecclesiastical Proceedings in Scotland, relating to the Episcopal Clergy, since the Revolution.

To set this Matter in a Clearer Light, it is necessary to give a short Account here of the Re-establishment of our Church, by the Revolution; and of the Proceedings of our Ecclesiastics, according to that Establishment.

At the Revolution, our Bishops and their Clergy were very Zealous for King Jumes, tho' he had set up Popery barefac'd in the 'Kingdom, and annull'd all the Laws Establishing the Reformation: The Presbyterians on the Contrary; took Arms in Favor of the Prince of Orange; and when the Convention met, the Estates declar'd Prelacy a great and Unsupportable Grievance to the Nation.

Soon after, the Convention was turn'd into a Parliament; and the Estates well knowing the Levity of the Episcopal Glergy, and how hateful the Generality of them was to the Nation, for concurring and complying with the above-mention'd Arbitrary and Bloody Measures, that had been taken in former Reigns, to subvert our Religion and Liberty, did, by their Act of the 6th of June 1690 lodg;,

Ch. 3: The Loyalty of Presbyterians under

Part 2. lodge the Government of the Church in the Hands of the Presbyterian Millisters that had been Outed since January 1661. and were then restor'd, and in the Hands of such Ministers and Elders only, as they had admitted, or shou'd admit afterwards: and at the same time, they gave them a Power, either by themselves, or by a Committee, to purge out Scandalous and Insufficient Ministers and to suspend and deprive such as were Contumacious and prov'd Guilty. The first Assembly met October the 16th 1690, consisting of an hundred forty seven Ministers, and forty seven Ruling Elders, and proceeded according to this Power, but with such Moderation, as they had no Pattern for in the Proceedings: of the Episcopal Party, towards them, as will appear by the following . Instances.

> 1. It is manifest by the Index of their Acts not printed, that on the 6th day of their Meeting, there was a Declaration publicly made by the Moderator, in Name of the Assembly, That they wou'd depose no Incumbents, simply for their Judgment concerning the Government of the Church, nor urge Re-ordination upon them, tho' we have heard before, that by the Influence of the Prelates and their Adherents, Presbyterian Ordination was declar'd null and void by Act of Parliament, and all Preachers that did not submit to Episcopal Jurisdiction, and to take Presentations from Lay-Patrons, were to be punished as Seditious Persons.

2. In their Printed Instructions to their Committee for Visitations, they Order'd the Commissioners to be very Cautious of receiving Informations against the late Conformists; and that they proceed in the Matter of Censure very deliberatly, so as none may have just cause to Complain of their Rigidity,; and that they shou'd not proceed to Censure but upon sufficient Probation.

3. That if they were intormed of any Precipitan, or Un-* mararatable Procedure of Presbyteries in Processes, which might prove of ill Consequence to the Church, they shou'd interpose their Advice to those Presbyteries, to stop such Proceedings, till either the Synod or next General Assembly took Cognizance of it, &c. as may be seen by the Acts of the General Assembly, Printed at Edinburgh by George Mosman, in 1690.

4. In their Letter to his Majesty, they acquaint him, that they had given sustructions to their Commissioners, that none of the late Conformifts

King William of Glorious Memory Ch. 3.

Part 2:

" formists show'd be removed from their Places, but such as are either In-Sufficient or Scandalons, or Erroneous, or Supinely Negligent; and that such of them be admitted to Ministerial Communion, who upon due

Tryal shou'd be found Orthodox in Doctrine, of Competent Abilities, of a Godly, Peaceable, and Loyal Conversation, and who * shou'd be Judg'd Ezithful to God and the Government.

Fhus the Assembly concluded to his Majesty's great Satisfaction, having done nothing against any of the Episcopal Incumbents, but Mr. James Forsyth, of St. Ninians, whose Deposition they confirm'd for Celebrating an Incestuous Marriage, and they deputed two of their own Number to attend his Majesty, and give him an Account of their Proceedings.

The Assembly, according to the Power vested in them by Law, appointed one Committee for the South, of fixty of the most Grave and Experienc'd Ministers; and another for the North of forty, to visit the Churches, to Purge out Insufficient and Scandalous Ministers, and to Redress those that they found had been wrong'd by Presby teries, or other Inferior Judicatories. The Committee for the South held their first Meeting in January, 1691. and receiv'd several of the Episcopal Clergy into Ministerial Communion, and a Share of the Government of the Church; they Revers'd Sentences pass'd against several others by Inferior Judicatories, and depos'd some who Declin'd their Authority, as they were Impower'd to do by the Act of Parliament.

" At the same time, several Interior Judicatories, viz. Synods and Presbyteries began to receive the Episcopal Clergy into Ministerial Communion, and a share of the Government of the Church, even in these Parts of the Kingdom where the Presbyterians were most Numerous, and accounted most Rigid, particularly in the Presbytery of Irwin, and in the Synods of Glasgow and Argyle,

The Enemies of the Revolution and of Presbyterian Government in Scotland, perceiving this, knew well enough that their Interest must dwindle to nothing, and that they cou'd make no Figure either at the Court of St. Germains or England, if the Presbyterians were fuffer'd to go on in this manner. Therefore they first rail'd a Mighty Clamor against 'em, represented the Rash Proceedings of any inferior Judicatory, tho' the Comittee was actua ually Reversing them, as the Procedure of the whole Church; and F f f

Ch. 3. The Loyalty of Presbyterians under

Part 2. the Shyness of some Young Ministers, to receive into Ministerial Communion such as they thought they had Reason to suspect, was Complain'd of to Court, as the Sentiments of the whole Party. With these Calumnies they post to London, where by the Interest of the High-Church-of-England-men, who are very apt to receive bad Impressions of the Presbyterians, they procur'd a Letter from his Majesty then in Flanders to stop the Progress of the Committees until his teturn, and a further signification of his Pleasure. This Letter tho' contrary to law, which Authoriz'd the Assembly to give the Committee that Power, was according to the Method of the Episcopal Administration in the two former Reigns, embrac'd by that Party, as a Sufficient Authority to decline the Power of any Church-Judicatory; and they, and the Friends the Jacobites, took care to spread it all over the Kingdom.

A Certain Faction in England taking Advantage of the King's Necessities, endeavor'd to put him upon such Meusures, as they hop'd wou'd end in a Breach between him and the Scots Assembly, which met at Edinburgh, January 15. 1692; to whom his Majesty sent a Letter. ordering 'em to admit into Ministerial Communion, and a Share of the Church-Government, such of the Episcopal Clergy, as shou'd make Application to them, and Subscribe a Formula referr'd to in the said Letter, and sent to 'em. The Assembly's Proceedings in this Matter are fully vindicated in the last mentioned Book from p. 98. 10 p. 106. The Assembly cou'd not Comply with his Majesty's desire in this particular, for two Reasons, 1. Because there was no sufficient Test of the Orthodoxy of the Episcopal Ministers, provided for by the said Formula: For all it contain'd with Relation to the Doctrine of the Church was in these Ambiguous Words, 'And I do further promise, that I will subscribe the Contession of Faith, and larger and shorter Catechisms, now confirm'd by Act of Parliament as containing the Doctrine of the Protestant Religion profess'd in this Kingdom'. Now, any Man might Subscribe the Confession of Faith, according to that Formula, and yet deny all the Articles of Faith contain'd in it; for he is not oblig'd by it to Subscribe the Confession of Faith, as the Confession of his Faith, but only as containing the Doctrine of the Protestant Religion profess'd in this Kingdom: and in the like Sense, a Man may Subscribe the Alcoran, as containing the Doctrine of the Mahometan Religion profess'd in Turky. The Committee of that Assembly, who were considering of a proper Answer to his Majesty's Letter, did expressy ask the Episcopal.

copal Ministers, what they mean'd by this ambiguous Clause of Part. 2. the Formula, and whether they were willing to declare, that they believ'd the Doctrine of the Church contain'd in the said Confession of Faith to betrue? but they refus'd to give the least Satisfactory Answer to that Question, insisting on their being receiv'd upon the Terms of the Formula, without any Explication of their own Sense and

Meaning of it. 21y. The Assembly thought the Formula Defective, because it did not provide any Security against the Endeavors of these Episcopal Ministers to overturn the Ecclesiastical Constitution, shou'd they be admitted to a share in Church-Government. And they look'd upon this Reason to be so much the stronger, because of the Ambiguity of that part of the Formula which related to the Doctrine of their Church; concluding, that those who wou'd not plainly declare their Approbation of the Doctrine, cou'd be no Cordial friends to the Government of the Church; and especially, considering that many of 'em had gone in with all the Measures of the two former Reigns, for Persecuting the Professors of Presbyterian Principles, even to the Death. And yet the Assembly, under all these Discouragements, were thinking of Expedients for receiving and Comprehending such of their Episcopal Brethren as were found Protestants, good Ministers, and faithful Subjects: but in the mean time by the Artifices of a certain Party, the Assembly was abruptly dissolv'd. The Parliament of Scotland finding it necessary and just to Countenance the Assembly, and support their Authority in what they had done, made an Act, June 12. 1693, for Settling the Quiet and Peace of the Church, wherein they Enact divers Particulars which are a plain Approbation of the Assembly's Conduct with Respect to the Formula abovemention'd. And the they made divers Laws very favorable to the Presbyterian Government, yet to show their Moderation towards all Men of Worth of the Episcopal Persuasion, in their Act concerning the Church, July 26. 1693. they allow all Ministers that were at the time of his Majesty's happy Accession to the Crown, and have since continu'd Actual Ministers in particular Parishes, and no Sensence either of Deposition or Deprivation pass'd against them, and who show'd swear the Oath of Allegiance, and subcribe the same with the Assurance, in the time limited by the said Act; and who shall behave themselves worthily in Doctrine, Life and Conversation as becomes Ministers of the Gospel, to enjoy his Majesty's PRO-

404. Ch. 3. The Logalty of Presbyterians unde

Part 2. PROTECTION, as to THEIR RESPECTIVE KIRKS, BENEFL CES OR STIPEND'S And this Benefit they had by way of a Civil Comprehension, without being oblig'd to join in Ministerial Communion with the Establish'd Church. And by virtue of this Ad a Considerable Number of 'em enjoy'd the Legal Maintenance during their Lives; and in the Year 1710. above an hundred of em continu'd to enjoy their Churches upon these Terms; how many of 'em since are dead, I do not know: Upon the whole, 'tis Evident that greater Instances of Moderation can't be given by any Establish Church within her Majesty's Dominions, than those I have already mention'd of the Church of Scotland towards the Episcopal Diffenters. And the Reader is referr'd for his farther Satisfaction in this point to the Book Entitul'd Presbyterian Persecution.

Having thus exterin'd our Author's Complain tagainst the Sons Presbyterians during this Reign, I shall next take a Trip into heland, and ex mine the Account he gives of the Conduct of Diffenters there, during this Period. The faults he finds with them are reducible to seven General Heads. 1. Their Petitioning the King by their Commissioners in London against the Church. 2. Their Invading of Churches, and refusing to pay Tyths. 3. Their refusing to pay their Landlords Rent. 4. Their engrossing of CivilPower. 5. Their making a Monopoly of Trade. 6. The Confidement of their Charity and Alms Deeds to thefe' of their own Persuasion, And 7. Their unsair Practices against the Church in the Matter of their farming.

As to the first, viz. Their Petitioning the King by their Commission ners at London, against the Church: Our Author inserts an Account of it (p. 45,) which he says he received from a Reverend and most Worthy Prelate, as his Lordship had it out of the Secretary's Office in London. The whole Narrative of that Prelate runs thus,

Dublin, January, 3. 1711. SIR. I do remember, That July 1690. or thereabouts, I heard of some Deligns of Dissenters to the Disadvantage of the Church in Ireland; " upon it I went to the Secretary's Office, and there I understood, that Two Petitions had been presented to the King by the Lord Massareene, Sir Robert Adair, and one Abernethy, in the first there was a Project to Abolish Episcopacy in the North of Ireland, according to the Model of Scotland. The Reasons for this were, That that Country was entirely Scotch, at least of the Presbyterian Persushon; That they had the whole Charge or Care of the Souls of that Part, and that they were the great Instruments of Setting up and supporting his Majesty's Interest in that Country. This Account I had of the first Petition, but I cou'd never get a Copy of it. Of the second Petition deliver'd by the same Persons I have a Copy, the substance of which I remember sets out the Purity of their Worship, and their many Services, the great Weight upon them from the neglected Cures. And for their support in the Discharge of their Duties, they desired, in order to Encourage their Worship and Discipline, till their could be a Legal Establishment of both, that the little Prosit of the Deserted Livings of that Country might be Collected by them. This they said wou'd encrease Prayer for his Majesty, and highly advance and strengthen the Protestant Interest and Religion.

That Prelate has been Missisterm'd in several Particulars; For the has mistaken the very Names of the Petitioners: Instead of Sir Robert Adair, he shou'd have said Mr. Parick Adair; And the state Lord Massareine and that Noble Family, were pleas'd to savor Presbyterians with particular Marks of their Friendship, yet his Lordship did not present that Petition. A Second Missake in that Prelate's Account of this Matter is, That two Petitions had been presented to the King by the Lord Massareine, &c. Whereas there was none but One Petition presented (not by his Lordship but) by Coll. Arthur Upton, Mr. Adair, and Mr. Abernethy. His third and greatest Mistake is, in his wrong Recital of the Contents of the Petition it self, as will appear from the true Copy of it, which is as sollows.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty, The Humble Besition of Coll. Arthur Upton, Patrick Adair and John Abernethy.

SHEWETH

HEREAS Your Petitioners did profent a Humble Address to your Majesty from the Rresbyterian Ministers, & others of that Perivasion in the North of Ireland, which your Majesty was graciously pleased to Accept, & they being instructed Humbly to Request your Majesty's Protection & Favor in some Part 2. Particulars, not yet offer'd to your Majesty's Consideration: Do most Humbly Pray, That their former and present Sufferings well known. to those who liv'd amongst them, as well as their Continu'd Loyalty and Early Appearing for Your Majesty, may be savorably Consider'd.

'That all Sufferings for Non-Conformity may be for the future

f prevented.

' That as by Your Princely Care, Relief is sent to that Languishing Poor Country, which by the Blessing of God, hath already and will further produce Happy Effects; so Your Majesty will appear as a Nursing-Father, for Encouraging the Parity of the Gospel in Worship and Discipline, till there be a Legal Establishment of both.

* That those Ministers and their Families, some of them having been in London-Derry during the late Siege, Others yet remaining in their Places of Ulster, And the rest forc'd to fly to Scotland, being reduc'd to Insupportable Straits, may for their present necessary support have a Proportionable Share of the Public Charitable Collections, and forthwith Encourag'd to return to their Respective Places by your Majesty's allowing them a future Competent Support, until the Peace and Quiet of these Parts of that Despoil'd and Inspoverish'd Nation enable the Inhabitants to Maintain the said Ministers, in such a Way as your Majesty in your Great Wildom shall find just. Which will greatly Conduce to the Replanting those Parts of that Kingdom, Augment your Revenue there, increase Prayers for your Majesty's Success, endear the Assections of your Loyal Subjects, and strengthen your Hands against your Rebellious Enemies.

.Which is your Petitioners daily Prayer &c. The Reader will perceive that there is no such Expression in the Petition as that Prelate hath Represented in these Words viz. That the little Profit of the Deserted Livings of that Country might be Collected by them; and which our Author (p. 46.) calls a Petitioning the King for the Church-Livings. Instead of which, all they Petition'd for, was a Share of the Public Charitable Collections to Supply their present Straits. If there be any such Expression in the Copy which that Reverend Prelate fays he has got, it can't be a true Copy: For what I have Publish'd is taken from the Copy which Mr. Adair, who presented the Original, hath left amongst his Papers; and the same Reverend Divine kept a Part 2. Journal of his Proceedings in London, wherein he gives the exact History of the Composition and Management of that Petition, and hath left amongst his Papers the very first Rough Draught of it that was prepar'd, which I have seen, and which has not any Expression or Phrase in it of the like Import with that set forth in the above Prelate's Account. The first Rough Draught being thought too long? was Abridg'd and put into the Form in which I have Publish'd it. Mr. Adair in his Journal gives us the Heads of the Petition, and some of the Expressions which exactly agree with the above Copy. The Original was Presented in August 1689, and lodg'd with the Right Honorable the Earl and now Duke of Shrewsbury, one of his Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, who on the 28th day of September following deliver'd his Majesty's most Gracious Answer to it, to Mr. Adair and Mr. Abernetby; which his Lordship read out of a Paper he had written from the King's own Mouth.

King William of Glorious Memory, Ch.3.

Before the presenting of the above Petition, there was a Humble Congratulatory Address presented to his Majesty by the same Persons, wherein (as Mr Adair assures us in his said Journal) there was no Mention made of any of the Grievances of the Presbyterians in Ireland, nor the least Infinuation of anything that was Petitory; but only Loyal and Dutiful Expressions of their Zeal for the late Happy Revolution, for which they Ador'd the Infinite Goodness of Almighty God; and with all possible joy Embrac'd their Great Deliverer, and Congratulated his Happy Accession to the Crown, with Assurances of their Steady and Inviolable Respect to his Person and Government. And: besides that Address and the above Petition, there was no other Paper presented by these Ministers to the King in London; and in neither of them was their Mention made of a Project to Abols h Episcopery in the North of Ireland, according to the model of Scotland

And there are divers Circumstances (besides what I have said from Mr Adair's Journal all written with his own Hand) which farther Confirm the short History I have given of this Transaction. For these two Ministers got their Commission and Instructions from their Brethren of the North of Ireland at Connor in the County of Amrim January 22. 1688; and among all their Instructions there is no mention made of any Project for the Abolishing of Episcopacy. After these Ministers had gone to London and presented their Congratulatory. Address, before they presented their Petition they waited for farther.

Pant 2. farther Directions from their Brethren; who at that time were banish'd from their own. Country by the Irish; and had taken Sanctuary in Scotlands, and who all met at Glasgow the third Wednesday of June 1689, and wrote a Letter to their Brethren in London which came to their Hands on the 8th day of July following, wherein they gave no such instructions about. Abolishing Episcopacy. When the two .Ministers came home they gave (as both aver'd) a full and faithful Account of their whole Managemont in London, to their Brethren in the North of Ireland, & yot: Never Acquainted them with their Pro--posal of any such Project about Episcopacy; tho' they told them the whole Transactions wherein they, had been concern'd: And the Characters of these two Ministers are so well known to many worthy Gentlemen of all Persuasions, there their Fidelity and Sincerity can't be call'd into Question by such as knew 'em : as to Mr Adair's Character, the Reader will find it in the 166th page of this Book; And the Reverend Mr Abernethy was well known to have been adorn'd with the Happy Conjunction of three Rare Qualities which feldom meet in one Man viz. a Sprightly Quickness of Apprehension, a great Depth of solid Judgment, & a vastaMemory justly admir'd for singular Celerity and long Recention, & these Rich Intellectual Endowments were Replenist'd with a large Stock of acquir'd Knowledge, and accompany'd with a Generous Public Spirit, Great Piety and Remarkable Candor and Integrity; he was a Man of Police Address, and of that Peculiar Felicity in Conversation as made him fix to be a Companian to Men of all Stations and Persuasions; from whom, the Amiable Beauties of his Mind fer off with a Countenance made Venerable with Majestic Gravity and humble Speetness, did at once Command both Awful Respect and Endearing Love. Thus were Mr Adair and he pitch'd upon as two of the Brightest Lights, and amongst the fittest of their Brethren, for Managing so grow a Trust: And 'tis hop'd, the joint Fe-Atimony of such Men will be of Weight with all those who are not Blindly Devoted to a meer Party-Interest.

But to allow (for Argument's lake) that these two Ministers had petition'd the King for a Legal Establishment of Presbytery in the North of Ireland, I can't see how that it self con'd have proved them or their Principals guilty of Disloyalty; For they Conspir'd, not against the Government, rail'd no Tumults, invaded no Churches but only petitioned in a humble manner for Establishing that Church and

Form

Form of Discipline and Manner of Worship, which of all others Part 2: they thought the best; and I will prove in the Third Chapter of the Third Part of this Book, that any Protestant's having a Principle which inclines him to design and endeavor by all Lawful means to have his ewn Religion Establish'd by Law, does not prove him to be either Disloyal or Intolerable, and thither I refer my Reader. And if it were not so, both the Lord Inchiquin and the Lord of Airds must have been concluded Guilty either of Dissimulation, or Disloyalty, or both; Imputations, which I am loath shou'd fall upon the Memories of these Noble Peers: For they both declar'd their Inclinations for the Establishment of Presbyterian Government in the North of Ireland, in July 1649. The first of these Lords wrote to the Presbytery a Letter dated July 2. that year, yet extant in their Records, the first part whereof is in these Words,

Reverend Sirs,

I have lately taken upon me to Write some things unto you, and fearing they may have Miscarry'd, I do now Assume the Considence to offer you my weak advice; being a Well-wisher to the Presbyterian Government, and honor'd with a Public Trust by his Majesty; who, I know, is Resolv'd for your Satisfaction, to Establish the • Presbyterian Government in these Parts, and I believe, it may be in other Parts also, of the Kingdom: And no Man knows whether' the whole Number of Protestants, may not agree to Embrace : it.

And my Lord of Airds in his Declaration dated July 4. 1649. expresses himself thus, ' But lest any shou'd fear that Religion, may hereby be prejudg'd (tho I conceive my Constant Practices might if " well ponder'd rejolve any such Doubt) I do in the Presence of GOD ". Protest, I shall use my Uttermost Endeavors, whilst I am intrusted with Power, to Countenance and Assist the Exercise of our Religion in this Province, as it is now practif'd, and likewise as I have good Ground to hope, with Success I shall solicit his Majesty, for a Confirmation under his hand.

Upon his Majesty's Happy Accession to the Throne, it was the earnest desire of many sober Protestants of both Persuasions, Episcopal and Presbyterian to have a Coalition, and to have the National Establishment Enlarged and Strengthen'd by the Comprehension of ell the Pious, Ggg

410 Ch. 3. The Loyalty of Presbyterians under

Partt 2. Orthodox and Useful Ministers of both Sides: The Attempts that were made towards it, and by what means they Miscarry'd are sufficiently known. However, the Protestant Distenting Ministers in and about the City of London thought it their Duty to apply to their Majestics. King William and Queen Mary, for promoting so pious a Work, and receiv'd a Gracious Answer: Both the Addresses and Answers were Printed May 11. 1689, being publickly Licens'd: And whether Mr. Adair and Mr. Abernethy might not lawfully have Address'd their Majestics in the same manner, is humbly submitted to all who love the Union of Protestants and the Peace and Welfare of their Country. These Addresses of the London-Ministers breath so much of a Catholic Spirit for Christian Concord, and withal contain so much Loyal Affection, that they Challenge a Peculiar Place in this Historical May. They run thus,

An Address of the Dissenting Ministers (in and about the City of London) to the KING and QUEEN, upon their Accession to the CROWN. With their Majesties.

ANSWER to it.

To the KING,

The Series of successful Events that has attended your Glorious Interprize for the saving these Kingdoms from so Imminent and Destructive Evils, has been so Visible and Extraordinary, that it may force an Acknowledgment of the Divine Providence from those who deny it, and raise Admiration in all who believe and reverence it. The Beauty and Speed of this happy Work, are the bright Signatures of his Hand, who creates Deliverance for his People. The less of Human Power, the more of the Divine Wisdom and Goodness has been Conspicuous in it. If the Deliverance had been obtain'd by sierce and bloody Battels, Victory it self had been dejected, and Sad, and our Joy had been mix'd with afflicking Bitterness:

Aut as the Sun ascending the Horizon, dispels without noise the Day kness of the Night; so your Serene Presence has, without Tamults and Disorders, chased away the Darkness that invaded us. In the Sease of this astonishing Deliverance, we defire with all possible

King-William of Glorious Momory Ch. 3.

411

Ardency of Affection, to Magnify the Glorious Name of God the Part 2.

Author of it, by whose entire Essacy the Means have been successively.

ful: And we cannot without a warm Rapture of Thankfulness, recount our Obligations to your Majelly the happy Instrument of it. Wour Illustrious Greatness of Mind, in an Undertaking of such vast Expence; Your Heroic Zeal, in exposing your most precious Life in such an Adventurous Expedition; Your Wise Conduct and Un-4 Maken Resolution in Prosecuting your Great Ends, are above the Lostiest flights of Language, exceed all Praise. We owe to your Mae jesty the Two greatest and most valuable Blossings that we can enjoy, the Preservation of the true Religion, our most sacred Treasure, s and the Recovery of the falling State, and Establishing it upon just Foundations. According to our Daty, we promise Unfainting fidelity, & true Allegiance to your Majesty's Person and Government. We are Encourag'd by Your Gracious Promise upon our first Address, to humbly desire and hope; that your Majesty will be pleased by your Wisdom and Authority to establish a firm Union of your Protestant Subjects in the matters of Religion, by making the RULE OF CHRISTIANITY TO BE THE RULE OF CONFORMITY. Our blessed Union in the Purity and Peace of the Gospel, will make this Church a fair and lovely Type of Heaven, and terrible to our Antichristian Enemies: This will make England the ste ady <sup>6</sup> Centre from whence a powerful Influence will be deriv'd for the Support of the Interest of Reformed Christianity abroad; This will bring Immortal Honor to your Name, above the Ttophies and We do affure Triumphs of the most Renowned Conquerors. your Majesty, that we shall cordially Embrace the Terms of Union which the Ruling Wisdom of our Savior has prescrib'd in his Word. shall not trespass farther upon your Royal Patience, but shall offer up our fervent Prayers to the King of Kings, that he will please to direct your Majesty by his Unerring Wisdom and always encline your Heart to his Glory, and encompass your Sacred Person with his Favor as with a shield, and make your Government a Universal Blessing to these Kingdoms.

His Majesty's Answer to the Ministers.

1 take kindly your good Wishes; and whatever is in my Power shall be

412 The Loyalty of Presbyterians under Ch. 3.

Part 2.

be employ'd for obtaining a Union among you. I do assure you of my Protection and Kindness.

The ADDRESS of the Dissenting Ministers to the QUEEN, upon her Accession to the CROWN.

May it please your Majesty, VOUR happy Arrival into your Native Country, and Accesfion to the Crown, has diffus'd an universal Joy through this Kingdom. 'Tis an Auspicious Sign of the Public Felicity, when Supreme Virtue and Supreme Dignity meet in the same Person. Your 4. Inviolable Firmness in the Prosession of the Truth, and Exemplary Piety, are the most Radient Jewels in your Crown. The Lustre of your Conversation, unstain'd in the midst of Tempting Vanities, and Adorn'd with every Grace, recommends Religion as the most Honorable and Amiable Quality, even to those who are Averse from hearing Sermons, and apt to despise serious Instructions and Excitations to be Religious. We humbly desire your Majesty will be pleas'd by your Wisdom and Goodness, to compose the Differences between your Protestant Subjects, in Things of less Moment concerning Religion. We hope those Reverend Persons who Conspire with us in the main end, the Glory of God and the Public Good, will Consent to the Terms of Union wherein all the Reformed Churches agree. We shall sincerely Address our Requests to God, that he will please to pour down in a rich abundance his blessings upon your Majesty's Person and Government, and preserve you to his Hez-

The QUEEN's Answer.

venly Kingdom.

I will use all Endeavors for the Obtaining a Union that is necessary for the Edifying of the Courch. I desire your Prayers:

A Second fault our Author finds with the Dissenters in Ireland and particularly in the North, in the beginning of this reign is, Their Invading of Churches and refusing to pay the Clergy their Titles. Upon these Heads he expresses himself thus, p. 15, They began to Seize on. some parish-Churches in the North of Ireland particularly. Mr. No.

Nathaniel Cooper a Clergy-man in the Town of Lutterkenny, was by Part 2.

Mr Craford to preach. Mi John Lesly officiating in the Church of Rimoghy, Mr Liston the Presbyterian Minister, tho' they had a * Rimogby, Mr Likon the Presbyterian Minister, tho' they had a * Meeting-house near the Church, came with a Party, forc'd him to give over, threatned to kill him, and Mr Liston went up and preach'd; and Mr Hunter in the Diocess of Derry had his Gown

forn, and was pulled out of his Pulpit.

About this time the Northern Dissenters did generally resuse the Payment of their Tithes with such Obstinacy, that Duke Schomberg was obliged to interpose by public Orders and Proclamations.

These Instances about Mr Cooper, Mr Craford, Mr Lesly and Mr Hunter Conformist Ministers, and Mr Liston a Presbyterian minister, are very Disingenuously misrepresented by our Author's Informers. Its Confessed that Mr Liston preached some few Lord's Days in some Churches; But that he brought any Party that threaten'd any Clergy-man, is a mistake. Mr Cooper went into the Church of Lutterkemny early in the Morning before the usual time of meeting, and before he had Begun Divine Service, some sew Women (not one man being amongst 'em) went and spoke to him, and bid him forbear, because Mr Liston was to preach there; and while they were talking together he got between them and the Church door, and the Women moving towards the same door, press'd him out without touching him with their hands; but Mr Liston getting Information of this, fent for the people that were to be his Hearers, to Castlebane where he preached to 'em that very day, and Mr Cooper preach'd in Church, without any farther molestation. and where Mr Liston preach'd in any Church, the meeting-House was either quite Ruinous, or very much out of Repair: The whole Circumstances relating to these Stories can be produc'd, but seeing I don't pretend to Justify, but only extenuate em, and show that they were not so bad as our Author makes 'em; I shall not trouble my Reader with any farther Account of 'em.

But what ever might be thought blameable in Mr. Liston's Conduct, the Presbyterian Ministers in the North of Ireland are so far from being Chargeable with it, that they Reprov'd him for it; and from their General Meeting at Belfast July 3. 1690. sent him the fol-

Ch. 2. The Loyalty of Presbyterians under

Part 2. lowing Letter, which I publish from the Original now in my Hands, Subscrib'd by the late Reverend Mr. Thomas Hall of Larn, Moderator of that Meeting, a Man of profound Learning, great Abilities and Piety, and long Experience; whose Subscription can be Attested to be Genuine by many Persons of Unquestionable Integrity. The Letter runs thus,

B. 3. July 1690. 4 The Breihren here met from all our several Meetings, being inform'd that some of our Brethren (in remote Corners of the Country, and under some extraordinary Circumstances,) have for some few Sabbath-days made use of some Churches!, by Law belonging to the Prelatical Clergy; and considering, that as this is illegal in it self, spoken of to the Reproach and Prejudice of our Interest by our Adversaries, and unsuitable to our former Commendable Practice; so likely to create great Offence to the Government, and may give occasion for evil Thoughts of all of us and our Way: Have thought fit hereby earnestly to advise all the several Meetings and Brethren in them to abstain from all such Practices in time to come, and every such Thing or Practice whereby Reslection may be justly cast upon our Way as Invaders upon the Law, or Right of any Subject. And further to declare, that it is their Judgment that, if after Intimation to the several Meetings of this our Advice, any Brother shall insist in these or the like Practices, that they are in that Case liable, as to Civil Punishment, by the Law of the Land. so to Ectlesiastical as to Civil Punishments by the Law of the Land, so to Ectlesiastical Censure, as giving great Scandal and Offence thereby.

THO. HALL Mode. I'm persuaded the above Letter will be allow'd by all Impartial 50ber Church-men, to be an Undeniable Proof of the Peaceable and Friendly Temper of the Presbyterian Ministers in the North of Ireland.

That the Northern Dissenters did generally resuse the payment of their Tithes with Obstinacy, is a very unfair Account. While the Calamities of the War had destroy'd Corn, Cattle and the People's substance, the Tythes cou'd not be expected, where the People had little or nothing to themselves; When Duke Schomberg came to the Country, he publish'd Orders and Proclamations for settling and restoring People's Rights whether Clergy or Lairy, and kindly and favorably Protected Protestants of all sorts, but sound no Obstinacy in Dissenters (and far less any General one) to occasion such Orders, as our Author Doctor Represents.

7.0

Doctor Ring (now Archbishop of Dablin) gives a juster Account of this matter than our Author, and when their Testimonies are Confronted, I believe sew men will be at a loss which side to fall in with, or which of the two Authorities is most to be regarded. The Archbishop in his State of the Protestants of IRELAND. &c. p 260. relates the matter thus, Many Charge men were forc'd to remove, because they had nothing left to live on, their Parishoners were as poor as themselves, and utterly unable to help them; I do confess that there was no Reason to complain of the People's Backwardness to maintain the Clergy; on the contrary, they Contributed to the utmost of their power, and beyond it, and made no Distinction of Selts; MANY DISSENTERS of all Surts (except Quakers) contributing liberally to this good end, which ought to be REMEMBRED. TO THEIR HONOR.

A Third fault our Author finds with Presbyterians during this Reign is, their Resums to pay the Landlords Rent, which he represents with very severe Resections (p. 15, 16.) in these Words. Nor did the zeal of these untained Loyalists only reach the Property of the Church; but it may seem, Numbers of them thought they had a Title, not only to what they call'd their own Inheritance of Church-Revenues; but to the Inheritance of Lay-Proprietors, which as it was then express'd they had preserved when their Landlords deserted them, of which take the following lastance. The Earl of Donegal hath a Considerable Estate in the County of * Autrim, call'd the Six Mile-Water. At the late Revolution, when the Irih had been beaten quite out of those Parts of the Kingdom, his Lordship was inform'd, that the whole Body of his Tenants at " Six-Mile-Water being all Dissenters, had refus'd to pay any Rents, his Lordship with a Great many Gentlemen of the Country, went as it were to Repossess himself of his Estate; the Tenants rose against him, in a body Arm'd with half-Pikes, Pitch-forks, &c. and had it not been for seasonable and prudent Advice given to his Lordship by some of his Company, it is generally believ'd, that many of them had lost their Lives; they wounded several of those Gentlemen, which my Lord had brought with him, particularlySirThomas Dancer,&Mr. Tisale of Carricksergus, who came up to expostulate with the Tenants, and advanc'd nearer them than the rest, & his Lordship was oblig'd before he cou'd bring them to Reason:

Part 2. Reason, to procure some of the standing-Army to be sent against them, commanded by Captain sterling, who brought several of them to Carricksergus Goal.

What a Groundless Bustle our Author has made about this story, and how wretchedly he has mangl'd and missepresented the whole matter will appear by the following true Relation of it, subcrib'd by two Gentlemen who have an Interest in the Parish were that Riot was committed, were particularly acquainted with the whole Passage, and are Gentlemen of good Reputation in their Comtry; The first of them William Shaw of Bush Esq; commanded a Company of the Militia, and did good Service against the Irish in the late happy Revolution, had the honor to be High Sheriff of the County of Autrim where he lives, and to be a Justice of the peace for many years. The Narrative is this;

An Exact Account of the Riet Committed at Priest-Town on the Six-Mile-Water &c.

" It wou'd feem the Author was scarce of Arguments to prove the Disloyalty of Presbyterians when he advances this Story, which is e neither true in Fact, as he relates it, nor any thing to his purpose, were it ever so well Attested; both which will appear by the sol-

' lowing Candid Narrative of the whole Matter. It must be own'd that some of my Lord Donegal's Tenants made Opposition suffice bis Servants and then to Himself in their Distraining for the Reats due in the Year 1689, but then that Opposition is so far from be'ing Chargeable on the whole Body of Presbyterians on the Six-

Mile-Water, that there were but about forty Persons concern'd in it

4 (whereof a good number were Women) and those of them that were the most Active, not of the Presbyterian Communion, but a People call'd Houstonites: The only Place it fell out in, is a farm call'd Priest-Town, and what Encourag'd the People to that Foolish

Unjustifiable Undertaking was,

1. They apprehended the Landlord cou'd not justly Crave any Rent where the Tenant was not kept in Peaceable Possession, which every Body knows they were not that Year, having very little but their Lives left, that the Enemy con'd take from them.

'2. That a Danish Collonel quarter'd at Belly-Clare, wou'd not fusser the Bayliss to Distrain for Rent, but Order'd his Soldiers to Oppose them; Tho' Capt. Shaw of Belly-gelly, & several other Presby- Part 2. ' terian Gentlemen us'd all the Interest with the said Collonel not to interpose in that Matter, but without Success.

Op-

3. That one John Guest an Attorney at Law fill'd the Country with Expectations that either the Parliament of England or Ireland wou'd by a Law free the Protestant Subjects of this Kingdom, on Account of their Sufferings, from paying any Rent for a certain · Term; which Guest had so far won on the Credulity of the People, by a Proposal which seem'd so very Reasonable in it self, that they afterwards employ'd him to go to England to Manage that Affair for them at the Parliament, and for his Encouragement and Support

· Advanc'd a Sum of Mony to him. But the People that made that Resistance being a handful of Ignorant, Headstrong People, apprehended whatever their Neighbours cou'd say to the contrary, that there was already a Law in their Favor, but that the Landlords for their own Ends suppress'd the Publication of it; and thence concluded, That if they Rescu'd their Cattle, they cou'd not be in Danger of any Legal Prosecution. It's true, the Conjecture was ill grounded, but what Party looks upon themselves Accountable for the Folly of a Mob?

" How weak soever these Reasons were, Alexander Wallace of 4 Priest-town refus'd to pay Rent to Mr. Renjamin Adair his Immediate Landlord, nor wou'd he suffer him to distrain, whereupon. Mr. Adair made Complaint to, my Lord Donegal (the chief Landlord) who seut Sir Thomas Dancer with some of his own servants to assist, but came not himself, as the Author Alledges; then it was that the Opposition was given, Sir Thomas wounded slightly with a Pitchfork, and the Cattle rescu'd. The next day indeed, Sir Thomas's Expedition being successies. My Lord himself came out Accompany'd by Capt. Lesly, Capt. Shaw of Belly-Gelly, Capt. Shaw of Bush, Mr. John Crafford of Belly-Savage, Mr. Robert Crafford of Hele stone, and several other Gentlemen of Distinction in their Country, tho' the Author, for Reasons best known to himself, thinks fit only to take notice of Corporal Tildale of Carricksergus; his Lordship was pleased to bring with him a Company of foot Commanded by Captain Stirling, who strictly charg'd his Men to do the People no harm, but only if they opposed driving the Cattle to fire upon them with Powder, which they did, and there was no more Opposition given either then or any time after; but a what will sufficiently vindicate the Presbyterians from any imposetion of Disloyalty in this Matter is,

Part 2.

from them, as well as from the Establish'd Church, such particularly as Alexander Wallace, Thomas Lindsay who wounded Sir Thomas.

Dancer, and James Thompson, &c.

2. My Lord Denegal was so far from Judging Lindsay Diffryal, that he employed Mr James Crasord to persuade him to inlist in his Regiment.

my Lord Danegal, and went to the place where the Riot was committed, to have Aided him if there had been need; nor wou'd it be forgot that my Lord himself did so far own the Justice of their Cause (tho' every wise Man will Condemn their soolish Proceedings,) as afterwards to forgive one Quarter's Rent in consideration of their Losses by the Irise. But what will demonstratively prove that my Lord Donegal had no such Opinion of the Presbyterians of the Six-Mile-Water or of any other in the Kingdom, as the Author wou'd have the World to have of them, is, that my Lord did on all Occasions appear for them in Parliament, and constantly affirm'd 'em to be good and loyal Subjects; and none had better Reason to know them than his Lordship.

Design, or how he comes to found a Charge of Disloyairy upon it. As the People made no Pretensions to any Right of Inheritance, what ever the Author Asledges, so my Lord Donegal made no Demands on behalf of the Government, only was endeavoring to recover his own Right: He may as well say, every Man is Disloyal who resules to pay any other just Debt, and it must be a prodigious by large Notion of Disloyalty that takes in every Case of that sort,

Given under our Hands August 7: 1713.

William Shaw James Crawfford,

Tis known to all Men of Seule and Intelligence in the Kingdom of Ireland, that in consideration of the Losses sustained by the Tensors, during the War, the Landlords generally sorgave some of the bygone Rents,

King William of Khorjous Memory. Ch. 3.

Rents, some one year, some two, more or less in Proportion to their Losses; and that before the said Abatements cou'd be well adjusted, their happen'd several Debates between Landlords and Tenants in that Unsertled Condition of the Country, the former Distraining, and the latter resisting; which was done without any Distinction or Regard to the Diversity of Persuasions in either: For Mr. Upton's Tenants in Templepatrick resisted him, tho'he was and is still of the Presbyterian Persuasion. And in the Year 1691, divers Tenants in the Falls of Belfast (most of 'em being Churchmen) refus'd to pay the Rent due to the Family of Dangal, and made a very brisk Opposition to James Macariney Esq; who was demanding the said Rents in behalf of that Noble Family, and was oblig'd to take several Persons out of the Town of Belfast to his Assistance. And many other Instances of the same kind can be given: Which shows our Author's Resections upon this Fact to be very Uncharitable and Partial.

Afourth fault our Author finds with Presbyterians in Ireland during this Reign is, their Engrossing of Civil Power. He Ushers in his Account of this Fact with this solemn Preface p. 18. No sooner was the Oath of Supremacy (the greatest Impediment in their Course remov'd) but they drove on at so furious a Rate, that they bore down all before them: Perhaps there can he no instance given of a Design wrought with more Subtilety, & carry'd on with greater Harmony, than that of the Dissenters of Ireland, to fink the Church Interest in the North: the whole Machine was so Uniform, that there did not appear the least Jar in the Movement.' His Historical Mistakes in this point are Gross, and the Consequences he draws from these Foncied Facts are Wide and Uncharitable. He remarks severely upon the Progress of the Presbyterians in the Corporations of Belfast, Landonderry, Colerane, and Carrickfergus; adducing these Instances so prove his General Charge; the Unreasonableness whereof will appear by the following just and true Account of the Management of Presbyteriam in these Corporations.

And first as to Bessalt, all the Dissenting Burgesses who are now alive and were in that Office at the Commencement of the Test Clause (except one viz. Capt. Brice, who being at present out of the Kingdom had not the Opportunity of Subscribing the following Paper) have Subscrib'd a Vindication of themselves in these Words,

Part 2.

- 4 A VINDICATION of the late Burgesses of the Corporation of Belfast, of the PRESBYIERIAN Persuasion.
- Whereas the Author of a late Pamphlet Entitul'd the Condact of the Dissenters in Ireland &c. hath thrown divers groundless Aspersions upon those of the Presbyterian Persuasion, who had the honor to be Burgesses of the Corporation of Belfast, from the time of the late Happy Revolution in 1688. to the Commencement of the Test-Clause in the Act to prevent the further Growth of Popery; We do therefore, in Behalf of our Selves and of the Rest of our Persuasion who were Burgesses of the said Corporation during that Period or any part of it, beg leave to set our Innocence in a true Light with Respect to the Facts misrepresented, to our Prejudice, by the Author of the said Book.

The Author (p. 19) lays down this Conclusion, Within the Compass of avery sew Years after the Revolution, the Dissenters managed matters with such Artifice and Success, that they had obtained a Majority of Aldermen, Burgesses or Freemen through all the Considerable Corporations ons of the North of IRELAND.

The Instances he gives to prove his Assertion are four, viz: the Management of Dissenters in London-Derry, Belfast, Colrane and Carricksergus. What he advances concerning Belfast is in these Words (I bid.) In BILFAST, the Election of Magistrates and Representatives is by Charter vested in the Burgesses of that Corporation, of which at the beginning of the late Revolution, there were Ten to Two of the Twelve Burgesses, who were Conformists, and before the passing of the Test-Act, the Dissenters had gain'd a Majority of Eight to Four.

When he has finish'd his Account of these four Instances, he treats the whole Dissenters and their Managements in these Corporations with the following Calumnious Misrepresentation p. 22. These Instances, which I have given, shall serve to discover the Advances made by the Northern Dissenters in our most considerable Corporations. The dissipative remains to know the steps they made towards it, which I freely own is a Mystery I cannot persettly unfold. Tis plain, so great a Majority of Dissenting Aldermen, Burgesses Gree cond not succeed by the Death of their Predecessors within so short a Compass of Time; it was Effected with the same quickness and dexterity, that Jugglers play their Tricks, and in a great Measure by the same Amusements, viz. by Appealing with the greatest greatest Considence to those very Senses, which they intended that Moment Part 2:

King William of Glorious Memory. Cli 3.

For during the Interval before mention'd, the Dissenters express'd the greatest Tenderness and Regard for their Episcopal Brethern; they were all true Protestants, there was little or no difference betwint them;

By such Amusements as these, supported by the Influence of Public Funds, it is very probable the Northern Dissenters made this Progress in our Corporations, and wrought upon the Credulity, Ignorance and Poverty of many of the Conforming Burgesses, and to resign to them

many of the Conforming Burgesses, and to resign to them. It is Evident the Author design'd that a Part of those heavy Reflections shou'd fall to our share in Belfast; but with how little Truth or Candor, any of them can be charg'd upon us, will appear from the following Account. Those of our Persuasion, who were elected to be Burgesses of Belfast, between the Year 1682 and the Commencement of the Test-Clause in 1703. were William Crasord, William Lockbart, James Buller, David Smith, Arthur Macartney, John Chalmers, Captain Brice, David Buttle, Isaac McCartney, and Neil Mc Neil. The persons in whose Room they were elected, the Times of their Respective Elections, and the Persons who were Magistrates when they were chosen, are exactly as follows (for the Truth whereof weappeal to the Public Town Book of Belfast). Mr Craford was Elected March 24. 1686. in the Room of Mr. John Hamilton Merchant, Capt. Robert Leaths being Sovereign of the Town. Mr. Lockbart Was Elected May 7. 1687. in the Room of Lieutenant Tooley, 6 Capt. Leaths being Sovereign. Mr Buller was Elected Feb. 25. 1689. in the Room of Mr Thomas Walcoat, Capt. Leaths being Sovereign. Mr David Smith was Elected May 26. 1690. in the Room of Mr. Francis Thetford, Capt. Leaths being Sovereign: Mr. Arthur Macartney Was E-'lected June 1. 1691. in the Room of his Father George Macartney Esq; Mr. Lockhart being Sovereign. Mr. Chalmers was Elected, Apr. 8.1693: in the Room of Ensign Learbs, Mr. Crasord being Sovereign. Capt: Brice was Elected December 17. 1697. in the Room of Tho. Knox Esq; the Right Honorable the Earl of Donegal being Sovereign. Mr. Buttle Was Elected October 4.: 1700. in the Room of Capt. Edward Harrison, Mr. Black George McCartney being Sovereign. Mr. Isaac Me Cariney was Elected April 26. 1701. in the Room of the Honorable Capt. Charles Chickefter, Mr. Black George Mc Cartney being Sovereign. Mr. Mc Neil was Elected February 6. 1702. in the & Room:

Part. 2 Room of Mr. Buller, Mr. Buttle being Sovereign. All the Persons in whose Room any of our Persuasion were chosen Burgesses were Dead before they were chosen in their Rooms, except Thomas Knox Esq; who having Purchas'd an Estate worth near 1000 lib. per An--4 num in and about Dungannen, went to live upon his Estate, and Refign'd in favor of Capt. Brice, his Brother-in-Law.

Let the World judge whether the Author has not been as injurious to Truth, as to our Reputation, when he has afferted that all this Majority of Diffenting Burgesses can'd not succeed by the Death of their Predecessors in so short a time, and whether it be not a gross Abuse but upon us, and an Impolition upon his Reader, to tell the World, that this was Effected with the same Quickness and Dexterity, that Jugglers Play their Tricks, and in a great Measure by the same Amusements, viz. by Appealing with the greatest Considence to those very Senses, which they intended that Moment to deceive and impose upon. And let all who know Mr. Knox (the only Person who relign'd in savor of a Presbyterian) judge whether he be Chargeable with either Credulity, Ignorance or Poverty. And we put the Author and all his Abettors to Defiance to prove, that there was the least unfair and indirect "Method taken by us or any of our Persussian to progre our selves to be Elected into the faid Offices; and as a farther Confirmation of the truth of what we alledge, we affert and are ready to prove, that all of us were Elected not only with the Consent, but by the Interest and Recommendation of the Right Honorable Family of Donegal, except two viz. Mr. Chalwers whom the Burgeffes Elected according to the Rules of their Charter which oblige shem to chafe a Burgels in seven Days in the Case of any Place become Vacant by Death: In which time, as massons were then Circumstansiated, there was not an Opportunity of knowing the Inclination of that Noble Family; tho' all this Respect was paid to 'em in the Election of any Dissenting Burgess, without any Obligation by vertue of the Charter. And my Lord Denegal was so well satisfy'd mith Mr. Chalmers being Elected Burgels, that by his Lordhip's Intened and Recommendation he was afterwards chosen and servid Sovereign of the Town for one Year, and presid to serve a second Year, the' Mr. Chalmers declin'd h. The second was Mr. Buller, who was Elected when the Family was abroad in the time of the troubles, but was in good Reputation with them. And we do Aver that 'tis nucry falle, that we ever had the Benefit of any Public Fund for providing Part 2. or promoting the said Elections: Nor do we believe nor know, that over there was any Public Fund rais'd or apply'd to such Uses either in this Corporation or any other in this Kingdom by any of cur • Persuasion; And we are consident, that considering our Station and

423

4 Circumstances, we would have been told or consulted with about fuch a Fund, had there been the least Reality in what the Author

Advances concerning it.

" And whereas divers of our Persuasion had the Honor to serve in the Office of the Magistracy of this Corporation, viz. Mr. Crafford, Mr. Lockhart, Mr. Smith, Mr. Black George Mc Cartney, Mr. Chal-· mers, and Mr. Buttle; We Appeal to all our Impartial Conformist · Neighbours, whether we did not Impartially Punish these of our · Persuation, when Convicted of any Crimes against the Laws of the "Kingdom, as well as others; and whether we did not carry with all Peaceable and friendly Temper towards those of the Establish'd 6 Church, without the least Contempt or Disrespect to the National Eflablishment, unless our frequenting the Public Worship of God in the way most agreeable to our Consciences may deserve that Mame.

• The Author (p. 20.) casts some more groundless Resections uponus andthose of out Persuasion in Belfast, in these Words 'There was one Pottinger a Profess'd Presbyterian, an Inhabitant of Belfast who when King James was in Ireland, prov'd a zealous and avowed facebite, and made Interest to have the Old Charter of that "Town broken, and a New one granted. Hpon what Motives this was done, I will not Determine, but thus far I affirm to be Fact, "That at the time, when that Charter was broke, there were but One or Two of the Twelve Burgesses, who were Dissenters; but by the New Charter the Number of Burgesses was Augmented to Thirty four, whereof, by the best Computation I can make, there "were Eleven or Twelve Dissenters& Nineteen Papists; so much greater " Credit had the Dissenters at that time with King James than the "Conformists. It is further Remarkable, that this same Pottinger left Belfast some time after the Troubles, and liv'd for many Years in London a known and Profess'd Factor and Solicitor for the Jacobites there, and that he has lately return'd to Belfast, during Mr Mac " Bride's Prosecution for his Refusal of the Oath of Abjuration, and f ftill

" still continues his Constant Hearer, has been kindly receiv'd with-Part 2. "Itili continues ins Comeans and Person of Consideration, out the least Mark of Disesteem from any Person of Consideration, ... or the least Popular Resentment, as might be sear'd for his Treacherous Behavior to that Corporation.

'The Author has mistaken his Computation of the Number of Dissenters who were inserted in the late King James's Charter as Burgesses, for there were none such, but those viz. James Shaw, Will. Lockhart, John Eccles, William Craford, Henry Chads, David Smith, and John Chalmers; which are at least four or five short of the Number Alledg'd by the Author; and it's hereby declar'd by such of as Subscribers as were inserted in the said Charter in behalf of our Selves, that our Names were made use of without our Knowlege, Consent or Privity, and that we never accepted of, nor serv'd in the Office of Burgesses in Belfast, by Virtue of the said Charter: And 'tis hereby Certify'd and Declar'd by all of us, that we have ' heard (and do verily believe) all the Rest of our Persuasion who were Nominated Burgesses in the said Charter sclemnly protest and Declare, that their Names were likewise inserted and made use of without their Knowlege, Consent or Privity; and we know and Certify that none of them did ever Accept or Serve in the Office of Burgesses in this Corporation, by Virtue of the Said Charter, the said Thomas Pottinger only excepted. And we look upon our selves to be oblig'd by the Rules of Common Justice, and Friendship due to our Brethren of the Establish'd Church, to declare and farther Certify that we do not know nor believe that any of their Persusion were Nominated Burgesses in the said Charter, with their Know-4 ledge or consent. And that we neither know nor believe that they Accepted of or Serv'd in the said Office, by Virtue of the faid Charter.

The Author is very Unwary in Reflecting upon us and these of our Persuasion for not shewing some Mark of Disesteem or Popular Resentment of Mr Pottinger's Behavior against the Liberties of the Corporation: Because if there be any Ground of Restection, it must rather fall on those of the Communion of the Establish'd Church; for when Mr Pottinger return'd to Belfast, none but Conformists were Burgesses; and it being proper for them as the Representatives of the Corporation, to Resent the Injuries done it, if there was any blame; the Author's Paper wou'd fix it upon them:

to do them as well as our selves Justice, the true Reasons why none Part 2. of us have mov'd in the Matter were, because Mr Pottinger having been a Considerable Dealer in Town, and now in Declining Age (near 80) as well as Circumstances, and being marry'd in a Family of good Respect, Interest, and Loyalty, Protestants of all Per-" fualions wav'd taking any Notice of the Matter, further than Declaring in all Companies, and upon all Occasions, and frequently to his face, that they did not Approve, but Condemn the said Practice.

And we humbly conceive it were time enough to make this Objection against us, when all those who betray'd the Liberties of England, by surrendring Charters there, shall be first call'd to Account and punish'd.

4 And we can't but Observe. that 'tis a Considerable Vindication 4 of these of our Persuasion, that this Author is not Able safter all the Pains he has taken) to produce any but one single instance of any of our Persuasion in this Kingdom, who cou'd ever be tax'd with the like Practice. Given under our Hands at Belfast this 2d of September 1713.

> William Crafford, 75 Isaac Mc Cartney. John Chalmers. | Neil Me Neil. David Buttle,

Our Author's Misrepresentations and false Reasonings are so fully Detected in the above Vindication, that I have no occasion to add any thing to it. I shall next give an Account of the Management of Presbyterians in the Corporation of London-Derry, as I had it in the following Narrative from a Gentleman who was Intimately acquainted with all their Transactions there, Appeals to the Records of the City for the Facts he represents, and offers to prove the Truth of the whole, shou'd any point be contested.

'In 1688. the Irish Government had Arbitrarily Dissolv'd the Protestant Corporation of London-Derry, and Introduc'd a Popish one, which continu'd till the shutting of the Gates against the Irish Army. The Dissenters that were Members before the Irish Corporation came, were but a few, not for want of such who were fit for those Stations, but because the Oath of Supremacy then in force, hinder'd all Disserters who Scrupled the taking it, & those who cou'd Dis. pense with the taking it, & were in at that time were these viz. Job Campsie," Part 2. Campsie, John Graig, William Smith, and Alexander Lecky Aldermen, and John Burnside, James Pister, James Coningham, William Kyle, Henry Long, James Sympson, David Cairnes Esq; John Ewing, and 4 Robert Shennan Burgesses; Horace Kennedy, and Edward Brooks She-" riffs: Thus it was 1688.

The Siege soon follow'd which dispers'd most of the Members of the Corporation, as well as other Citizens, some sew Surviv'd it, riz. Ger: Squire, Muscheto Cockain, and James Hobson, Aldermen; John Mogridge, Robert Shennan, and James Strong Burgelles, all the rest were either Dead or gone into South of North-Britain. Alderman Cockain went immediately after the railing the Siege into England and Died. The other five taking into consideration the Deplorable State of the City, and seeing it absolutely necessary for the good thereof that the Body of the Corporation shou'd be Mi'd up to at least such à Number, as by their Constitution they might actas a body Politic, for the Support and Comfort of the Inhabitams: And by Virtue of an Act of Parliament made at Westminster in the first Year of K. William and Q. Mary, Intitul'd, An All sof the better Security and Sasety of their Majestie's Protestant Subjects of Ireland: They the faid five, of whom only Robert Shennan was a 1. Non-Conformist, call'd together all the most Eminent Citizens that were then on the spot, either such as had been in the Siege, or such as had return'd from beyond Sea, and out of them made choice of 14 or 15 into the Office of Burgesses, and this was done without any Regard either to Conformist or Non-Conformist: But according to what they judg'd most for the Public Good. And as an incorporate'Body they made Application to their then Majesties King Wilis liam and Queen Mary of ever GLORIOUS MEMORT for some Relief to the many poor Perishing Widows and Orphans that were "then in the place, and obtain'd a Royal Bounty of Provision and Firing, by which the Lives of many were preserv'd. As the Old Members return'd from beyond Sea, they join'd the rest, and Elected others into Offices for the Public Good of the Place.

'It is by Custom Immemorial, that out of the Gentlemen that had ferv'd Sheriffs, the Corporation ever chose the Burgeffes, and out of the Burgeffes the Aldermen, and out of these Aldermen the Mayor; " and their Choice was made by the Rule of Seniotity, thus he that first had serv'd Sheriff or Fin'd for not serving (as several had done before the Revolution as Fred. Coningham, Alexander Gorden, Hugh Part 2. Eadie, James Lenex, &c.) they were held to be the first Elected into the Office of Burgesles. Then he that was sirst Burgess, bccame capable of being first Elected an Alderman, and so the eldest 6 Alderman to be Mayor. This Rule was observ'd in all Elections, " where there was not a Visible Cause of Exception, as some who had serv'd Sheriffs fell afterwards so low by some cross Accidents, as render'd them rather Objects of Charity than fix for Offices. The Office of Sheriff was very Chargeable, and had often prov'd very Fatal to severals, wherefore it was always laid on such Citizens as were thought able to bear the Charge best. And after the Revolution, the Corporation fill'd up the Body out of those who had serv'd or had been fin'd, and out of the most able Citizens who had not serv'd, and made Choice of Sheriffs, Hen. Ash, William Newton, Hen. Ash, 4 Them. Moncreff and Samuel Leesen all Conformists, who all soon became Aldermen.

DC-

At that time and for some Years none were in Town of the Conformists who were able to bear the Office of Sheriffs, but who were * Elected and had their Turns of Offices, as occasion offer'd, but the · Number of such in the City was but smal, the Dissenters being " much more Numerous till at last there was scarce A Consormist to be had capable to serve, and the Persons who had served or fin'd for Sheriffs being the Nursery as it were out of which to Elect to the Office of Burgesses, was the sole Cause of the prevailing Numbers of Dissenters coming into these Posts; and all this while the Affairs of the City were well manag'd, yet even then Misrepresented by some of their Conformist Neighbours, which the Government took so much Notice of, as to appoint Commissioners viz. the then Bishop of Derry now ArchBishop of Dublin, and George Philips Esq; to examine Witnesses on both Sides; and upon a full hearing, the Conduct of the Corporation was approv'd and Applanded. This began to sour the Minds of the one Party against the other, and till then no Parties had been known amongst 'em. Then the City having a Lease from the See of Derry, of certain Lands which of right belong'd to the Society of Lordon, the Corporation made Application to the Bishop for a Renewal on the same Terms upon which he renew'd to other Tenants, but he delayed it a long time, at last utterly refus'd it; and the Term by the Lease from the See expiring, the Society's liiz Agent

Part 2. Agent entred on the Lands as a Vacant Possession, and set them to a Member of the Corporation who held them for the Society. This greatly exasperated the Bishop; and several of his Tenantsor Adherents, the Members of the Corporation, sided with him. This broke out into a great stame, and engag'd the House of Lords both of England and Ireland in the Quarrel, which running so high made the Faithfulness of some Con's to stagger, & to be much suspected by the Non-Conformists; as for example G. T. being Sheriff with L. D. both Conformists, yet G. T. wou'd at the Cutt of Columns have put the Bishop into Possession of the Society's Estate without a Writ for it, on the bare Word of the Bishop, had not J. D. op pos'd it vigorously. So that either Party took their Advantage as far as they cou'd. Yet still the Non-Conformists kept close to the Fundamental Rules of bringing in Burgesses, Aldermen and Mayors according to their Seniority: But when a Non-Conformilt was Elected to the Mayorality, some of the Conformists made Objections against it at the Council-board, and put the Corporation to great Expences in defending their Rights. The first Non-Conformist Mayor since the Revolution was A. L. who came in thus. The Corporation had Elected G. S. a Conformist; yet the Bishop &c. objected against it at the Board, and the Election was not approv'd, then the Corporation on a New-Election Elected A. L. Such was the good Management of the Non-Conformists in the Corporation, that altho' they got it in 1690, in or about 400 lib. in debt, yet they left it in 1704. With 1000 lib in Cash, which the present Corporation well Improve, and do manage with a great deal of Eveness of Temper, following the Example of the late Members in distributing Justice and Charity equally to Non-Conformists as to Conformists, and continue still to say that the City has no real Advantage by the Change, and that the Members laid -aside by the Test-Clause were as sit and Worthy to do the City business as any others in it. But the Clamorous High-slying Clergy in their heat of Zeal raise Crys against their Peaceable Neighbours, and fail not both publicly and otherwise to Arraign and Condemn the present for their Moderation, as much as they did their Predesessors, using the utmost of their Endeavors to widen the Breach; But, Blessed be God, without Success as yet.

If

' If the Records of the City be look'd into, all that is above Nar- Part 2.

rated will be found evidently true.

This plain Narrative shows that the Presbyterians came fairly and benestly into the several Offices they enjoy'd in the City and Corporation of London-Derry: For they came in according to the Stated Rule that had been observ'd in Elections there, which very well accounts for their gaining such a Majority of Numbers, and Demonstrates the Author's Account of it to be Calumnious, and that there was no Juggling Tricks nor Appealing to MensSenses with a Design to deceive and impose upon 'em, as our Author with as little truth as Charity suggests: And if our Author had been at a little more pains to inform himself, his own Senses wou'd not have been so much impos'd upon. He has been so careless as not to inform himself right of the Number of Presbyterian Aldermen and Burgesses in London-Derry at the breaking out of the late Troubles; for at that time, there were four Presbyterian Aldermen there, viz. John Campse, John. Craig, William Smith and Alexander Lecky; tho' he says there were but three (p. 19.) and he Asserts (ibid.) that of the 24Burgesses there were but five of them Presbyterians at that time, whereas there were NINE, viz. David Cairnes. Esq; James Fisher, James Conningham, James Sympson, Robert Shennan, William Kyle, John Ewing, Henry Long, and John Burnside. This List. is return'd by the same Gentleman that gives the above Narrative.

I have been the larger in Vindicating the Election and Managements, of Presbyterians in the Corporations of London Derry and Belfast, because they had more Power and Interest in these two Corporations than in any other whatsoever within the Kingdom of Ireland: And 'tis reasonable to believe, that if they behav'd well in them, there can be very little laid to their Charge in other Places. For if they did not abuse their Power where it was Greatest, and where they had the greatest Opportunities of doing it, can any body believe that they wou'd abuse their Power where it was lesser, and where it cou'd be so readily check'd and control'd? And therefore I shall make but some short Remarks upon what he offers with respect to Colrane and Carrickser-gus.

With Respect to Colvane he publishes a Certificate, which, he says, was given him by one of the most considerable Members of that Corporation (p.19.) But I don't find any thing in that Certificate, to our Author's purpose; for there is not a Syllable in it, which so much as insurates.

that

Part 2: that the Presbyterians us'd any indirect or unfair Means to procure Offices to themselves in the Corporation, or that they behav'd unjustly or unfriendly towards their Conforming Neighbours. While the Law made 'em Capable, 'twas no fault in them to use lawful Means for getting into the said Offices: For there were saveral Merchants there of the Presbyterian Perivation, who were as public. Spirited, and made as good a Figure for their Worldly Circumstances, and had deserv'd as well of the Corporation, as any of their Neighbours; and were shore of none of 'em, in their Fidelity to the Government; and consequently were very fit for such Implayments.

> As to the Corporation of Carrickfergus, our Author's Account of it is a little extraordinary; he begins it thus (p. 21.) In Carrichfergus the Election of Representatives and Magistrates &c. lies in the Voices of the Freemen of the Corporation. I cannot at present get the trueProportion betwixt the Numbers of Differents and Conformists before the late Revolution, who were Freemen; But thus far is me-"nifest, that the Dissenters have encreased to a vast Disproportion, and have entirely sunk the Church-Interest in that Place, in so much that at this time there are near four to one of the Inhabiting Freemen,

4 and at least six to one of the Foreigners Dissenters,

'Fis hard to guess, what our Author wou'd be at in this Palling, unless he wou'd have all Dissenting Freemen Dissentis d for few of their sinking the Church-Interest; and that wou'd be a vory hard Case, and the Height of Persecution; for 'twou'd be the taking away a Man's bread, meerly because he is a Presbyterian: If Men can't get Liberty to follow their Trades (which they can't in Corporations, without being Freemen) they must starve. And if the Number of Conformist Freemen in Carricksergus be lessen'd, that has not happen'd by any unjust or unkind Treatment they have met with from their Presbyterian Brethren. And considering the great Decay of that Antient Corporation, which is still poor enough after all that the Inhabitants of all Persuasions can do for supporting it, let the World judge whether our Author hath the. Prosperity of that Carporation very much at heart, when he wou'd discourage four parts of five of the inhabiting Freemen; and whether 'twou'd be any Credit to the Church, to advance her interest by finking that of the Corporation. If the Church cou'd persuade a great many of her Communion to go & live in Carrichsergus, and follow Trade and Balack, and spend their Estates there, the Dissenters wou'd rejoice in it, and Part 2. promote it as a public Good; and they can't but think, that the Church shou'd and will so far consult the Common-Interest of the Place, as to return their Compliment.

But our Author seems to be much upon the fret, when he tells ns (Itid) There is one unhappy, and indeed Preposterous Circumstance of this Corporation, which I can't help mentioning, with some Peculiarity. There are of the Inhabitants of Belfast, " who are freemen of Carricksergus and generally Dissenters about one hundred and Farry, and the Number of Church-Freemen, who are Inhabitants of Carrickfargus, are but forsy; by which Means. the Dissenting Inhabitants of Belieft who can ne ther choose their 4 own Representatives nor Magistrates, do actually govern all the · Elections of Carrickstryus, and this you may judge by the following. " Specimen, of what Choice they have made of Magistrates for these s many Years past.

This Objection will appear to be very frivokes, to all who consider that the inhabitants who were made freemen of Carrickfergus had? that Honor conferr'd upon them by the Mayors of Carricksergus, of the Communion of the Establish'd Church, no Dissenter having been in that Post, or in the Office of an Alderman there since the late happy Revolution; and the Dissenters of Belfast did not court their Freedom there, but were generally courted to accept of it: and the most of 'em were made freemen, not by any of those whom this. Author is pleased to Dignify with the Titles of the Quadrumevirue and the Rota-Government, but from others who were not esteem'd to be very much in that interest, and who were never suspected of being Enemies to the Church. What he says of four Aldermen of that Corporation is full of personal Reflections, which are brought in with a Design to blacken the Dissenting Freemen, for making Choice of 'em to the Office of the Mayoralty. But 'tis a sufficient Answer. that the Government approv'd of these Elections; which, according to our Author's Reasoning, wou'd have been as Criminal in them as in the Dissenters who made 'em; and it is a shrewd Evidence, that our Author was Conscious to himself he had little to say to the Disadvantage of these Gentlemen's Character, when he begins his furious Attack with upbraiding 'em, that they had been private mon in the late Lord Donegal's Troop; whereas some of that Noble Lord's near-

Part 2. est Relations rode as private Men in his Troop, as well as they; and tis very well known, that all these sour Aldermen are Gentlemen descended of Creditable Families.

But I must not omit a Remark upon the Unreasonable Jealousses out Author endeavors to foment, in the Conclusion of his History relating to Carrickfergus, in these Words (p. 22.) . It is here with the greatest Deterence humbly submitted to the Legislature, whether a Place of that vast Importance, being a Fortify'd Town, a Harbour Scituated in the Neighbourhood of Scotland, in the very Center of the · Northern Presbyterians, the Queen's great Magazine for the Northest Parts of User, ought to be entirely in the hands of such Magi-. Itrates at this Juncture; and whether the Posture of the Present Affairs wou'd not require an Establish'd Governor of experienc'd, Abilities and found Principles, to command in a place of that Importance'. It is highly Uncharitable and tends to promote Misurderstandings and National Quarrels between her Majesty's Protestant Subjects to insinuate (as our Author does here) that it's dangerous to live in the Neighbourhood of Scotland; as if that People were Enemies to her Majesty's Government, and dangerous to the Peace and Liberties of Ireland. If what he infinuates of them be understood of a certain Party there who are avow'd Jacobites, and who adhere to the Principles and Address of the Scotch Bishops to the late King James, what he has said is very true; but then it can't rested on the Establish'd Church there, who are unanimously opposite to the Pretender, and Cordial Friends to her Majesty, and the Protestant Succession in the Illustrious House of Hanover, as shall be made appear in it's proper Place. As to the Northern Presbyterians, in the Center of whom our Author afferts Carriekfergus to be Scituated, and to be the Queen's great Magazine for the Northest parts of Ulfer, and for those Reasons offers his Opinion against it's being intirely in the Hands. of such Magistrates; this carries in it a very Groundless Suspicion, as if the Northern Presby terians were so Unpeaceable and Unneighbourly, as to put the Government under a necessity of keeping 'em in Awe with Garrisons and Military Force.

Our Author closeth his History of the Presbyterians unfair Engrosfing of Civil Power, with a very palpable Mistake, in these Words, ?. 23. 'No sooner had they obtain'd a Majority, than they acted like Tyrants, with respect to the Minority of Conforming Burgesses of Free-

Freemen of such Corporations, they fortify'd themselves by sirm Part 2. Alliance and Consederacy, never to admit any more Church. Alder-Part 2. men, Burgesses or Freemen, than they cou'd controll and govern in all their Elections'. But let us hear what the Presbyterians offer in their own Defence in their first Apology to her Majesty (vide Prisent State of Religion in Ireland p. 23.). And whereas their Lordships have been inform'd, that whenever we obtain'd the Majority in Corporations, we excluded all such as were not of our Persuasion: We can produce Undeniable Instances in several Towns, particularly in London-Derry and Belfast (the most considerable in Ulster) where the Dissenters chose those of the Establish'd Church to the chief Offices in Corporations, when they had Interest enough to have Elected those of their own Communion'. The truth of what is offer'd here is Confirm'd from the Narratives already given of their Behavior in London-Derry and Belfast, wherein Men were chosen to Offices according to their fitness, Abstracting from their Persuasion. no Dissenting Mayor or Sovereign in either of these Places refus'd to make any Church-man a Freeman, who was an Inhabitant in the Place, and wou'd comply with the Rules of the Charter and Laws of the Cor-. poration. And there being many more Presbyterian than Episcopal Inhabitants in these places, the Presbyterian freemen must of Necessity be superiour in number to the Church-Freemen, in proportion to the number of Inhabitants. And therefore 'tis a very unhandsome Expression in our Author to say that the Dissenters Acted like Tyrants. and fortify'd themselves by sirm Alliance and Confederacy &c. The Fifth fault our Author finds with Presbyterians in Ireland during this Reign is, their making a Monopoly of Trade, which he aggravates in very Indecent Terms (p. 23, 24.) The natural and immediate Consequence of this Monopoly of Power prov'd a Monopoly of Trade, which was effectually compassed by the Dissenters at the same time, tho' by a different Artifice. It seems to me, that the Church-Traders dealing promiscuously without respect to Persons, did thereby sink their Mony into Presbyterian Hands, which never was permitted to return to them, except for such Necessaries, as could not be so easily procur'd by the Dissenters amongst themselves. The Dissenters at the same time consining their Commerce (as much as possible) to themselves, were qualifyed upon several Accounts to Underlive, by which Mrans they cou'd also Undersel them; however this might be, the different Movements of each Party were Visible to the least Disserting Eye; K k k

434

Part 2. the One rising from Pedlars to Merchants, the Other sinking from Merchants to Bankrupts: insomuch that at this present time it is a rare thing to see a Thriving Dealer in the Northern Parts of Ireland, except he be a Profess'd Dissenter or an Occasional Non-Conformist. I profess, I cannot recollect, that there is one at this time in that part of the Country where I live, tho' the most Populous and Trading Part of the North, and where, before the Late Troubles, Church-Traders were Considerable both in Number 4 and Business. I speak with greater concern in this point, from the repeated complaints made, and the common cry which I have heard from the church-Dealers, Farmers, Tradesmen and even Laborers, for (I had like to have said) the Persecution they lay under for their Conformity to the Church Established by Law, and that from the Dissenters; who only subsist by a Consivance. It any Presbyterians have been so Unneighbourly as to confine Commerce to those of their own Persuasion, it is more than I know of, or than can be charg'd upon the Bulk& Generality of that Persuasion. Ow Author seems to think, that he can charge thishome upon the Presbyterians in Relfast; for he speaks of that Part of the Country where he lives, and calls it the most Populous and Trading Part of the North, which Description can agree to no other but Belfast; and if I prove that he has Misrepresented this Fact in the very Place of his own Residence, which of all places he had reason to know best, let the World judge whether the Account he gives of other Places is wholly to be rely'd upon. At the desire and for the Vindication of the Presbyterian Inhabitants of Bufast, their Brethren of the Establish'd Church there have been so just and honest as to Subscribe the following Certificates, which I Transcribe from the Original.

> LIVE do hereby Certify that the Presbyterian Inhabitants of Bd-' fast Deal and Trade with Us as freely and readily, as they do with one another, tho' we are all of the Communion of the Eftablish'd Church, that we have the greatest part of our Trade from them; and that we do not perceive, know, nor believe that they use any unfair Practices in Confining Trade amongst themselves: Given under our Hands at Belfast September 8th 1713.

Henry Ellis, Nich. Garnet!

Nicholas Thettford. George Portis.

ROB. LEATHES. Nath. Bytts.

Part 2. Robert Dowglass. Barth. Monaghten. Alexander Legg. Francis Thereford. Thomas Taverner. Edward Turley. James Harrison. Richard Lamb. Joshua Turley. Hugh Sherwood Israel Cotes. John Pamer. Nicholas Brooks. Michael Greg son. John Stuart. George Lacels. James Ratcliff. John Anderson. John Worthington. Edward Gardner. James Whitlock. Ephraim Wills. William Babie. John Imbly. Brian Mercer. Matthew Philips Hen. Kelly. Henry Douglass. James Wilson. James Ogins. Robert Skirries. Thomas Hender Jon William Beaty. George Kerren. Elias Adudell. Charles Ward. George Kempson. George Mankin. Thomas Graham. Will. Johnson Junior John Mankin: William Salters. Francis Mankin. Richard Crutchly. John Joy. Patrick Allen. Israel Clotworthy. William, Dormont. Barnaby Mc. Curdy. John Mc. Cahy. John Mc. Goun! Thomas Witnal. John Langdell. John Riddagh. Henry Bulhatchet. Robert Story. Edward Mullan. Edward Harris. John Burns. Pat. Phipps. Richard Wilson. Robert Ainsworth. David Leathom. William Ashmore John Nowland. Thomas Parker. Robert Whitfield. Roger Slemons. Robert Potter. Sampson Dixon. George Turley. Alexander Imbly. John Rice.

The' I am no Dealer in Town I am an Inhabitant, and never did Observe any Distinction made by the Distenters in Matters of Dealing so far as I have been therein Concern'd. Richard Hodgkinson.

We do Verily believe the Certificate on the other Side of this Paper True. Given under Our Hands Sept. 12. 1713. GEO. MACARINET.

ROGER HADDOCK. GEO. MACARINEY Junior.

The Subscribers of the above Certificates are eight of 'em Burgesses, some of 'em Gentlemen of the best Station in Town, some of 'em among the Wealthiest Dealers, and Keepers of Public Houses, & the restare generally such as respectively sollow the handy crast Trades of Tobacco-spinners, Taylors, Shoemakers, Smiths, Sadlers, Glovers, Butchers, Carpenters, &c. And there is no fort of Goods to be Sold or work to be wrought by any of theseSubscribers, but what the Presbyterians in Belfast can buyor have done for 'em by those of their own Persuasion. And 'tis remarkable that some of these Subscribers are among the Oldest Inhabitants of the Town & Parish of Belfast, one of 'em being near an hundred Years of Age, divers of 'em eighty, and particularly the first K k k-2

Sub-

Part 2. Subscriber Capt. Leather, an honest Gentleman, who has been a Burgels in the Town of a long time, has been often Sovereign, is at present Deputy-Severeign, and Elected Sovereign for the Ensuing Year. There are indeed very few in Belfast of the Communion of the Establish'd Church, who are considerable Dealers; but then this cannot be in the least imputed to any unfair Practice in the Presbyterians. who were still ready to join in Partnership in Trade with Churchmen as well as with one another, as can be made appear by Instances of the most considerable Merchants of that Communion, and particularly in she Case of Mr Knox, George Macareney, Esq; and Mr. Black George Mc. Cartney. And there can be no other Reasons why there are not now such considerable Merchants there, of the Establish'd Church, asthere were at the time of the late Troubles, but these; Some of 'em are dead, and their Children Educated to other Employments; or, that their Children are of the Communion of Dissenters, which some of 'emfelves embrac'd viz. Mr. Black George Mc. Cartney, some Years before he Died; or, that others have quit their Employment and live upon their Estate in the Country, as Mr. Know; And few or none of the Establish'd Church, of any considerable Station or Wealth, have apply'd themselves to Merchandizing since. But the Dissenters never discourag'd any of 'em from attempting it, or from the Prosecution of Trade and Business amongst 'em: and if any of 'em have sunk from Merchants to Bankrupts, (which our Author alledges, tho' there are few or no Instances of that in Belfast) this was not owing to any Severity of Unkindness in the Dissensers; They gave 'em Credit, as much as they did to one another, they never Rigoroully and Unfeafonably put hard to 'em for exacting their own, which sometimes may sink a Merchant of good Credit.

> How the Dissenters shou'd be qualify'd upon several Accounts to underlive, and by that Means to undersel their Conforming Neighbours, is a Mystery which he hath not unfolded, and perhaps connec. The Dissenters live suitable to their Stations and Circumstances, and some of 'em (as our Author very well knows) are both Capable and Willing to give Gentlemen of all Persuasions (Clergy and Laity) as Generous & Liberal Entertainments in their houses, as their Neighbours. And if any of em have risen from Pudlars to Merchants, they have no. Cause to be asham'd of it, being the Effect of the Biesing of God upon their honest Commendable Industry. And why such an industrious.

dustrious Trading People as the Dissenters of the North of Ireland, Part 2. should be discouraged and reproach'd, I see no Reason. Trade has been always justly look'd upon as one of the great Means to make a Nation flourish: It makes Mony Circulate thro' Town and Country; and Men of all Stations reap the benefit of it. And therefore all wise People have ever made it their business to support and encourage it, and to countenance the Promoters of it.

But before I leave this Head, I must take Notice of another Reason our Author gives, why the Presbyterians have so great a stroke in the Trade of the Kingdom; It is in these Words, (p. 17, 18.)

The failure of our Woollen Manufactory sunk the Church interest of Ireland in the same proportion that the Encouragement of the LinnenManufactorydid raffe theInterest of Presbytery. The Weavers&c. of theformer being generally Conformists, who were oblig'd to return for England, or disperse themselves in the Low-Countries, as those of the latterwere asgenerally Diffenters, who came from Scotland fince the Re-* volution.' Tis evident the Dissenters seem at present to be almost in-full Poisession of that Confiderable Branch of our Trade, and what has mainly conduc'd to it, is this Revolt of the French Protestants from the Church; of which the Principal Directors and

" Managers in that Manufactory, with a very Confiderable Colony, have settled at Lisburn, in the Center of the Northern Presbyterians, and have all declared for Presbytery, and chosen a Teacher, who will not receive Episcopal Ordination. From whence it is evident, that Matters have been so Concerted in favor of the Dissenters; that the French Resugees distinguished with such Marks of Favor by the Government, and the Established Church, which might have influenc'd a grateful People to be true to our Establishment, have now proved a dead Weight against it in the Scale of Presbytery.

The Causes of the failure of the Woollen Manufactory in Ireland are so well known, that no body can justly impute it to the Dissenters: And tho' the Linnen Manufactory be chiefly promoted by Presbyterians, the Parliament of Ireland have made several Acts to encourage is, which shows that they believed it to be for the Public Interest of the Kingdom : And it can't be denyed that the French in Lifburn have been highly serviceable to the Nation, by their frugality and Skill in Managing, and much improving that Manufactory; whereof the House of Commons were so sensible, That they chearfully recommended em to the Government for their favor, tho' they very Well

Part 2.

well knew that they retain'd the Principles and followed the Practifes of the Famous Protestant Church in France. And in their Choice of a Minister who will not receive Episcopal Ordination, they have done nothing but what the Laws of the Kingdom allow 'em to do, they having the benefit of a Legal Toleration; which being an Act of Pity to the Persecuted, ought not to raise the envy of any good Protestant; And when that same Government that hath distinguished'em with such Marks of Favor, hath Indulged 'em in a Liberty of Dissenting from the National Church, our Author's Insinuation of their being Ungrateful for taking the benefit of it, is an Unreasonable Accusation; especially considering, that they behave 'emselves with all the Loyalty and Modesty that becomes Duriful Subjects, and in the Matter of Trade, promiscuously employ and deal with People of all Persuasions, without Distinction.

But he can't get off this Imaginary Crime, about the Monopoly of Trade, until he runs into one Mistake more in these Words (p. 25.) At the same time that the Dissenters made this Monopoly of the Trade, they laid a lasting Foundation to perpetuate the same in their own hands. They wou'd take no Apprentices without demanding solenin Assurances both from Parents and Children of Church-men, to quit the Establish'd Church, & go constantly to Meeting. Which Agreement they were fure to see punctually perform'd. I am credibly informed, t hat there are several Instances can be ' given, where they have had Clauses of this Nature inserted in the 'Indentures; by which Means many Church men both of Figure and Fortune in the North of Ireland, have been reduced to this fatal Dilemma, either of giving up their Children to Idleness and Poverty, or to Presbytery? But let us hear what the Presbyterians have offer'd in their own Defence against this Accusation, in their first Apology to her Majesty, vide Present State of Religion in Ireland (?. 23) Their Lordships proceed to charge our People, that in many Towns they refuse to take Apprentices that will not covenant to go to their Meetings. The true State of which Case is this: Some Merchants of our Persuasion having had their Goods imbezzeled by their Apprentices on the Lord's Day, when they were 4 at our Meetings, and their Apprentices, upon the pretence of being at Church were ill employed else-where (which they do not impute to their Persuasion, their being some such prosligate Youths of all Persuasions) were obliged for their own Safety to take such as they could have undertheir Lye at the time of Public Workip. But wherever they can, meet with Apprentices of known Probity

King William of Glorious Memory. Ch. 3:

and Honesty, they takethem without any Distinction of Persuasione Part 2: in all the Trading Towns of this Kingdom; of which many Instances may be given.

I don't believe that there are such Instances as our Author is informed of, of inserting the Clauses he speaks of in the Indentures; nor do I believe there is any Church-man of figure or fortune in the north of Ireland, but who may have his son bound Apprentice to a Presbyterian, if he pleases, without being oblig'd to change his Principles: For the most Considerable Presbyterian Merchants both in Derry and Belsast have taken such to be Apprentices, without any such previous Articles or Conditions put upon 'em.

As a Conclusion to his rare Discoveries about Trade, he falls foul upon some Dissenting Post-Masters for acting as Deputies to those in that Office, tho' they have not occasionally Conform'd, which he calls a scandalous eluding of the All of Parliament for Excluding Difsenters from Places of Trust, and he says, this seems to have its Effect in their General Scheme of this Monopoly of Trade, and then he descants upon it thus (p. 26.) 'I desire to know, whether any instance can be given of this Nature in any Nation, that the whole Business, Secrets and Correspondence of those, who are Conformable to the Establishment, should be left in the Power of such who are Dissenters from that Ekablishment.

'Is it reasonable, that at a Critical Juncture, when Faction and Intreague are so far advanc'd, the Conformists shou'd be put under fuch necessary Jealousies and Confinement in their Correspondence; that the Secrets and Business of Persons, who by the Laws of our · Nation are only qualify'd for Public Trusts, shou'd be left in the • Power of those, who by the same Laws are excluded from any share in that Trust'. I shou'd have been far from thinking it worth while, to have taken the least Notice of this Trifling Accusation, were it not for the sake of one Observation, which can hardly escape any Man of Common Sense that reads it. It is this, that our Author and those of his Temper are dispos'd upon all Occasions to Magnify and Aggravate. things beyond Measure, and to raise a Hideous Outery for little or nothing. For here are but about four orfive Men or at most half a score; acting but as Servants in some Post-Offices under Qualify'd Conformists; and yet this must be call'd a Matter of the last Consequence, as if it were peady to Sap the Foundations of Church and State; and these poor men

Part 2. Men represented as ready to bettay the Conformists that come to their vishly open or keep up the Letters of Conformists that come to their Men represented as ready to betray their Trust, as if they wou'd Kna-Hands: For he asserts the Conformists to be put under necessary Jealousies, and Confinement in their Correspondence, by baving their Business and Secrets lest in the Power of those Diffenting Deputies, which infinuates his believing them to be Knaves; this is a way to Dissolve all Confidence among Protestants: But I hope there are so many wise and good Men among 'em of all Persuasions, as to prevent the Success of this Uncharitable Hint.

The Sixth fault our Author finds with Presbyterians in Ireland is, the Confinement of their Charity and Alms-deeds to those of their own Persuasion, which he represents in these Words, (p. 24, 25.) Nay, lam Credibly inform'd that the Northern Dissenters have Confin'd their very Charity to Circulate amongst themselves, whilst the Confermists deal it promiscuously. And an Instance can be given, that in the most Considerable Parish of the North of Ireland, whereby List of the Poor in the Church-Books subsisted only by the Weekly Collection; Eighteen in fifty five are Dissenters. And by a List of the Diffenting Poor in the same Parish, Subscrib'd by eleven Ruling Elders, only six in Ninety-seven are Conformists: That Proposals have been made by the Establish'd Minister and Church-Wardens to the Dissenting Elders, to join the Charity-Money of Church and Meeting-House, and deal it out to the Poor of the Parish, and that they were utterly Rejected by the Dissenters of the Parish. Frequent Instances of this can be given in the Case of the Collections for Lisburn, both Notorious and Scandalous; and particularly Mr. Mc. Cracken and Mr. Maxwell of Drum a Ruling Elder, have been publicly Tax'd, and Informations given upon Oath of Unfair Practifing in the Clandestine Manner of Raising the Collections for the poor Inhabitants, who suffer'd by the Fire, and Applying is wholly to the use of the Presbyterians; whereas the Collection pursuant to the Queen's Letters Patents was to be General, and dispos'd of by the Commissioners (who were part Church-men and part Distenters) to the Inhabitants, according to the Proportion of their Losses, without respect to Persons.

As to the General Charge against the Northern Dissenters, that they have Confin'd theirvery Charity to. Circulate among themselves, 'is utterly deny'd; and the few Instances our Author presends to give of it is two places only, were they true, as they are not, can never affect Part 2. the Body of the Northern Presbyterians. And these pretended Instances show the Groundlessness of his General Charge. The two Places he refers to are Belfast and Lisburn. He does not Name the first, but by calling it the most Considerable Parish of the North of Ireland, he sufficiently declares 'twas Belfast he had in View. He tells a Story of ir, that Eighteen in sisty-sive Subsisted by the Weekly Collection of the Church are Dissenters, and by a List of the Dissenting Poor in the same Parish, Subscrib'd by Eleven Ruling Elders, only Six in Nixety-seven are Conformists. The true State of which Case is this; the Sovereign of Belfast usually returns every Year a List of the Poor of the Parish who are exempted by Act of Parliament from paying Hearth Mony, to the Quarter-Sessions: And for his better Information, the Establish'd Minister, Curate or Church-Wardens Acquaint him with those who are Sublisted by the Alms of the Church: And the Presbyterian Minister, or Ministers, or Elders give him the like Information with respect to their Poor; according to which Scheme, the above List of Ninety-seven was Subscrib'd by these Ruling Elders; And the Reason why there might be only Six Churchmen return'd in that List was, because no more of 'em Apply'd to the Elders, but went to their own Minister: But'tis a very Unreasonable Inference from hence to conclude, That the Presbyterians ConfineCharity among themselves, and 'twou'd equally conclude that the Conformist Minister and Church-Wardens are Partial in the Distribution of their Charity; for Eighteen in Fifty-five, which that Author says was the Proportion in the Church-Book, is not the just Proportion of the Poor of the Parish at large, there being at least Two Dissenters for one Churchman in the Parish, that are Subsisted by Public Alms.

LWO

As to the Proposal which he says was made by the Established Minister and Church-Wardens to the Dissenting Elders, to join the Charity Mony of Church and Meeting-Honse, and deal it out to the Poor of the Parish, the Elders might very well reject it, without incurring the Censure-of Partiality in the Distribution of their Charity; for they believe that the Poor of the Parish, both Churchmen and Dissenters, are very well supply'd according to the Methods that have been still follow'd in the Respective Congregations to which they belong. And I suppose the Minister and his two Church-Wardens wou'd hardly submit the Distribution of such a Common-Stock to the Majority of

Voices

Part 2. Voices of the Presbyterian Ministers and Elders, acting in Conjunction with 'em. He has represented these Elders so odiously from p. 32, to p. 55. of his second Letter, and set off a supposed Conflict he has there mentioned between the Establish'd Minister and histwo Press'd Men on the one part, and the Dissenting Minister and his Eighteen Volumeers on the other part as so very Unequal an Engagement, that I believe he will scarce venture any Ecclesiastical business upon the Issue of their Common Suffrage: But shou'd he be so good-natur'd after all as to do it, when he produces some Canon or Order of the Establish'd Church whereof he is a Member to Warrant it, his Proposal shall be considered.

The true Regard which the Presbyterians in Belfast have been kill dispos'd to show to such of the Episcopal Communion as are Real Objects of Charity, can be made appear by many Instances, were kneed. ini; of which I shall only mention two, that were very Remarkable. About thirteen Years ago one Mr. Fairfoul who assisted the Revertid Mr. James Ecclin as his Curate in Relfast, sell into a Languilhing Diff ease, and during his Sickness was reduc'd to Poverty and Want, which mov'd the Charitable Compassion of the Presbyterian Minister and Elders of Belfast to that Degree, as they sent him at once the inte Sum of five pounds sterl. And such was the Respect paid to Mr. Farfoul's Character in the manner of doing it, that the Minister went and deliver'd it to him out of his own Hand. the Reverend Person who gave it, Dr. Ferguson who attended Mr. Pairsoul as his Phylichin, beside others to whom Mr. Fairfoul gratefully own'd the favor, are living Hvidences of this fact. The second instance is expressed and attend in the following Certificate.

TE do Certify that having on Monday April 21. 1707. 18th the Rulnous Condition of Lisburn by a Dictional File which happen'd on the Day before, and Committerating the Gale of many of it's Inhabitants, thereby reduc'd to the last Extremity for want of Bread and Houses: We'the Subscribers, with Mr. Him. Chads Deceas'd, did on Taisday the 224 of faid Month gother the Town of Belfast, and represented the same to all our Neighbold's we cou'd meet with, and in less than 12 hours Coffected about 54 b. for supplying the present Straits of said Distress d Inhabitates of all Persuasions without any Distinction, tho' of the said Sula there was 51 lb. 15 shil. given by those of the Presbyserian Persia-L'un,

. That the said Sum was immediately carry'd to Lisburn, and by Order of the Bishop of Donn and Connor and Dean Welkins, paid to Part 2.

the two Church-Wardens and two of the Elders of the Presbyterian Congregation, to be distributed as aforesaid.

That some time after, in Pursuance of her Majesty's Letters Patents for a Collection to Lisburn, the Presbyrerians of Belsast gave near 47 lb. to the Minister and Church-Wardens, as by the List may appear, the their Proportion was never intended to be Computed, nor their Charity to be Publish'd till now, That their Candor and Impartiality, as well as Loyalty are Arraign'd by a late Pamphlet, Entitul'd, The Conduct of the Dissenters in Ireland &c. Given under our Hands at Belsast, September the 10th 1703.

Haac Me. Cartney. Alexander Adair.

Having disproved our Author's Allegations of the Distinters Confining their Charity amongst themselves in Belfast, I come next to show, that the Instances he pretends to give of that kind in the Case of the Collections for Lisburn are very Unlacky Mistakes, tho he is pleased to call them both Notorious and candalous; he case them frequent Instances, but mentions only two, relating to and sking this supposed Guilt upon Arthur Maxwell of Drumbey Esq; and Mr Alexander McCrakan Presby terian Minister in Lisburn. Mr Maxwell is known to be a Gentleman of that Probity and worth as sets him above such Calumnies, which are so much the more Inexcusable, because Mr Maxwell had the honor to be one of her Massell's Trustees (in Conjunction with several other Gentlemen both Episcopal and Presbyterian) Nominated in her Letters Patents, so the Distribution of that Public Charity. I have seen a Letter from him to his Friend, sully vindicating himself from this Aspersion, the true Copy whereof is as sollows.

The Author of the Conduct of Dissenters in Ireland &c. page 25th suggests against me, That I Apply de the Collections raised for the Poor Inhabitants of Lisburn who suffered by the Fire, wholly to the Use of the Presbytetians, Whereas the Collection pursuant to the Queen's Letters Patents was to be general, and disposed of My the Commissioners to the Inhabitants according to the Proportion of their Losson Weeken Respect to Persons. To which I auswer, that the very reading of the Part 2. Letters Patents will Discover this to be an imposing upon his Reader, for the Queen's Letters Pattents require the Minister and Church-Wardens to raise the Collections within their several and Respective Parishes: How then could Mr Maxwell Apply the Mony raised by them to the Use of the Presb, terians or of any Else, unless the said Minister and Church-Wardens had given the same to him, contrary to their Duty and the Direction and Appointment of the said. Letters Patents ; which I believe, for their.

fakes, he will not affirm.

All the Colour the Author can have for this Calumny, is that 4 there were some Private Charitable Collections raised from the 4 Dissensers only, for Rebuilding the Meeting-House of Lisburn that had been burnt, and accordingly Apply'd to the said Use, san other Voluntary Subscriptions at the same time from the "Churchmen were to the Rebuilding of the Church, without any Re-Lation to the Letters Patents and before they had any Existence; his: Censure (like what he says of his Charity) shou'd have been bestowed on both promiscucusly, to avoid keeping of divers - Weights and Measures, and calling that Unfair on the one Side of the Lagan-Water which was very fair on the other lide of · it; but sker, sly tho? I contributed, yet I never Collected one farthing for any of the faid Ules...

Sir, I never heard, and I cannot believe that ever any fuch Information upon Oath was given as he affirms, because 'twould have been plain Perjury, and I cannot avoid either the suspecting his 5 Veracity or admiring his Credulity, rather than believe any Man Suilty of loggress a Sin. When he lays that Mr. Maxwell was publicly taxed, he should have told when, where, and by whom, Sombat he answered; he should have set down the Copy of the Information upon Oath, and have told what Event it had, and why he was not obliged to Refound the Mony so Misapplyed by him, but Sigeneral Ferms were the fittest for his Purpose for Dolus Line in generalibus; he is a true Disciple of him who taught, Calumniare -Andasser aliquid adharebit; can I expect better. Measure from him than he affords to her Majesty's Letters Patents, which he either Diline genvoully or Ignorantly Misrepresents, while he says, that by the same the Collection was to be disposed of by the Commissioners to the Inhabitants Sinctording sa she Propossion of their Loffes; as if there were no Charistable Design in the Letters Patents, which order the Money to be dispos'd of to the Inhabitants according to the Proportion of their Lofa

Loss and Circumstances, so he leaves out the most Material Word Part 2. of the two viz. CIRCUMSTANCES; I call it the most Material, because no Man's Loss cither do or can make him an Object of Charity, hut the Circumstances that by his Losses or otherways, he is brought unto. What if a Man had lost 20000 lib, can that make him an Object of Charity, if he have 60000 lib, left behind? If it be said, a man has lost all he had, Ergo his Losses makes him an Obe ject of Charity; the answer is obvious, viz. that Proposition includes his Circumstances, as well as his Losses, whilst it implys that he has nothing lest him.

Sir, I can't but observe a strange Spirit of Animosity and Bigetry running thro' the Writings of this Author, and he seems to me to have been Industriously watching for Men's halting. He falsly reprefents the Presbyterians as a people who Assume the Power of An-"nulling the Laws of the State; whereas, had I a mind to Recriminate, I wou'd tell him that there has been a late Instance of some Person or Persons in Belfast who have indeed exercis'd such a Power, upon pretence of Zeal for the Church; and seeing this Author has Describ'd the Place of his Residence to be the most Populous and Trading Part of the North, I must conclude him to be an inhabitant there, and if he be neither the Author nor Abettor of the Printed Paper, I am going to mention, I hope he will fairly and honestly Discountenance those who are. There was a Paper Printed (which I now have before me) and publicly Posted in Belfast bearing date the 27th of March, 1713. Advertising the 3d of April then next ensuing, viz. Good Friday to be observed with all due Solemnity by Shops being Shut &c. and affirming that the same is appointed by the Laws both of the Church and State; and yet notwithstanding this Consident Affirmation, if you'll please to peruse and consider the Statute Anno Regni Septimo Gulielmi Tertij, Entitul'd, An Act declaring which Days in the Year shall be observ'd as Holy-Days, you'll find that the said Day is not only not appointed, but forbidden to be observ'd, whilst all the Holy Days to be kept are there Enumerated and mention'd (of which Good Friday is none) and all other Days not there mention'd forbidden to be kept.

Sir, I have purposely avoided Recrimination against any Party and have medled with none but the Author, lest I might offend Persons E' Miliore Luto than his own self, and yet if I had been dif

Part 2i

dispos'd to imitate him, I cou'd have produc'd my Quibusaam posities and have strain'd an Universal Conclusion from particular Premisses, as my Conductor does, contrary to the Old Maxim Conclusion sequitur Partem Debiliorem: His Insinuations against the late Lord Chief Justice Broderick, a Gentleman Honor'd by her Majesty, amidst the Glories of her Reign, and by his Country who know him best, from whom he Adventures to Detract, and whole Character is beyond the Malice of his worst Enemies and the Praise of his best Feiends, puts me in mind of Sir Teague O Regan's Bell, that had an empty Pate and a loud Tongue, I am, SIR, Drumbeg, 11th of Your very Humble Servant.

August 1713.

As to Mr McCraekan, and what the Author says against him as if he had been guilty of Unfair Practifes about the Public Collections for Lisburn; I have seen a full Narrative not only of that Matter, but of the other Facts laid to his Charge by this Author, under his own hand; of which I shall give a short Abstract as they come to be consider'd in their proper Places. The Presbyterians in Ulfter were so far from being Partial in their Collections for Lisburn, that the Author cou'd bardly have fix'd upon an Instance that cou'd have done 'em more Service, for demonstrating that they did not Confine their Charity to those of their own Persuasion. For immediately after the burning of Lisburn the Church-People and Presbyterians there entred into A Concert, that both Church and Meeting-house shou'd be Rebuilt out of the Public Collections, and the Remaining Part of the said Collections shou'd be distributed amongst the Distress'd Inhabitants, without any Distinction of Persuasions; And in Consideration hereof, that each Party shou'd we their best Interest with those of their own Persuasion both in England and Ireland for exciting em to make liberal and Generous Contributions for these Ends; which Agreement was entred in their Books. And in Pursuance of it, The Dissenters of Lisburn Applyed in June sollowing to the Presbyterian Ministers of the North of Ireland then met in their General Annual Meeting, who Approved of the Christian and Amicable Agreement between the Protestant Inhabitants of Lisburn of all Persuasions, and accordingly us'd their best interest with their own People at home and with their Friends in Eng. land, for encouraging the Collections; which is a Demonstrative proof that they Did not Confine their Charity to those of their own Persueston Upon

Upon this Encouragement, the Dissenters of Lisburn fell presently to Part 2. work, Rebuilt their Meeting House, and borrowed many for defraying the Expence, hoping to be enabled by the Public Collections to repay it, but they soon found themselves Miserably disappointed: for when the Collections came in, the Trustees finding that they were far sho: s of what was expected, did not think it Expedient that either Church or Meeting-House shou'd be Rebuilt out of that Fund, & allow'd 'em only the Proportion that wou'd have fallen to them as Private Houses in Cumulo with the rest. In this Case the Dissenters of Lisourn, being disabled by the Fire to Defray the Expences of their Meeting House, were obliged to Apply again to their Friends for Assistance; but most of 'em having given so liberally before to the Protestants of Lisburn at large, were Uncapable of giving more for that End; tho' some People of better Circumstances Contributed Towards it.

In the mean time, while the Dissenters in Lisburg were Receiving & Procuring from their Friends what Affiliance they could, some were pleased to take Umbrage from this Practice, as if they had in a Clandestine Manner got into their Hands some of the Mony that was Collected upon the foot of the Public Brief, and Appropriated it to the Rebuilding of their Meeting-House. But after several Conferences between 'em and their Neighbours, for removing all ground : of Suspicion, the Principal Managers and Overseers about the Miet ng-House gave their Voluntary Outh, the true Copy whereof I shall here insert, taken from the Original all written with the Bishop's own band, and subcribed by those who took it; which is likewise subferibed by four Gentlemen of the Church, to how that they were not guilty of any Unfair Practifes in that Matter, at the End of each of their four Names I have added the Letter (C.). And the Order of the Trustees upon the said voluntary Oath is likewise Copy'd from the Original, subscribed by seven of em, whereof the first sour are of the Establish'd Church viz. the Bishop of Dom and Comor, Dean Wilkins, Dr. Lefty, and Mr Hateridge.

Lisburn 26th September 1710. I do swear, that I will pay to the Treasurer for the time being any sum or sums of Mony whatforver, that came to my Hands for the Use of Sufferers in General by the late Dreadful Fire at Life. That I will discover to the Commissioners for the benefit of Lisburn or any Person Authoriz'd by them any Mony that I know for shall bereafter know to be Collected for the said Sufferers, in whose band i

Part 2. bands it is, how much there is, or was of it, and to what use it was or is to be Apply'd, if it has not been already paid, or shall not be hereaster paid to the said Treasurer. That whatever Mony has e been Collected, or shall be hereafter Collected for the said Sufferers, and has been or shall be Apply'd to any other use whatsoever, I will faithfully and honestly make a Discovery thereof immediately. I hat no Money rais'd for the said Sufferers, bas to my Knowledge been Apply'd to the Meeting-House, or any Buildings about it, or any ase relating to it; And if it shall be herezster so Apply'd, to my E Knowledge, I will make an Immediate Discovery of it to the said Treasurer. That if any Money has come to those of my Persuafion in General, or to me in particular, I will declare it to the Treasurer. That in Order to have the Money given to the said Sufferers fairly Apply'd according to the Intention of the Donors 4. I will use my best endeavors to know the design of such Donors, and to see the Mony given by them Apply'd accordingly. And all this I Swear Voluntarily and freely upon the Faith of a Christian, without any Evalion, Equivocation or Mental Reservation, So help me God.

Ralph Smyth C. Edward Mc. Comfey Val. Jones C. William Rothell Alex. Taylor E. Wogan C. Ed. Obrey C. Well. Living ston

Daniel Kenley. John Charters Richard Grainger. Jo. Martin.

At a Meeting of the Trustees for Lisburn Brief this 26th day of September 1710: Concluded for the ending of some Suspitions and Disputes about Private Collections, That the Oath in the amexed Leaf taken voluntarily by every Person concerned shall intitle bins fo taking it to his Proportionable Share and Part of all such Mony that is already come in, and shall hereafter come in for the Use of the Sufferers in General, and that such as resuse to take the said Oath shall be excluded from such Share and Part till surther Or der.

Arth. Maxwell Edw. Doun and Connor Jos. Wilkins Edwa, Brice. John Chalmers Hen, Lesly. John Haltridge

on of the Innocence of the Dissenters in Lisburn, with respect to this Matter, than what is contain'd in this Oath, which gave full Satisfaction to the Bishop and the rest of the Trustees; and no Man ought to tax'em with any Unfair Practices about the Public Collections, unless he allow himself the Uncharitable Liberty of calling 'em Perjur'd. And seeing no Mony cou'd be laid out for the Meeting House, but what must come thro' the Hands of these Men, and be narrowly enguir'd into by 'em, their Oath amounts not only to a Personal Vindication of themselves, but also of Mr McCracken and of all the Dissenters in Lisburn. I would fain believe, for our Author's Credit, that when he wrote his Book he was Ignorant of the History I have given of this Oath and the Order of the Trustees upon it: otherwise he cou'd not have been so hardy, as to have published a Mistake in a point wherein a public Record doth so plainly refute him.

A. seventh fault our Author finds with Presbyterians in Ireland during this Reign is, in the Matter of their Farming; and here he RAI-SES A CRY against the Numbers of Presbyterians who swarm'd from Scotland after the late Rovolution, by whom he represents the Conformifts to be funk in their Farming (p. 26,) and he endeavors to unfold this Mystery in these Words, (Ibid) 'These new Adventurers were in many Respects able to out-bid the Old Tenants, who had been in a great Measure ruin'd in the late Troubles.

First. Because they were upon many Accounts able to under-live e 'em, Secondly, Many of them came over both in the Habit and Qua-6 lity of Beggars, who with their whole Families were sublisted by the Charity of the People; stroling through the Country, sill they had fix'd themselves, where either they were directed, or where they liked, and then open'd their Rags, in which they had quilted considerable Sums of Mony, and were qualify'd to stock their Lands, and grew able Tenants, before the Old Tenants cou'd Recruit, after the Desolation of the War'. I believe our Author wou'd be hard put to it to prove that there were one bundred Families that brought considerable Sums of Mony out of Scotland, and came over in the Habit and Quality of Beggars; and shou'd he be able to make it out (which I despair of) that wou'd have but a small Influence upon the whole Conformists in the North of Ireland, nor cou'd it ever sink 'em or their Interest in Farming: And seeing of the Old Inhabitants shat were in the North of Ireland during the late Trouble, many more Mmm of Part 2. of whom were Presbyterian than Episcopal, the Old Presbyterian Inhes bitants must suffer more, according to our Author's Argument, than the Conformists, by this New Accession from Scotland; for our Author Acknowledges (p. 27.) that many of the Old Presbyterian Tenants were and still are Industrious and Substantial Tenants, and had follow'd the Example of the English Colonies in their Improvements and Plantations: And consiquently, the New Scotch Incomers had all the Advantages and Opportunities of finking 'em in their Farming which they had in Sinking Episcopal Tenants. And if so, this cou'd never have been done with a delign to fink the Church-Farmers more than Presbyterians, which intirely destroys the Foundation of all his Reasoning on this Head.

And let the Gentlemen, whose Desolated Estates were seasonably Replanted by many of these new Scotch Tenants, declare, whether their coming into a Ruinous Country was not an Accession of Strength to the Protestant Interest, and Beneficial for Improvement of the Landlords Rent. 'Tis true, our Author calls it Imprudence and Auxrice in the Church-Proprietors to prefer these New Scotch Presbyterian Tenants for some small Advance in the Rent of their Lands; but 'tis certain, that in many Places 'twas the Landlord's Real Interest to receive 'em as Tenants, and had they not found it so they wou'd not have done

Our Author is aware that the Objections he has been making against the Presbyterians in the North of Ireland, and the Representation he has given of the low Condition into which the Church Interest is sank by their means, can't but make people believe that the Conformists in the North are a very inconsiderable Part of the Protestants; and therefore he seems to be under some Dissiculty, how to preserve the Reputation of his own Party as Considerable and Numerous, without Contradicting his own History of the Presbyterians. He fays the Conformists in the North are much more Considerable in their Numbers than they are represented by the Dissenters and their Abettors, that they have Confiderable Congregations in most Towns & in great Numbers of Country Parishes throughout the whole Province. But seeing our Author does not inform us what Representations or Computations the Dissenters have made of their Numbers in Proportion to Church-men, his Reader can make no Judgment of the Truth of what he says: and yet, after all, I think 'tis not quite so easy to Reconcile this Account with what he had said befores for he Assures us that the Church-men perceived themselves at once undone, their Farmers surk, their Freemen lessen'd, Part 2. their Merchams Bankrupt, and their Tradesmen out of Business and Imployment, scarce a Thriving Dealer among them in the North: And if all this be true, I wou'd fain know what fort of members those considerable Congregations are made up of, which he says they have in most Towns and in many Country Parishes thro' the whole Province? For furely Bankrupt Merchants, decay'd Traders, Ill employ'd Tradesmen, and sunk Farmers will hardly ever make considerable Members of any Congregation.

King William of Glorious Memory. Ch. 3.

But our Author has found out another Reason for sinking the Church-Interest in the North, in these Words, (p. 28.) The Conformists, however united in Principles of Religion, are most Miserably divided in Principles of Policy, in which one part joins intirely with the Presbyterians:So that really the Church-Laterest in the North is sinking not so much from the Dead Weight of Presbycery, as from that faife Brilance of Occasional Conformists, and of those Constant Conformists who are Political Dissenters.

I am heartily forry that the Conformists are so Miserably divided in Principles of Policy (as our Author represents 'em,) and I'm confilent that such of the Conformists, as join entirely with the Presbyterians in Political Principles, are in the Right; And had they not join'd for promoting the late Happy Revolution, the Protestant-interest had been ruin'd. The Dissenters have no Political Principles but what are founded upon and Agreeable to the Happy Civil Constitution and Limited Monarchy of Great-Britain and Ireland; which they look upon to be one of the best in the World; and therefore his an Abuse put upon em, to call them Political Dissenters: For tho' they are Religious Dissenters, they are Political Conformists; And all such Conformists as agree not with them in Principles of Civil Policy, are Political Non-Conformists.

Our Author concludes his Account of this Period with a Representation he gives of an Attempt made by the Presbyterians for procuring a Repeal of the Fenel Laws, which he Describes in these Words (p. 28.) It is evident, that the Dissenters of Ireland, conscious of their growing Power and Trade, and having Cultivated a strong Interest with some Leading Members of the House of Commons, began to think themselves so Formidable, not to be disablig'd in the Refusal of any Demand they should make. And a Tryal wasmade in an M m m 2

Part 2. Affair of no less Consequence, than that of a Motion in the House of Commons, for a Repeal of all the Penal Laws against Dissenters for a time.

This Dispensing Motion was made by Coll. Cuningham in an Evening after a tedious Sitting, when the House was thin, and was warmly and strenuously opposed, particularly (as I am informed) by Mr. Densing and thrown out with Indianation by a great Main by Mr, Dopping, and thrown out with Indignation by a great Majofity.

The Dissenters were resolv'd (and are still) to make no Unreasonable Demands, and never demanded any thing of the Government but by way of Humble Petition, and with all suitable Modesty and Decency. He gives a Wrong State of the Case; for he distinguishes between the Repeal of the Penal Laws against Dissenters, and the Foleration which they mere desiring: For he brings in (p. 29.) a Dissenting Burgess discoursing a Parliament-Man thus, We scorn their Toleration and will accept of nothing less than a Repeal of the Penal Laws.

Our Author loves dearly to pick up a little private Chat and to represent it as the sense of a Party. But I consels he must have a very Metaphysical Head, who can have an Idea of a Legal Toleration, without a Repeal of the Penal-Laws that have been Enacted against the Party Tolerared: For without such a Repeal there can be no Toleration; & therefore the English Toleration repeals all the Penal Laws against the Separate Congregations of Dissenters there And at the time mentioned by our Author, there was no Motion made either by Coll. Cuningham or any other Gentleman, for any other Repeal of the Penal-Laws than what is Essential to every Legal Toleration as such; all that was debated at that time was, not whether they shou'd have a Toleration and a Repeal of the Penal. Laws necessirily included in it (for that was not opposid) but whether a Toleration-Act shou'd be Clog'd with the Sacramental-Test: Upon which Occasion, the Case of the Protestant Dissenters in Ireland in Reserence to a Bill of Indulgence. was publish'd, showing the Reasonableness of such a Toleration as should not Disable the Dissenters from serving their King and Country. The Point came to be Debated in the House of Commons: But the Debate was Adjourn'd from time to time, the Selsions concluded, and the Business dropt, without any Resolution of the House upon it. What our Author offers concerning the Pamphs tets published on that Occasion, shall be considered strerwards; and what he advances in general Terms concerning the frequency of Presbyteries and Synods and their raising Public Funds during this Part 2! Period, shall be fully answer'd when I come co consider in the third Part of this Book the more particular Account he gives of the steele Falts.

Her Present Majesty Queen Anne. Ch. 4. 453

CHAP. IV.

The Loyalty of Presbyterians, from Her Present Majestie's Happy Accession to the Throne, to this present Year 1713.

WILLIAM the GREAT, of Immortal Memory; He supported at the same time the Sinking Spirits of a Sorrowful People with New Joys, upon the Accession of her Present Majesty to the Throne of her Royal the Datiful Homage of Loyal Subjects, and approached the Throne with their Humble Addresses of Congratulation; and Condolance. They considered her Majesty's Government as one of the great Blef-single.

Part 2. sings secured to these Nations by the late Happy Revolution; and twas not possible that they who had been so Active in promoting it, should be Dissoyal to a Queen that had Acted so great a Part in it her self, and who was now come to be possess'd of that Royal Dignity which was owing to it, and to defend our Holy Religion & Liberties, which that Glorious Enterprize had Rescu'd from Popery and Slavery.

The Happy Union of Hearts and Interests, which the Protestant Dissenters in England cultivated and chearfully improv'd with their Conformist Brethren for advancing the Glories of her Majesty's Reign, to the Terror of her Enemies, Consfort of her Allies, the Joy of her good Subjects, and the just Amazement of all Europe, is a Demonstration of their Loyal Affection to her Majesty. And they defy their Worlt Enemies, to show wherein they have done any thing Unbecoming their Duty to her Sacred Person & Government or to sorfeit her Royal Protection & Favor. And not only her repeated Gracious Answers to their Humble Addresses fill'd with her Royal Promises to Protect 'em, but her public Speeches from the Throne are as Ample and Honorable Testimonies of their Loyalty, as they themselves cou'd desire.

The General Albendalies of the Church of Scatned have been, from time so time, honored wish her Royal Letters expressing her Batisfaction in their Condust & Loyalty. And Her Majesty's Letter to the very last Assembly (to mention no more) is a convincing proof of this, it rans thus,

Her Majesty's Most Gracious Letter to the General Assembly held at Edinburgh the 30th day of April 1713.

ANNE R.

Right Reverend and Well-beloved;

FIFE Greet you Well. We have had to many Proofs of Your Good and Prudent Managements in former Assemblies, and particularly in the Last, that we have Chearfully by our Authority appointed this your Meeting, and we doubt not but you will take it as a particular Mark of our Regard to you, that we have appointed our Right Trusty and Right Entirely Beloved Cousin and Countiellor John Duke of Aibel to be Our Commissioner, who We persuade our selves will be Acceptable to you: Our concern for promo- Part 2: ting true Piety and Godliness, the great End of the Gospel, is fuch that you may be fully Satisfied it shall be Our Cire to Employ such, as shall be faithful in Executing the Laws, in punishing all such Practices as are a Scandal to the Christian Profession, and against which We have fignify'd our Displeasure in our Proclamations. We are sensible that a Pious and Learn'd Ministry is under God, the Great Support and Ornament of Christianity; and therefore We are Refolv'd to Countenance you in your Endeavors to Promote it, and to employ Our Power and Authority for Advancing of it to your just Satisfaction. We take this solemn occasion to Renew the Assurances We have formerly given you of Our firm purpose to Maintain the Church of Scotland as Establish'd by Law. The Address of the late General Assembly did so much MANIFEST THEIR LOYALTY and AFFECTION to Our Royal Person and Government, and their true Concern for the Succession in the Protestant Line of the House of HANOVER as Establish'd by Law, that it cou'd not but be very Acceptable to 11s, and your Moderation and Unanimity amongst your selves is not more for your own Good, than it will be for Our Satisfaction. And We affure our selves that there will be nothing. in your Procedure, but what shall be Dutiful to us, and shall Mani. fest the Wisdom of your Conduct, and so we bid you heartily farewel. Given at Our Court at St. James's theigh day of April 1713. in the 12th Year of Our Reign. By Her Majesty's Command,

There can't be a greater Demonstration of Loyalty to Her Majesty, than to Oppose a Popish Presender to her Crown, and to we all possible endeavors for supporting and Maintaining the Protestant Succession in the Islustrious House of Hanover; wherein the Assembly have shown themselves so Zealous as to recommend it to all Ministers of that National Church with all possible Earnostress, to pray heartily for the said Succession of the HANOVER-FAMILY. And in Regard there are no Jacobites within her Majesty's Dominions that are so Open and Barefac'd in venting their Pernicious Principles as some of the Episcopal Dissenters in Scotland, that Church have taken all possible Pretaution and Care for preventing the spreading of that Contagion, and DARTMOUTH.

Part 2. for Preserving their own Members from being infected with Jacobitism; as will appear by two excellent Papers Published by the Commission of the General Assembly, both which I shall here insert, the first runs thus,

At Edinburgh, December 5. 1712. The Commission of the General Assembly considering how much it is the Interest of all Protestant Churches, and of the Church of Scotland, in particular, that Her Majesty's Title to the Crown of these Realms, and the succession to the Crown in the Illustrious Family of HANOVER, upon which under God, the Prefervation of our Religion and Civil Liberties do's depend, be IN-- VIOLABLY MAINTAIN'D; and that there is ground to think that not a few are industrious in spreading and propagating Prejudices against the same, and to dispose People to have favourable thoughts of the Pretender; Therefore, the Comis-'s sion of the General Assembly being HEARTILY CONCERNED for the Maintenance and Support of Her Majesty's Title and Government, and for the Preservation of the Protestant succesfion in the foresaid Family; and entertaining An atter Aversion to the said Pretender, do UNANIMOUSLY & seriously recommend to all the Presbyteries, Ministers and Members of this Church in their Respective Stations, to the UTMOST OF THEIR * POWER to use all prudent and proper Methods, for discouraging and disappointing all Designs and Attempts of that kind, by Popish and other Jacubite Emissaries, and to confirm and establish be the people in their Loyalty and Duty to the Queen, their aversion to the Pretender, and Zeal for, and affection to the said Protesiant succession; and for that end, The Commission recommends to all Ministers and Members of this Church, that they continue in frequent Prayers for the Queen, and for the Protestant Succession in the Illustrious House of Hanover. And appoints Copies hereof to be sent to the Serval Presbyteries.

JOHN DUNDASS Cler. Eccl. Scot

The second Paper of the Commission is much larger, and contains a most solid and Judicious Consutation of the Arguments made use of by the Scots Jacobites for poisoning the Minds of the People,

Extracted by

Her Present Mazesty Queen Anne. Ch. 4.

457

the People, the whole Paper runs thus,

Part 2.

A Seasonable Warning by the Commission of the General-Assembly, Concerning the Danger of Popery.

At Edinburgh 19th August, 1713.

77E the Ministers and Elders met in the Commission of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, taking to our serious Confideration, the inveterate Malice of Papists against the true Reformed Religion, and their Restless Endeavours, particularly at 6 this Time, to Ruin the Protestant Interest in Britain and Ireland, the great Multitudes of their Priests and other Emissaries now Traffickfing, for carrying on this Pernicious Design in several Parts of this Gountry, whereby many are already Perverted; their setting up openly in divers Places their Idolatrous Worship, notwithstanding of the Penal Laws which stand in Force against them, and of Her "Majesties Royal Proclamations, and what the Judges have done in heir Circuits. And their behaving themselves with as great Insolence as they have ever showed since our Reformation from Popery. And like-- wife confidering the bold Attempts of other Adversaries to our prefent Constitution both in Church and State, who do openly in our * chief Cities, and through the whole Country promote the Interests of A Pretender to the Crown, who has been educated in all the Maxims of 6 Popish Bigotry, and French Tyranny. And we being touched with a inst and deep Sense of these dangerous Evils, do judge it our Duty, from the Zeal we owe to the Glory of GOD, the Preservation of our Holy Religion, the Safety of Her Majesty's Government, and the Weltare of our Country, and in Pursuance of the Trust committed to us by the last General-Assembly, to give this Publick, Solemn and Serious Warning to all Ranks of Persons, of the Immisent Danger which doth arise from such Pernicious Practices, not · only to Qur Pure and Holy Religion, but to Our Civil Rights and Liberties: And therefore we do EARNESTLY OBTEST all good Protestants and Lovers of their Country, That they look diligently to themselves, that they be not deluded by the subtile Devices of a Papish and Jacobite Party, who so manifestly design to bring us under the Yoke of the said Presender, and thereby to deprive us of Nnn these

Part 2. these most valuable Blessings, which the Great and Gracious GOD did so remarkably restore unto us by the Late Glorious Revolution.

'To preserve the Members of this National Church from being Imposed upon by the cunning Artisices of such Enemies, We beseech them to Advert how deceitfully many of these, who are Notorioully disafficted to Her Majesty's Government, do with great Appearance of Zeal, Espouse and Promote the Ceremonies and Liturgy of the Church of England, a Yoke which neither We, nor our Fathers were able to bear, and which this Nation would never sub-"mit to, even in the Times of Prelacy; but altho' the Jacobite Party do now so earnestly contend for that Form of Worship, to impose upon, and Ingratiate themselves with the Church of England, and. to strengthen themselves under her Protection, their Zeal for the Pretender is Ruch, that they generally omit the Prayers in that Liturgy for our Sovereign Queen Anne, and the Illustrious Princess Sophia, upon whom the Succession to the Crown is settled, which-Succession we cannot but esteem to be, under God, the GREATEST. SECURITY, not only to the Protestant Interest in these Lands; but. also to the Reformed Churches abroad, in whose Safety we are confidens, That all good Protestants will find themselves deeply concerned, both in Point of Duty and interest.

It's also very common with that Party, to make a great Out-cry, efpecially at distant Places; where the Matter is not so well known, of their having suffered grievous Persecution, meerly because of their being of the Episcopal Persuasion. This is another of their Artifices, to procure unto themselves the more favour and Countenance from others, whose Protection they abuse, to Prosecute their Malicious Designs against the Revolution-Settlement: But this their Clamour and Noise is altogether groundless; and blessed be GOD, we can Appeal to the Consciences of all who know our Conduct, That we have never fince the late Happy Revolution, in the least returned the Severities, and unparallelled Cruelties which we met with, when they had the Ascendant; and which we from their present Temper, as well as their Behaviour, may reasonably conclude, they want nothing but Power to Renew against the Ministers and Members of this Church: Moreover, That they may diminish the just Aversion of the People of this Land to the Pretender, and engage them to his Interest, they do Artfully suggest, and with the utmost Considence assure them, That were he once advanced to the Throne, he would procure the Disso. Part 2.

Union of the Union. But we intreat all Persons to consider, That whatever be the Inconveniencies, and dangerous Consequences of the Union to our Civil Interests, or the Grievances of this Church under it, against which last, both the Commission and General Asfembly gave solemn and seasonable Testimony, particularly, in the Tenth Act of the General Assembly held Anno 1712, Entitl'd, Act approving the Representations and Addresses by the Commission, concerning the Toleration and Patronages; yet to expect a Remedy to these Grievances from the Pretender, is a MOST GROSS DELUSION, and a Bait which we cannot think will catch any, but such as are * very simple and credulous; yea, supposing there were Ground, as there is none, to expect that the Pretender would dissolve the U-"nion, if he should come to the Throne; yet that could not be at all a sufficient Compensation for the Dreadful Train of the far greater Evils of Tyrannical Government, and the Abominations of Popery, which we could not but meet with, if a Person of his Principles and Education should be advanced to the supreme Authority; any Remedy that can be looked for from him would prove 'so much worse than our present Disease, that we cannot but be confident, there is none who have any just Concern for our Religion and Civil Liberties, which ought to be dearest to us, as Protestants and free-born Scots Men, will suffer themselves to be deluded with * fuch an abfurd and enfoaring Infinuation.

We find it necessary also, to Guard People against another Arthul Contrivance of the Jacobite Party: These of them that profess to be Protestants, that they may the more easily engage People into their Measures, do frequently declare, That they are for a Protestant Succession, and with great Assurance advance as a thing to be relied upon, That the Pretender hath declared or will declare himself to be a Protestant, But this is an Artifice so gross that it can take with none who do consider, That the Pope doth dispense with the fairest Profession of the Protestant Religion, and the most solemn Oaths to maintain it, for advancing that hell the Delign of extirpating the Protestant Religion, under the opprobrious Name of the Northern Hereste; and which all Papifts by their cruel and bloody Principles, are obliged to endeavor to the utmost of their Power, upon Pain of Damnation; and likewise that a Prince who is a Papist at Heart, may Nnn the

Part 2.

the more securely and easily work the Ruin of our Religion and Liberty, that his Designs are covered with the Mask of a Protest-ant Prosession. Such therefore, as are imposed upon with the fond and groundless Expectation of the Pretender's being Protest-ant, and would thereupon intrust him with all our valuable Concerns, must needs bewray the greatest Ignorance of the Principles of Papists, and the many obvious Instances of their Dissimulation; nay, bring upon themselves not only the Brand of Weakness and foolish Credulity, but the beinous Guilt of Treachery to God, from inexcusable running into Measures, which so manifestly endanger our hely Religion, and the happy Constitution of this Church, Founded upon and agreeable unto the Word of God.

Wherefore we do with the GREATEST EARNESTNESS Recommend to all the Ministers of this National Church, that they endeavor by Public and private Instruction to impress the Feople of their Respective Charges, with a due Sense of the Ewil of Popery, and extreme Danger these Lands would certainly be bi ought into, of being overrun with it, and ruined with Oppression and Tyranny, if ever the LORD should for our Sins permit the Pretender, Educated and confirmed in the Popish Religion, and instructed in all the Principles of Arbitrary Government, to bear Rule over us: And we do seriously exhort all the Ministers and Members of this Church, to testify all Duty and Loyalty to our only rightful and lawful Sovereign Queen Anne, and a zealous Concern for the Protestant Succession settled upon the most Excellent Princess Sophia Electoress and Dutchess Downger of Hanover, and the Heirs of her Body being Protestants; And we judge it proper at this Occasion to put them in Mind, That this Bustrious Princels is the Grand Daughter of King James the Sixth of Scotland, and First of England by his Daughter the Lady Elizabeth Queen of Bohemia, for whom and her Children our worthy Predecessors did publickly pray in their Churches, and whose Husband was descended of a Family which was remarkably. zealous for the Glorious Work of Reformation, and who himself did endure great Tryals of Affliction for his Redfast Adhe-5- rence to the Protestant Interest.

When we therefore consider, how much both our present and fi

Her Present Majesty, Queen Anne. Ch. 4.

future Sasety, under GOD, doth depend upon that Family's suc- Part 2. ceeding to the Grown, and how necessary the Preservation of that . Succession is, for the Security of our Religion and Liberties, and of all that is dear to us as men and Christians; we cannot forbear at such a Juncture as this; to Excite our selves, and all of our Communion to Testifie, as blessed be GOD THEY HAVE HITHERTO DONE, a firm and steady Adherence thereto, under whatever Discouragements may happen; and in the Bowels of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, we do seriously obtest and befeech all Ranks of Persons, to hear the Voice of God's Dispensations to us in these Lands, and to humble themselves deeply under the many sad Causes and Tokens of the LORD's Anger, to pre-A pare to meet our God by turning unto him with all their Hearts, * by unfeigned Repentance and Reformation of Life, fleeing to the Blood of Sprinkling for Reconciliation and making known our requests to God with all Prayer and Supplication in the Spirit, That he would continue, strengthen and perfect what he has wrought for us, disappoint the Designs and Hopes of a Popish and Jacobite Party, preserve the happy Constitution of this National Church, fanctifie and remove our present Grievances, and teach us to profit by all his Dispensations; That he would prosper and bless our Sovereign Queen Anne, direct Her Councils and prosper Her Government; That He would preserve and maintain, against all it's Opposers, the Protestant Succession in the House of Hano-. ver, and Eminently bless that Illustrious Family; That He would give Wisdom to all Ranks to Understand the Times; that he would? * pour out a Spirit of Love, of Power and of a found Mind upon Ministers, That with one Heart and Mouth they may strive together, in Desence of the Doctrine, Worship, and Government of this Church, as now settled; That he would bless them with · Meekness, Wisdom and Zeal, to avoid all Divisions that bring a Scandal upon Religion, Endanger our Constitution, and expose us to the Scorn of our Enemies, and give them Advantage over us; That the LORD would give to all of us, to reflect seriously on the many Troubles which have afflicted our Sion, and to shun carefully all those Sins which procured them, That he would keep up in our lively Remembrance, the great Danger our Religion and Liberties were in, when in his Is finite Goodness he surprized these Nations, with the late happy Revolution, a mercy never to be forgotten, without the highest Ingratitude to GCD

Part 2: and the greatest Injustice to the Memory of the late glorious King William, which ought always to be savory to all good Protestants; That he would enable us to make a right Improvement of that Gospel Light and Purity, which we now enjoy; and work in us a Temper of Spirit suitable thereto; That he would make serious Godliness and Christian Charity to flourish amongst us, and give all Ranks one Heart, and one Way to fear him, and keep his Commandments always, That so our gracious God would dwell in our Land, and that it may be well with us, and our Posterity after

The above written Warning and Exhortation having been read e at fundry Dyets of the Commission, and fully considered, was this Day voted and UNANIMOUSLY APPROVEN BY THEM. ' And they appointed the same to be forthwith Printed, and Copies thereof to be sent to the Respective Presbyteries, and recommends to them to take the most effectual Way to publish the same to the several Ministers and Members of this Church. Subcribed by

WILL. WISHEART. Modr. Jo. DUNDAS Cls. Eccl. Scot:

It will be acknowledg'd by all Sound Protestants, who adhere to the late Happy Revolution, that a more Seasonable Paper has not been publish'd by any Church within her Majesty's Dominions. It savors so much of a most Hearty Concern for the Queen and House of Hanover, and so effectually lays open the Cursed Artifices us'd by the Scotch Jacobites to delude the People, that it clearly proves the Church of Scotland to be Acted by the utmost of Loyal Affection to her Majesty. and by a just Detestation and Abhorrence of the Traiterous Designs and Practices of her Enemies. So Noble a Christian Temper, as well as so Loyal a Disposition is the more Remarkable in the present Conjuncture, when so many things have concur'd of late to try the Patience and sour the Temper of that Establish'd Church, as may be seen in the Public Papers both of the Assembly and Commission, occasion'd yb the Patronage and Toleration Bills. Yet that Church has behav'd with the greatest Modesty under these Pressures, and Apply'd her self with all the Earnestness and Vigilance, to the promoting of the Public Peace of their Country, and the Honor and Safety of the Government, as if they themselves had met with no Discouraging Treatment.

But

Her Present Majesty Queen Anne. Ch. 4.

But ket us take a View of the Presbyterians in Ireland during this Period; of whom it may be justly observed, that there is not any one Denomination or Party, amongst all her Majesty's Subjects, that is more sirmly United in Principles of Loyalty to her Majesty, and more link'd into the Interests of the Hanover-Succession, and the Liberties of their Geuntry, than they. They have during her Majesty's Auspicious Reign, steer'd the same Course, and Acted by the same Principles they follow'd in Assisting our Great Deliverer to Retrieve our Violated Liberties in 1688. Her Majesty hath express'd her Satisfaction with their Dutiful Behavior and Conduct, by her Gracions Answers to their Loyal Addresses, and by her Continuation of her Royal Bounty and Protestion to 'em; Blessings, which the Ungenerous Envy of their Enemies wou'd willingly blast, and which themselves thankfully Improve for the Service of their Queen and Country.

But I shall farther Illustrate the Loyalty and Peaceableness of their Behavior, by Answering our Author's Objections against it, which consist of a parcel of Stragling Disjointed Stories; and for Order's sake, I shall reduce 'em to these five Heads, 1. Their Evading the Force of the Test-Act, and continuing in Offices in Contempt of that Law. 2. Their resusing to Inlist in the Militia, and to take the Oaths, on the Array appointed by the Government when the Pretender Attempted to Invade these Kingdoms. 3. The Insolency of their Address to the Queen, upon that occasion, and the Unsair Methods they took to procure Addresses from Others, to that purpose. 4. Their Joining with the Town of Belfast in Defending a suit against the Interest of the Church.

3. Their Insolent Behavior about the Tithes, instanc'd in the Case of Archedeacon Ford's Proctor, & the People to whom he was setting his Tiths.

As to the first viz, Their Evading the sorce of the Test-All, and continuing in Ossices in Contempt of that Law, he affirms that Numbers of Dissenters evaded the force of this Law by Consorming Occasionally, and taking the Sacrament to Entitle them to Places of Trust and Prosit. Were this true in sact, it ought not to be turned to the Reproach of Dissenters by any who Approve of the Test-Act, and are so fond of it as this Author seems to be; because that Law allows the Receiving of the Sacrament to be a Legal Qualification for Civil and Military Imployments. But what he afferts is not fact: For in Ireland there are very sew Occasional Conformists amongst the Dissenters. But our Author complains (p. 30), There was another Rank, who wou'd not Pros-

Part 2. Litute their Consciences, but had the Hardness against the Letter and Construction, and in Contempt of that Law, to continue Burgisses and Aldermen of Towns, without ever qualitying themselves'. He aggravates this Matter thus, 'And in all likelihood had continu'd so till this day. Had it not been for a Resolution of the House of Commons, obtain'd in their Debates upon a Petition prefer'd by the Lady Donegal, charging Mr. George Macartney with some Irregularities in the Government of the Corporation of Belfast. How that Affair was Drop'd and Miscarried in the House, I know not; but this is certain, that it produc'd the Sense of the Commons, with Relation to the Test-Clause, which seem'd of vast Importance to the Interest of the Church, viz. That all the Burgesses of Belfast were obliged by that Act to take the Sacramental-Test; and consequently the Places of those Dissenting Burgesses, who had refused to Qualific themselves were void. No sooner was the sense of the bonse of Commons given in this point, than Mr. Macartney call'd an Afsembly and filled all the Places of the Unqualify'd Burgesses with Churchmen.

It was then expected, when all the Corporations in this Kingdom, in the same Circumstances with Belfast, would follow that 4 Hxample: But to the Amazement of all Men, who reflected upon the thing it self, and the Consequences, which might follow, there was scarce one of the Inferiour Corporations of this Kingdom, 4 that thought fit to follow that Precedent; but most of all the places of the Unqualifyed Dissenting Burgesses are kept Vacant to this Day, without the least Regard to the Letter, Intention or Conftruction of that Act of Parliament, to what End is much more easy to see than to be well accounted for by the Magistrates of such Corporations, who were obliged to put the Laws in Exccution.

Ans: The Protestant Dissenters of Ireland did indeed believe (and do still,) That that Law put a bardship and Mark of Infamy upon 'em, which they had not Merited, and which will be set in a farther light in the last Chapter of this Book; but they were not guilty of the Contempt of thet or any other Law. And their Conformist Neighbours, who continu'd in the severalOffices in the Corporations fince the Commencement of the Test-Ast, were so sensible of their Loyaley and Peaceable Behavior, that they delay'd the filling up of their Places (in divers Corporations) as long as they cou'd; and when the Restless Im- Part 2. persunity of some Zealots extorted from 'em the Execution of that Law, zewas with some Aversion and Uneasiness they comply'd with it: And 'cis very observable, that a certain Set of Men on the other Hand, are much more keen for the Rigorous Execution of the Test-Clause against Prosestant Dissenters, than for the Execution of the substance of the Ast to prevent the farther Growth of Popery, against the Papiets; for what Reasons, they themselves best know.

Her Present Majesty Queen Anne. Ch. 4:

405

It is hard to conceive what our Author's Intention cou'd be in Misrepresenting the Proceedings of the House of Commons in the Case of George Macereney Esq; Council at Law, and at that time Sovereign of Belfast, by telling his Reader, that that Affair was Dropt and Miscarry'd in the House: Tho' it be notorious, that between thirty and forty Witnesses were summon'd by the House, and most of 'ent went from Belfast, attended the Tryal, divers of 'em were examin'd, and after a Tryal which lasted near eight or ten hours, Mr. Macartney was clear'd by a Vote of the House Nemine Contradicente, as will appear from the Printed Votes of the House.

Veneris 24 die Ost. 1707.

HEN the House according to Order, proceeded to hear the " Matter of Complaint on the Petition of Arthur Earl of Dongal a Minor, by Catherine Countess of Denegal his Mother and Guardian, in behalf of himself and divers Inhabitants of the Burrough of Belfast; against George Macareney Esq; a Member of this House; and having heard Council and Witnesses on both sides, and they being withdrawn. Ordered, That Candles be brought in. Ordered, That the Key of the Gallery-door be brought, and laid wpon the Table. Resolved, Nemine Contradicente, That George Macartney Esq; bath fully Acquitted himself of the several Matters alledged against him, in the Petition Preferr'd against the said George Macartney, to the Satisfaction of this House.

I am not in the least imbark'd on either side of the Unhappy Debate which occasioned the above Proceedings and Vote, and what Account I have given of the Matter is, purely to Caution my Reader against taking things upon Trust from our Author.

Part 2. A second Fault our Author finds with Dissenters in Ireland during this Period is, their resusing to inlist in the Militia, and to take the Oaths, on the Array appointed by the Government, when the Pretender Attempted to invade these Kingdoms. There are several particular Circumstances in his Relation of this fact, which restect upon particular lar Persons, and from which he draws general Conclusions. I shall sixth give the Reasons why some of the Presbyterians resused to interest in the Militia at that time, or to take the Oaths upon that Occasion; they are represented in their second Apology to het Majesty (videnter)

Present State of Religion in Ireland p. 35, 36.) in these Words,

The Convocation seeem to lay great stress upon what they say in these Words, Nor can it ever be forgoiten what Numbers of them (meaning Presbyterians in the North) positively resused the Oath of Allow giance when the Militia was to be Arrayed in this Kingdon for opposing the Invasion of the Pretender. But those who consider the true State of that Matter, will readily perceive that this Practice of theirs did. not proceed from the least Disloyalty, but from different Reasons in different Persons. The Common People who can't be supposed to understand the Nicetics of the Law, were afraid that the Test-act would reach'em if they shou'd be inlisted in the Militia, especially if carry'd abroad and brought under Pay, which some Eminent Lawyers suppose, or at least doubt of: And therefore they had no mind to lay themselves open to every ill-natur'd Informer, in whose power it might be to ruin 'em: especially under this Discouragement, that they must not have one fingle Officer of their own Perfualion in the Meanest-Post, and must never hope for Advancement 'nor any other Reward from the Government, shou'd their services prove ever so great.

Some of 'em imagined that if they shou'd take the Oaths publickly before the Commissioners of Array, that wou'd have been an inhisting of 'em in the Militia, and a running the Risque of the Penalties of the Test-act; And therefore resus'd 'em, not that they had any Seruple against Them upon any other Account. -

This was indeed a Militake, but it was such an one as their Education and Knowledge was not able at that time to correct, and which was very consistent with Loyalty and Affection to your Sacred Majesty's Person and Government. Others, who had more:

Une -

Understanding, took the Oaths, but desired for the above Reasons Part 2.

to be excused from serving in the Militia. Others having only heard the Oath of Allegiance & Declaration against Popery and Foe reign jurisdiction read publickly, and having never heard 'em before did not understand em, and for want of time to be informed of the Meaning of some Expressions in them, which tho' earnestly desired, was refus'd 'em, could not conscientiously take 'em at that time. And we beg leave to assure your Majesty, that we are IN-flanding of this or any other Infinuation to the Contrary.

FIRELY UNANIMOUS in Opposition to the Pretender; notwith-

Every Impartial Man must be satisfy'd, that these Reasons sufficiently prove the Conduct of the Dissenters in the Matter of the Militia to be very confistent with Loyalty & Duty to the Queen, and with a just Abhorrence of that Attempt of the Pretender, which was over before the Militia was array'd. Our Author publisheth farther Accounts of the Said Array subscribed by two Gentlemen, that were concerned in it viz. Mr Spencer and Mr Waring, wherein there are several things Misrepresented; and upon which mistakes our Author builds his severeRestections upon Dissenters in general, as well as upon particular Persons. He speaks very indecently of a very Worthy Gentleman viz. Closworthy Upton of Castle-Upton Esq; whose Candor is Acknowledged by his Worst Enemies, and was particularly known to the late House of Commons in Ireland, whereof he was a Member, having had the Honour to be one of the Knights of the Shire for the County of Antrim. I have seen a Letter from Mr Opton to his Friend, wherein he Vindicates himself from the Calumnies of this Author, a true Copywhereof is as follows.

Castle-Upton, Feb. 14th. 1712.13. So many Concurring Circumstances have happen'd, since the Pubblication of that Pamphlet, Intitul'd the Conduct of the Diffenters of Ireland &c. to delay my Answering what relates to me; that while now I have not put Pen to Paper. And now that I am begun, I am so from making any further Apology for my Delay, that I am in doubt whether I ought to take any Notice of what is said of me.

" I affure you the Credit of the Author, whether Clergy or Layman, shou'd by no Means Engage me to regard it; as being above his Malitious, Vindictive, Falle and Contradictory Glosses. And clearly

Part 2. to show that he has not the least Regard to his own Credit, or the' Credit of the Church he presends to Write for, I am persuaded he do's not believe what he infinuates of me, viz. That I am a JACO-BITE; and GOMMONNEALTH's-MAN; an Undeniable Contradiction; and were it possible to be true, no ways Conclusive against Presbyterians: More than that because the Author is Malicious, Vindictive, without Regard to Truth, or Christian Charity. • therefore the Church of which he is a Member is Malicious &c.

> for The only Reason why I take Notice of what this Pamphleteer' says of me is, the Credit of his Informers, being both of late Iustices of the Peace; and from that Character only, what they luform . may have some Weight with those that know neither of us; but this Imy say, without Vanity, that where the Author, his Informers. and I are known, what they Alledge will have little Effect to my Prejudice.

But I shall not detain you longer from the Confideration of the. Particulars charg'd on me. The first is in Mr. Waring's Letter dated at Belsast, Mas 25th, 1710. p. 36, 37. Which runs thus, When we came to tender the Oaths to the D. Senters, they shew'd themselves A. verse to take them, very unwilling to serve in the Militia for the Dec: fence of the Country; and those of them that did take the Gaths, seemed. to take them thro' fear of Punishment, and by Compulsion; and with an · Apparent great Reluctancy, and many of 'em Absolutely resus'd to takethe said Oaths, or to be inlifted in the Militia, particularly when I Array'd the Inhabitants of the Parish of Temple-patrick, all or most of them being Tenants to Clotworthy Upton Esq; wou'd not take the Oaths, or be Inlifted. Mr. Shaw and I committed fourteen of 'em whom we had pitch'd upon for the Service, upon their Resusal to take the saidOaths. or to ferve in the Militia, the Names of those Persons are John Jackson, John Green-hall &c. before the Mittimus for these Persons to send them to Goal, con'd be drawn, they Petition'd to be Bail'd till the first of June following, being the next Meeting of the Commissioners upon Adjournment; Alledging they were Unacquainted with the Nature of the Oaths. and that in that time they wou'd inform themselves from their Landlord. . Mr. Upton, and the Presbyterian Teacher in the Said Parish of Tem-. plepatrick, of the Signification, and Import of the faid Oaths, and would & be advis'd with 'em about taking the faid Oaths &c.

1 desire to be Resolv'd in some plain Questions I shall put, 1. What.

WES.

Her Present Majesty Queen Anne. Ch. 4.

was Mr. Waring's Design in Writing that passage, and the Author's Part 2. Delign in Printing it? 2. Why Mr Waring Names me, and my Tenants so particularly, when he owns many Dissenters absolutely ree fused to take the said Oaths, or to be inlisted in the Militia? I will take upon me to give an obvious Answer to both, that must occur to every Reader at first View, viz That those two Gentlemen * design'd to mark me out as a Jecobite, and an Enemyto her Majefly, Tho' I am persuaded neither of them in their Conscie nce believes me so, and I am sure dare never say it. 3. By what law cou'd any man be compell'd to inlist in the Militia? 4. What Law impower'd the Commissioners of Array to press the Oaths upon all who were Summon'd upon that Occasion? 5 By what Law could the Resusers be sent to Goal? In other, parts of the Country, tho'twas thought the necessity, our Constitution, & the Protestant-Interest were then under, oblig'd'em to Array the Country, yet generally they did notice that necessity for a general Tender of theOaths, for which they cou'd produce no Law. But I shall with great Sincerity tell you the true Matter of Fact. I acknowledge that all the fourteen Persons nam'd, except one, were my Tenants, & most of 'em my Day-Laborers, some of them fo to my Father between 30 and 40 years; some of 'em and other of my Tenants came to me the Evening before, and told me they were Summon'dto appear next Day at the Array in Belfast and desired of me to know what theyshould do; my Answer was, if they were summon'd they ought to appear, but for Directions what they should do when there, I wou'd give 'em none, but bid 'em do · I have since discoursed severalos 'em who all say, they were in a as they thought best.

House for someHours under the Care of aConstable, or the High-Constable then Mr. Alexander Adair of Belfast, that they were advised to Consult me, but they told the Adviser, they did that before they lest Home, but that I wou'd give 'em no Advice, that they never petitioned, to be Released, on any Terms; much less on the Terms mention'd; that they were in Costody while Twenty Mitsimus's might have been wrote, that they heard James Craford the Constable of Templeparrick had entred into Bail for their appearance, but not with their Consent which they are ready to 's swear. And further to shew the Falshood of the Information, there was then no Presbyterian Minister belonging to the Parish of Templepatrick.

Now I shall give you the Reason why I did not advise 'em;

Part 2.

* and it shall be the same I gave in the House of Commons, as one Argument against pelling the Sacramental-Test-Clause; I declar'd it then as my opinion, and do now, that every Private Centinal & every Mditia-man by that Law is oblig'd to take the Sacrament according to the Rites and Ceremonies of the Church of Ireland; the reason of my opinion then, and now is, because Centinals and Militia-men have that great Trust repos'd in them, of being the prefervation of Garrison and Camp; many instances may be given, where the Treachery of such has ruined both army and Garrison: therefore I did not give my advice. And I must confess, were there nothing in it, but the Methods that have been sometimes taken to get Grand and petty Juries to find Rices, Trespasses, nay Treason, to serve a turn, when they have not had the tenth part of the Color of Law, as in this Case they have: it will make me more Cautious, how I Act, or Advise a thing whereby Men may be led into that, which may Ruin them by a pack'd Jury, of which there have been many Precedents in former Times.

This the Author calls p: 21. a Distinguishing themselves in all Marks of Passive-Obedience to the Pretender, upon his expected Invasion, of which more hereaster. I may without any Force on that Expression hereaster, say it refers to Mr. Waring's Letter; but I think I may say with greater Justice and Truth, that it's a distinguishing my self in all Marks of Passive-Obedience to the Law; and if my obedience to the law, happens to promote the Pretender's Interest, he restook in such Dissipations whereby Men are involved in such Dissipations: yet after all the Dissipations, I dare be bold to affirm on sure and certain Grounds, that where the Pretender has one Friend amongst the Presbyterians, he has twenty amongst those of another Persusion. May God of his infinite Mercy to these Kingdoms, her Majesty's Person, and our Happy Constitution, prevent the Experiment.

The next place I am attack'd in is p. 41. where the Author, to how the Intense of his Malice, must Usher in his Investive against me, over Head and Shoulders, with a Probability, and such a Probability, that it's not in his power to give the least ground for. The Passinge is this, Mr Charles O Nei'e when Commissioner of Array, was Expostulating with such of the Distincts who had raised their Set of Scruples against taking the Oaths, and asked one of 'em when sher

ther he would not swear to be true to the Queen? Sir, Reply'd the Fellow Part 2.
in the Face of the Country, we'll be true to the Queenias long as she will be art 2.

true to us. Then the Author proceeds thus,

It is Probable this Conditional Subject was a Disciple of a Celebrated Elder and Patriot in that Country who had the Hardynessto drink at a e Public Table to his Sovercign Lord the People. But such Untainted

Loyalisis would do well to Consider, That our Monarchy is not yet reduced so low, to be insulted in this Mainner with Impunity, &c.

I own my self the Person here describ'd, because I did drink at a Public-Table to our sovereign Lord the People. I am glid to find the Author obliged to own, that I am a Gelebrated Patriot; a Title I am proud of, and what I will ever eadeavor to deserve of my Country, but I desire to know how I can be that Patriot he describes me, and yet insult the Monarchy, for certainly no Person be a Celebrate Patriot that wou'd insult that well-Ordered fon can be a Celebrate Patriot that wou'd infult that well-Ordered Government, Under which he lives, as I take the Limited Monarchy of these Kingdoms to be the best in the World:

I desire to know of the Author, whether he looks on the Confitution of the English Government to be a Limited or an Absolute Despotic Monarchy? What ever his Thoughts, or Wishes may be, I suppose he will say the first; If then the Constitution of the English Government be a Limited Monarchy, I desire to know how that can be supported without a Conditional Subjection, which in Truth is the very Basis of the Revolution, and own'd by the present Lord Chancellor, vide D. Sacheverel's Tryal p. 209. But because Necessay, when the whole Frame and Constitution of the Government is Overturned; is a Condition in the English Monarchy that makes void Subjection, therefore this Fellow it's probable is a Disciple of mine, this is really strange Philosophy: and yet I dare be bold to say, he cannot produce a better Argument to prove his Probability. I know not the Fellow to this day, and never heard of this Passage but by this Author.

I must beg your Patience while I give you an Account, how it came that I drank this health, in as short a manner as possible, and refer my self to the Informer Mr Spencer and the rest of the Company present, whom I shall name as far as I can remember, for the Truth of what I shall now relate, at least the Substance of it; for I will not pretend to be particular in every Circumstance, and

EX

Part 2. Expression after so long a time: But do solemnly declare, that as I will not add to what I remember then past, so I will not diminish from the Truth.

'I remember the Bishap of Down and Connor, Dean Wilkins, Dr.

Henry Lesly, Mr. Walkington, Mr. Magill, Mr. Spencer, Capt. Brice

Mr William Craford and my self, with two or three other Clergymen, & some others whose Names I can't remember, were in company;

but the Occasion of the Health happening after Dinner, and some of the company going out and in, I cannot lay they were all present at the whole Discourse. The Occasion of this Meeting was the Distribution of the Mony Collected for Lisburn, most of 'em named being Commissioners for that Purpose.

4 After Dinner, One of the Company and I fell on the two General Topicks, then of Conversation; viz. Passive Obedience and Non-Resistance, and Hereditary Right; he alledg'd there was no Resistance made to the late King James; which oblig'd me to Instance the Glorious Behavior of our most Gracious Queen, when the whole Constitution was like to be overturn'd; the Bishop of London's being at the Head of a Troop of Horse, and Blood-shed in Skirmishes &c. I desir'd him to Reconcile Absolute Passive Obedience and Non-Resistance to the Revolution, and Hereditary Right to our Glorious King William, who had no such Right when made King, and to the Succession in the Illustrious House of Hanover who now has none, and I had done. I alledg'd if the Queen had not a Parliamentary Right, her Hereditary Right wou'd be much weakned, I alledg'd that if we had not had King William, we shou'd not have had the Happiness of our Gracious Queen Anne: that 't was the People made King William, King, and by the same Act Queen Anne, Queen : THEREFORE I drunk to our Sovereign Lord the People, 25 the Original, under God, of Government; by which Words I attributed no more Power to the People, than what the Lords and Commons of England have afferted in their Vote of the 28th of January 1688. in these Words, Resolved, that King James II. baving endeavored to Subvert the Constitution of this Kingdom, by breaking the ORIGINAL CONTRACT between King and People, &c. has Als. . DICATED the Government.

As to the SubRance of the Discourse, I appeal to the whole Company for the truth of it, and for the Innocency of the Expression, as it was Connected in my Discourse, I appeal to all the Lovers of Part 2. our Constitution; and let them judge, whether I insulted The Monarchy (as this Author falfly afferts) by using an Expression, which imported no more than an Approbation of the late Happy Revolutison, which restor'd our Monarchy to is's Glory and the People to their . Liberty; and therefore instead of insulting the Monarchy, I have fhown an hearty Concern for the Preservation and Happiness of it. And I defy Mankind to bey to my Charge, from any thing in my 4 Conversation or Behavior, the least Inclination or Tendency to Commonwealth-Principles, as this Author wou'd feem to infinuate against me. I believe Mr. Spencer was the Author's Informer, because foon after it happen'd, Mr. Spencer spoke of it in Dublin, which made a great Noise; for the Story went then with a gross Additition, and occasion'd a Friend of mine then in Dublin to speak to Mr. Spencer about it, who denied the Addition, but own'd he did fay, 1 Drank the Health, which I likewise own, in manner above.

The next place I am Attack'd in is p. $4. and here I must obferve, that the Author rather than miss me, will take up with a fecond-band Informer, tho' the Original Informer was within seven Miles of him. The Passage in Mr Waring's Letter, I own to be in Substance true. I did accost Mr Spencer at Carrichsagus in the Familiar manner therein express'd, by calling him band Brent &c. for there was no Reserv'd Conversation between us for several Years, we mutually us'd friendly Freedoms with each other of all kinds, he was as Welcome, and free in my house as in his own, and I apprehended I was the same in his, But now I find I was Mistaken: I wish I had been Undeceiv'd in-a more Gentlemanny Manner, than by revealing Private Conversation.

The whole Passage is not worth inserting; the only Use that the Author and his informers seem to design it for, is, to insinuate that I am a Jacobico, because I'm a Friend to Mr McGrackan, who hath not taken the Abjuration-Oath: To which I answer, that my having a very Particular Friendship for Mr McGrackan (which I freely own I have) do's not prove me to be a Jacobico: because I am so fure that Mr McGrackan himself is no Jacobico, that I am ready to Oblige my self to the Value of what I am Worth, for his Loyalty to the Queen, his Opposition to the Pretender, and for his being heart-tily in the Interest of the Protestant Subcession in the House of

PPP

Ha.

Part 2: Hanover. And I offer to find undeniable Security for forty them-Sand pounds for the Loyalty of all the three Non-Jurants, whom this Author groundlesses Acceptation freedwilm. And I can say it from Author groundlessy Accuseth of Jacobiii/m. And I can say it from my own Knowledge, and prove it by others, That that Great and Noble Patriot my Lord Donegal offer'd to be bound for Mr Mac-Bride to the Value of his Estate, which may answer the last Paragraph of Mr Waring's letter p. 80.

Tho' this Letter has exceeded what I at first thought it would. yet I must beg your Patience while I make one Observation, viz. That since this Word-Catching Author has been at so much pains in examining my Public Actions, and us'd so great Industry as to pry into my Private Conversation, and after all is Capable to make: no greater Discovery of my Disloyalty, Jacobitism and Communication wealth Principles, this proves me beyond Contradiction a most Loyal Subject, a true Haneverian, and real Lover of our present Happy Constitution, as Restor'd by our Glorious King William, and Preserv'd by our Gracious Queen Anne, in which Principles I'm. resolv'd to live and die. I am, Sir, Tour very Humble Servant, CLOT. UPTON.

In Mr Spencer's Account of the Array, there is a Passage told of Mr Grainger, and the Elders and other Presbyterians in Luburn, which plainly infinuates 'em to be Jacobites (p. 35, 36.) in these Words, Upon the Call of the Roll of such Persons, who were judged best "Qualify'd to serve, one Riebard Grainger, Merchant at Lisbarn, at the Head of several Ruling Elders, and other Presbyterians, upon 'the said Mr. Spencer's tendring the Outh of Megiance, absolutely refus'd to take the said Omb to her. Majesty; in which they all concurred to a Man, saying that there was something in that Oab re-Isting to the Prince of Wales, and that God forbid; they shou'd 'Iwear, That he was not King James's Son; upon which they defired time to consider of it, and went immediately out of the Court and in a short-time returned again, and said they had considered of it, and finding nothing in it relating to the Prince of Wales, were willing to take it, and accordingly did.

To this Mr. Grainger hath Reply'd in a Letter to his Friend as fol-

ICHAR!

Lisburn, September 8th. 1713. Sir, A Coording to your Defire, I here send you what I can Rememher, at such a distance of time, with Respect to what concerns me in the Conduct of Dissinters. (p. 35, 36.) especially confidering that I never Dream'd the Passage shou'd be Printed: Upon the calling the Roll in the Market-House of Lisburn, I do persectly remember, James Whittell who Lives in this Town and I were call'd, and we desir'd time to consider the Oath before we took it, which was eafily granted by Mr. Spencer and Mr. John Peers: if there were any Elders while I was in Court, I do not remember that I saw them: but this I can say as if I were upon Oath, That my Neighbout James Whittell and I only sought time to consider the saidOath, and about half an hour after, we came and pleasantly took the Oath, and 4 I declare I am as free to take the Oath against the pretended Prince of Wales, as any: Sir, Yours &c. RICHARD GRAINGER.

Sir, I let James Whittell see the Above, and if necessary he will put his Hand to it,

R. G.

Mr. Spencer has been Misinform'd about John Young, one of those who refus'd to take the Oath at Lisburn upon the Array, when he says that the said Young was Married to Mr. Mc. Crackan's Sister; Mr. Mc. Crackan having had no Sister these Sixty Years past, and the said John Young has given it under his Hand in a Certificate which I have in my Custody, that he is neither Married to Mr. Mc. Crackan's Sister, nor that he refus'd the Oath with the least degree of Insolence or Impudence, and that he spoke to Mr. Spencer in these Words, as for to Swear against Pope or Popery, I'm very Wising, and to Maintain the Queen & the Pretestant Religion as far as Life & Ability will go, but as to this Oath, I have never seen it before, do not understand it, and therefore cannot now take it. This honest Man was just offering to Swear all that was in the Oath, which was the Case of divers who refus'd it at that time.

Our Author infinuates that the Presbyterian Ministers discourag'd the People from taking the Oaths, and that they did it from Disassection and Disrespect to her Majesty's Service; of this he pretends to Name but two Instances; and tho' both of 'em be salse, he draws a general Conclusion against the whole, which wou'd not sollow, even tho'

Ppp 2

the

Par. 2: the two Instances had been both true: The first Instance he mentions is (p. 39.) that of the Reverend Mr. Patrick Adair Presbyterian Minister at Carrickserges, of whom Mr. Mashews Curate of that Place tells a Story of Mr. Adur's going out of Town on the day of the Array in Carrickfergus, tho' the Mayor had desir'd him to stay, and advise the People to take the Oath. This is a mistake in Fact, as will appear by Mr. Adair's Letter, and the Certificates he has obtain'd for disproving: Mr. Marbows's Marrative; which I will insert under the following: Head, because the Letter has some things in it relating to that, as well as the second titead, which I am now upon. His second instance is of Mr. Me. Crarkin whom he Accuses in these Words (p. 41.)

Mr. Mc. Crackun the Non-Juning Teacher of Lisburn, at a Commis-

nion held in the Parish of Anabile, in the County of Down, about 2: or 3 Years ago, Preached a Sermon upon a Text out of Galatians, Chap. 5. Vers. 1: His Method of speaking to it was, First, He In-' larg'd upon the Slavery of the Jewish Tokeof Ceremonies; Next he "descended to the Popish Yoke; and then sell to a Third Yoke, in the manner following, viz. There is (flays be) another Toke, as bad as any 6- of the former, I mean the Toke of Common-Prayer, of Kneeling, of the Sign of the Cross, of the Surplice &c. That is the Devil's Yoke, and they that bear it are in the way to Hell. I see a great many of you bere that go that way, I will you again it is the Devil's Yoke; wat Christ's People they ' Say are to be tryed by it; but I say, they that are Christ's People will ne" ver submit to it; and for my part-1 think the Government have no Good in their Byes.

Mr McCrackan owns that he preach'd at Meabile on Galatians 9.1.and that the Scope of his Discourse was to describe true Christian Liberty, & the Obligation the Church lyes under to maintain it, & that he took Occasion to discourse of a fix-fold roke, from which Christ hath made us free, viz. 1. From the Law as a Covenant of Works, by bringing in a better Heb. 8.6. 2ly From the Curse of the Law by being made a Carfe for us Gal. 3. 13. 3ly, From the Dominion of Sin II our Souls and Bodies, Rome. 6. 11, 12. 4/y From the Tyranny of Satan, 2 Tim. 2. 16. Hvb. 2. 14, 15. 5ly From the Ceremonial law injoining Priesty Sacrifices and Levitical Ceremonies, Astr 15, 15. Cal. 4, 4, 4. Cel. 2: 14. 6ly. From the whole Train of human laventions; as parts in, or of the Worthip of God: This takes in, 1. The Doctrines of Men, and Church-Traditions brought in as Rules to or parra

Her Present Majesty Queen Anne. Ch. 4.

parts of the Worship of God Matt. 13: 9. 2ly, That High Priestly Parc 2. Hierachy, supported now by the Pope and his Subordinate Prelates, he taking on him that of a Head to the Church, of which we know of none but our Lord Jesus, Eph. 2. 21, 22. nor are we lest to be Subject to a Lordly Domination, which he hath not appointed, Lute 22. 25. 26. 1 Pet. 5. 3, 3ly, We are free from the Yoke of Uninstitutted, Significant Rites, and Ceremonies, such as Bowing, Kneeling, Crosing, Observation of Saints-days &c: This he owns, but that he said the Common-Prayer, Kneeling, Cross, Surplice were the Devil's Yoke, he denies; and is willing to Appeal to any 4, 6. or 10. Judicious Mearers then present, nor doth he believe any such will say it. And me declares he was so far from saying it, that to his Knowledge he had never any such Thought in his mind, nor never remembers to have read or heard of such an Expression, but from this Author. He also denies, that he said those who bear it (if this be understood of Common Frayer, kneeling, surplice &c) are in the way to Hell: Tho' he do's not deny that he said so of all those who bear the Devil's Yoke indeed, and who are under his Tyranny: which he believes every true: Christian, and every sound divine do's allow to be true. And he Absolately denys. that he spoke these undecent and uncharitable wordsof the Government, vizi. that they had no good in their Eyes; and says, that the uttering of these or any such like words was what he always hated, as being very inconsistent with the duty and Gratitude

A third fault our Author finds with Presbyterians during this Reign, is, the Insolency of their Address to the Queen upon the Pretender's design'd Invasion, and the unfair Methods they took to procure addresses from others, upon that occasion. In the beginning of the year 1708, while the Nations were alarm'd with an Invalion design'd by the Pretender, The Presbyterian Ministers of the North of Ireland drew up a most Dutiful and Loyal Address to Her Majesty, with fresh Assurances of their steddy Resolution to adhere to Her Majesty's Interest, and to that of the Protestant Succession against the common Enemies of both; This is the Address our Author quarels. With for having most exalted Encomiums of their own great' Merit from Her Majesty and the public p: 3 3. Thut part of the Address he referrs. to, and teems to Consure for it's Vanity is in these words. Our unminted Loyalty in all turns of Government, our early zeal for the he ows to them, for their great lenity towards him.

Part 2. fall upon, for want of better reasons.

Our Author falls foul upon Mr Adair of Carricksergus, for his unfair practices in procuring such an address in Carricksergus, as had been agreed to by the City of Dublin: In answer to which, Ishall here Infert a true Copy of Mr Adair's Letter to his Friend, which is as follows.

> Carrickfergus 30th April 1713. SIR,

' In your last to me you defire to know, how far I am able to 4 Vindicate my felf from what I am Charged with in that pamphe let, Called, the Conduct of the Diffenters &c. I shall therefore set what relates to me in such a clear light, as may undeceive those who have been imposed upon, by the Author of the said pamphlet & his Correspondents.

' I am Accused by the said Author of 2 things, the first is reprefented (p, 32) in these words "Great art was used, and Apof plication Made, wherever they had the least influence to obtain 44 Addresses to Her Majesty with Innuendos, that their incapacities by the Test-Act was a Grievance to the Nation. Managers in this Affair there was one Adair, the Presbyterian 16 Teacher at Carrickfergus, who had Clandestinely procur'd an Address of his own to be subscribed by some few of the Town-jury, without the privity either of the Mayor, Aldermen, Recorder or Burgesses of that Corporation; which they so highly resented, that they sent up the following Advertisement to Dublin, to be <sup>46</sup> published in a Printed News-paper, which was accordingly done in the Rying-Post for September the 30th 1708.

The true state of the case is this. The Grand Jury of the County of the Town of Carricksergus drew an Address to the same purpose with that of the City of Dublin; and it was presented to Her Majesty by the Earl of Penbrook at St. James's May 21 1708, and Her Majesty was pleased to receive it graciously, as appears from the London-Gazette Published by Authority from thursday May 2016 to Munday May 24. 1708.

As to the charge against me for mannageing the said adres, it consists of three parts; one is, that I should have Claudestiney procured an Address of my own; another is, that it was subscribed by a sew of the Town-jury, a third is, without the privity of the Mayor:

Her Present Majesty Queen Anne. Ch. 4

Aldermen, Recorder or Burgesses of that Corporation. It is sur- Part 2. oprizing, to think with what Assurance the Author publisheth such mistakes: when they can be so Easily disprov'd, and my Vindiea-stion so well attested, as appears by the following Certificate. WHEREAS, in a late Pamphlet Entitled the Conduct of the Dissenters &c.it is set forth, that an Address to Her Majesty Entituled &c.

wherein was signified the Grievances the Nation lay under by the Late. Test-Act was clandestinely procured by one Adair (by whom we suppose tley mean the Reverend Mr Patrick Adair and subcribed by some few of the Jury. NOW therefore we the subcribers being all (Except ene John Macomb who is since dead) that were upon the Grand jury,

Enquiring for our Sovereign Lady the Queen, and the Body of the County of the Town of Carricktergus at the General Quarter-sessions of the Peace beld at the Tholsel of the said Town, when and Where the said Address was made, do hereby Certify that the said Address was done by our order, and by each of us Subscribed, when all together conveened, and upon our Oaths, At said Sessions Enquiring for our Sovereign Lady the Queen. Witness our Hands the 21 ft day of January 171;

. William Mc Hendry James Irwin James Morison James Watson David Merison John Mathems William Fairfoote Josiah Hamilton Daniel Mckirk John Brown John Campbell William Jafrie William Bell John Jackson

From which you see, the Address was procured by the Grand Jury, and therefore, not Clandestinely procured by me, subscribed by every Member of the Jury, therefore not by a few only, and by Mr John Brown. Mr James Irwin, and Mr David Hood Burgesses, therefore not without the privity of all the Burgeffes, withal the Address was put into a shop in the most public part of the Town, and there subscribed by the Gentlemen & Inhabitants of the Town without Distinction, as well those of the Establish'd Church, as Presbyterians.

This might be done, without the privity of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Recorder: the Grand-jury whose Address it was, very well knew they were bound by their Oath to do what might any way Contribute to the Interest of their Gracious So-

Qqq

vereigh

Part 2. vereign and those they represented; and therefore concluded, that they might frame an Address for these ends.

'The secondthing Objected against me is, with Relation to my Behavior at the time of the Array of the Militia, it's contain'd in a part of Mr. Mathems's Letter inserted by the Author (p. 39) in these Words; You know what opposition the Commissioners of Array met with in the County of Antrim upon the Array of the Militia, which made our then Mayor Mr. Horseman, apprehensive of the same difficulties in Arraying the Militia of this Place; and therefore as the likeliest way to obviate them, apply'd himself to Mr. Adair the Presbyterian Teacher of this Town; desiring that he would with his Presence and Advice Influence those of his Persuasion, Peacembly to take the Oaths offered to them by the Commissioners; notwithstanding which Request, and that the Resulat of the Oaths in the County of Antrim made a great Noise, and was Spreading amongst the Crowds have, whether industriously or no, I cannot tol, That they must all swear to be Churchmen; when the presized day came, Mr Adair, to the Mayor's great surprize, thought it most convenient to Kide out of Town. This, Sir, is the plain matter of Patt, for the truth of which I will be answerable.

I Communicated this part of my Charge to Richard Horseman Esq; the only Person that could fix it on me, if Guilty, and clear me if Innocent; he did not only tell me that he remembred no such thing, but has been pleased to favour me with the following

Certificate,

ters &c. it is set forth, that upon Arraying the Militia of Carrick-tergus at the time when the Pretender Endeavour'd to Invade North-Britain, I being then Mayor of the said Town, should have applyed my self to Mr. Adair the Presbyterian Teacher, desiring that he would by his Presence and Advice Influence those of his Persuasion Peaceably to take the Oaths offered them &c. I therefore do hereby Declare and Certificathat I do not remember that I did speak to him upon any such Accounts Dated this 27 April 1713.

Richard Horseman.

Which shows I might have gone out of Town any time that day the Militia was Arrayed without surprixing, disappointing or disable ing the Mayor: And if I had been spoke to by the Mayor, I gave him him no ground to be offended at my going out of Town about six p of the Clock Afternoon, seeing the Array was over about Noon the ' same day; for which I refer my self to the following Certificate. L

Do hereby Certifie that the day the Militia of Carricksergus was 'Arrayed upon the Pretender's pretending to Invade Great-Britain, the Reverend Mr. Pat Adair was in Town in Company with Richard Horseman Esq sthen Mayor, and Others, and did continue in the said Town till fix of the Clock in the Asternoin of the said day, long before which time the Array was over. Dased this 19th of Febr. 1712-3.

Wm, Wilkison.

It had been the Author's Advantage, he had produced his Authority for what he advanced against me upon Managing the Address, as he. has done against me in my behavior upon Arraying the Militia, That of the Address salls upon himself, that of the Array upon Mr. Matthews. I hope when the Reverend Mr. Matthews hears any thing to my Difadvantage, he will give me an Opportunity of Confessing if Guilty, or · Vindicating my self if Innocent, this will be according to the Rule of the Gospel, and a kindness to himself as well as to me. I have sent you the Original Certificates, from which I drew the Copies Infer-Sir. Yours &c. ted in my Letter, I am,

PAT. ADAIR. I have seen those Original Certificates reser'd to in Mr. Adair's Letter, and find the Copies he gives of them to be exact. And upon the whole, the Reader will see that our Author's Argument against Dissenters wou'd be very good, were it no for two things that are wanting in it, viz. Truth in fact, and good Reasoning in his Consequences.

The fourth Fault our Author finds with Distenters in Ireland, during this Period, is, Their joining with the Town of Belfast in defending a Suit against the Interest of the Church. He expresseth himself thus, (p. 424) 'About this time the Minister of Belfast was cast in a Suit, which highly concern'd the Interest of the Establish'd Church of Ireland; the Judgments and Reasons upon which it was grounded having entirely defeated the Act of Parliament, for the Provision of Ministers in Towns Corporate, and affected most if not all the Commissions of Valuation which had been, or cou'd be granted by Virtue of that Act.

He first endeavours to make the Cause Odious, and then he purpofeth to gain his End, by shewing the Dissenters engaged in it, of whom

Qqq2

Part 2. he says, (p. 43.) There never surely was any Suit, which the Dissenters in general made more a Party-Cause, and which they and their Advocates laid more to heart; and indeed (all things being consider'd) it is not to be wondred at, being likely to prove of the last Conse quence to the Interest of the Kirk, upon several Accounts.

As to the Merits of the Cause, our Author acquaints us that he intends very soon to publish a full Account of it: but I hope it will be a more just one, than what's contain'd in the little Abstract of it, he has given in his Book; the unreasonableness whereof will appear to such as seriously Peruse a Printed half Sheet, with the State of that Case, publish'd before Judgment was given in the Queen's Bench, in favor of the Town. The Town of Belfast (tho' a Corporation of an hundred Years Standing) never paid House-Mony to their Vicar, who was formerly call'd Vicar of Schankill, that being the Ancient Name of the Parish of Beljast: The late Incumbent Mr. Echlin, and his Successor the present incumbent Dr. Tisdall, carried on a Suit against the Town, and Claim'd the House-Mony by Virtue of the Statute 17. & 18. Car. 2di. Cap. 7. Entitled, An All for Provision of Ministers in Cities, Corporate-Towns &c. Whereupon, the Corporation of Belfast, being advis'd by Council, That they were not included in the Letter or Meaning of the said Act of Parliament, desended their Rights, and Pleaded from the Preamble of the said Statute, which runs thus. That whereas there are SMALL OR NO TITHES OR OTHER DUTIES sectled by Law upon the Incumbents who have Actual Care of Souls in the City and Suburbs of Dublin, and the Liberties thereunto adjoyning, and in other Cities and Towns Corporate of this your Majesty's Kingdom of Ireland. Therefore be it Enacted &c. That they were not Affected by it, seeing Belieft is a Vicarage Endow'd by Law with Glebe-Land, all the small Tithes, and a third of the great Tithes; and that by a modest Computation, the Product of these and of the other Dues paid by the Inhabitants of the Town of Belfast to their Vicar. will amount Communibus Annis to 180 lb. per Annum, which they Pleaded from Adjudg'd Cases was a Competency for the Vicar, and that therefore the Reason of the Law was not binding in their Case. And they farther Pleaded, that the faid Sum of 180 lb. per Annum shou'd not be look'd upon as a Competency, yet even in that Case, which is the most favorable supposition for the Vicar, he can't legally Recover House-Money from the Inhabitants of the Town, but must

Her Present Majesty Queen Anne. Ch. 4.

Sue for an Augmentation to his Maintenance out of the Restorial Tithes, Part 2, because he that receives the Impropriation of these Tithes ought to Endow the Vicar with a Competent Maintenance.

These were some of the Pleas made by the Corporation of Belfast, and upon which Judgment was given in their Favor, agreeable to the Intention of the Act of Parliament. And the same can never be Prejudicial, either in it self or it's Consequences, to the Establish'd Church, because it deprives 'em of no Right to which they have any Legal Title; nor can it affect any Valuation that has been made in any Town Corporate, according to Law. And shou'd our Author be able to produce any Instance of a Valuation, granted in a Case Parallel to that of Beljast. i.e. where the Minister has at least 180 lb per Annum, and where there are sufficient Rectorial I iches to supply the Defects of his maintenance, if there be any, 'twou'd be no linju-ry to the Church that such a Valuation were made void, because not Legal. And in the mighty Noise this Author has made about this matter, he has not been so tender of the Reputation of the Church, as he ought to have been. For instead of it's being for the Interest of the Church, 'tis rather a Reflection upon 'em, to seek what is mt their own, and not to rest Contented with the Provision the Laws of the Kingdom have made for the Clergy, which is as handsome and Generous in Ireland (especially for the Inserior Clergy) as in any Establish'd Protestant Church in the World; and therefore our Author, if he had thought fit, might have forbore the heavy Complaints he makes Of sinking the Income of the Establish'd Clergy, Calling it & Dragonable . state, into which this Judgment wou'd reduce all Ministers in Towns Corporate in this Kingdom.

That the Dissenters in general made this Law-Suitin Bellast a Party-Cause, is utterly denied. And it can be made appear, from thosewho Collected the Mony for defending the Right of the Corporation, that not one Penn, was paid towards it by any, but by the Inhabitants of the Town of Bessast, who were all personally concerned it, and were to be affected by the Judgment to be given upon it: And almost all the inhabitants of any Figure and Substance, of ALE PERSUASIONS, did with equal Cheartulness make their Voluntary Contributions towards it. And the Dissenters were far from following the Examples of the Convocation, who indeed made it a Party Cause, and warmly Recommended it to the Clergy for their Assistance, as appears from the

Pub 1- 1

Part 2. Public Printed Paper of the Lower. House of Convocation, directly es. pouling it as the Cause of the Church.

The fifth Fault our Author finds with Presbyterians, during this Period is, their Insolent Behaviour about the Tithes, instanced in the Case of Arch Deacon Ford's Prostor & the People to whom he was setting his Tithes, where he tells a Ridiculous Story (p. 46.) in theie Words ' it seems during that Struggle, they were Spirited up to the same Height, that they had been, when they Petitioned the King for the Church-Livings, as before-mentioned. And this you maylearn from the second Relation, given to meby the Revd Mr Ford Archdeacon of Derry, with Authority to publish it viz. That when his Proctor George Leake was setting his Tithes in the Diocess of Perry for the Year 1710, several of the Parishoners demanded of the said Leake, that he should engage before Witnesses, to return the several Sums agreed for, provided that they, who were Dissenters should be Exempted from Paying their Tithes, before the Terms of their Respective Payments became due.

Our Author Compares this instance with another he had Accused 'em of before viz. Their Petitioning the King for the Church-Livings, wherein I think he is very much in the Right; the Comparison is very apt, & wellChosen: For I have shown[p, 406.8rg.] that they presented no such Petition. And 'tis probable, this Story of the Archdeacon's Prodor is either a meer-fest of some of these Drolling Country-Farmers, or the Height of Folly, if they were in Earnest; which needs nothing else to demonstrate it, but the Terms of their own Proposals, viz. That be should return the several Sums agreed for, pravided that they who were Dissenters should be exempted from paying their Tithes, before the Terms of their Respective Payments became due. For how could the Sums be returned before they were paid, or is it credible, that they would be paid before the Terms of their Respective Payments became due? And if they were not paid before that, in case the Dissentershou'd be Exempted frompaying beforetheRespective paymentsbecamedue, in that Case they needed no Covenant to secure 'em, because there would be nothing due by 'em. And therefore such asenseless Proposal could come from no wise man, nor cou'd it be the Effect of any general Concert of Resolution of the Dissenters.

What he offers about their Synods, and Missionaries as he calls them, inveding the Conformists Congregations, and their Manag-

ments

ments in Drogheda (all which he touches shortly in this Period) shall Part 2. be set in a true Light, when I come to consider his more Particular Account of these Fasts in the last Part of this Book; Upon the whole, I must submit it to the Judicious Reader, whether our Author has not industriously rak'd into a Parcel of (at best) ill Attested and ground-less Stories, unreasonably strain'd, to sully the Characters of Loyal, Peaceable and Sound Protestants. I have been obliged (by his Method) to mention some sew things, particularly the Instances of Charity, under the former Reign, which Properly belong to this Period; Which I did, to prevent the Trouble of going back to Review his Accounts of em, after I had finished what properly belonged to that Reign.

Part 3:

PART III.

Wherein the Second and Third Parts of the Pamphlet Entitled, The Conduct of the Dissenters of Ireland with respect both to Church and State, are Examin'd.

CHAP. I.

Wherein the first Four Facts Charged upon Presbyterians in the Second Part of the Conduct of the Dissenters viz, 1st. Their Synods and Assemblies. 21y, Their Ruling Elders. 31y, The private Philosophy-School of Killeleagh, and 4thly, Their Writing and Preaching against the Establish'd Form of Marriage; Are Set in a true Light, and a Modest Apology offered for them.

ur Author Undertakes in his second Part of his second Letter to give an Enumeration of some particular Fasts well attested, illustrating and confirming what is affirmed of them in the first Part. And there-Dre; the natural Method of treating this subject will oblige me, sirft, to consider thefalts byhim alledged against Presbyterians, &then, 2/y, in-Part 3. quire how far they illustrate and confirm what he has affirmed against 'em in his first part.

The first of these he sets forth in these terms p: 48.

FACT I.

The Dissenters of this Kingdom (says be) presume so far to exert the inherent Right of Christ's Kingdom, as they phrase Presbyterian Government) that they conveen when and where they please, form themselves into Presbyteries, Classical and Provincial Synods. in which Assemblies, by the principles of their Ecclesiastical Polity, they exercise a jurisdiction superior to and Independent of the Civil Ma gistrate, in Many Instances. These Assemblys are Frequent and · Numerous of late, very publick, with an appearance of Authority, at fome times: as private with doors and Windows shut, at other * Times: insomuch that all Considerate Men are amaz'd at their Prefumption, and Alarmed at the Manner of their proceedings.

Let us hear what the Presbyterian Ministers in the North of Ireland offer in their own de sence, in their humble Address and Apology to her Majesty, with respect to this very fact (Vide present State of Religion in Irelando. 28) 'That we not only meet for the Worship of God, but also in smaller and larger Societies, for preserving of Order, purging our Communion of Scandalous and irregular Perfons, & for suppressing Immorality and profaneness, is what we free-! ly acknowledge to your Majesty. And those Meetings (as their Lordships observe) are commonly called Synods and Indicatories, being so termed in these Churches where they have Civil sancsion.

! These Judicatories in North-Britain being Established by the British Parliament, as a FUNDMENTAL of that UNION which your Majesty has in your Gracious speeches from the Throne declared to be One of the greatest Glories of your Reign : We humbly hope, that your Majesty's Permission of them here, to those of the same principles, will not be Prejudicial to your Prerogative.

And we humbly beseech your Majesty to rest Assured, that nothing derogatory to your Majesty's Honor and Safety, nor to the Royal Dignity and Prerogative of the Crown, was ever so much

Rrr

Chap. r. The Loyalty and Peaceableness

Part 3. as once moved or thought upon in any of these Meetings. No Civil Affairs were ever under their Consideration: None but those who voluntarily declared themselves to be of their personation, were at any time affected by them. No Coercive power was ever exercised upon any, nor was there ever any Circumstance or Management in these Meetings inconsistent with the peace of the Kingdom, or with the Liberties, and Properties of your Subjects.

> This Contains afull Answer to our Author's general Charge, about this fast: As to the principles of Presbyterians, about Courch-Government, and the rules of their Discipline, and their opinion about the Inherent or Intrinsic power, I have considered them in the first part of this book, and Vindicated 'em from our Author's Calumnious Misrepresentations of 'em as injurious to the Civil Magistrate.

Her Majesty has been graciously pleas'd to allow her Presbyterian Subjects in Ireland the Liberty of Meeting for the Public Worship of God; according to their Consciences: And therefore they Humbly hope, that her Royal Wisdom and Clemency will permit them to meet in those Assemblies likewise, which are necessary (in their humble opinion,&according to the principles which their Consciences dictate to them) for the decent ordering of their Worshiping Assemblies, the purging of them of scandalous and irregular persons, for preventing the sacred and solemn seals of the New Covenant from being prostituted to the openly prophane, contrary to the Invariable rules of the Golpel, and the pious Constitutions of the primitive, & of all the Resemble Churches in the world; and for preventing the people from being seduced in their principles, and debauched in their Morals, by Heretical and Scandalous persons creeping into, and continuing in the Office of the bely Ministry.

How can they enjoy the Liberty of public Worship, unless their Pustors be allowed to Meet and to Ordain qualified Peisons, to preside in it? How can they Administer the Sacraments to their People, without Encouraging Scandalous Enormities, unless they may be allowed a Liberty of denying them to Impenitently Scandalous Offenders? and how can they do this without hearing them, and endeavoring to Reform them? Wou'd it not be a Reproach to the Protestant Religion, and tend to the Dishonor of God, to permit a Man that is an open Heretick or lewdly profane, to be a Presbyterian Minister? And how

田山

Of their Presbyteries and Synods. Chap. 1,

Part 3.

shall Presbyterian Ministers shew their Regard to the Honor of Religion, to the Souls of Men whom they have the charge of, and to the Welfare of Civil Society and the Nation, if they shou'd not discountenance every such Person? Might not all Men think them Particland Base, if they shou'd admit any one to be a Minister or a Member of any of their Congregations, or to continue such, merely because he professed himself to be a Presbyterian, tho' otherwise void of all good Principles and Morality? This wou'd be the vilest of Party-Interests, and wou'd show Men to be more Zeasous for Presbytery than for Christianity.

Would it not be an ungrateful Return to Her Majesty's Royal Clemency, in permitting them to enjoy under her Auspicious Government, the Liberty of their public Worship, shou'd they allow their Worshipping Assemblies to be the Sanctuaries of Vice and Error, and their Pulpits to Chime the deceitful Notes of Unsound Dostrine, instead of conveying the joyful sound of the Gospel to Immortal Souls. Reformation of Manners is not so far advanced, as to supersede the necessity of a joint vigorous opposition, from Protestants of all Persuasions, to the Rampant Wickedness and growing Iniquities of the Age. I can't but conclude, that the' her Majesty has given all the Proofs which the Church of England can desire, of her being entirely in their Interest, it would be very agreeable to a Prince of her Piety, to find that the Power of Godliness were Thriving and Cherish'd in the Dissenting;

as well as in the Establish'd Congregations of her Subjects.

Both Churches, Episcopal and Presbyterian, are agreed, that Godly Discipline is very necessary in every Church; they are agreed, as to the true ends of it too; only they differ as to the Persons, with whom the Power of it ought to be Lodged. It is not my business, in this Book, to Debate which of their Schemes is the best; but Iwou'd fain know, what harm wou'd there be in a mutual forbearance of one another in this point. There is a great body of found Protestants in Ireland, who, the they Love and Honor all good Men of the Episcopal Communion, yet never had freedom and clearness in their Consciences to join with Episcopacy; and who dare not, for fear of Sinning against God, forfake their Principles, until they be once convinc'd of their being in the wrong: These People are allowed to Worship God publickly in their own way; where can the harm be of allowing them to use all the endeavors thy can, for Reforming wicked Men from their simful Rrr Cour

Chap. 1. The Loyalty and Peaceableness

Part 3. Courses, and for preventing their Congregations from being Insested by the Contagion of bad example? Tis true, their Brethren of the EpiscopalCommunion do think, that every one ought to submit to their · Establish'd · Church-Government, and that this wou'd Answer all the ends of Discipline; but I must observe that they are likewise of Opinion, that every one shou'd Joyn in their Worship too, and be constantly of their Communion; and yet considering that Presbyterians are found Protestants, agreeing with themselves in all the Fundamentals of the Reform'd Religion, they must think that the difference is tolerable, and. therefore, that the Dissenters ought not to be Persecuted in that point, meerly for Conjcience sake. I must confess, I can see no reason why the same forbearance oughe not to be shown 'em in the matter of their Discipline, as in their Worship: For in both, the Plea is the same. The Presbyterians think that their Worship is the purest and most Scriptural, and they have the same Sentiments of their Discipline. They think the Word of God obliges their Pastors to meet in Collegiste and Assomes Bodies, sor their joint Acting in matters merely Ecclesiastical; and that theyoffend God the Supreme Legislator, if they neglect this Duty: And while they and their People retain this Principle, they must Act in Pursuance of it.

> Hereupon I wou'd offer to the Consideration of all sober and mode. rate Conformists, whether it were not better for the advancement of Piety and Religion, to permit the Presbyterian Ministers to Meet Peaceably for the ends abovemention'd, without Molestation; Whether it be not likely, that a Method which is entirely agreeable to the Consciences of the People Mon'd do then most good, for Restraining them from Sin, and gaining all the ends of Discipline; or, whether a forcible Compulsion of Men's Conscience to Submit to What is Repugnant toit's Dictates can have that Weight and Influence upon them, in the Exercise of Discipline, and for gaining it's valuable Ends.

The Question is shortly reducible to these terms, Whether seeing both Episcopals and Prosbyterians are agreed, that for the suppressing of iniquity and immorality, there ought to be Discipline, and that it is a great sin so neglect it, and seeing Presbyterians declare that in Conscience they can't conform to the Scheme and Model of it used in the Established Church; whether (1 say) in this case the Presbyterians thall have no hemefit of any Discipline; or, whether they should be forced to submit to one against their conscience; or, whether they shall be permitted to use it, as they have done above seventy years by past in Ireland? With submission, think the Resolution very easy. For, to deny them the Benefit of all Discipline is to give loose reins to all kind of wickedness; and whether Presbytery or open Immorality be more tolerable, let the world judge. By forcing any one Scheme upon 'em against their Consciences, the ends of Discipline can never be obtain'd. Fines, Imprisonments, & Banishment may make men H. pocrites, but will never make them Good Christians nor good Church. Men, as Experience abundantly shows. And therefore it seems plain to ne, that 'tis better to permit them the Liberty of their own Scheme, than either to force another upon 'em that won't reach the End, or to deny them Discipline altogether.

Of their Presbyteries and Synods Chap. 1.

This fast set thus in a true Light, can never be Prejudicial either to Church or State, and therefore can never confirm what our Author has affirmed against Presbyterians in the first Part of his second Letter. Let him disprove (if he can) what their Ministers aver to her Majesty, in their above-mentioned Apology. And unless the promoting of Piety, and the consulting of the best Expedients they can think of for opposing Sin, be thought Prejudicial to the Clurch, I know no Prejudice they receive by such Meetings. Besides, 'tis Evident from the Reverend Mr Hall's Letter, in name of the largest Meeting of them, in the case of Mr Liston, which I have inserted p. 414. that such Meetings are useful and have been accordingly used, for correcting the Indiscretions of any of their own Members to the Established Church; so far are they from doing any thing, that is unneighbourly or undecent.

But our Author, from the General Account he gives of this fact, descends to a particular instance of the procedure of a Meeting of Presbyterian Ministers, in the case of Mr William Gray; (a Minister of their Persuasion, near the City of London-Derry) which he thinks may serve for all: He gives the Narrative of this Case, as (he says lit was read by the Reverend Arch-deacon Andrew Hamilton, in his information to the Convocation August 1711.

I shall give the Reader a short and true Account of it, from the Minutes of those Meetings who considered it, and show wherein the Reverend Doctor Hamilton has been missinformed in some circum-fluis-

Ch. 1. The Loyalty and Peaceableness

Part 3: tances; and then Vindicate the proceedings of the Ministers, from the invidious Reflictions cast upon cm by our Author.

Mr William Gray, tho' a man of Good sense and a good Preacher, finding that he cou'd not obtain the consent of his Parents, Matry'd Clandest inely, and conceal'd it for a considerable time. As soon as it was discovered, the Presbytery reproved him, suspended him from his Ministry, and sent one of their Number to receive his Penisemial Acknowledgment before his Congregation: which he made very readyly, and very much to the satisfaction of all who heard him. In the mean time, they were under some difficulty about sustaining his Marriage, because he offered only one witness to prove it; and refuled to acquaint them with the name of the Person, who Married him, being under some Engagement to conceal that, as he affirmed; but upon their Opinion of his Veracity, with the concurrent Testimony of that one witness, they believed he was really Married. In the mean time, One Stephenson who lived near London-Derry, accused the said Mr Gray of Notorious scandalous practises, which he with great A-Jurance and Violence offered to prove against him, and this laid the Presbytery under a necessity of hearing what the said Stephenson could say: The fame of this being spread through the Country, Mr Gray's Congregation, which is very numerous, came to hear what cou'd be said against their Minister, whom they still believed so be innocent. The Presbytery were obliged, for their satisfaction, and for the satisfaction of many others who were longing to know the issue, to inquire into this Matter publickly in the Meeting-house of London-Derry with open doors, where they took an Account of what Stephenson's Evidences cou'd say. Stephenson alledging that they were partial in favor of Mr Gray, applyed to a Meeting of all the other Presbyteries at Antrim in June 1706, Upon which that Presbytery stopt any Yurther proceedings, at that time. The aforesaid Meeting in Jum 1706, finding Stephenson adhere to his Accusation against Mr Gray, and that he pretended he cou'd not bring his Witnesses so far abroad, but that he cou'd prove all, if some Ministers and Elders were allowed by them to hear this Cause in some convenient Place, where they could attend, did therefore concert that sixteen Ministers and as many Elders shou'd meet at Strabane, and bring that matter to an issue : and that the Presbyterian Minister there shou'd be allowed to signific to att Persons of our Fersuasion, who eitherby Stepbension or Mr Graf shou'd be alledged capable of discovering the truth in that affair, that it was their earnest desire, they might appear and declare it before Part 3:

When this Committee met, they first spent some time in Prayer for Divine Direction; and there being a great Number of Mr. Gray's Congregation present, desiring to be heard in his case, and divers Gentlemen and others of the Country, and some of 'em of the Establish'd Church, who desired the favour of being admitted to be present as Auditors, The Committee cou'd not, in point of Discretion and Civility hinder them, which was the Cause of their Managing so publickly. They finding, that Mr. Holmes, Presbyterian Minister at Strabane; had sent Advertisements to some Persons who were Members of the Establish'd Church, did publickly declare, it was never their Intention to give him any Instructions to that purpose; and he as publickly declared, that he knew not of their being of the Communion of the Church.

After a full Hearing of all that was offer'd by Mr. Gray's Accuser, and his Detences (wherein they spent several days) they came to an Unanimous resolution, that there appear'd nothing from whence they ou'd conclude Mr. Gray Guilty of any of the Particulars laid to his Charge, by the said Stephenson. And Mr Gray, to remove all ground of Suspicion, gave the most solumn Declaration of his Innocence with respect to those Facts, which cou'd be given by any Man.

There was one thing more, which this Committee did in Mt. Graye Case; and that was with Relation to the Proof of his Marriage. Whatever Charity might be due to Mr. Gray, from their good-Opinion of him; yet they concluded, that he himself being a Party, and having but one Witness that affirmed his being Married, it might prove a bad Precedent, to look upon the Testimony of a single Witness as sufficient Proof in such a Case; and therefore they came to a Resolution, that they wou'd not take off the Suspension under which he lay, until he wou'd either produce the Certificate of the Clergy-min who Married him, concurring with the Testimony of that Witness; or, make some other good and sufficient proof that he was married; and gave Instructions to some of their Number, to remove his Suspension, as soon as he did either. And accordingly in some short time after, Mf Gray produc'd a Certificate of the Clergyman who married him, and a Resolution of the Official Court, judging and approving the same to be a

Legal:

Legal and Valid proof of his Marriage; whereupon; without any Part 3. Legal and Valid proof of his Marriage; whereupon; without further Censure, he was restored to the Exercise of his Ministry.

The Reverend-Dr. Hamilton has been Misinformed in some parties mistrakes are imputed to no The Reverend-Dr. Hamilton has been Misinformed in some part of his Narrative of this Case (and his mistakes are imputed to nothing else) and particularly in what he offers in these Words ' The Committee, as I am informed, took an Oath each of them to examine, and judge Impartially, Swearing after the manner of Scotland with their Right hand lifted up——The Witne Ves were called, and most of them Sworn after the same manner'. For tho' the Committee made a Declaration to that purpose he mentions, they took no Oath, nor were any of the Witnesses Sworn, but made a seleme Declaration as in the fight of God, that what they spoke was true. -And that this is the general Practice of such Meetings in such Cases, is plain from the following Paragraph of the Jecond Apology of the Presbyterian Ministers in the North of Ireland to her Majesty (vide Present State of Religionin Ireland p. 34.) 'For we Administer no Oath (Say they) to Witnesses examin'd by us, unless a solemn Voluntary Declaration of the truth before us may be accounted as such'. Neither did the Members of that Committee, nor the Wirnesses who appear'd there lift up their bands at the making of these Declarations, neither was the Dissenting Minister of Strabane Clerk to that Committee, nor was there any such Resolution taken, that the whole expence that shou'd attend this Affair shou'd be defray'd out of the common Stock.

But there are some things in the Dr's Narrative, which are true in Fact, but seem to be said (at least quoted by our Author) with an Air of reflection upon the Conduct of that Meeting at Strabame, as namely, first, 'That they continued sitting with their doors open, and vast crowes of People, and their whole Proceedings were as public as any Court of Judicature possibly cou'd be'. But this I have obviated already, and Shown the reasons why that was inevitable. And 21/14, That one the the Articles of Stephenson's Libel against Mr. Gray was, that the faid Gray Conversed much with those of a different Persuasion'. The Answer is plain; that was Stephensen's Impertinence only, for which the Ministers were not to be blam'd, and they reprov'd him for it and ady, That they issued out Summons for Witnesses: The form whereof the Reverend Dr. sets down. But let us hear what the Presbyterian Ministers of the North of Ireland affirm to be their constant Practice in such Cases," their last mentioned Apology to her Majesty (Ibid. p. 35): Nor do WE we issue out Summons to any, but earnestly desire (without any Pe- Part 3nalty) such as we suppose can give us a true account of Scandalous Immoralities in any of our Persuasion, to acquaint us with 'em, in order to the suppressing of Sin, and Convincing and Reforming the Guilty: These earnest descres, in complyance with the Customary way of speaking are sometimes call'd Summons, being all we use instead of them'. And the very Copy of the Paper which the Archdeacon inserts is a proof of this: for it runs thus, These are therefore to · desire and obtest you, as you value the Glory of God, the good of Religion, and the Maintaining of Truth, to appear before a Com-" mittee of Ministers at Strabane &c.' What can this be call'd but an earnest desire without any Penalty?

Our Author passeth some Invidious Reslections upon this proceeding in Mr. Gray's Case, and he can't have patience till he come to the Case it self, but must prejudice his Reader with a salse State of it, in the Contents prefixt to his Letter, in these Words, p. 3d. Fact I. Of their Synods and Assemblies, in what manner they Exercise their Il-· legal Jurisdiction, an instance given of their whole procedure in the Case of William Gray a Dissenting Teacher, for being Married by a Minister of the Establish' a Church'. This is a notorious Mistake in Fact, for Mr. Gray was never Censur'd for being Married by a Minister of the Establish'd Church, but because he Married Clandestinely, and because for some time he did not make satisfying Proof of the Marriage: so far was he from being Censur'd on the account mentioned by our Author, that it was agreed, that as soon as he shou'd produce a Certificate of his Marriage, from the Clergyman who Married him, his Censur e shou'd be taken off.

He insinuates grievous reflections in two Questions proposed by him. The first is ' if the Presbyterians of this Kingdom dare act with such an appearance of Authority in the Exercise of an illegal Jurisdiction; if they presume to act inso public avowed manner as in the case mentioned, what may be reasonably supposed to bethe fubject of their consultations, when their assemblies are kept with the greatest privacy, with their doors and windows that and guarded? if fuch be their works of light, what may we suppose to be their works of darkness?

Our Author is resolved to find fault with those Meetings, let 'em carry as they will: for if they do their business publicly in the face of the World, this is reckon'd a daring and a presuming. And MY

Chap I. The Loyalty and Peaceableness 498

if to prevent any One's taking Umbrage from their-appearing publicly, they manage their affairs in a more retired manner, presently he is for infusing jealousies of there being some dangerous thing in these works of darkness; this is hard treatment.

But to satisfie all sober Protestants, that there are no bad designs hatched amongst Presbyterians in such private Assemblies, either against Church or State; I freely publish to the World the reasons of: their holding their Meetings more privately upon some occasions. Sometimes such affairs come before them, as they cannot shun a. more public way of hearing them, for such reasons as I have Mentioned in the case of Mr Gray. But then a great deal depends upon the prudent way of concerting a Method of treating such Affirs, that precious time be not spent by hearing needless Altercations, and multiplying Business unnecessarily. To prevent which, The Ministers usually: consult among themselves how to Manage decently and expeditiously, and sometimes fall upon an happy Expedient for agreeing the Matter, and preventing trouble to themselves and others; and where is the fault of all this?

Frequently Vacant Congregations apply to such Meetings; for their: Advice & concurrence, about sit Persons to be recommended to their Choice for Pastors: In such cases, Ministers think it prudent to consult privately amongst themselves, that they may use their own necessary freedom about the Characters of men; and it wou'd be imprudent and uncharitable to use that necessary freedom openly before the World; what needs, or why shou'd the World know, what every Minister freely discourses about the gifts, semper, and simess of unsitues, of such and such a man for such a Congregation? is not this a very Innocent secret?

The public Gazettes and other News-Papers show, that the Presbyterian Ministers in the North of Ireland, have oft presented to her Majesty and her Royal Predecessors, most Leyal and Duciful Addresses 3 and that when troubles were brought on them, upon account of their Non-Conformity, they have been obliged by humble Petitions to apply for Relief: And it being the Right of the Subject, to have a Liberty of Petirioning and Addressing the Civil Magistrace both supreme and subordinate; I know no Law, to hinder Presbyterian Ministers to meet for that purpose. If they have a Right to Petition, must not they have a Right also to meet, in order to prepare and Sign their Petition, and to consult of prudent Methods for Managing it? To deay them Part 3, the laster, is to deny them the former, which is the Right of every subject. Now the Presbyterian Ministers can't be blam'd, if they retire as d consult amongst thems: lves upon these, points; what Right has any man to be present with them? or what injury is done to any man by their being together without his presence, when they deliberate upon fuch matters? What reason has any man to take it ill, that the Presbyterian Ministers do not think fit, to let him in to their business with the Government? I'm sure the more peaceable and modest they are in their applications, not only in the matter, but the manner of 'em, they are the more Commendable; and the way to show themselves to be of that Temper, is not to make a noise with open doors about their Grievances, and their Representations of 'em to their Supe-

and

I hope this Ingenuous and Candid account of what the Presbyterian Ministers' Trantact in their more private Concerts and Assemblies, will satisfie all the Charitable and judicious of another Persuasion, that there is no harm in them; tho' our Author has done what he cou'd to foment uncharitable jealousies, when he can prove nothing.

riors.

His second Question is of a piece with the first 'Since (says he) by thele Synodical Meetings, as well as by their Monthly and quarter-' ly Communions, the Dissenters take occasion of calling their Members together, when and where they please: whether this device feems not more Pilitical than Religious, and whether this Liberty of Numbring their people, at such times and places as they mall judge convenient, may not prove of dangerous confequence?

Hardly can any thing be more uncharitable than these infinuations. For all Protestants look upon the Lord's Supper to be the most solemn Att of devotion, and Covenanting with their Blessed Redeemer; and to infimuate that Presbyterians call their Members together, and take a liberty of numbring their people at such times, and places, more from a political device than from Religion, is to call them abominable Hypocrites: They can appeal to the searcher of Hearts, that they never had, nor have such a design in Meeting for the service of God, nor yet in (what he calls) their Synodical Meetings, the true ends: whereof bave been described above.

As to the business of Pemland-hills and Bothwell-Bridge, and the Sanguinary Laws which occasion'd 'em, and the tumults in, King Charle, 5 [ ] 2

500 Chap. 1. The Loyalty and Peaceableness

Charles ist time, which, he says, were concerted at these Assemblies, they have been considered already in their proper place. All I shall say of 'em here, is, that what he calls Tumults in King Charles ist's Reign in Scotland, were (in their opinion) nothing but the People's just defence of their Liberties, if he understands this of their assisting the Parliament of England in the Civil War: but he is wretchedly mistaken, if he thinks that either the Insurrection at Pemland hils, or at Bothwell-Bridge was concerted in any Synodical Meeting; for it's known, that before either of them, the Ministers were under such hot persecution, that they could have no Synodical Meetings at all. And if they had been allowed to keep such Meetings, 'tis highly probable that they might have used such means for preserving the peace of the Country, as wou'd have prevented these insurrections.

But it's time now to come to the second Fact, objected to the Presbyterians, in our Author's 2d Letter p. 51. in these Words,

FACT IL

In the several parishes of this Kingdom, where the Presbyterian Congregations are fixed, their Teachers have a considerable number of Anxiliaries, called Ruling Elders; a kind of Ecclesiastical Volunteers of the Kirk Militant, who act as their Teachers assistants in propogating their Schism amongst the Common people.

The eminent danger of these Ecclesistical Officers to the Establish'd Church will appear, First, by the Description of them taken from their Books of Discipline, Acts of Assemblies and most Authentick

Writers. Secondly, from some Practices in their Acclesiastical Capacities amongst the People.'

The Presbyterian Ministers Judge it agreeable to the Word of God, and for Edification, to have some of the more knowing and discress People of their Congregations, to join in Consultation with them, for the better Ordering their Assairs, and advancing the Ends of Discipline; these are called Ruling Elders, and represented by our Author, as dargerous Auxiliaries; but if the Ministers themselves cannot be proved dangerous, then their Auxiliaries may pass without this Resection.

In our Auchor's Description of the Ruling Elder, he sets forth his Inherent Power in Church-Assemblies, to encommunicate Magistrates, la-Frmeddle in Peace & War, Abrog to all Laws, which are found Noisome and

Un-

Unprofitable, and agree not with the times, or are abused by the People, having an appeal to himself in those Assemblies, from the Parliament with a Power according to their Discipline to declare a Law void, when he's Over-rul'd in Parliament. But I have fully Answered all this in the first part of this Book p. 56 &c; whether I refer my Reader.

Our Author having Describ'd an imaginary Formidable Power in these Ruling Elders, with Relation to the Prince and Laws, he adds p. 53. Nor is this Power less exorbitant with respect to the People. It is plain to any Person acquainted with their Discipline, that the Common-people are persect Slaves and Vassals to these Elders, especially when these Elders have a good understanding & Act in Consort with their Minister, they command not only the mind and bodies but the very Substance of the poor people, whom I take to be Actually in a State of Persecution, when ever their Elders please to be Tyrannical.

Here is a bundle of uncharitable and unprov'd Assertions. These Elders are all chosen by the People, are commonly of the discreetest and wisest among them, and neither have nor can have any separate Interest from them. Wherein then and by what possible Means, can they exercise this Tyranny over them? have they any Compulsory Power? they can't Command their Substance, nor do they ask them to employ it any way, but as they do themselves employ their own. He must have a very discerning Judgment, who can find Persecution in this.

He's Alarm'd (Ibid) at the Kirk of Ireland's endeavors for some Years, to single out the most Considerable and Astive Men, and who have the most Numerous Dependance in point of Trade, to be Elders; and this in the Course of their History (says he) will be generally found to Presage some Astempt towards the Erection of Christ's Kingdom. I cou'd heartily with our Author had sorbore, and that for the suture he wou'd forbear, the scotling Jears with which he Treats the Kingdom of Christ. But however that be, I can see no force in his application: For his meaning is, that whenever the better fort of the people are made Elders, then they must have some attempt for a Legal Establishment in View; as if none but Legal Establish'dChurches were to have any rich or wise Men to be of their Officers; and all others must content themselves with sooks and poor solks.

He makes these Elders Powerful Labourers in Building up the Kirk, (p. 54!) taking for their Materials all the loose Stones and Ruchish they can siek from the Church. No Church can be the Worse to want her Rubbish;

502 Chap. 13 The Loyalty and Peaceableness

bish: And for her loose Stones, the Church has more advantage to Cement them, than the Elders have to pick them out. And his if any of them be so loose, as to sall by their own weight, and never stop till they get into a Meeting-House, I know no reason why the Minister and his Elders shou'd cast'em out again. As for any Industrious Practisis g upon the Members of the Church, to draw them from her Communion; 'tis utterly deny'd, that the said Elders make that their business. The Presbyterians do generally in all mixt Companies sorbear the raising of any Debates about their Persussion; when they have been attaqu'd by others, they frequently have declin'd to engage 'em, for Peace sake: When they have been much provok'd, they have given a modest Account of the reasons of their Dissenting from the Church, but are seldom or never the Aggressors. And if any of 'em have at any time from Indiscretion begun such Disputes, or Maintain'd them with too much Acrimony, the Body of Presbyterians don't approve such Practices, and are not Chargeable with them.

But Our Author has found out the Artifices of those intriguing Elders, when he tells us (ibid) 'They level and adapt themselves to the failings of the Common-People, they sigh and groan to seduce the Melancholy; simile in the face of those stubborn and undutiful Children, at whom the Church fromns; and are ready, with open arms, to embrace those whom she Excommunicates 'I can't but call this mere Calumny, I'm sure it descrives no better name. For 1 neither know nor believe, that there is any Elder so profligate and Void of Conscience, as to be guilty of this: If a man be excommunicated for meet Non conformity, for an Esther-groat or a Trifle, The Diffenters are not so very scrupulous, as to refuse to join in Communion with him: If the Excomminicated person has been a member of the Established Church, and Excommunicated by them for notorious scandalous sin Impenitently persisted in, tho' the Presbyterians can't shut their Meeting-house doors upon such an one, more than they can do upon a Papist, a Jew or an Heathen, yet they never admit such a person to fellowship in the Lords-supper with them, before he repent of his sin and become a new man. And our Author is put to his destance, to show an instance to the contrary, unless it has happen'd thro' Inadvertency and Ignorance, and without any design.

Seeing Presbyterians neither confine trade nor Charityto themselves, nor are so bale as to make quitting the Established Church and going to Meeting, the Condition of any person's subsistance among them;

as I have shown p. 433, 440 &c. the Author's pretending to fix these Part 2.

things upon their Elders, is a groundless aspersion.

He is either mightily under the dominion of a pannick sear, or of a Low strong propensity to ptetend it, when he tells his Reader 'that it some eff. Aual care be not taken to protect the common-people from these perverters (i. e. the Elders) the whole mass must be in danger of being souced from their Conformity to the Establish'd Church, to which end, that part of their Discipline seems principally calcu-! lated.'.

He wonders great numbers are not drawn over, and he gives this reason "For it must be considered, in the Co: fl'et between the Courch and the Kirk, in the prefervation and enlargement of their respective Flocks, the Dissenting Teacher with his 18 or perhaps 36 volume teers, is permitted to engage with one Establish'd Minister, and lib 2 Church-Wardens (both perhaps prest men); and then it is e sic to fee, what may be expected of this unequal Engagement; neither is it consistent with the Character of a true Minister of Christ, to amuse the people by pions frands and such tricks, as I am firmly persuaded many of the Lay- Elders do.

He must be very Ignorant of History, that thinks that part of the Presbyterian Discipline concerning Elders, to be calculated for the purpose mention'd by our Author. For there are Elders in many of the Reform'd Churches abroad, where neither the Establish'd Churches of England or Ireland ever had Footing, and the Elders in Ireland were calculated for the same and no other ends, than these design'd by Elders in France, Holland, Geneva, and other places.

Our Author speaks as if he were drawing out the Forces of the two Parties into the Line of Battle; and indeed as he marsh ills 'em the Engagement is very unequal, if they were going to blows in Earnest: But he mayrest assur'd, the Dissenting Minister and his 36 or 18 Volunteers (which, by the way, is a greater number than I ever heard of in any Congregation in Ireland) will take no Advantage of his Brother, with his two prest men. And for amusing the people with pious Frauds and Tricks, they leave it to him either to prove the guilt in them, or to confess it for himself. Let him take his choice.

And upon the whole, I wou'd'recommend it to the Author to review this second Fast. and consider what he has proved. Wny, he has just prov'd, that, amongst the Presbyterians in Ireland, there

Chap. 1. The Loyalty and Peaceableness

Part 3, are such Officers, as are in many executed angerous either to Church called Elders: But that these Elders are dangerous either to Church it is unproved as he found it, or State, he has stoutly averr'd, and lest it unprov'd as he found it, with many Culumnies and groundless Jealousies rais'd by him against an harmless people. I thought this second part of his Letter was to have given an Enumeration of Falts well attested; but if his bare Testimony be enough to do the work, he has got a cheap and easie way of attesting all he advances.

> He closes his Narrative of this Fast with a grave Proposal, which seems to be his Principal Aim p. 55. 'Wou'd it not become the Wis> dom of the Legislature, to preserve the Common People from the Contagion of that Schism, which is thus Industriously spread, with a > design to Corrupt the whole Mass of the Common people, to take the Firebrands from these Foxes Tails, and make any base Methods of perverting the People Penal, as they must be allowed Criminal.

This Gentleman not Content with the Penal Laws already in being against his Diffenting Brethren, wou'd have these wholesome severities encreas'd. But we have too Gracious a Queen, and too wife a Nobility and Gentry, to listen to such peevish unseasonable Countels.

The Application he makes of the Foxes and Fire-brands had been more Judicious, had it pointed at the Jesuitical cunning of Popill Foxes, & their subservient Tools, who blow the Coal of Fierce Contention and Persecution amongst Protestants; the Restraining of whose Fory, were indeed a Work worthy of our NobleLegislature. But if the Presbyterian Ministers and their Elders must pass for Foxes and Firebraid; I hope they will be only such Foxes and Firebrands, as Sampson made use of against the Philistines, and that our Gracious Queen, and after Her, the Illustrious House of Hanover, will prove British Sampless M using them in Conjunction with all other good Protestants, for extinguishing Popery and all its Devices.

But I come next to confider what our Author Advances, with rel-pect to

FACT III.

The Diffenters of Ireland (says he p. 55) in order to perpetuate their Schism by a Succession of Planters and Waterers, (as they alsally Phrase their Teachers) have Erected a Seminary in the North of Ireland

Ireland, at a place call'd Killileagh, where Students are Taught their Part 3.

• Course of Philosophy, and afterwards have been sent to be instructed in their Divinity Lectures by the great Prosessor Mr. Mc. Bride as Belfast.

The Presbyterian Ministers in the North of Ireland Answer to the first part of this charge in their second Apology (vide Present State of Religion in Ireland p. 35) We own (say they) there is one of our Persuasion, who teacheth a Philosophy-School by Licence from the Chancellor of the Diocess, under the Seal of the Court, and who hath taken the Oaths by Law required. And as there is no other Seminary amongst us to our Knowledge, so we are assured that no Anti-monarchical Principle is Taught either there, or by any of our Communion; who are all according to our known Principles and Practice, unanimoully for the Monarchy of Great-Britain and Ireland, as an happy Constitution, which ought to be Inviolably preserv'd in theseKing-'d oms.

If the Author's design be, that when any Presbyterian Minister Dies, he shall have no Successor, let him speak out: But it Presbyterians be permitted to have a Succession of Ministers, they must either have unlearned and unqualified Men; or, they must go abroad for their Education, which, belides the carrying of so much Mony out of the Kingdom and putting bardships upon Loyal Subjects, won't be very Serviceable for the Interest of the Establish'd Church, uniest they Imagine that Scotch Presbyterian Education will make 'em less dangerous to the Church of England, than Irish Education wou'd; or, they must be allowed some Philosophy-School at home, which is no fingular thing in Ireland: For the Reverend Mr. Thomas Gowan, a Man of bright Parts and Learning, for many Years Taught both Divinity and Philosophy in Antrim in King Charles 2d's Reign, without disturbance, & with great dexterity and success. And his printed Works are justly valu'd, even in a time when Philosophy is much improv'd since they were publish'd. He had a peculiar faculty of Managing a great Variety of business both in the exercise of his Ministry, and his public Prelections; and acquit himself in every part with such Accuracy, as if each Branch of his employment had engross'd the Studies of his Life. And Mr. John Hutchison, an Ingenious Man, and one not only of a very Philosophical Head, but of Universal Learning, Taught Philosophy for divers years at Newtown in the County of Down. Ttt

The Validity of

Part 3. The Revd Mr. James Macalpine, who has for many Years Taught a Philosophy-School at Killileagh, hath given such Proof of his Abilities and fitness for such an employment, as giveshis triends good ground for believing, that he is able to stand the Test of the most Critical and severe examen that his Adversaries are capable of trying his Qualifications by. He is cordially satisfied, that the most narrow Scruting possible be made by his Accusers into the Loyalty and Peaceableness of his Conduct, and is persuaded that it wou'd Issue in his Advantage.

> Our Author is much concern'd for the Number of Presbyterian Expectants, which he imputes to the Philosophy-School at Killileagh. But les him show any D. Nayalty or Misdemeanor in these Expectants; & if he can't, I think he may make himself easie, if he pleases. But he's asraid that if they be not employ'd, they' lquickly find Work for themselves. I do not know what Work he means, but if he thinks they'll fall about any evil Werk, he ought to give a better resson for it than his own Sufpicion.

He's impos'd upon by his Informers, when he affects that thefe expe-Cants not only eat up a considerable proportion out of the 1200 lb.allow'd upon the Establishment, but also of the Sacrament-Mony collected at their quarterly Communions; for he may assure himself, that they never received one farthing, out of either of these funds. As to the sirst, the Presbyterian Ministers (who have better reason to know that matter, than the Author or his Informers) do in their second Afology (p. 36) humbly take leave to acquaint her Majesty, that no part of ber Royal Bounty is given to their Probationers, as the Convocation Alledges; and they do all averr the same concerning the Sacrament-Momy, and are ready to Certify it under their hands, if it were worth while. But I come to the consideration of

FACT IV.

The Dissenting Teachers (Jays he p. 56) do avowedly and publickly, both from the Press and Pulpit, assert the Unlawfulness of Marrying according to the form of the Church of Ireland.'

... I never heard before, that they managed or ever mention'd this Controverse in their Pulpits; and I believe, there can be very sew instances given of it, if any at all. And there was but one instance of going to the press upon it, by a Pamphlet Entituded a Vindication of Marriage as Sclemnized among Presbyterians in the North of Ireland, printed Anno 1702 And that had not been published neither, but upon extreme provocation given (about that time) by numerous and violent profecutions, in the spiritual Courts of many of untainted reputation, who were libel'd and profecuted as Fornicators, meerly for cohabiting with their own wives, whom they had marryed according to the Presbyterian way. The Presbyterian Ministers in the North of Ireland represent this case in their sirst Apology p. 26. Tho it has been our constant custom since our first Settlement in this Kingdom, to solemnize the Marriage of those of our Communion, who scruple that office in the Liturgie, (for which the Papists are seldom troubled) yet several of our Ministers and people have been prosecuted in the Ecclesiastical Courts for this cause, and some of 'em Excommunicated.

going

507

It is not my business, in this Book, to debate whether the scruples of the Presbyterians against the Office of Marriage in the Liturgy, be suffleient and justifiable, or not. But I can see no Prejudice to Church or State, that the Consciences of People who have these Seruples be indulg'd so far, as to allow them to be be married by their own Ministers; and there is a clause in the Toleration-Bill allowing the like Liberty to the Episcopal Disserts in Scotland, whereas there is much more reason to allow it to the Dissenters of Ireland. For besides, that many more of the Episcopal Persuasion there marryed with the Establish'd Church before the said Ac, than there are Dissenters in Ireland who now marry according to the Liturgie; The Presbyterian form of Marriage is exactly the same with the form that was practis'd by those of the Episcopal Persuasion in Scotland, when they were Established themselves; and therefore, 'tis not possible that they can pretend any Seruple of Conscience against the practice of it now. And I am persuaded the Presbyterians in Ireland wou'd Chearfully comply with the terms upon which the Episcopal Dissenters in Sectland enjoy that Liberty, i. e. that they wou'd be all willing, that the Banusiof Marrimony Mou'd be proclaim'd in their parish Churches.

And as there is (at least) a parity of Reason, from the nature of the thing, for extending Her Majesty's gracious connivance to the same Liberty's her protestant Dissenting Subjects in Ireland, as there can be so the above-mentioned Clause of the Toleration-Bill in Scotland;

Ttt 2

fo

Part 3. so it is evident to the world, that the Dissenters in Ireland being saithful Subjects, as d'true Hangverians, have far better pretensions, on that score, to such a priviledge.

And they can't but think it an hardship, that they shou'd be libel'd in the Ecclesiastical Courts as formisators, and (by that means) their childrendeclar'dSpurious, when their Marriages have all the effentials of Marriage. They enter into a solemn vow in these words, I A. take thee B. to be my lawful Married wife, and I Covenant and vow in the sight of God, and before these Witnesses, to be a Faithful and an Affectionate Husband to thee, antil God shall separate us by death; and the Woman vows in the same words, Mutatis Mutandis; these marriages thus solemniz'd, and atterwards confummated are indiffoluble, except for the causes of Adultery and wilful Desertion. And therefore, it is a trifling distinction, to fay, that the persons cohabiting upon such marriages, tho' not guilty of Fornication before God, are guilty of Fornication in the eye of the Law; for that places an high reflection upon the Law, as if it declar'd that to be Fornication, which the Law of God declares to be none. Nothing can be Fornication, but what is declar'd by the Law. of God to be Fornication; and all that humane Laws can do with respect to that crime, is to detect and punish it, but they can't jure make. a new Species of Fornication, which is not so in it self by the Divine Law, Antecedent to any Humane Constitution. And it were in all respects as rational, to say, that such and such a practice is Idolatry, or Murther, or Robbery, or Sabbath-breaking, in the eye of the Law, tho's not beforeGod (which every one must acknowledge to be absurd); as to say so of Fornication.

Upon the whole, it wou'd exceedingly become the Charity and Moderation of good Protestants, to be more cautious and tender of the Reputation of their Brethren, and of the eafe of their Consciences, even in those points wherein they judge them to be needlesty. Scrupulous; while the Peace both of Church and State may be very well preserved, notwithstanding of such a Condescension. In a word, the Presbyterians are not only willing to be proclaim'd in their Parish-Churches, but to make proof of their being married by what mumber of unexceptionable witnesses the Legislature shall require, to be at the expence of having such witnesses sworn, and such examinations Registred in what, manner, and before what Court shall be thought most proper, and to de every thing that can be reasonably requir'd of 'em in this matter, to procure a Liberty of Conscience to those, who scruple being married according to the Liturgy; and therefore, humbly plead upon the great Law of Charity and Brotherly Compassion, and upon their Right by the Law of Nature, that they may not be deprived of the benefit of Marriage (which is one of the Rights of Mankind) meerly for their scrupling to comply with the Establish'd Form of it; and that themselves and their posterity may not be declar'd Infamous, nor troubled with Vexations Prosecutions, for a point of meer Non-Consormity.

CHAP.

Part 3.

CHAP. II

Wherein the last sour Facts Charged upon Presbyterians in the second part of the Conduct of the Dissenters, &c. viz. 1st, Their erecting New Congregations, and particularly one in Drogheda. 2dly, Their disturbing the Establish'd Clergy in the Burial of the Dead. 3dly, Their Printing Books of bad Principles, against the Government, and, 4thly, Their Entertaining some Ministers amongst them who have not taken the Abjuration Oath; are examin'd, and answer'd.

The Author of the Conduct of the Dissenters &c. gives the following Representation of the 5th Fact, charg'd upon them p. 57.

FACT V.

Commerly the Seeds of Non-Confermity were scattered, and sown through the conforming Congregations of this Kingdom; and grew under ground by imperceptible degrees, till numbers of the people were perverted, sufficient to support a Laborer in their Vineyard, and then they gave their Teachers regular Colling Distipline required. There still remained several Towns in in this Kingdom, in which by the pious care of the Establish'd Ministers, with the concurrence of the Civil Magistrates of such places, the Conforming Congregations, were preserv'd entire, without any mixture of Dissenters. These Congregations had long stood proof against all their secret Attempts, and therefore thus finding themselves oblig'd to alter the nature of their attacks from a consciousness of their growing power and Interest, they resolved upon an experiment never before tryed that we know of, which was, to send their Missonaries to pervert the Conforming Congregations, without any call from such places, which they had formerly expected.

This was done generally through the Nation; new Missions were ordered every day, by their Presbyteries and Synods, to unsettle and divide such of the Conforming Congregations of this Kingdom, as were hitherto preserved.

The Presbyterian Ministers in the North of Ireland utterly deny this to be Fact, in their first Apilogy to the Queen p. 26, 27. 'The said Presbyteries never sent any Minister to any place, but at the desire and Invitation of People of their Persuasion there. The Principal Occasion of their Preaching in several Places, where there were no Meetings before, is, that many parts of the Country were laid Desolate by the late War; whereupon, several Protestant Landlords and even some of the Establish'd Church's encouraged those of our Permasion to settle themselves and their Families on their Estates; formerly occupied by Irish Papists: And to draw 'em to such New Settlements, have assisted them in Entertaining Ministers of their own to Preach amongst them; and they hope it can neither appear reasonable, that such Protestant Dissenters shou'd be deprived of the fame Liberty of Worshipping God in their own way, which their Brethren every where else enjoy, nor that it will be thought dangerous to Church or State, that British and Protestant Inhabitants, tho' Dissenters; shou'd be settled in Places, that before had scarce any but · Papists.

The Protestant Disserting Ministers in the City of Dublin and South of Ireland, assert the same thing with their Brethren in the North, in their Humble Address to her Majesty p. 44. We beg leave to assure your Majesty, that no Ministers were ever sent by us where there were not a Competent Number of those of our Persuasion, who gave 'em an Invitation and Call:

From

Part 3: From all which the Reader may junge, and Veracity in them; Our AuMinisters in Ireland have any Truth and Veracity in them; Our Author asserts that which was never done in any part of the Nation, to be done generally thro' the Nation, and every day too. This is so bold a mi-Aake, that nothing but Credulity and Ignorance can give it the extenuating Circumstances of an involuntary Error; and he must be allowed the benefit of his Weakness, to defend his honesty.

From his general Charge of this Fact, he descends to an instance of it in Drogheda; The true State of which case I shall give theReader, as it is represented in the first Apology of the Presbyterian Ministers in the North of Ireland to Her Majesty p. 21.

In the Reign of King Charles the second, Dr. Daniel Williams (now in London) was Dissenting Minister to a settled Congregation in Drogheda, and was succeeded by one Mr. Toy, who continued in the exercise of his Ministry there till about the time of the Late Happy Revolution: the Remains of that Congregation have several times, at their own desire, enjoyed the occasional Labors of divers Ministers of our Persuasion while they wanted a fixed Pastor of their own. And upon their Invitation and earnest Request in the Year 1708. Several of our Brethren Preach'd among them, of whom Mr. Fleming mention'd by their Lordships was one, who, for no other Cause pre-• tended or objected against him, but that of Preaching, was bound over to the next Assizes at Drogheda: tho' there is a vast Number of · Papists there, much superior to the whole Protestant Inhabitants oe penly going to Mass, undisturbed, while some of our Perswasion were obliged to pay Twelve-pence a piece, to prevent their being /et in the Stocks as they were Peaceably going home from their Meeting, upon pretence of Travelling upon the Lord's Day; and yet others at the very same time were really Guilty of Profaming it by carryfing Loads openly, with Impunity.

Another of our Brethren Mr. William Biggar, who succeeded Mr. Fleming in Preaching to that Congregation, was on the same Ac--count, committed by the Mayor of Drogheda to Prison, and after his Imprisonment for six Weeks, was Released by the Mayor without any farther Prosecution. Whereupon we had assurances given us, that the Prosecution against Mr. Fleming shou'd be Dropt. And tho' Mr. Biggar was advis'd that he might have had an Action for false Imprisonment against the Mayor, and the whole Proceedings against us in Drogheda scem'd to Thwart your Majesty's Royal Inten-Part 3. in your Gracious Answers to our humble Addresses; yet we were 's far, from a complaining Temper, or from that ging the Members of the Establish'd Church with Oppression and Peisecution, that we were Patier Land Silent, when we hun bly conceive we had some just ground for Representing to the Gevernment, the hardships put upon us.

Mr. Pleming's Prosecution being Reviv'd, and three Members of the Fresbyterian Congregation in Diegheda being Indicad only for Hearing him Preach, after Amicable and private Measures taken on our part for preventing any further trouble bad prov'd unsuccessful, we were Constrain'd in our own Desence to apply to the Earl of Wharton then Lord Lieutenant of this Kingdom, who, by your Maiesty's Direction wrete to the Lords-Justices to Order Noli-Proseque's for our Relief; upon which Account, we Crave leave to express our Dutiful and graceful Sense of Your Majesty's Princely Favor and Goodness.

Lot the Reader be pleased to take a farther Account of this matter from the Reverend Mr James Fleming (who was particularly concern'd to know it) in his Letter to his Friend, the true Copy whereof is, as follows,

-- Lurgan, 1/t, tanuary 1.712.13 Upon my Perusal of a late book Entitul'd the Conduct of the Dif-· sentere of Ireland with respect both to Church and State, I was surprized to find a relation of my Conduct and Management at Drugheda, in the year 1708, which to me leemed either Misconstrued or not fully given; which has obliged me (according to my promise when A last with you) to set that affair in a true light, and give you this fhort and imparisal account of matter of Fact.

On Friday the 2716 of August 1708. I went to Dregbeda with a delign to preach to those of our Persuasion there, upon the RE-· PEATED INVITATIONS of severals of them, whom I had occasion to converse with and hear from ; who then again at that time pressingly remem's their former Requests, to me, And accordingly I did presch the Lord's day following to a consider ble number of people; most of them. Inhabitants of the Lown Jon 30s the Country about

U'u u

Part 3. 'about it, and two or three strangers, that were travelling that road, either to or from Dublin.

And I was so far from taking such a number of strangers with me, as is alledged, that I had not the advantage of any company from the time I left Lurgan, till I came to Drogheda, but that of my servant only, so that it either must be a Misinformation, or a design to make the world believe, that there was not the face of a Congregation, without the addition of several strangers

- to make it up:

But seeing they were giving the number and Characters of my hearers; I admire how they came to omit so many of them (unless willing industriously to avoid making their relation too bulky and tedious) being well essured, they might have inserted a far greater number; who, tho' they were not of the Rulers, yet honest and I hope, well inclined, whose Souls are as precious to God (and shou'd be to us) as the greatest; And therefore tho' Coopers and Shoemakers and Taylors &c, (As they are at large distinguished, for what end, I man't pretend to determine) yet no reason why the Gospel stron'd not be preach'd to them, nor why they shou'd be ashamed, these being lawful & necessary Callings; tho' they are reproached with 'em.

On Munday the 30th of August I was sent for by the Major, & Town Council then sitting in the Tholsel, I immediately waited upon them, was strictly examin'd, and the several Questions propos'd to me, with my answers to them, are as follows:

The Mayor'speaks;

Quest: I suppose you are Mr Fleming, the Presbyterian Minister of Lurgan?

Answ. Yes, Sir, I am:

· Q. We are inform'd that you preach'd yesterday in this Town?

A. Yes, Sir, I did.

The Dean speaks; Q. Had you any call to come to this place, by the People of the Town?

A. I had no formal call from them, but had their frequent and earnift Invitations, and desires to come, with afforences of their readines to entertain And sherefore to oblige them and severals of our Persuasion; who frequently travel this road, I came here to preach, and as-Q. By coxdingly did.

e Q, By what Authority did you come here to preach?

A. Sir, I am an ordain'd Minister, and so Anthorized to preach the Gespel, wherever Providence may open a door for me.

· Q. I am not in this place to dispute your Ordination, but were you fent or appointed by any to preach here?

A. Tes; Sir, lwas.

"Q. By whom?

A By the Presbytery of Ardmagh, of which I am a Member;

Q. Have you any written Orders or Commission from that Presby-

· A. No, Sir, I have not, nor did I require any from them, that not being usual with us in such cases.

Q. Who was Chair-man, when you were appointed?

A. I was Chair-man at that, time my self.
2. Oh! then you sent your self here?

A. No, Sir, I suppose it is proper for a Chair-man to hear, and receive the judgments of others; rather than give his own, and tho' I had not a Vote in my coming here, yet. I readily obeyed the appointment of my Presbytery.

Q. Did the Presbytery promise, or give you for your encouragement in coming here, any of the twelve bundred pounds, allow'd by the Queen?

A. They neither did promise nor give me any, nor do I seek or expect the least reward from any person what soever, it was not gain nor advantage that I proposed to my self in coming here.

4 Q. Have you any licence or orders from the Government to preach here; I am told by some that you have?

A. I wou'd look upon it as my bonor and bappiness, to bave so much countenance and encouragement from the Government; but I assure you, I have no such Licence as you speak of; tho', Blessed be God, by their Mildness and Moderation we peaceably enjoy the Liberty of our Consciences.

Q. Why did not you upon your coming here, apply to the Magistracy of the Town, or come to me, and ask my leave to Preach, this being my Parish?

A. I never knew hitherto, what it was to ask leave from any Man to Preach, wherever I have been; and so look'd upon it no more ne-

1

Part 3. cestiry here then in other Places, and withal I am persuaded that any Application to you or them would have been unsuccessful.

You came in here autongst us (said the Dean) to Create division and disturbance, where is nothing but Unity and Love, not as it is with you in Lurgan, where are Quakers, Presugrerians, and • Papists, and all sorts.

A, My disser wird bussires with the Create division, nor distribunce amongst any, but to Premobilishing und Diverson all, und in Luigan the there are these several Persuasions, yet no disturbance; but Peace and a good Understanding among them, and I'm surryities not so beardoo.

Q. If you trouble us no more, we shall not arouble you; lo you had best make off with what cyou have done; and there shall be no more of it; be plain, Sir, do you tochlive tochecia have?

A. No; Blessed be God, I have a more comfort ible Settlement effetobere, but I tell my Heavers yesterday, that I did resolve to Please to them next Lord's-Day, and so God willing I intend to do.

· Q. I Sir, You had a percel of full follows Hearing you, theh as J.

1. &c. and it is no great Honour for you to have such?

A. We look upon it as no Honour to bever fuch of our Communion. but it it our Grief and Trouble that there are any such, of our Commu. nion, and we do therefore Pray for them, and Preach to them, in Order. to their Reformation and Amendment.

Q. What! do you think by your Preaching to do any good to fuch Men as shele : No, you need not expect int

A. I design good to them and all to whom I Breach, by the blishing of God, without which the Preaching of Men and Angels will be to no purpuse; and withal our Savior came not to call the Righteous but Sinners to Repentance, so that such are to be Preached to as well as ethers.

O. Were you appointed to Preach here three Subbath-Days?
A. No, only Two.

Q. And will you Preach here again next Lord's-day?

A. As I said before, I told my Heavers thee I would, and I resche

God-willing so to do.

, E

Q It is great Assurance in you to come here to Preach, and to promife to Preach again; but you may depend upon it, that I will oppose you with all my might; I will icomplain you to the Government, and will put the Laws in Execution against you; so that I shall prevent your Preaching here any more.

A.I

Ch 1p. 2.

A. I can't but return you thanks, for so mild an Expression as As. Part 2. rance; I am Subject to the Law and Government; & if they think sit to Punish me for what libare done or poet nt my preaching here any more, I must Inbinititho' I hope by the Queen's Repensed promises of her Protection, and their own Milduess and Moderation, they will be test to do otherwise. . This is what the past botwixtous, And I don't doubt but these Gentlèmen will reacily acknowledge it, tho' they have much abridg'd these Questions and A swers, probably for brevity's sake: and with all the Reverend Dean Cox Minister of Drogheda may rememher that when be was with his Grace the Primate (then one of the Lord's Justices) tabling this matter before him; that these Questions and Answers as here inserted, were Read to him; And being asked by his Grace whether this was Matter of Fact, he acknowledged it was, and made not the least Objection against any part of 'em, excopt only to that of the Word (formal) in my Answer to his first Question, alledging that I did not say I had no formal Call, but that I, had no Call; yet the latter pure of the All Iwer, hew's that this could be no-otherwise meant that that I had no Gall to be their Minister, seeing I plainly asserted that I had the Peoples Desires and Invitations to come and Preach to them; And if this has escaped the Dean's Memory, there are some Gentlemen who were then present, who might confirm this passige.

But now after all this Builte, one might have expected that the Reverend Dean with a Gamaliel like Mild and Moderate Disposition, wou'd really have given the Advice of that Grave and Learned Dodor, to refrain from those Men and let them alone, for if this Council or this Work be of Men, it will come to nought, but if it be of God we cannot overthrow it, leiest happily we be found even to fight against Ged; hus instead of this, horomplains me to the Government, discharges me to Preach there any more, and threatens me with the Execution of the Law if I did; but I willing to do my Duty, and in this to obey God e rather than Mand Preached the next Lord's-day, upon which I was again sent for on Monday Morning the 6th of September by the Mayor " and Town Conneil, and when I appeared before them the Mayor spoke to me as follows:

Mr. Muyer. Seeing you have Preached here again, notwithstanding of the fair offers we made you before, we have fent for you in order to Bind you Over to the next General Assizes, to be held for this Town and County. Fleming

An Apology for

Fleming. Pray Sir, what is my Crime for which I am to be bound over?

Mr Mayor. It is for your preaching in this place.

Flem. That is what I hope I shall never be ashamed of, either before God or Man; But, pray, Gentlemen, do you charge me with ' preaching any Dollrine that is Heterodex or Unfound, or any thing against the Queen or Government? if so, I think you have just res-fon to bind me over.

Mr Mayor. No we don't charge you with any thing of that Nature.

Flow. Then I think strange, that you will bind any man over for preaching the Truths of the Gospel.

Mr Dean. No, Sir, it is not for that, but for preaching to, and * assembling people together, contrary to Law.

Flem. As it is not contrary to the Law of God, so I kope it can't be contrary to the Laws of these Nations, nor do I know any Law that this is a breach of.

Mr Dean. Come, Sir, let us have no further reasoning upon it, you " must be bound over (and so accordingly I was) and the Dean fpeaking thus so bitterly, as I apprehended; I said, Mr Dean, I admire to see you so eager in this matter, the Queen (may Her Reign be Long and Glorious) hash given us so many gracious promises of her protestion, which with the Ciemency and Mildness of a very good Government in this Kingdom, might encourage to Moderation and Brotherly · love.

" Mr Dean. We have as well as you the promises of the Queen's proe tection, and the protection of the Laws too, which you have 4 not.

Flem. Sir, you have; and I hope while we behave our selves as good and Loyal Subjects, we shall have both too; which as we have always hitherto done, by the help of God we shall still continue to do.

'I thought not to have been farther tedious, but I fome few remarks upon their relation of this affair.

' if, It is observable, that they Endeavour to persuade the world, that it is our great design to pervert the Conforming Congregations: 4 But whatever Credit may be given to this, our Consciences can bear us witness, that our study is to instruct and take care of our own: And I know not, with what justice such a consequence can Part 3. be drawn from our practice, Unless they hold it for a Maxim, that men can't mind their own Bisiness, without being prejudicial to the Interest of Others; nor take care of Instructing their own Congregations, without (what they reckon) perverting the Conforming ones.

Their New Congregations. Chap. 2.

zdly, They affert that we had no Call i. e. no Invitations from the * people of Drogheda. And yet it is positive, that we had, which 1 doubt not the people themselves willown, And if need were, it 6. might be instructed under their hands; and therofore there was ono ground for that Charge against us, of resolving upon an Experiment never besere try'd; it being our known constant practice, that upon the Invitation &desire of any number of our people, we have fent Ministers to preach to them from time to time, before there has been any regular Call given to any one of them to be their Mi-

' 3dly, They say the Congregation there, was partly made up of frangers which I brought with me, which indeed was not so and this can be confirm'd by the Oaths of several persons, if there were any thing in Inch a Circumstance to make it necessary.

nister.

4thly, They tell us there was a cause instituted against ms and some of mybearers, Emight as well have been plain in this, as in other things, and inform'd the World, that I was Indicted, and three or four of my bearers for a Riot and an unlawful Affembly: while in truth we only net togreber to Worship God, according to the rules of the Gespel, on the . Lord's day; And behaved our selves peaceably towards all Me.1, dutifully towards our Superiors, praying heartily for the Qreen and Government, and endeavouring to have Constitutes void of Offence towards God and Man.

'Thus, Sir, I have given you a true Account of this affair; which if it may be serviceable to you or the public, I shall be heartily pleas'd! & if I have used any freedom that any may take offence at, I do Declare. it was far from my design to give it. I am

Your Affectionate humble Servant JAA FLE MING

As to the Discourse and Conference of Mr. Boyse and Min Fredel with my Lord Primate upon the Affair of Drogheda, I shall here insert the True Copy of a Letter: which Contains Mr. Boyse and Mr. fredels Sentiments.

Part 3.

timents of that Affir, with a Vindication of Mr. Boss in some other particulars laid to his Charge by our Author, it runs thus:

SIR,

Since you desire my thoughts on what the Author of the Conduct of the Dissurers &c., has mentioned in that Book relating to Mr. Boyse, I have in Complyance with your Request, sent you all the Animadversions I can think needful; in Reservace to those Passiges wherein Mr. Boyle is concern'd.

For what he speaks p. 39 of Mr. Boyle's Traducing the Establish'd Ecclesiastical Constitution, in an Uncharitable and Scarribus Manner, for which he appeals to Mr. Boyse's Works, the Charge is too general, to deserve any other Notice than that he has offer denothing in Proof of it.

That Mr. Boyse has Misrepresented the Bishops of the Establish'd Church as Idle or Scandalous (as this Author infinuates) is utterly groundless, as may sufficiently appear to any that consult the Printed Sermons he refers to in his Margin, and the Prsseries in Defence of 'em, and the Appendix to a late Account of the Accient Epsendix to a late.

For the Vindication of the Differring Protestants Case, which he saith was evidently considered by the Bashop of Dromore, p. 69. The Reader is refered to the Papers themselves that passed on that occasion. And if they do, perhaps what he is pleased to take an accident Complement will appear but a Lame Arison to more. Huby ased Judges. The only reason why the Author of the Vindication and note Animer the Bishop's last Paper was, because there was no sawher accasion to Prosecute that Dobate.

That Mr. Boyse ever Assulted the Doctrine of the Establish'd Church (as he Institutes) is utterly false. What he has said in his Sermon of the Scripharal Bishop against the Claim of a Divina Right for Diesesan. Episopaey, was only in Order to the necessary desence of our own Ordensians as valed, in opposition to such as declared em null and void.

For the Affair of Droghede, and the Account this Author gives of what passed between my Lord Primate and Mr. Fredell and Mr. Boyle on that occasion, he has run into some grosswiftakes as well as a well as a well and marker of Fact, of which I shall mention the following particulars.

Tis utterly false, that any such Countion of Mr. Biggar's En-Part 3. largement was ever agreed and, as that there should be no more Preac bland at Drophe in Minuates p. 96. The Lord-Primate himself proing at Drophe in Minuates p. 96. The Lord-Primate himself proing at Drophe in Minuates p. 96. The Lord-Primate himself proing at Drophe in Minuates p. 96. The Lord-Primate himself proing at Drophe in Minuates p. 96. The Lord-Primate himself proing at Drophe in Minuates p. 96. The Lord-Primate himself proing at Drophe in Minuates p. 96. The Lord-Primate himself proing at Drophe in Minuates p. 96. The Lord-Primate himself proing at Drophe in Minuates p. 96. The Lord-Primate himself proing at Drophe in Minuates p. 96. The Lord-Primate himself proing at Drophe in Minuates p. 96. The Lord-Primate himself proing at Drophe in Minuates p. 96. The Lord-Primate himself proing at Drophe in Minuates p. 96. The Lord-Primate himself proing at Drophe in Minuates p. 96. The Lord-Primate himself proing at Drophe in Minuates p. 96. The Lord-Primate himself proing at Drophe in Minuates p. 96. The Lord-Primate himself proing at Drophe in Minuates p. 96. The Lord-Primate himself proing at Drophe in Minuates p. 96. The Lord-Primate himself proing at Drophe in Minuates p. 96. The Lord-Primate himself proing at Drophe in Minuates p. 96. The Lord-Primate himself proconsented to any other Condition of that kind, than that Mr. William.

Biggar shou'd not Preach there for some time after his Discharge, so that Mr. Ramsey's Preaching there was no breach of any Agreement they had come to with the Lord Primate.

<sup>6</sup> 2dly, There was no such thing propos'd by Mr. Iredel and Mr, Boyse to his Grace, as that he shou'd by any public Instrument sigonifie his distike of the Presentment at Drogbeda, but only that heshou'd use his Endeavors with the Magistrates of Drogheda, to get the Indi-

4 Ament against Mr. Fleming and others (mentioned therein) quash'd. and to promote an Amicable Understanding between them and the Diffenters for the future. And the Lord Primate never fignify'd to them, that he thought their Proposals Insolent or Unreasonable.

The first Application by 'em to my Lord Primate was upon Mr.'

Dawson's Suggestion, that it wou'd not be unacceptable.

Again this Author has been Guiky of Two Material Omissions in his Account.

"The first is, he do's not tell his Reader, how ill my Lord Primate Resented it that the Dean and the Mayor of Drogbeda shou'd make " use of his Certificate without his Knowledge or consent, in Order to Mr. Biggar's Imprisonment. And that he declar'd such Severity to his Dissenting Brethsen, to be both against his Principle and his Incli-E nation.

The second is, That he has not told his Reader, That one Condition insisted on by my Lord Primate, and agreed to by Mr. Iredel and " Mr. Boyse was, that Mr. Bigger shou'd not Prosecute the Mayer for false Imprisonment, which he had all Advantage to have done, because the Clause in the Ast of Uniformity on which he was Imprison'd, does not concern the Protest ant Diffenting Teachers at all, of which I a need only alledge this Demonstrative Proof, That that Clause is not Repealed in the English Act of Indulgence; And therefore if it extended to them, the Ast of Indulgence in England cou'd not be Security for their Religious Liberty there,

I shall only add, that the Prosecution of Mr. Fleming upon the first Indictment, was a real Breach of the Agreement made with the Lord Primate.

Chap. 2. Disturbing the Clergy at.

Part 3: For the Passages mis Anthor has quoted out of Mr. Boyle's Writings themselves p. 113, 114. Er which he refers us to Mr. French's Collection; He need only consult the Answer given to Mr. French in a Letter to a Member of Parliament, wherein Sm. rity and Prevarication were so fully discover'd, and Mr. Frence his Reply made so Lame a Désence of himself, as shou'd have discourag'd this Author from Copying after him. And if this Author will undertake to refute those Passages, as they lie in Mr. Boyses's Writings themselves, what he offers of that kind shall be impartially consider'd.

'This is all I have thought needful to suggest in Reserence to what concerns Mr. Boyse in that Book: if what he has said of others be with as little Sincerity and Truth, he will not much recommend himfelf to the World by Writings, that have so little of Candor or Charity in 'em. l'am,

Sir, Yours &c.

I conclude upon the whole, that our Author's Representations of this Fact being false&groundless, the pretended Fact it self can neither be Prejudicial to Church nor State; And therefore is so far from confirming what he has offer'd in the first part of his second Letter against Presbyterians, that it effectually refutes it, by showing that he has built upon a Sandy Foundation.

FACT VI.

But I come to consider the 6shFact charg'd upon Presbyterians, which Our Author represents thus p. 65. 'The frequent Disturbances gives to the Establish'd Ministers of this Kingdom in their Burial of the Dead, is so well known, that I presume it may pass for a received Truth without Descending to particular Proofs.

With respect to this point, the Presbyterian Ministers in the North of Ireland Vindicate themselves in their first Apology p. 25. We beg leave to assure your Majesty, that we do not know any instances whereever the Ministers of the Establish'd Church were openly and violently assaulted by us in the Discharge of their sacred Office, unless this be understood of some Acts of Indiscretion, whereof some few of the meaner fort were Guilty; while the Clergy were performing the Office for the Burial of the Dend, which Practice, as 'tis not Part 3. approv'd by us, so we believe it has still been Punish'd by the Ci. vil Magistrate upon Conviction.

Now this Fact being the Practice but of a few, and Disclaim'd and Disapprov'd by the Body of these of their own Persuasion, can never tend to any prejudice to either Church or State; and therefore 'tis not worth while, to trouble the World with a Tedious Natrative of the True State of these sew particular Instances, mentioned by our Author under this Head: But I come to examine the Account he gives of the 7th Fact, which he expresses thus p. 674

FACT VII.

The next Fact I shall mention, which I take to be of the most Dissurve and dangerous consequence, is their Printing and Publishing Books, to Corrupt the Principles of the People, and prepare them for the old Work of Popular and Tumukuous Reformation; some of which are attended with such particular Circumstances, as may better discover the Artifice and design of these Incendiaries, who intend to ferment the Dissenters of this Kingdom.

The particular instances he gives of these Books are the Hind let leose, Milton's Works, the Solemn League and Covenant, Mr. Stewart's Collections concerning the Wership, and Discipline and Government of the Church of Scotland. Mr. Mc. Bride's Writings, The Parallel by Daniel DeFoe, and Mr. Boys's Writings. Out of all these (except Milton) he quoses Passages, to prove what he alledges. But the Answer is very obvious, viz.: that no Church is Accountable for any Writings, but for those which are Written in their Name and with their Approbation, both as to matter and expression, and therefore supposing all that he says. of these books to be true (which yet I don't grant) I can't see how the Presbyter ians either in the North or South of Ireland are bound to Answer for them. Were it fair to make the Church of England answer for every Book written, printed, and publish'd by any of her Sons? No sure; must she answer for Dodoes's impuguing the immortality of the Soul? for Dr Brett's popish Doctrine in hisSermon about the Remission of Sins, and for hundreds more that contain vile Errors and dangerous positions both to Church and State?

XXX 2

Part 3.

If any body wou'd charge her with these Books, she wou'd no doubt reply, that she is accountable for nothing in them but what is agreeable to her Articles, and what has been espous'd by some publick Act or deed of the Church, That these Gentlemen's writings were not the deed of a Convocation or Collective body of Churchmen; and that they leave their Authors to make their own defence for themselves. If our Anthor has a mind to take these Authors he quotes to tisk, he may do it if he pleases; and let him and them deal is amongst them; but then I think as the Church is not to Answer for what he says, neither are the Body of Dissenters accountable for them. It were easie to show, that he has Wrested both Mr Boys's & Mr. McBride's Writings; but the doing it wou'd lead me quite off the Subject of this Historical Essay, and therefore I Wave it.

There are some sew Circumstances in his Kestestions upon these Authors and Books, which seem to be mention'd by him, with a design to prove that what he quotes from 'em is approv'd by the Presbyterians or Dissenters in General; and I am only concern'd in these. And first with respect to the Hind let loose, after he had produc'd a Certistate from a (lergy man shewing that a Parcel of these Books were sent over to Belfast, and there seiz'd in the Custom-house, he concludes a 71. That this precious Cargo (as he calls 'em) cou'd not be sent over by some Hair-brain'd Covenanters, for which he gives this reason p. 72.

When we consider, that Mr. Shields the famous Author of the Hind let loofe, was made Chaplain to a Regiment in Flanders, and admitted a Member of the General Affembly of Scotland face the lateRe-

* volution, and that peither the Bock nor the Author underwent sny

Censure by asynodical Act of that Askembly, it gives us just grounds to suspect that some Project of popular Reformation, to promote which this Book was Writ and Publish'd, must have been concerted by a more confiderable Number, than that poor Remnant.

But this reasoning is very inconsequential, being grounded upon this false Maxim, viz. that a Church approves every book which she doth not expressly pass some sensure upon, by some special decree or decision. Was it not mov'd in the lower house of Convocation, that Dr Brett's popish Doctrine in his printed sermon upon the sorgivens of Sins, shou'd be Censur'd; and yet it was not consured: but shall any man conclude from thence, that the House approv'd his Doctrine? Multitudes of Examples can be given of Books wrote by Clergy-men in England, and Members of the Convocation too, which Part 3. can't be said to he the sense of the Establish'd Church there, tho' she never pass'd any decree against 'em. But in this Case of Mr Shields's, there was a special reason which justified the Conduct of the Assembly. For he and two more had embrac'd too narrow principles, and headed that Faction which are commonly known in Scotland by the name of Mountain people: The Assembly wisely concluded, that the best way to heal the Rent was to take off the Leaders, and therefore receiv'd those Ministers upon terms of Submission to them, and as a prudent expedient to gain the people as well as them Entred no judicial process against'em, for what had been formerly amiss in them; which had a good effect, for many of the people quit their Schism; and MrShields himself wrote an accurate refutation of the principles of those who continu'd in it. He show'd a peculiar bravery of Mind, and Loyalty in Planders amongst the Soldiers, which King William took particular notice off. But tho? the Assembly (for the Reasons mention'd) did not Record any Canture of that book wroze by Mr Shields; yet. I am credibly inform'd, they testify'd their distike of it to himself.

As to the Solemn League and Covenant, I refer the Reader to what I shall offer upon it in Answer to his sirst "resumptive Fast, in the next Chapter; and tho' the printing of it in Belfast was not the deed of the Presbyterians, yet I don't know how many Histories and debates that refer to it will be very intelligible, unless men may see and read it. And tho' it be against Episcopacy, I don't think it so is, as our Author and many more represent it; it's but fair, that the World see what fort of thing this is, about which so much bustle is made, and for that end it must be publish'd somewhere.

The Clergy man, who informs Our Author of the leizing of a parcel of Copys of the Book, entitul'd the Hina let loofe, tells a story about Milean's works, with some air of reflection upon Dissenters as if they had been industriously spreading them: For his Letter begins thus, since you desire an account of what I formerly told you, concerning the method, which the Dissenters take to propagate their Republican principles, by dispersing up & down the Kingdom such backs as manifestly avon the same, & as one instance of this, he tells the following story, in these words p. 68. I further Certific that about the same time the Right Honotable the Earl of Donegal, meeting me in the street of Belfast ask'd me if I had seen all Mr Milion's works; I answer'd his Lordship, 1 had teen some but not all, His Lordship sid he had them bound up in one folio Volume, and wou'd send it me to read, which he did: And sometime after meeting his Lordship, he was pleas'd to ask my ".- Opinion of it: I told his Lordship, that Milton still stuck to his King-Deposing and King-Killing Dostrine, that I hoped his Lordship wou'd not spend his time so ill as to read so dangerous a Book: That I plainly perceiv'd one of the Methods taken by Antimonarchical Men, to debauch the Young Nobility and Gentry of these Kingdoms, was to Print, Publish and Industriously disperse those fort of Books among them; upon which his Lordship told me with a smile, that Mr Mc Bride (the Dissenting Teacher of Belfast) had sent him that Book, and he doubted not but that other Gentlemen in the Country had received the like present.

. Mr McBeide do's positively averr, that he got Milton's Works from My Lord Donegal and not My Lord from him, and that his Lordship told him he had the Book sent him from London; which Mr Mc Bride did return to My Lord's Brother. And therefore I believe, the Clergy-man who asserts this, has either misapprehended that Noble Lord's words to him and their Meaning; or, if his Memory be so exact as to remember them and be positive in them, that my Lord has only spoke the thing in jest; for he said it with a Smile, as the Clergyman himself observes. But 'tis certain, that the getting or giving of a book, which is Mr Mc Bride's Case, can be easilier remembred than words past about it can be, 14 or 15 Years after they were said, which is the Case of the Auchor of this Certificate. But however that be, no Presbyterian will industriously propagate Milton's works; because he rails so much at them, and justifies the Regicide and Usurpation, which they condemned with all their might, as I have prov'd p. 240 &c. and 'tis a meer aspersion, to alledge they are men of Republican Principles: there being no party of men, who made a braver stand against the Republican Scharian Elsurpers, than they did, as I have shown from p: 284 to p. 304.

I come next to examine the eight Fast charg'd by our Author upon the Presbyterians in these words p: 79.

FACT

Part 3.

FACT, VIII.

The Dissenting Teachers of the North had it under Deliberation, whether they might safely Qualifie themselves by taking that Oath. Mr Mc Bride the most Celebrated amongst them, both for his great abilities and Authority amongst the people, siest advised them to abjure the Pretender, but was in some short time after taken with such Qualms of Conscience, that he cou'd not digest that Oath himself, which he had so lately advised his Brethren to take; this occasioned no small Contention amongst them, and provoked Mr Malcom a Dissenting Teacher to tell him very freely, That he was no better than a knave to advise them to take that Oath, and then resuse is himself.

To support this Charge, our Author publisheth a long Letter from Westerna Warring Esquire, containing an Account of three Presbyterian Ministers in the North of Ireland, who have not taken the Oath of Abjuration, viz Mr McBride, Mr McCrackan, and Mr Riddal, and of many passages relating to them and their Conduct: upon this Letter our Author builds his Argument both against these 3 Ministers, and the rest of their Brethren for countenancing them. I shall first lay before the Reader that part of the sirst Apology of the Presbyterian Ministers of the North of Ireland, which relates to the matter in hand, and then show the weakness of our Author's reasoning upon this Head. The Apology runs thus:

What their Lordships observe concerning a very sew of our Number, who have not taken the Oath of Abjuration, is occasion'd by their Scrupling some Expressions only, and not the substance of that Oath. They have several years ago at our desire, selemnly declar'd betwee us their inviolable Affection and Loyalty to your Majesty, their Opposition to the Presender, and to all Jacobitish Principles, and their steady Adherence to the Protestant Succession in the Illustrious House of Hanover. They daily Pray for your Majesty and the said Succession, and observe all publick: Fasts and Thanksgivings with respect to the Success of the present War. From which it appears how unreasonable it is, that we and our Persuasion in General shou'd be Loaded with Reproaches upon that Account by some (we den't

Ch. 2. The Refusal of the Abjuration-Oath

Part 3: mean their Lordships) who improve as an handle against us upon all occasions.

To Justify the above Apology, I shall trace our Author ... he proposes viz. Ist, in his reflections upon the Reasons which andue'd those three Dissenting Teachers to Resuse the Oath of Abjuration. 2014, upon the Countenance and protection given them by the Northern Dissenters of all degrees.

The design of the first, is to prove them to be in the Interest of the Pretender; and first, he gives Mr McBride's reasons, and tells two stories of him; siest a Conference between Dr Ferguson in Belfast & Mr Mc Bride about the Oath, this he relates from Mr Waring's Letter, who says p, 80. About the time when Mr McBride, first scrupled the Oath of Abjuration, I happened to travel between Carricksergus and Belfast with one Dr Ferguson a Physician and an Eminent Elder, on the road we fell into Discousse of Mr Machride, the Doctor told me that he had talked with Mr Macbride, and asked him the rea-- fons of his refusal of the said Oath of Abjuration; which as I cou'd gather from him were, that he thought it oblidged Men to swear that the Presender was not King James's Son, and that he had no Title whatsoever to the Crown of these Realms, and that he the said Mr. Mc. Bride was not a Judge of Tisles, and also obliged them, as he conceiv'd to endeavor to support the Episcopal Church as by Law Establish'd, which he said he cou'd not in Conscience do: These were the Principal of his reasons, but he said he was advised by Friends not to Publish his Reasons against a Law in force. After I had Answer'd these Reasons, I asked the Doctor if Mr. Mc. Bride had not advised his Brethren to take the Oath? The Doctor own'd he heard he had. I further ask'd the Doctor if he did not think Mr Mc Bride had seen and Read the Oath, before he advised his Brethren to take it? He said he believ'd he had. And alsewhe-.6 ther he did not hear that Mr. McBride had met Mr. McCrackan at his return from Scotland, before he declar'd his scruple against the Oath? The Doctor said he believed he might, The Doctor blamed " Mr. mc Bride, said he endeavor'd to convince him, but to no pur opoie, and that it was an Unfortunate Bufiness.

The improvement our Author makes of this Story is p. 86. The Reasons with respect to Mr. Mr. Bride as appear by Mr. Waring's Letter, are first, he own'd to Dr. Ferguson he resused that Oath, because he was no Judge of Titles, and that he apprehended the Oath Part 3 obliged him to Swear that the Pretender was not King James's Son. which must amount at least to this, he did not know but the Pre-4 tender might be King James's Son; and if he were, he might have a good Title to the Crown, and therefore wou'd not Abjure him. · This it seems was one of the Reasons which he was Advised by his 4 Friends not to Publish; and how far he followed their Directions, you may judge from what he told a Reverend Clergyman in the 6 Diocess of Down, expostulating with him about his Refusal of the 6 Oath viz. that he wou'd tell him a Story, the Sum Total whereof was, That once upon a Time there was a Bearn, that cou'd not be persuaded to bann the De'el, because he did not know but he might soon come into bis Clutches. By all which it seems, that Mr. Mc Bride has a particular Regard, not only for the Hereditary, but for the Indefeaseable Right of the Presender, and is in expectation of being soon in his Power.

529

Let us hear Dr Ferguson upon this Head, in a Letter to his Friend, the true Copy whereof I shall here Insert;

SIR, Belfast June 8. 1713. Had I dream't that my two Neighbours and Acquaintance wou'd, so ungentleman-like, have made use of my name in print, on a private accidental discourse in a mile or two's riding, I had rectify'd both their judgments, when I was inform'd this Author was penning the Conduct of the Dissenters of Ireland. And now I do assure you, I did not tell Mr Waring that I had discoursed Mr Mc Bride concerning the Abjuration Oath, or the reasons of his refusal; but told him, others had; and that Mr. Mc Bride was advised not to vent his reasons, least he shou'd give offence. And thus Mc Waring unjustly places on Mr Mc Bride these things which ke and I in discourse told each other, were the common fame, And shoves it in as my Opinion too. And this Author groundlessly descants upon it: for Mr Waringseem'd to me to believe, Mr McBride was as firm for the late Glorious Revolution against the Pretender & all his Abettors as my self. They must also find other Vouchers for that story of Mr Mc-Bride's and Mc Mc Crackan's meeting, which I know nothing of, &never heard till I perused Mr Waring's Letter. But O! that men wou'd look Yyy

Ch. 2: The Resusal of the Abjuration Oath

Part 3. look into their own state, and infirmicies, and lay aside all this Bigotry and unchristian Calumny, and attempt more the Conversion of Souls by the Gospel Rules; which is the far better method to unite 4 Protestants, and make them truly Loyal, than by these uncharitable aspersions, lam.

Siry

Your Humble Servant VICTOR FERGUSON.

There is hardly any Gentleman in the North of Ireland, whose veracity, probity and moderation are more universally known and allowed of, than Dr Ferguson's; and whose testimony will gain more Credit, than his.

Upon which the Reader is desired to observe 3 things, 1st. That Mr Waring's Evidence is but a single Testimony. 2. That it was not from his own knowledge, but only upon bear-say, as Dr Ferguson cold. him. 3 dly. That Dr Ferguson, from whom he pretends to have heard it, contradicts him. As to the other story about banning the Deel, all men who know Mr. Mc Bride, know him to be of a pleasant temper, and that he can't baulk his jest. He declares this story was no more than a jocular entertainment in Conversation, and that he told it meerly to divert the Subject; and avoid entring seriously upon the Debate, and that he was not influenced by any fear of, or regard to the Presender, or any pretended Title of his.

Now it will be pretty hard to give a good reason, why these storys, the first whereof has no evidence to support it, and the second but a Comical jesting story, shou'd be allowed as good Arguments to prove him a Jacobico, contrary to his solemn Declaration before his Brethren. and on many other Occasions, and contrary to his public prayers and constant profession. Our Author prosesseth, that he lays a greater stress upon what Mr Mc Bride has owned in this point, from the opinion he has not only of his Veracity, but courage to own his principles p. 86. I think this Observation of our Author's, which is very just, is an underiable Argument to prove Mr Me Bride to be no Jaco. bite; for he himself frequently, publickly, and selemnly has deayed himself to be a Jacobite; and therefore if he be a Man of Veracity and conrage, they Mistake him egregiously, who take him for a Jacobite.

He Offers 3 things to prove MrMc Crackan a Jacobies p. 87. the first is, that he was the person that influenced Mr Mc Bride, in their conferrence held upon Mr McCrackan's return from Scotland. Our Author fpeakes :

speakes as if he had been at that Conserence, & heard all that past, tho' Part 3. he cannot prove anything of what he asserts of it; & if it cou'd be prov'd that Mr Macrakan did influence Mr Mc Bride, 'is nothing to the purpose, & unless he can prove that Mr Mc Crakan dissuaded him upon Jacobitish principles: Cou'd our Author prove, that Mr McCracken advis'd Mr McBride not to abjure the Pretender, because he shou'd rather bring him in to be King, and not to swear to maintain the Hanover-Succession, because he shou'd rather oppose that succession as wrong and unjust; cou'd he (I say) prove any such thing, I shou'd be as ready as any man to conclude Mr Mc Crackan a Jacobite, but Mr Mc Crackan is To far from being guilty of any such absurd and Disloyal practice, that he desires it may be publish'd to the world in his name, that be joins with his Non-juring Brethren of the Establish'd Church of Scotland, in the Loyal Decimation they have made, for the Queen, the House of Hanover, and against the Pretender. The Reader will find this Declaration inserted afterwards in this Chapter; and will be latisfyed, that words can't be contriv'd more significant and express against Jacobitism. And seeing Mr Mc Cracken approves all they have Taid (which is for substance the same with the Declaration made formerly by the 3 Non-juring Ministers in Ireland before their Brethren. to which they still adhere) Charity obligeth us to believe him to be no Jacobise.

But Our Author proceeds thus (Ibid) it must be remembred (Says he) that the reason given by the Dissenters of Lisburn for the results of the Oath was the same with that given by Mr. I Mr. Bride to Dr. Ferguson, God so thid that they should spear that the Presender, was not King James's san; by which it is plain, they were influenced by the same person viz. Mr. McCrackan, he being Teacher in that Diffenting Congregation.

How Incorclusive this Argument is, will appear it we consider is, That the Dissenters of Lindurn deny they gave any such reason for refusing the Oath, as I have show'd p. 475 from Mr Grainger's Letter, and the rest of the Dissenters in Lisburn do all say the same thing for themselves, as Mr Grainger has said for himself. 2 dly, If they had given that very reason, it would not conclude them Jacobies: for a man may be a stout affecter of the laterest of the Hanguer-Succession, and yet be unresolved and doubtful whicher the Bretender be King James's son or not, and therefore cannot swear that he is not his son, but are ready to abjure him, whoever be his Father. 3 dly, It is no necessary consequence, that the people were in fluenc'dto give this reason by Mr. Mc Crackan; because he is their Teacher; the most that can be made of it is that 'tis probable, and so it may be, or may not be, for any thing our Author knows, and consequently is not sufficient, to impeach anyman's' reputation upon, contrary to his own solemn Declaration, as above, but especially seeing 'tis not true in fact.

Yyya

Ch 2. The Refusal of the Abjuration Oath

> But it stems (says our Author) he has given another reason for bimself for his Resulat of the Oath which concludes against him as directly as the former, viz. he would not Abjure the Pretender, lest be shou'd Abjure Divine Providence. This I can prove by a Tertificate Sign'd by the Reverend Mr. Ratcliff, a Person of Credit and Veracity, who undertakes to make it good, shou'd Mr. Mc Crackan de-finy it.

To this Mr. Mc Crackan Answers, that he wrote a Letter to the Reverend Mr. Rateliff, desiring him to favour him with an Account of the Time, Place and Witnesses, when, where, and before whom he had used the above Expression; and that he never remembred to have been in his Company, but once or twice; and does not in the least remember, that he ever spoke with him or in his Company, upon that Subject; but Mr. Ratcliff gave no written Answer to this Letter; but fent him a Message, by a Gentlewoman of the Communion of the Church who deliver'd his Letter, in these Words, or Words to this purpose (as that Gentlewoman said); that as for what he (i. e. Mr. Ratclist) had said of Mr. Mc. Crackan, it was so far from an Accusation of him, that it was the most to his Advantage of any thing that had been said.

And therefore Mr. Mc Crackan thinks, that Mr. Ratcliff never faid any thing of him which cou'd fairly imply his being a Jacobite, because he has faid, that what be said of him was the most to his advantage of any thing that had been said; and that Mr. Ratcliff's Testimony ought not to be turn'd into an Accusation, contrary to his own Intention. And Mr. Mc Crackan farther offers in his own Defence, that it is unfair in our Author or any one else, to bring in any broken expression of his, without shewing the Connection or occasion of it, and to make use of such an Expression as an Innuendo of his being a Jacobire, contrary to Mr Mc Crackan's deliberate, plain and full Declarations against the Pretender, and on behalf of the Queen and House of Hanover.

As to Mr. Riddall, our Author is so modest as to deliver his thoughts othis Principles, only as what he suspects p. 87, 88, I have never yes

The Control of the Co

heard -

533

heard the reasons (says he) given by Mr. Riddall for his not taking Part 2. the Oath of Abjuration, but I here offer one Fact with respect to him, which may give us grounds to suspect that he also Acts upon the ve-' ry same Principles with his non-juring Brethren. The Fact Certified by Brent Spencer Esq; is as follows viz. that Mr. Riddal came to the House of Mrs. Jackson of Watersoot (as she assur'd the said Mr. Spencer) with Pistols before him; hereupon, she being Surpriz'd desir'd to know what was the Matter; to this his Answer was, that on the Pretender's Landing all Non-Jurors were to be taken up, and, that he wou'd Defend himself, but that he kept out of all public Roads to prevent his being taken. As Mr. Riddal followed the example of Mr. Mc. Craekan in his Refusal of the Oath, so do's Mc Crackan at this time follow the example of Riddal, in Riding Arm'd through ' the Country in an unusual Manner. This occasions no small Speculations &c.

The Strength of the Evidence runs thus, be said that she said that Riddal said &c. I shall envy no Man the Satisfaction (if he can find any) of Chasing those diverting Tales, and of finding out the Monstrous Jacobitism of Mr. Riddal's Pistols, and Mr. Mc Crackan's Sword; upon which our Author bestows a Paragraph, with many fine Speculations

p. 88.

Before I leave this Head, I must make a Remark upon Mr Waring's Answer to an Objection he Represents against his own Uncharitable Opinion of these 3 Ministers. He represents 'em all as friends to the Pretender, and Answers this Argument advanc'd for them p. 84. 'I have heard that some Dissenters of substance and of no mean Condition, do take upon them to Answer for the Loyalty of these Men, by offering to enter into Recognizance of Twenty Thousand Pounds for their Fidelity to her Majesty, and their Adherence to the Protestant Succession in the House of Hanaver, as now settled by Act of · Parliament, and presume that by this Method, they have answer'd all Objections against them, on account of their resuling the Oath e of Abjuration.

" Many substantial Reasons may be offered to shew the weakness of this Argument; to instance but one, Those Recognizancers for the Loyalty of the said Non-Jurors are pretty well assured, knowing "their Craft, that they will not by any Overt-Act in favour of the Pretender, however sly their Insignations may be, incur the Forfeiture of their Recognizances, unless the Pretender's Interest shou'd be Powerful enough to prevail in these Kingdoms (which God sorbid); and in that case, there cou'd be no danger to those who enter'd into Recognizance for the Non-Jurors; on the contrary it's Rationally to be supposed, the Non-Jurors interest wou'd be sufficient to recommend their Bail to his Pretendership's Favour.

Ch. 2. The Resusal of the Abjuration-Oath

Part 3.

The Weakness of this Reply will appear, if we consider, that if these Men be suppos'd to be facobites, no body can have an assurance that they won't Forfeit such a Recognizance; If ever the Pretender fhou'd make an attempt (which God forbid) upon these Nations, may not his Friends thinkthat Attempt hopeful, when it may prove unsuccess--ful; & upon that hope, declare for him And whymaynot these three Men (if they were Jacobites) be flatter'd into such an hope, and such a Declaration in that case, as well as others? do's any Man believe that ever he will or dare make such an Attempt, without Encouragement from his Friends in these Nations? And will they encourage a thing to their own Ruin, which they don't look upon as Feasible? And won't they endeavor to engage as many as they can into their Meafores? And therefore, those Gentlemen who offer to enter into Recognizance for 20000 lb. for the Loyalty of those 3 Men, neither can nor wou'd be easie in their Minds, unless they were firmly persuaded, that they were Loyal in their Principles, and quite opposite to the Pretender.

But 2dty, Let us consider what our Author alledges, of these Non-juring Teachers being Countenanc'd and Protested by the Northern Dis-

Jenters of all Degrees, and other Persons of Eminent Station.

Seeing our Author goes upon a Mistake, as if these 3 Ministers were Jacobites, and had resus'd the Oath upon that Account, the Odium he endeavours to cast upon those who countenance them, has no just Foundation. For their being true Friends to her Majestie's Person and Government, and to the Protestent Succession in the Illustrious House of Hanover, do's Plead for Compassion, and that a difference shou'd be made between the m and other Non-Jusors, whose Resusal of the Abjuration-Oath proceeds from a Zeal for the Pretender. And all the Countenance given 'em by the Northern Dissenters says no more. If we consider the Intention of the Legislature in imposing the Oath, which was to Deseat the Designs of the Pretender, we can't suppose that they ever mean'd to discourage those who were true friends to the Protestant and Enemies to a Popish Succession: But that the Penalties of this Act were intended to Reach Jacobites, as dangerous Enemies to the Government. And therefore, tho' those who scruple the Oath upon another Account; may be so unhappy as to rall under the Penalties, if the Letter of the Law be considered abstractly from the Reason and ground, upon which it was fram'd; yet it can't be deny'd, that the Case of such Persons Renders them sit Objects for Her Majesty's Princely Clementy, and consequently for the Compassion of their Protestant Neighbours, who know them to be Trusty Friends to her Title and Government. And this Remark seems to me to be a just Inference from what our Author observes as a Seventh Instance of the Countenance given them, which he finds sault with in these Words, p. 89.

Seventbly, the whole proceedings of the Judges in Mr McBride's profecution, Tryal and acquictal feems (from what account Mr Waring gives) to be so very extraordinary, that I purposely decline animadveting upon it, fearing that my Excursions might carry me too far, both with respect to them and my self; however, thus far I will Venture to affirm, that had not those non-jurors met with that countenance, Protection and support from all Degrees of People both Dissenters and others, they wou'd never have insulted the Laws as they did; nor have influenc'd such numbers of the Common people to follow their examples, in refusing the Ouths.

upon the expected Invasion of the Pretender.

I believe the proceedings of her Majestie's Judges in the above case can be very well desended, against those undecent Insinuations of our Author. And it is no great wonder, that Preshyterians should meet with his Censure, steing the Judges on the Bench must not escape it, But I hope it will be allowed, that the Judges and other worthy Gentlemen of the Establish's Church, don't deserve to be accounted friends to the Presender and his absences; and therefore, the Northern Dissenters who are reputed guilty of a presended joint crime with them, are in less hazard.

And this will yet further appear, if we consider wherein the Countenance those 3 Ministers have met with, do's consist. No man that has any knowledge of the practice of the Presbyterians in the North of Ireland can assirm, that they in the least instruenced these three Ministers to resuse the Oath. On the Contrary, all the Gentlemen of their persuasion, who being then in Civil and Military Employments were obliged to qualific themselves, cheerfully took it; and so did their Brethren in the holy Ministry, conceiving it to be their duty so to Part 3. do. This was as great a discountenanceing & discourageing of those who refus'd it, as they thought was required, and as Christian Charity cou'd allow. But seeing those 3 Ministers who scrupled it, did well approve of the Substance of it, and their Scruples were founded only upon some little expressions, which neither cou'd conclude them to Б: и found in the Faith, nor immoral in practice, nor disloyal in principle, their Brethren cou'd not think that their differing from them in Judgment about so small a point was any just ground (according to the Rules of Christian Discipline) for casting them out of Ministerial Communion: notwithstanding whereof, they resolved in a general Meeting of all the Presbyterian Ministers in the North of Ireland, that they wou'd Censure any of them who shou'd be found guilty of prasticing upon people, either in preaching, writing, private conversation, or otherwise, in favour of their own opinion and scruples.

Breg-

The present practice of the Church of Scotland is a Confirmation of this point; for those of their Ministers who have scrupled the same Oath have given a most ample declaration of their Loyalty, almost in the very words of it; and their Brethren have entred their Declaration in their Records; and both they who have taken, and they who have refus'd it, have join'd in a very strong and Express A& against the Pretender, and for the Queen, and House of Hanover: And I hope the Reader won't take it amis that I present him with a true Copy of the said Declaration (the Act of the Commission having been inserted p. 456); the Declaration runs thus:

We under Subscribers Ministers of the Gospel in the Synod of Lothian and Tweddale, considering that by an Act of the last Session of Parliament, the Ministers of this Church are required to swear and Subscribe the Oath of Abjuration, concerning which as it flands, especially as relating to two Acts of the English Parliament we were not clear, but that it might import a Consent unto and Approbation of some qualifications requir'd of the Successor to the Crown, not agrecable to our Principles.

Wherefore to prevent all Misconstructions which may possibly be entertain'd of our not taking the said Oath, We hereby declare our firm Allegiance and stedfast Loyalty, in all Duties, and upon all Occasions Incumbent on us, to her Majesty Queen ANNE, as our only Lawful and Rightful Sovereign. We do also in the Sincerity of our Hearts, Declare and Believe that the Person pretended to be the Prince of Wales during the Life of the late King James, and since his Decease pretending to be, and taking upon himself the Stile and Title of King of Scotland by the Name of James viii, or of England by the Name of James III. or the Stile and Title of King of Great-Britain, hath no Right to the Crown of Great-Britain, or any Dominions thereunto belonging: Therefore we disown and retute any manner of Allegiance or Obedience to him; as also we firmly resolve, through Grace, in our Stations to Maintain, Desend and Support the Succession to the Crown in the Illustrious Family of Hanover, for which we MOST HEARTILY PRAY, reckoning it next to the Preservation of HerMajesty, the only support under God, of our Religion, Laws and Liberties.

And seeing we are heartily agreed upon all that's contain'd in the said Oath, which may be thought any real Security to the Government and Protestant Successio, which we judge to be a strong Bulwark against Popery and Tyranny: We earnestly desire and firmly hope, That our not taking the said Oath, shall not be thought to proceed from any Principles of Disloyalty and Disobedience to Authority, but entirely from fear of Counteracting our known Principles, and Crave that this our Declaration may be inserted in the Records of the Synod. Written and Subscrib'd at Edinburgh the 5th of No* vember 1713.

This is a Demonstration, that a Presbyterian may be a Non-Juror, and no Jacobite; And that it may be neither prejudicial to Church nor State, to give such all the Countenance that has been given 'em, either in Scotlard or Ireland, in that Case. And this fully answers all that's advanc'd by our Author upon this Head, so far as his Assertions are true in Fact. But there are some of 'em which indeed deserve another Answer, and particularly his secondinstance of the Countenance given 'em p. 88. '2dly, Mr. Me. Bride having taken Sanctuary in Scotland upon a Legal Prosecution in this Kingdom, was recall'd to his Congregation by Mr. Smith a Ruling Elder Merchant in Belfast, Pursuant (as I am inform'd) to an Act of Presbytery, and conducted into Belfast in great Triumph, attended by numbers of People of all Degrees, and this while the Suit was Actually depending, all which appears by Mr. Waring's Letter.

Mr. Waring has been strangely impos'd upon in his Narrative of this Matter, as will appear by the following Certificates.

We

538 Ch 2. The Refusal of the Abjuration-Oath

Part 3. WE do hereby Certify, That when the Reverend Mr. John Mc-Bride came to Belfast, after Mr. Samuel Smith Merchant had gone to Glasgow, to invite the said Mr. McBride (who was then at Glasgow) to return to his Congregation, the said Mr. McBride Landed in the Dock of Belfast about three of the Clock in the Morning, and walked straight to the House of Mr. John McMan Merchant in Bilfast, being Accompanied by none but Sir James Agnew Heretable Sheriff of Gallowsy, our selves and some Servants: and all this we Certify from our own Knowledge, having been Passengers in the same Boat and Voyage with Mr Mc. Bride, alongst with the said Sir James; and we are ready to confirm this our Certificate upon Oath, if required. Given under Our Hands at Belfast, September the 25th. 1713.

James Adair! William Mitchell:

ded in Belfast, at the time mention'd in the above Certificate. he came to my House, while I and my whole Family were lying in Bed, & that I was waken'd by one of my Servants who acquainted me with it; and that I Arose & Entertain'd the said Mr Mc Bride, and found so Company with him but one of my Servants. Given under my Hand at Belfast September 25. 1713.

John Mc Mun.

I shou'd not have thought it worth while to have taken notice of this sinal Circumstance, were it not necessary to caution the Reader against that excessive Credulity, which is the visible Instrmity of our Author and his Informers; who are so unaccountably mistaken, in their History of the very Facts done in the places of their own residence, and in their own time, that it procures em no great Credit when they speake of things done before they were born, and in other places of the World.

While Mr Snith was in Glasgow walting upon Mr McBride, the Pretender and his French Forces came upon the Scots Coast; upon which Occasion, Mr MeBride gave as plain a Demonstration of his being no Jacobite, as any man in his Station. The Presbytery of Glasgow (of which he was then Moderator) drew a most Loyal Address to Her Majesty, expressing their Abborrence of that Traiterous Attempt of the Pretender and his Abetters, and their Zealous Disposition and Resolution to Oppose it with their utmost might, and to adhere to Her Majesty's Title. This Address was amongst the very first that was sign'd upon that. Occasion, and Mr McBride. was the strst man who sign'd it; and the Man, to whom Mr Nairn, (sub-Part 3. secretary at that time) return'd Her Majesty's Answer, wherein she express'd a particular Satisfaction with their Loyalty.

The Ministers of that City at the same time, made a Proposal to the Privy Council of Scotland, that they would raise men for her Majesty's Service, and the Defence of their Country against the Pretender, and furnish 'em with Arms and Ammunition, and pay each of 'em 8d. per diem, for 40 days, all upon their own proper Charge. Each Minister propos'd to raise, armand pay s men; and Mr McBride office'd hisProporti mas chearfully as any of 'em, & over & above his Proportion, offer'd to send one of his ownSons into that Sérvice. This Loyal Proposal of the Ministers animated the People, And the Magistrates, University and Ministers of the City, were every day in Consumation, sending Expresses and using their utmost Interest for the Queen, and against the Pretender. And in all the measures taken, Mr McBride was as Active as any man of his Station. And it had been Rational, to have expected, that those who are Accusers of Mr McBride for Disloyalty, should have first shown such seasonable and clear Demonstrations of their Zeal against the Pretender upon that Occasion, as he did, before they had laid Jacobitism to his Charge. If any one Contest these Particulars of his Behavior at Glasgow; he is ready to prove 'em from the Authentic Testimonies of the Magistrates and Ministers of that City; and the Privy-Counsellers, and Subsecretary of Scotland.

His 5th Instance of the Countenance given 'em seems to me to be very confus'd 'Mr McBride (says be p 89) is continued a Trustee also in the patent for receiving the Royal-bounty of 1200 lib. per annum, as was prov'd by Westenra Waring Esq: before a Committee of the Right Honorable House of Lords' What Mr Waring offer'd to that Honorable Committee, I can't tell, but I am sure, all that's true in the matter is this, that in her Majestie's patent for that pension, which is dated March 11:b 1702, and consequently before the Oath of Abjuration was imposed upon Ireland, Mr McBride is named as one of the Trustees, but that since he scrupled the Oath, has never acted as a Trustee, and that all the other Trustees have taken the Oath. Wherein this can be a just ground of reflection either upon Her Majesty, or the Presbyterian Ministers in the North ot Ireland, I can't discern. And I am apt to believe, that if Mr Waring's Evidence was given to the Committee that prepar'd a Representation with relation to the Presbyterian Ministers, their Lordships wou'd

Ch.2. Neither their Ministers nor Elders

Part 3 have taken some notice of the matter of it in their Representation, had they found it any thing to the purpose.

I hat Mr Malcom told Mr McBride, that he was a knave &c. (which our Author asserts p. 79) is what both of 'em absolutely' deny, and aver it to be a meer fiction.

CHAP. III.

Wherein the four Presumptive Facts charg'd upon Presbyterians in the Third Part of the Conduct of Dissenters &c. viz. 1. Their taking the Solemn League &c.2dly, Their Common Funds against the Church. 3dly, Their Enslaving People by their Certificates; And 4thly, The many Dreadful things, prevented by the Test-Clause, are Examin'd.

The first of these sour Facts is Represented by our Author p. 91. in the following Words.

FACT L

HE first Presumptive Fact I will mention shall be. that we ' several Reasons, which may give us sufficient grounds for a s violent Suspicion, that the Dissenting Feachers, if not their Ruling Elders are oblig'd to take the Solemn League and Covenant, before they are admitted to Teach and Govern the Northern Congrega- Part 3.

The Presbyterian Ministers in the North of Ireland in their Second.

Apology to Her Mijest p. 33. give a full Answer to this Acculation

We are surprized (say they) that the Convocation should Institute any cause of Fear, that our Ministers should be obliged at their Or dinations to take the Solemn League and Covenant; seeing they can't but know that all our Ordinations are solemuly performed in the face of public and numerous Congregations, where generally divers of the Establish'd Church are present: And yet we are assured, that not any one Instance of that kind can be given, nor is it done either in the Establish'd Church of Scotland, or amongs us.

And the Protestant Dissenting Ministers of the City of Dublin, and South of Ireland agree with their Brethren in the North, in giving the same Assurance to her Majesty, as appears by their Printed Address in Answer to the Representation of the Convocation. And tho' neisher the Address from the North not South makes mention of the Ruling Elders, because the Convocation don't express the least Suspicion of their taking the Covenant; yet 'tis plain, from our Author's Reasoning upon this Presumptive Pail (as he calls it) that his greatest Suspicion is of the Ministers, for he speaks of a violent Suspicion that the Dissenting Teachers, if not their kuling Elders, are oblig'd &c. And therefore seeing all reasonable ground is given for removing his Suspicion of the former, I think he needs not be in pain about the Latter. But to flow that there is no delign to Wave a politive Aniwer about is; I do here for the Satisfaction of all persons whatsoever, who defire it, declare that no Ruling Elder amongst the Presbyterians, is everoblig'd to take the Solemn League and Covenant, either before, at; or after their Ordination; and that all the Presbyterian Ministers and Elders. in the Kingdom of Ireland are ready to Certify the Truth of this Afsertion under their Hands.

But our Author perhaps won't be Satisfied with this Account, for if they affure him, they don't take the Covenant, he has another fear, that they do something like it. Wou'd it not be highly expedient (says be p. 94.) to require some public Assurance (which they never yet wou'd give) that they do not in their secret Assurance in their secret Assurance in their secret Assurance in their secret assurance in them to give such assurance in they be somethed as and necessary for us to demand them.

Ch. 3. Neither their Ministers nor Elders

art 3i

What he means by some such solemn Oaths as sormerly, is very hard to guess, until he explain himself. But I shall inform the Reader faithfully of the promises made by the Elders, when they are set a part to their Office. They promise in one word, that they will be faithful in the Execution of the Office of an Elder. i. e. that they will be Impartial and Diligent in enquiring into, and Censuring the Scandalous behaviour of such Members of the Congregation, as shall be known to be Guilsy; and for that purpose, they shall meet in the Associated Assemblies of Ministers and Elders, and therein Act, Speak and give their Voices, according to the best of their Knowledge for the Glory of God, the Honour of Religion, and the good of the Church of Christ, according to the Word of God, and the Methods of Christian Discipline Conformable thereunto, and Practis'd amongst Presbyterians. The Presbyterians have not an Invariable Set Form of Words, in which they take these promises: But what I have Represented, is a just Account of the Substance and matter of them. If the fault of this be; that they have Discipline at all, or such People as Elders at all, that belongs to another Head, & has been consider'd in the former Two Chapters. But if they be allowed to have any Elders or Discipline, no body can reasonably find fault with them, that they take some Engagement of the Persons chosen to that Office, and entrusted with that Power, to be faithful and honest.

But Our Author has calculated some of the reasons of this Violent Suspicion about the Covenant, to serve his turn equally, whether the Presbyterian Ministers take the Covenant or not. And therefore I must Consider what he offers in his ist and 4th reasons 'First (says he p. 91) Because it must be allowed that they are from their principles obliged (when able) to excirpate Episcopacy, as a human institution; and to enter into all Methods for a farther Reformation, and the Erection of the Presbyterian Government, as a Divine Ordinance, so that abstracted from any such Covenant actually enjoyed to be taken, they are Antecedently obliged to the thing it self; from the Stated principles of the Presbyterian Kirk, and their obligation to prefer a Divine to a humane Ordinance.

In his fourth Reason he complains that Mr Mc Bride, the reputed Author of the Animadversions upon a paper of the Bishop of Dromore's, wherein the Bishop expressesh his apprehensions of the Presbyterian Ministers taking the Covenant, pretends to resolve the Bishop's doubt

i

Take the Solemn League and Covenant. Ch:3

in such a manner, that he plainly appears rather to allow than deny. Part 3. the Fact. He quotes the following words of the Author of the said. Animadversions 'We suppose he (i. e. the Bishop) intends the Soe lemn League und Covenant, and here we believe he may be mistaken of their zeal for that, as it is a League with England and Iteland, obbliging them to a Reformation; seeing as a League it can have no f greater obligation upon them than those Leagues formerly made with France oblige England, since the Prench have violated them. Upon which our Author Reasons thus p. 93. It was Impossible but he must know that the Bishop's sears were, that they were Zealous for a Covenant to extirpate Episcopacy &c. instead of denying which, he says he believes he may be mistaken; for their Zeal for that Covenant as a League with England &c. Which does not infer, but they may be Zealous for it, as a solemn Oath to, and Covenant with God, to extirpate Episcopacy; but he seems to me rather to Imply it, when he pretends to Explain the matter more fully, and tells us, that as a League it can have no farther obligation on them than Leagues formerly had with France, oblig'd England, since the • French violated them. Now, I desire to be resolv'd by this Gentlee man, whether when the matter of any Covenant be of it self neecessary, and Obligatoryby the Command of God, and for the more essectual Obedience to that Command, several Countries should enter into a League, to promote an Universal Observation thereof; ' Isay, I desire to be resolved, whether upon the Failure of one Party in that League, the Obligation upon the other party ceases? this' I presume he is not so Ignorant to affert, and yet he answers the Bihop by drawing a Parallel, betwixt the Ancient Leagues with France and England, which were purely Conditional, and no farther 6 Obligatory then as they were mutually kept, whereas the Coveants entered into to extirpate Episcopacy root and branch, and ee rest Presbytery, and further a Reformation, are all of Eternal Obligation to all Presbyterians, from their Principles, Antecedent 101 and Abstracted from, any Conditional Leagues, or breach of them which can be made.

The Scope of all this reasoning, is to prove that the Presbyterian Ministers and People are a Society of Intolerable Men, and that the Magistrate shou'd neither Tolerate nor connive at their Religious Liberty, because their Principles make 'em dangerous to the Establish'd Cuurch.

Ch. 3. They hold no Intolerable Principle

Part 3. Church. That I may give a full and satisfactory Answer, I shall if, give a true Representation of the Principles of Presbyterians with Respect to a Reformation, and the Extirpation of Episcopacy, and how far their Principles bind them to it, Abstracting from, and Antecedent to any Covenant forthat purpose, and 2dly, Show that their Principles in these Matters, do not render them Intelerable by the Civil Magistrate.

As to the first, I shall recommend to the Reader & paragraph of the first Apology of the Presbyterian Ministers in the North of Ireland, to Her Majesty p. 24. 'That our Consciences do not allow us a freedom of Conforming to the present Model of Episcopacy in the Establish'd Church, nor to Her Liturgy; and that we found our Dissent upon the Holy Scriptures, is as well known as that we are Presbyteri-, ans, under which Denomination we have always Humbly Addressed Your Majesty and your Royal Predecessors. But we humbly beg 1 leave to be excus'd from giving your majesty the Trouble of any Debate from us, upon points controverted among Protestants: A Mutual forbearance in those Matters, and a Christian Management, with a Spirit of Moderation, free of all bitter Investives is what we highly approve; being Cordially agreed with all the Reformed Churches at home and abroad, in all the Destrines held by them in Com-4 men, and in all that's Essential to the Reformation.

And let us consider what the Protestant Dissenting Ministers of the ·City of Dublin and South of Ireland deliver as their Sentiments upon this Head in their Address p. 43. Tis indeed our known Judgment, that the Holy Scriptures, make not Bisbops and Presbyeers two distinct 4 Orders; and our Opinion herein we humbly conceive, is conformable to that of most of the Resorm'd Churches, declared in their pubblick Confessions of Faith, and 'tis no more then what many Learned Divines of the Establish'd Church, and even several of those that were Eminent Instruments in the English Reformation, have Asserted and Maintain'd.

' From these Accounts it is plain, that they look Upon Episcopacy (as it is now model'd) to be an Human Ordinance; and so far our Anthor do's them Justice. There is a Consequence which follows Natively from this Principle, viz. That they think a Divine Ordin nance better than a buman one, and another from that, viz. That they cannot hus heartily wish that all other People were of their Opinion too. Nay, it must be own'd, that their Principle inclines and

obliges

obliges them to wish seriously, that the Queen and all the Peers and Part 3. Commons of Great-Britain and Ireland were Zealous and Good Preshyterians: For he that thinks Presbytery the best Government of the Church, Condemns himself and acts uncharitably, if he do's not desire every one to partake of the benefit of it, as well as himself. Principle he good, he oughe to wish that the Archbishop of Canterbury, and all the Archbishops and Bishops in Christendene wou'd be contented to be Presbyterian Ministers; and In all this, he do's no more than to wish every Man's Soul as well as he does his own, which no body cau take ill. He can't belp believing that the Presbyterian Church is the best Reform'd of all Churches: and therefore he must sin against the ... light of his own Conscience, if he wou'd not Desire and Rejoyce in the ... Reformation of other Churches, and fain have embrace the, same Discipline and Worshipyas well as Doctrine in common with her. He must lay to them all as the Apostle Paul said to Agrippa. Asts 26. -29. I wou'd to God, that not only thou, but also all that hear me this day, were almost and altogether such as I am, except these Bonds. If this be reckon'd an Extirpation of Episcopacy, I won't contend about Words, the Presbyterians are oblig'd from their Principle to delire it, in the Sense I have explain'd.

- But there is another Senie wherein the Reforming or Extirpating of Episcopacy may he taken, wherein I don't think the Principles of Presbyterians oblige 'em to wish and endeavor it. And that is, by Tumukuous, Oppressive, Persecuting and other Illegal Methods. I don't see any thing in the Principles of Presbyterians, which oblige them by Force to Invade Churches, to possess themselves of Church Livings by Violence against the Laws of the State, to Rob the Clergy of their Temporalities, to ruine any Man for being Episcopal in his Judgm em; and to Depose the Prince, and insult the Legisteture unless they'll Establish Presbytery and lay alide Episcopacy. These are all unwarrantable Methods of Reformation, which no Presbyterian Principle gives any Countenance to. The Reader may perceive by Mr. Hall's Letter in Name of all the Presbyterian Ministers in the North of Ireland (inferted p. 414.) that they allow of no such things, and that they Reprov'd Mr. Liston for going into a Church to Preach contrary to Law. What is Objected against Presbyterians, as Counteracting this Principle by Tumultuary Reformations and Persecution, is abundantly Answer'd in divers Books, written in their Desence; and belongs not to my Province in this place, nor will I undertake the Desence of any who are Guilty of it.

Alaa

Part 3.

But I come adly, to show that the Principles of Presbyterians, notwithstanding of their carrying them so far as to desire and endeavor by Lawful Methods, to have a Reformation and Reduction of Episcopicy in the Manner Explain'd, do not render 'em imolerable by the Civil Magistrate. And this must either be allow'd, or else all Toleration. under a Protestant Government of any sort of Protestants, who for Conscience sake dissent from the Establish'd Church, must be Resus'd' and Coademn'd. This is so narrow and uncharitable a Principle, that it won'd be an Abuse put upon the Reader, to tire his Patience with the Resursion of it. In a Calvinist Country, Istall all Lutherans be Abridg's of the Liberty of serving God, according to their Consciences? In a Emberan Country stall the Calvinists be Treated the same way? In a Presbyterian Country, Mall none that are Episcopal or Independent be allowed Liberty of Conscience? The very Naming of these things, is Argument enough against em to the Moderate and Sober of all Persuasions. And therefore I shall take it for granted; that no such Principle is good, as would exclude all Felevation and mutual forbearance amongst Protestants: And yet without Maintaining'that unwarrantable Principle, Presbyterians must be allow'd to he as Tolerable as other People.

For I wou'd fain know what Argument can any Establish'd Epistopal Church give against the Toleration of Presbyterians, but what will serve a tern, and prove as Brong an Argument to any Established Protestant Church whatsoever, for denying a Foleration to any of her. sellow Protest ants who dissent from her. Is it, because Presby terians think their Persuasion the best; and because their Principles oblige 'em to wish, and by all peaseable, and lawful methods endeavour, to have all others to be of their mind? This very reason wou'd infer. that those of the Episcopal Communion ought not to be tolerated in Scotland: For the Established Church there may say, that the Episcopal Dissenters look upon Episcopacy as the only Apostolical: Government of the Church, and that therefore Abstracting from and Antecedent wany Covenant or Oath; their Principles oblige 'em iq. Extirpate Presbyvery, and to ruide the Church Established, and therefore being Dangerous people they Must not be Tolerated. And 'tis certain, the Argument can be managed there with more colorable.

pretences against the Toleration of their Dissenters, than the Churches Part 3. of England and Ireland can do against the Toleration of theirs. For, besides that a conscientions Episcopal Dissenter in Scotland is obliged from his ownPrinciple to ale the same Efforts for Prelacy in Scotland, as the Presbyterian Dissenters are, for Presbytery in England and Ireland, they are more dangerous in another respect; because the Presbyterians in England and Ireland are not such High-flyers in their Principle about Episcopal Ordination, as, the Episcopal Dissenters are about Presbyterian-Ordination. The former, tho' they can't in Conscience Comply with Episcopal Ordination, yet they do not deny the Validity of it, nor of the facred Ministrations of those who receive it; but many of the latter look upon Presbyterian Ordination to be null and Void, and therefore are more oblig'd from their principle to endeavour the subversion of Presbytery, than the Others are to endeavour the subversion of Episcopacy. And may not the Established Church of Holland argue the same way against tolerating Episcopal Congregations there? The Lutherans may tell the Calvinifis, that they must not be tolerated, because they i. e. the Calvinists look upon their own Doctrine and Worship to be grounded upon the word of God, and that the Peculiar Points of Lutheranism are erroneous Tenets, contradictory to the Scriptures, and therefore ought to be extirpated Root and Branch, and all this is realy true; For the Calvinists are firmly of that Opinion; and yet it would be unreasonable to infer from thence, that they shou'd not be tolerated in a Lutheran Country.

This kind of Argument is so far from being strong enough for refusing a Toleration or Connivance to any Party of Protestants; that on the Contrary, it is one of the necessary qualifications, which any party that demands a Toleration or Connivance ought to have. For those who think an Establish'd Church so well constituted, as they may join safely in Constant Communion with her without sin, dissent from her, not from principle but Humour, Extherefore have no plea from Conscience to entitle them to the Protection of the Magistrate, in their separation from such a Church. In a word, No party ought to be interacted except they think their own Communion better than that of the Established Church, and except they wish all other people what soever may approve of, embrace, and profess the same principles, and join in the same Communion with them. And therefore the Presbyterians having such a Principle, can never render them intolerable, of which her Sacred Majesty and the English and British Parliaments were so fully convinced,

A 2 8 8 2

tha

8 Ch. 3. They hold no Intolerable Principle.

Part 3 that they have declar'd, that the Poleration in England ought to be inviolably Maintain'd, & yet the Principles of those comprehended in it are exactly the same with those of Their Brethren in Ireland.

But to return to the subject, that gave occasion for these observations, viz. the solemn League and Covenant, all I shall say for it is, that it was full of Loyalty to the King, and was a particular Means of the Restauration of the Royal-Family, tho' it was against Episcopacy. The Presbyserians always pleaded the Covenant, as an unanswerable Argument to prove the Distalty of those who beheaded King Charles 1st, and opposed Monarchy. They thought they were obliged by it, to Rand by the Royal Family; to insist upon the Restauration thereof, and to deny and refuse all allegiance and compliance with the Usurper: this abundantly appears from the Representations, Remonstrances, Reasonings and Actings of the Presbyterians, and particularly from Mr Drysdail's defences to Col. Venables, & the other Papers of the Presbytery which I have inferted p. 283. &c. They were sworn in the Covenant to support His Majestie's Person and Authority, and that they would not diminish his just greatness and power; and therefore their Loyal principles and affections were cherished by the Additional obligation of their Covenant; which they improv'd upon all occasions as an Argument for Monarchy, and the Right of King Charles 2d to the Crown. and for pressing all that had taken it to do the sime as they would avoid the horrid sin of Perjury.

As for its being against Episcopacy, it being Foreign to the Design of this Book to enter into that Debate, I shall neither offer any thing for Justifying or Condemning it on that Head. These who look upon English Episcopacy to be a Divine Ordinance, cannot but according to their own Principle, condemn the Covenant for having any thing in it that tends to the Extirpation of a Divine Institution, and therefore must look upon it to have been an Oath sinful in it self. On the other hand, those who are for the Divine Right of Presbytery, are not convinced that it was sinful in it self, because their Principle leads them to approve of the Matter of it as good and Lawful; they are all against Episcopacy, and they wish heartily that every Man in England were of their Opinion; But they don't think themselves oblig'd hy the Solemn League and Covenant to do any thing more for the Extirpation of Episcopacy, than if there had not been such a Covenant. Our Author himself puts a Cise in the Passage I last quoted from him, Part 2. which is indeed the time State of the Cise of those who were she first promoters of this League, and a very Charitable Construction, if he had stuck to it: For he says p. 93. 'I desi e to be resolv'd, when the matter of any Covenant be of it self necessary, and obligatory by the command of God, and for the more effictual obedience to that command, several Countries shou'd enter into a League to promote an universal Observation thereof: I say, I desire to be resolv'd whether upon the failure of one Party in that League, the Obligation "upon the other Party ceases." This was indeed the case. For the Presbyterians thought it necessary, that there shou'd be a Reformation and Reduction of Episcopacy, and that the same was necessary by the command of God, and their Covenant was delign'd for nothing else, but to bind Men to what they thought God had bound them to by his Authority, Angesedent to their Covenant. I think it would exceedingly contribute to the promoting of Christian Charity and Peace among Protestants, to put no other Construction upon the design of the Covenanters than this, which shows that they Acted upon a Conscientious Principle; and that they shou'd not upon all occasions be reproach'd, for following the light of their Consciences.

Awhor

There are two Objections more against the 'Covenint made by our Author, in both which he is Mistaken. The first is contain'd in his se-- cond part of the Conduct of the Dissenters &c. p. 73, where (after he had given the Abstract of the Covenant) he cal's it that accurjed Instrument of all our National Calamities in the sormer Rebellion. But if he will be at the pains to look into the History of those times, he will find that there were many National Calamities during the time which he calls the time of Rebellion, (by which I suppose, he means the Civil War between the King and the Parliament) before ever the Covenant was fram'd. For it was not receiv'd by the Parliament of England before the Year 1643; whereas the Civil War had broke out a Year before that, and he must be very little acquainted with History and reason, who will say that there were no National Calamities while the Nation was grosping under the Miseries of an Intestine War; or, that the Covenant was the Instrument of those. Calamities before it self had abeing: & yet one of these two must be true, or otherwise his Objectionisgroundless. The true Instruments of all these National Calamities havebeenlaid openin mydiscourse uponthat unhappy Civil war, Part 2d. Chap. 1. Where the Reader will see that those who put the King upon Arbitrary Government, that was destructive to Religion and Liberty-

Chap, 3. Their public Funds no Invasion

berty were Instruments of all those Miseries, and by engaging Land and the High-Flying Episcopal Clergy into the Measures of the Court 4. gainst the Interest of the Kingdom, ruin'd Episcopacy it self, and brought on those Calamities on the Episcopal Church, of which the Covenant was the Effect and not the Canfe.

His second Objection against the Covenant is set down in the close of his Restections upon his sirst Presumptive Fast p. 94 where he assisms that the Covenant makes it a Religious Duty to resist the Supreme Magistrate in his Desence of any other Church Government, but that of Presbytery, he delivers this naked Assertion without any shadow of Proof, and I don't see that any one Article or all the Articles of the Covenant compared, give any ground for such an Inference.

But I come to consider his second Presumptive Fast, which he expres-Ses thus p. 94.

FACT IL

· The second Prefumptive Fact is, that, they have common Funds rais'd among the People and kept in Bank to defend any Advances they can make upon the Rights of the Establish'd Clergy.

This Fact supposes that the Presbyterians do astempt to make adwances upon the Rights of the Establish'd Clergy, which is uttorly deny'd, unless their mere Non-Conformity be reckon'd such. I suppose the Clergy will pretend to no Right, but what the Law has given them, such as the Tithes, the Churches, and the Execution of their Office; and therefore what Right of theirs do the Presbyterians deprive them of? Perhaps our Author may say, that it is the Right of their Clergy, that there shou'd be no separate Congregations, nor no other Ministers, nor Discipline, nor Worship allow'd but their own; if this be all his Meaning, he has just told the World that there are such a Peoplo as Non-Confermist, which is no great discovery, and need not be case a Presumptive Fast, being known to the whole Kingdom. But then they must reckon it a great hardhip, that they can't obtain Liberty of Confeience, but it must be call'd an invading of the Rights of the Glergy:

It is known to the World, that the Presbyterian Ministers in Ireland have no other way of subsistance to their samilies, than by Her Majesty's Royal Bounty, & the Voluntary Contributions of their Hearers.

551

And therefore, there are Methods said down in their several Congregations for their support; and because some poorer Congregations are not able of themselves to Maintain a Minister, those whom God hath blessed with more worldly substance in other Congregations contribute towards their assistance, and think it their duty to do so: For Alms-deeds are not consind to the bodies of Men, but ought to be extended to the benefit of their souls too. And this is not done to new erested Congregations only, but to some of the Oldest Congregations in Ulster, and it seems a little unneighbourly and unkind, to envy poor People's getting a little Assistance from their friends, in order to their enjoying the benefit of the street Exercise of their Religion.

But Our Author Insinuates several Reslections in these words 95. It is evident that no private Clergy-min whose rights they invade, is able to bear up against such public frauds; one suit gained in her Majesty's Courts here, is made a Precedent through the 'Nation, and concludes all in the like case, who are not able to carry their appeal to the House of Lords of Ireland, or to the Queen's Bench in England' All this is groundless, it they never join'd in any Law-suit for invading the right of any Clergy-man. When some Presbyterians have been violently profecuted for meer Non-Conformity, at theinstance or by theinstigation of some Clergy-men, they have made: all the legal desences they could, to prevent the ruin of their samiles, . and for securing the peaceable Enjoyment of their Religious Liberties; and who can blame them for it? and because some who have been thus prosecuted are not able to Maintain a desensive suit, and because the Consequence of their being cast in such a suit directly affects the whole Body of Presbyterians, therefore in such a case, if the rest of their Persuasion give some voluntary Contribution, to enable them to make the best legal aesence they can, and to prevent the prosecution of themselves, I wou'd fain know where the harm of this lies? It is the. right of every subject to be heard before he be condemn'd, and to be allowed a full Liberty of making his best defences; and if one man be prosecuted merely for being a Presbyterian, and for acting as a Presbyterian, it is consequently a prosecuting of all Presbyterians: and therefore if the wholeshou'd contribute to support that one, they do no more than defend themselves, a priviledge which can't in justice be deny'd 'em.

But I can't see, how the Affiling of any one that may be thus pro-

•

552

Part 3 Secuted can help him to gain his Suit, unless he has a just cause, & in that case it were unjust he should lose it. His having mony to defend the suit can enable him to employ Agents, and see Council, but can it prevail with the Judges and the Courts to pervert Justice? and therefore I can't comprehend his Meaning, when he infinuates the Necessity of cirrying an Appeal to the House of Lords, or to the Queen's Bench in England. I'm sure he has no reason to suspect the Judges of Ireland of Parliality in favour of Presbyterians, against the Establish'd Church; or, that all the public sunds the Presbyterians are capable of raising, shou'd be able to corrupt their Judgment, and make'em give a wrong Decree against a Clergy-Man.

Our Author comes next to vent the frightful Ideas he has got of the Royal Pension of 1200 lib. per annum, to the Presbyterian Ministers in the North of Ireland; he speaks of their misapplying it, and the substance of what he says is sully answered in the following Paragraph of their sirst applopy to Her Majesty, p: 27. That any even the least part of your Majesty's Royal Bounty was ever apply'd either to the sending out such Missionaries (as they are called) or Employing any Agents, or supporting any Law suits, or Forming and Maintaining any Seminaries for the instruction of Youth, is what we can by no means Assent to, believing their Lordships opinion in this Matter to be entirely owing to Milinformation; for that Fund has been always divided amongst the Presbyterian Mini-ters Pursuant to Your Royal Letters; as may be fully provid whenever it is desir'd, with all the Demonstrative evidence that any · Matter of Fact is capable of.

He infinuates, that Mr. Hugh Henry Presbyterian Minister at Drogheda (whom he calls the Present M. Sionary, how properly let any Man Judge) was Order'd 18 lb. per Annum out of this Fund by a Synodical Act, the contrary whereof will appear by the following Certificates Being Intrusted by the Presbyterian Ministers of Ulster to receive and distribute her Majesties Royal Bounty to them, which I have done ever since June 1708. I hereby Certify that Mr. Hugh Henry Presbyterian Minister of Drogheda received no larger share (nor was he uppointed to my Knowledge to receive any more of said Bounty) than any other Presbyterian Minister of Ulster since his being Ordained Minister of Drogheda. And I further Certify that the said Mr. Henry received none of the saidBounty before he was Ordained. All which

No danger in their public Funds, Chap. 3.

As witness my Hand at Part 3

I am ready to make Oath of, if needful.

Belfast the 3 orb day of September 1713.

Bryce Blair.

The numbers of Meeting Houses built and new Conventicles (as he calls'em) Erected in Ireland fince the late Revolution, is not owing to this Royal Bounty, as he alledges, but to other Causes. In divers places the Presbyterian Meeting-Houses were Old and Ruinous, and for that reason were Rebuilt; In some places the Leases of their Meeting-Houses cou'd not be renewed, because of the Bigetry of some Landlords who wou'd not suffer them to be Built on their Estates, and therefore the People (to their great Damage) were forc'd to Build them elsewhere. In some places there are British Inhabitants where there were scarce any but Papists, and many Families having come from Scot-Land that were Educated Presbyterians there, and continue to be of the same Persuasion in Ireland (as our Author himself has allowed in his first part of the Conduct of Dissenters) and settled themselves within the Bounds of Presbyterian Congregations of an old standing, did so encrease them, as they became teo great a Charge for one Pastor, and tao numerous to meet in one place of Public Worship; and in luch cases the Congregation has been divided, and a new one set up; And no Man who considers truly the Interest of Ireland can reasonably, deny that it's for the Public Good, both of Religion and Liberty, that the Number of Protestants be Multiply'd there. The Presbyterian Ministers in the North of Ireland make an Observation in their fiest Apelogy, which ought to have great weight with all true Protestants. p. 29.

We Crave leave with all Humility to observe to your Majesty, that since our first Settlement in Ulster, an hundred Years ago, by Encouragement from the Crown, The British and Protestant Interest which was very weak before, has been considerably strengthen'd by our Means, to that Degree as to have a great influence on the Sasery and Peace of the whole Kingdom, of which your Royal Predecessors have been very Sensible.

He concludes his Reflections upon the danger of this Royal Pension, with this surprizing Remark p; 96 It is Manifest that 1200 lb. per Annum in the hands of the Leaders of Any Faction, wherein No parable b b b

Chap. 3. Their Certificates No

Part'2, ticular person has a peculiar Property, is likely to promote the Interest of that Faction, more than 12000 lib. per Annum, divided amongst and appropriated to different persons. ' According to this Argument 'twou'd be fafer for the Church, that the Presbyter an Ministers (whom he supposeth to be the Leaders of a Faction) had 12000 lib, provided it be appropriated to them diffinelly, and divided foas every Man have his own peculiar property, than to have 1200 ib: inCommon: And if the Cherch be content with this Motion, and think in ther ber Interest, I will Adventure to fay, that the Presbyterian Minifers nemine Contradicente will thankfully accept of it. And if it shall pleafe Her Most Excellent Majesty to be of the same opinion with our Author, they had rather have 12000 lib, per annum divided amangit and appropriated distinctly to them, so as the whole shall have no power to touch one farthing of any Man's property; than to have only 1200 lib with the utmost imaginable latitude of Discretionary power to themselves, to divide it and apply it as they shall think. ## · .

fifthis 3d Presumptive Fact is expressed > : 96. in these words;

FACT III:

Ł

The Presbyterian Ministers of the North of Ireland have in my • Opinion made the whole body of their common People, 10 Dependent upon them, that they are intirely in their Power, to move and direct them as they please, and one main Spring which feems to anfluence all the leffer Wheels in sheir Political Muchine, is the Certificates of their Ministers, and the manner of Managing · For it is to contriv'd chat there is not one of their Common who dare change his Mafter, or remove from one place to r, but he must apply to the Difference Minister for a Certiand that under such severe Penalgies, which neither shelaws h or Man do justify; for if they produce now fuch Credentitey are given to understand by their Teachers in their public ms, (as they call it) that they will not be received into Prefbyserien Families, that they are to be Profected as Vagabonds, and Ight to the House of Correction; for the proof of which I herein lest on Affidavie, taken before two luftices of the Pence in the Coun"County of Antrim, the Original whereof I have in my Hands. Part 3. Our Author says p. 99. It must be allow'd the Original and use of Cer risicates is very Antient and Commendable. Now the Question will turn upon this single point, whether Presbyterians pervert the Original Design of that Ancient and Commendable Practice of Certificates, which they humbly conceive they do not. They believe that every Pastor ought carefully to match over the Flock, and acquaint himself with the Spiritual State of every Soul under his care, so far as he can; that as a faithful and wise Steward of the Lord's Houshold, he may give them their Portion of Meat in due Season, and may not give the Children's Meat to the Dogs. And they believe, That the Original delign and use of Certificates was, to enable the Minister to observe the Rules of the Gospel. For when a Man that has Liv'd in another place of the World, comes to demand the Priviledges of Christian Communion from a Minister to whom he is a perfect stranger, that Minister must be persuaded that the Person has a Title (so far as Men can judge of such Titles) to Christian Communion, besore he can in Conscience admit him to it: how shall he know whether he was Baptized, or whether he was not justly suspended, or excommunicated from the priviledges of Christian Communion, in and by the Church, whereof he was formerly a Member? And in either of these cases, he ought not to be admitted to the Lord's Supper any where. For a Man that is justly deny'd the Communion in any one Congregation, ought not to be admitted to partake of it in any other, because the reason is the same in all places of the World; Now all these doubts are resolv'd by the Person's bringing alongst with him a Certificate of his good Behavior; if he deserves such a Certificate, 'tis a kindness done himself to bring it; if he do's not deserve it, why shou'd he Claim Church-Priviledges, in a place where he is not known, when they have been justly refus'd him by those who know him best. All this being a Consequence from the Institutions of the Gospel, there can be no Hardship put upon any Man; and this is all the Intention the Presbyterian Ministers have in granting and demanding such Certsfieates.

Our Author Much Missepresents this Fact. For a man may change as many Masters as are Members of any one Congregation, and never be ask'd for such a Certificate at all, and the Roason is plain, because the person is still under the Inspection of the same Minister. The Law indeed requires such Certificates from their respective Masters.

Bbbb a bus

Chap. 3. Their Certificates No

Part 3: but the Ministers do not, except when they leave one Congregation and come to be members of another, and that for the reasons abovemention'd:

> It is utterly deny'd, that persons wanting such Certificates are threatned to be prosecuted as Vagabonds, and to be sent to the House of Correction merely for wanting such Certificates, but the case often - happens, that such persons of the Presbyterian persuasion as want these Certificates, are profligate and seandalous; and that, upon the want of them, Presbyterians make search into their former Conversation. and find them guilty of such Crimes as occasion'd them either to fly from Justice, or to remove because of the just disgrace their scandals had brought them under, in the former places of their abode; And for these reasons, they have resus'd to shelter them in their Houses. & have prosecuted 'em as vagabonds & public Nusances to the Country; which, instead of being criminal, is very Commendable, as being good service to their Country, and shows an Impartiality amongst Presbytorians, in not Countenancing Men that are a reproach to Religion, tho' they profess to be of their persuasion.

1..

That this practice of requiring Certificates, is so managed as to make the Common people entirely dependent on the Presbyterian Teachers. in all things both Temporal and Spiritual (as our Author Asserts p. 99) is calumnious and false. Indeed if the Presbyterian Ministers made their granting Certificates, to such as deserve them, an Arbitrary thing, so as to grant or refuse 'em at pleasure without being accountable to one another for the reasons of their Practice; and at the same time refused to admit Men to Christian Communion who want them, this wou'd go a great way to prove them Guilty of enflaving the People; and of rendring Christian Communion a very precarious Thing, but their Practice is quite otherwise. They give such Certificates ex debito to all who deserve them; and if any Man be unjustly refus'd one, he has a Remedy according to their Discipline. And they are so nicely exact and accurate in this Matter, that in many Years there will scarce occur one instance of any Person's complaining of their being injur'd that way, whereas it were impossible to make the People bear such an Intelerable Yoke at their hands, as our Author represents it to be, when he Ulcharitably calls it the most resin'd Arcanum of all their Political Schemes, to gain an Absolute Power over the Common people: And they are as fure as they can be of their own Hearts and Actions, that what they delign.

design by it, is nothing else but to bring Men into Obedience to the Part 3.

Scheme of the Gospel, leaving the Resined Arcana and Political Schemes to those who may have more occasion for 'em, and who Love to deal more in that sort of Trading.

Our Author guesses at a great deal of terrible things, that may be the Consequence of this Presbyterian way of Cortificates. This way (say's he) effectually Terrifies Ignorant People who are Conformist's from Settling amongst them". Pray how can it? Do the Presbyterian Ministers ever go to Conformists, to ask such Certificates from them? No, they leave their own Ministers to Treat them as they see Cause, without concerning themselves with them any further than as one Neighbour may do by another. 'This may (fays he, Ibid.)be the great reason why among to many thousand families who have come oover from Scotland, since the late Revolution; so few of them have Conformed to the Establish'd Church'. I can't well comprehend this way of Arguing; nor can I see any reason, why demanding Certificates from Presbyterians coming from another Kingdom should hinder them from Conforming; they like the Presbyterian way better than that of the Conformists, and that hinders them from Conforming: But that Certificates shou'd do the Business, is pretty hard to Account for, especially, if those Certificates make them such slaves; for their Conformity will deliver them from that piece of flavery, if it be any: and 'tis rather a worder that when they come to heland, they would not defire to Breath in a free Air, and go to Church, if they had been made such Arrant Slaves at home.

These may also (says be, Ibid.) put many of the poor Tradesimen, and Lahourers, who live in Towns where the Presbyterians prevail, under a necessity of procuring such Credentials, to which they cannot be Entitled but by frequenting the Meeting, in Order to get their

Sublistance amongst them, so that in such places, where there are more Conforming Tradesmen and Servants than they of the Church

Establish'd are able to employ, such poor People are Actually in a'

State of Perfecution, for their Conformity to the Church.

The Presbyterians are ill Treated by our Author in this Account; for they disown it, that they Persecute any Man for his Conformity, or lay any under Temperations to Non-Conformity against his Conscience; They entertain Servants that are Conformists in their Families, with out any such Certificates, and employ Conformist Labourers and Trades.

men.

Part 3. men without them, of which Multitudes of Instances can be given, were it needful. How these Certificates should be the reason of sinking and depressing such Numbers of shoOldConformists in the North of Ireland, of worming them out of their Leases, and obliging them to quit their Farms, (all which he greatly suspects p. 100) is such a Refined Areanum indeed, as I believe no body will be able to find out.

> But I must not neglect the Assidavit inserted by our Author p. 97. It was made by one John White, and has a passige in it, wherein the Reverend Mr. Samuel Shannon Presbyterian Minister at Portaforry is concern'd, and therefore I shall here infert the true Copy of Mr. Shannop's Letter to his friend, upon that Subject.

SIR. AM Surprized to find in a late Pamphlet Entitled the Conduct L of the Dissenters in Ireland, my self Misrepresented in what is pretended to have been said upon Oath against me by one John White in these Words, (p. 97.) This Deponent farther saith, that at the Examining, at which time the Servants generally show these Notes, one Samuel Shannon the Presbytteian Minister in Portaferry, did openly declare to the People, that except they had their Certificates Signed by him npon their leaving the Parish, they would not only be deny'd Admittance into any other Congregation, and to the Sacrament, but he turned out of . Such Parishes where they went, when it was known that they wanted such Certificates. To which keepwen, my constant Method at such occulture is this, if any Servants or others have lately come into the Bounds of my Congregation, protessing themselves of our Communion, and that they have not before known me their Testimonials, I do then demand them; and without these or something Equivalent to Satisfie me of their Christian Behavior, and that they are not justly excluded from Christian Communion, I do not admit them so Church Privileges: But as for any such Declaration as the Deposition Mentions viz. that they mon'd not be employ'd as Servants, but be turned out of fuch Parishes where they went, and that barely because they went my Certificate, I do utterly deny it, and must look upon the Asserting of this to be, in the most favourable Construction, a mistake, lye where it will; for I do very well know it, we have no Power to use such Measures for Reclaiming Offenders or Disorder-Ly Perforb.

Lhave been at some pains to Inform my self of what the above-mentioned John White lays of the examination printed in the Con Bart's:

* doct &c; and two very Worthy Gentlemen of Good Credit having Discoursed him, Recurred me the following Account.

The faid White acknowledges that he made an Affidavit, conecerning some things mention'd in the Examination contain'd in the said Book, before Captain Learne cand Doctor Tixdall, and that he said, that he did apprehend there was no need of any other Certificate than that of the Presbyterian Minister of the Parish from whence he came, but he says he told the Destor that his Master Robert Welfb gave him a discharge, which he gave to one in Belfust, tho' the Printed Assidavit imports that he did not get a Discharge from the said Welfe; and the reason (as he believes) why the Doctor inserted that in the Assidavit (which he wrote himself) was, because he the said John white told the Doctor, that tho' he got a discharge from the said Welfh he thought it not needful, seeing he had * the Minister's Certificate, as above; not knowing, that by the law of the Land fuch a discharge was necessary. He owns that he said, enai servants in the place from wheate he came dure not quit Master or Parish without the Presbyterian Minister's Cortificate, but fays that he understood this of Scotland, he having formerly liv'd * there. He acknowledges, he said he had heard der Samuel Shannen A fly at the examining that unless fervants and others brought Certifficates from the Congregations where they had been before, he wou'd not admit them to fealing Ordinances; but utterly denies, A that ever he heard Mr Shannon fay; that unless they got his Certificate, they would not he Employed as servious, but be turned out of such * Parishes where they went : and denies, that he afferted any such thing in his faid Oath. And he forther afferts, that all the scope and e meaning he had in the whole Oath was, to flow that so far as he * knew or con'd observe, that the practice of Presbyterian Ministers was this: that servants of their Communion when they remove from one Congregation to another, ought to bring Certificates of their good behavlour with them, otherwife they would not be admitted to Christian Communion, and gave an Instance of this in what Mr Shannon had faid at the Examining, and that whatever words are in the printed Affidavit which import any more than. this were either none of his words, or not understood by him as that time, to import any more. And the faid Joka while farther dads.

Part 3.

adds, that the Occasion of his making this Affiadvit was some debate that he had with the Dostor (whose servant he had been about getting a Discharge from him, when he was leaving his service, which brought on the discourse about the Certificates of Presbyterian Ministers, whose Custom in that matter he told the Dostor as above, and the Dostor asked him if he was willing to swear to it, which he complyed with.

I think, from this account there can be nothing infer'd against that commendable practice of Certificates, as it is used at present amongst the Presbyterian Ministers, and has been generally practifed in the purest and best Churches of the world.

I am,

Sir, Tours &c SAMUEL SHANNON.

There is one Instance more with relation to Certificates, contained in a Letter from a Clergy-man in the Diocess of Down, viz. the Reverend Mr John Finnsfon, published p; 98, wherein Mr Finniston alledges, that the Presbyterians look apon the want of these Certificates to be more terrible, than permitting their Children to die unbaptized; to support which opinion, he tells aftery of one James Moor, who had a new born Infant in the Agonies of Death, who seemed inclinable to send for him to baptize the Child, as he asserts, until he was observed to be taken aside by one of the Elders, that was then in the House; after which, he wou'd not suffer any one to call him; and when Mr. Finniston was expostulating the Matter with him next day, and asking him the reason why he wou'd suffer his Child to die unbaptized, while he was so near him, he says, the said Moor answer'd in these words, why then says he, I will confess to you, I durst not do it; for if I did, I hou'd neither be admitted to the Ordinances, nor have the benefit of a Certificate from the Elders, in case I shou'd have occasion to remove out of this Parish into Another.

I have seen a Certificate under James Moor's own hand, wherein he gives such an Account of his own words, and of the meaning of 'em, as clearly shows that there is no sufficient Foundation from this fact for the Observation that is made upon it: and tho' I am far from accusing Mr Pinnisten of any wiful perverting, or wrong Recital of James Moor's words, yet I think every man is able to explain his own Meaning best. The Certificate is as follows:

Their Certificates not Slavish. Chap. 3.

I James Moor of Castle reagh solemnly declare that about June the 19th 1711. my wife was delivered of a very weak Childsix or eight Weeks Part 2. before her time, and that I was urg'd by Mrs Woods and Jane Stan-· house to have it daptized by Mr Finnyston, then keeping Court in Mr. * Wood's House, but I ever refused to do it: There was then no Man in s my House but my self, and seeing John Montgomery (Who is no e Elder) pass by the Road, I went out and ask'd his Opinion, and s found it the same with my own Judgment, and spoke to no man else, and the Child died within three hours after it was born, and 4 1 buried it at Knock that Evening.

· Next Morning Mr Finnyston coming by my house challeng'd me e very severely for letting my Child die Unbaptized, and asked me the Reason, why I did not imploy him who was my Minister to baptize it; i answer'd I knew indeed he was the Establish'd Minister of Knock-Parish; but that I was none of his Communion, nor was he my Teacher, and unclear in my Conscience to have my Child baptized by him, and that I did not understand how, if I had gone to him for Baptism to my Child, I cou'd expect Ordinances from these of my own Persuasion, but might take the rest of the Ordinances from him as well as that to my Child, and so leave my own People s altogether, which I was not resolv'd to do, having found no fault with 'em: Nor cou'd I expect a Certificate in that case from the · Elders shou'd I remove, seeing that supposes me to have less their Communion, or words to this purpose; But I utterly deny, that I used in this discourse these words, I Consess to you I durst not do it, or any words, that cou'd imply that I was overaw'd by the Ele dersjor for fear of being denyed a Certificate, and what I sid about a Certificate, was only to show that I wou'd not change my Per-· suasion; and i declare it was nothing but sear of sinning against God that made me not imploy Mr Finniston to baptize my child: Given under my hand this 14th of September 1713. James Moor

Our Author's last Presumptive Fast is express'd thus, (p. 100) Fict IV. 4 Had not the Legislature timely interpos'd with the Test-Clause. 4 as a fence against the Encroachments of the Diffenters, the Presbyterians, wou'd in all likelihood have loon wrought themselves into most of the Corporations of this Kingdom, and insensibly worm'd out the Conforming Burgesses, Aldermen and Freemen, till they had obtain'd a Majority of the Corporations of this Ringdom, and chosen such Magistrates, and sent up such Representatives to Par-Cccc Hamens

562 Chap. 3: The Sacramental-Test considered:

Part 3

! liament as wou'd list in their Service.

In what manner and by what Degrees the Differers wrought themselves into the Government of so many of the Northern Corporations in a sew years, I shewed fully in the sirst part of this Paper; and from what I have there prov'd I wou'd gladly be resolved by the Learn'd in Political Arithmetick in this one Problem. If in—o Years the Dissenters of Ireland gain'd a Majority of Aldermen, Burgesses, and Freemen in—o Corporations, how many years wou'd gain a Majority of voices in the Majority of the Corporations of this Kingdom? and it such a Computation can be reasonably made, the following Corollaries may as reasonably be inser'd.

This shou'd have been call'd rather a remote Prosumptive Possibility, than a Presumptive Fast. And all these guesses of what might have been, are built upon the mistaken Account our Author has given of the unfair Practices pretended by him to have been used by the Dissenters for getting themselves into Offices in Corporations. And the Learn'd in Political Arithmetick may easily answer his Problem from the Resutation I have given of those Mistakes of his, upon which is His four Corollaries have been all considered already, For the first relates to the Principles of Presbyterians about the Extirpation on of Episcopacy; The second to their pretending to make Presbytery the Condition of their Allegiance to Princes: The third to their setting up for a Power to Abrogate such Laws as are judg'd Noisom and unprofitable &c. and the Fourth to their claiming an inherent Right to intermeddle in all points Relating to War and Peace. All which have been vindicated already from our Author's gross Misrepresentations of the Principles and Practices of Presbyterians, with Respect to these Heads.

And therefore when he pretends by the help of his Problem and these Four Corollaries, to prove that many dreadful Evils and bad Consequences to Church and State have been prevented by the Test-Clause, his whole reasoning is groundless, being sounded upon palpable mistakes.

LI am not resolv'd in this Book to debate that Point concerning the Continuance or the Repeal of the Law that Enacted the Sacramental-Test in Ireland: But thus far I must affirm, that the Dissenters in Ireland, tho' they have always look'd upon it as not only a Grievance to themselves in particular, but a sensible weakening of the Protestant and British-Interest in that Kingdom, have behav'd modestly and peaceably under that Pressure. Tho' I won't meddle with what

parti-

Particular Authors have publish'd upon that Subject, yet I shall here Part 3. insert a true Copy of two public Papers, which express the sense of the Dissenters in Ireland as a Body; the first of 'em was offer'd to the late House of Commons 1704, and is as follows:

' To the Honourable, the Knights Citizens and Burgesses of ! Ireland in Parliament assembled.

The Humble Petition of Arthur Upton, William Hamilton, Archibald Edmorston, William Cunningham, William Cairnes, David Buttle, and William Mackie Esquires, in behalf of themselves and the rest of the Dissenting Procestant Subjects of Ireland. SHEWETH,

That your Petitioners Unshaken Fidelity to the Crown of England under all Revolutions, their Peaceable Submission to the Laws, and their Readinets to expose themselves and employ their all in the Desenceof the Protestant Interest, their Lawful Sovereign and the Liberty of their Country, have been Evidenc'd by many plain and underlyable Instances, not only in their Sufferings for the Royal-Family, but also in their Signal Services and Sufferings in the City of London-derry, Inniskilling, and other places, upon the late Happy Revolution. The Truth whereof hath the vote of the Honorable House of Commons in this Kingdom, Anno 1695. for it's public and Authentic Voucher; And was farther confirm'd by the Vote of the House of Commons of England, Anno 1698, wherein it's Resolv'd that the Services and Sufferings at London-Derry were veby Imminent and of great Consequence to bis Majesty's Service, and the PRESERVATION OF THE THREE KINGDOMS. which is also further Evident from the marks of Royal Favor, which theirlate Majesties King William and Queen Mary of Glorious Memory, & cur s present Gracious Sovereign Queen ANNE, were pleas'd in their Great Goodnels and Wildom to confer upon your Petitioners, by · allowing divers of em to partake in Common with their fellow-Protestants in places of Public Trust, both Civil and Military; to the "Uniting of the Hearts and cherishing the Mutual Assection of all her * Majesty's Peaceable and Loyal Subjects of this Kingdom; none of your Petitioners having been declar'd Incapable of promoting such Bless'd & Glorious Ends. & which their Principles naturally inclin'd 'em to. And your Petitioners further Craveleave to represent to your Honors, that when the Bill Entitled, An Act to prevent the farther Growth of Popery: was return'd from England, your Petitioners (to their Great Surprize and Discouragement found a Clause inserted therein, which had not it's Rise in this Honorable House, whereby they were Dis-CCCE 2 abled

Chap. 3: The Sacramental-Test considered

abled from Executing any Public Trust for the Service of Her Ma-Part 3. jesty, the Protestant Religion and their consciences Ready to do the same as ever) unless comerary to their Consciences the Correspond of the Lord's Supper, according to they should receive the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, according to-the Rites and Usages of the Establish'd Church.

That Your Petitioners Case, as they hambly conceive, is Different from that of the Protestant Diffenters in Ergland, who have not 6 so Numerous and inveterate an Ruemy in the Bowels of their Country as the Irish Papists area, who by the most modest Competation are suppord to be six to one to the whole Protestants of this 4. Kingdom; whose Common Safety and not the interest, Gain or Mer-: cenary Ends of a Party, can only weigh with Your Petitioners.

" May it therefore please this Honorable House to Order a Bill for "Restoring such a CONSIDERABLE Part of the PROTESTANTS. of this Kingdom to a Capacity of defending Her Majesty's Sacred. Person and Government, and the Protestant Succession as by Law

Establish'd; and your Petitioners shall ever pray &c.

The second Public Paper I shall insert is, The first Apology of the Presbyterians in the North of Ireland to Her Majesty: That part of it which relates to the Sacramental-Test is in these Words, p. 25.

We must acknowledge to your Majesty that the Sacramental Test: (of which their Lordships are pleased to take notice) is such a griveance, as doth in the most sensible manner touch us and all others of our Persuasion: The Clause imposing in hach placed an odious Mark of infamy upon at least the one half of the Protestanes of this Kingdom, whole early active and successul Zeal to the law happy Revolution gave 'em bopes that they wou'd not have been rendred incapable of ferving your Majesty and their Country, where the Papists are Superior in Number to the whole Body of Processant inhabitants, in the Proportion of Eight to one by a Computation allowed in the Honorable House of Commons of this Kingdom.

And they hope, that dutiful and Loyal Subjects may modefity. "fet forth the inconveniencies and Hardships pur open 'em by a purticular Law, especially when the Safety of the whole Kingdow is come cern'd, in order to show the Reasonableness of Repeating it, without being guilty of centuring the Legislature: Ethow for the Author mention'd by their Lordhips may be charged with this, in afferting what we believe is not peculiar to a Dissenter, we hambly submit it to your Majesty.

" And we beg leave with all Humility to acquaint your Majefty, that our Non-· Conformity in this particular, among other reasons is sounded upon this; that, we believe that holy Ordinance by the Institution of Jesus Christ, was never design'd: for a Civil-Test, and ebet none ought to be excluded from a Capacity of serving. the same for their lexupling. Forms nor commended in the Coffee.

FINAIS.

Defigns of the Court p. 192, 193.

byterian Ministers who scrupled it ARTICLES of Peace made by the 527, to p. $40.

Patent to him, and the German Con- p. 267, to p. 284: gregation. The design of the said Pa- ASSOCIATIONS fign'd at Brate & in :: Narrative of the matter; the Credit sift Tyrants."p. 17, 18. of it. Remarks upon the whole from

D. 86, ta p. 94.

rian Subjects to Her. p.453, 454 Pir- p.155; to p.158; ticular Proofs of the Loyalty of the English Dissenters; and of the Church out of it answer'd k., 148. wover. from p. 454. to p. 463. The that Case from p. 483, to p. 486.

what sense derry'd by the Preshque- raise the Rebellinnink 41. p. 227;

lespy &c. from p. 59. to p. 65.

BBOT Archop. Sequestred ARMINIANISM. The Commons: Lecause he won'd not serve the Petition against it, and the Prosecution of Orthodox Ministers both Con-ABJURATION-Oath. The Pres- formfit and Non-Conformist. p. 189.

clear'd from the Charge of Jacobi- Marquis of Ormond with the high. tism. Many false Stories of 'em, and from p. 259, to p, 267. Remarks Miltepresentations of their Brethren upon the said Articles, proving com on their account detected, from p. to be illegal, and destructive of Religion, the Prerogative of the Crown Al. ASCO John. King Edward 6's and the Liberty of the Subject. from tent, to perfect the Reformation of the North upon the Prince of Orange's is the Church of England, Alasco's own Arrival affere it's no Rebellion to re-

BANCROFT his Character. ph MNE Queen. Her Government 154. his Sermon answer'd by Mr. one of the Bieslings of the Revolu- Davidson, the Quotations dut of it sion. The Loyalty of an Her Presbyte- against Presbyterians consider dirona

BASILICON. Doron a Quotation:

of Scotland; the latter proved from BELFAST; the lawfor between her Majesty's Letter to their fast As the Town and the Vuier about bonsofembly; and from two Excellent Pai mony not made a Party-Cause by the pers of the Commission against the Diffeneers, but made a Party Cante-Prevender, and for the House of Ha- by the Convecation. a brief flate of Loyaldy of Presby rerians in Archimited: ALACK Dieb; illegaland intering; her. from p. 463. 10 p. 488. . . . p. 226. the substance of it. ibid. the APPRALS from Ecclesississis occasion of a severe Persegution, and Courts to the Civil Majestrace, in an Ancouragement to Irish Papists to.

rians, and why: Their Principles in BLOOD's Plot unjuffly charg'd that matter fully clear'd and vindi- on the Presbyterians: his Character; cated from Mr Rutherford, Mr Gil- a fairt History of that plut and of:

theire

their innocence from p. 375, to p. the People or injuring their Epis-385,

BOOKS. The Preshyterians not soi. guiley of writing or dispersing Dis- CHARITY, and alms deeds not furrection There and at Pentland ticular instances of this in Belfast & vindicated by the Parliament of Scot2 Lishurn, and in the latter a memorland fince the Revolution from the able Passige which proves it of all Charge of Rebellion from p. 366, to the Disenters both of England and 7-375 impeach'd by the Commons p. 197' and the attestation of the Bishop of supported by the King who dissolves Down and Connor, and other Clergytended Remonstrance against him p. Trustees from p. 440, to p. 449. 198, 199. kill'd p. 207, rity. p. 103, &c.

522.

£16, 117.

and antiquity of 'em agrecable to were considered p. 185. the Rules of the Gospel: not perverted by Presbyterians, for inflaving Presbyteriansfrom p. 239. to p. 249:

copal Brethren. from p. 554, to p.

loyal Books, from p. 523' to p. 527. confin'd by Dissenters in Ireland to . BOTHWEL-BRIDGE. The in- these of their ownPerswasion; par-Ireland: a vindication of the Diffenters BUCKINGHAM the Duke of, of Lisbura by the Oaths of eight men. the Parliament; the Commons in men and Gentlemen, her Majesty's.

CHARLES I King. The Civil BURIAL. The Presbyterians not War between him and the longPar-Chargeable With Disturbing the liament, whether a Rebellion or not · Clergy at the burial of the Dead. a. stated from Bishop Burnet. on the one Hand, and the Author of Faults BURLEIGH the Lord Treasurer, on both Sides, on the other. from p. his Testimony of the Non-Confor- 169, to P. 173. his Parliaments mist's Loyaky, and of Whitgist's Seve- Petition against Papists, with his answer p: 179, 180.another to the same purpose anno 1626, and an-CAMBDEN's Reflections on the other to the same purpose again CARTWRIGH I's Book against the He suffers no Parliament to meet Rhemist translation of the New Test- from 1628, to 1640; during which ament; Encouraged By Sr Francis period the danger of Popery appears Walsingham, discouraged by White from public Records p. 184, 185. gift. Fuller's great Character of it p. Parliament in 1640 refuses to give him any Sublidy against the Seets. CERTIFICATES, the Original nutil their Grievances in Religion

His Murther not Chargeable on

CHARLES 2. King. vide Decla- and practices proves the same p. 25. ration and Restoration and opposed by the Presbyterians, 433, in the three Kingdoms, who all re- COVENANT the Solemn League of England without King and Howse alty to the King tho against Prelacy fusing it. Several boldConferences, sider'd p, 549, 550. Remonstrances, and Original Papers CROMWEL Oliver: Presbyterians of the Presbyterians in Ireland a- oppole him addhis sons and Party; p. gainst the Common-wealth-Party. 301,302. from p. >84. to p. 320.

Ministers of the North of Ireland Chiese, p. 553. anno 1690 against their Brethren's : COOF Sir Charles, his Declaratifrom p, 412 to p. 414.

Church of Scotland anno 560 proves tery at Bangor. The occasion and the Loyalty of Presbyterian Principl- Scope of it from p. 250, to p. 256. es p. 23. The Westminister-Consession The reasons of it. viz. The Civil of Faith proves the same p. 24, Mr War, and the Peace with the Irish

. -1. CONGREGATIONS, The rea-CHURCH, her Power of Abro- sons for erecting NewCongregations gating of Civil Laws not claim'd by among the Presbyterians; a plea for Presbyterians, as appears by the an- 'em; the History of one in Drogheda, fwer to Lysimachus Nicanor; the Acts with several remarkable Circumof the Scots Assembly, from p. 96, to stances; from p. 510, to p. 522. p 49 A Letter of the Presbyterian, farther Realons for tacle New Ere-invading of Churches, and a vindi- on against the Pesbyterians for their cation of 'em from that imputation Steadiness to King Charles 2.2 proof

: of their Loyaley p. 297, 298.

CLARENDON's the Earl of, ac- CORPORATIONS; the Dislemcount of the insolence of Papists in ers in Ireland came fairly and honest-England under K Charles i, p. 186, ly into Offices in 'em, and manag'd 187. and of the Oppressive Arbitrary justly and peaceably; whereof a parproceedings of the Scots Bishops. from ticular account is given in Bellast and p. 317 to p, 320, London-Derry, with some Remarks COMMONWEALTH set up by on their proceedings in Colrane and the Rump in Opposition to Movarchy, Carricksergus, from p. 419, to p.

fused the Oath call'd the Engagement &c.not taken by either Ministers or to be true to the Common wealth Elders p. 540, 541. it was full of loyof Lords. Their Sufferings for re-, 12.548. two objections against it con-

CONFESSION of Faith for the DECLAR ATION of the Presby-Corbet's account of their Principles Rebels, with the articles and Illegality of it, and of the Commission to whe Lord of Amels to maintain it. - Reformation of many abuses: from to p. 303.

Mory of their Principles and Practi-upon it. P. 52, 53. ces, from the accounts both of their

p. 126, to p. 137.

DUBLIN the Arch-Bishop of, sarming p. 449, 450.

EDWARD 6; King, his Favor to prosecute him p. 419. Won-Conformists. His Letter in sa- FUNDS, the Presbyterians in-Nonconformists) from p. 8z, to p. 94. by 'em. A Detence of their main-and refuted from p. 500, to p. 504. formity. from p. 550, to p. 552. Their promises at their Ordination P. 542.

fix'd, prepossess'd and inflexible; and Principles of it. from p. 209, to p jealous of her own Authority: which $11. made her oppose the Parliamentary from p. 246, to p. 284. The Loyal- Burnet, Heylen, Gambelen &c. from p. ty of the Presbytery who fram'd it, 95, to p. 102. Her severe Charge evidenc'd by their Representation a- to Whirgift against the Puritons.ibid. gainst the Sectaries, Their Letterto ET-CÆTERA-OATH. The Ab-Menk and their Treaty with him, the findity of it. Exceptions given in Declaration of the Anney and Country, against it from Northampton, Kens and several Papers of their Committee, Devenshire, and from the latter aPctheir Conference with Venables, and spicion to the Council p. 193, 194. with Pleetwood; Penables's Letter and : EXCOMMUNICATION of Prin-Con's Declaration &c. from p. 284, ces and Civil Magistrates, whether lawful; Justify'd by the Homilies DISCIPLINARIANS: the Hi- of the Church of England, a Remark

Friends and Adversaries; vindicated FARMING the Presbyterians vinfrom the Charge of Disloyalty. from dicased from unseir Practices against the Church in the Matter of their justifies resistance p. 15. FINCH my Lord Reeper, slies when the Parliament was about to vor of Hooper, his Character (videthe vade not the Rights of the Clergy ELDERS, their Discipline and taking poor Congregations out of Practices Loyal and peaceable. Divers 'em, and making legal Defences Missepresentations of 'em detected when prosecuted for meer Non con-

GLANVILE Serjeant, speaker of ELIZABETH Queen, her bad the House of Commons Anno 1640. Opinion of the Puritans: The Causes 'his bold Speech to the King for the of it viz. her love to Pompous Ce- Liberties of his Country, and the remonies in Religion; her being House's Proceedings according to the

> GRIMSTON Mr., his Speech

to the same Purpose. p. 211.

GRINDAL Archbishop, under the Churches Inherent Power.p. 35, 36.

undertaking in England anno 1648. Stances of the Loyalty of the Church from any Disrespect or Disloyalty to ferring it to all others. p. 146, 147. the King (as appears by their Papers his Letter to Queen Elizabeth in treme necessity p. 16.

Puritans p. 153', 154.

4, 5.

Speech in the same Parliament and imprison'd for afferting the Liberties of their Country. p. 208.

HUNTER Mr. Depos'd from Disgrace with Queen Eurabeth, the the Ministry by the Scotch Assembly Occasion of it, his Letter to her Ma- anno 1594: for Rebellion: Bosboel & jesty, upon that. Occasion, asserting others who join'd in it excommunicated. A Remark upon it shewing the Loyalty of that Church p. 149:

HAMILTON the Duke of, his JAMES I, King; many Infor the King; oppos'd by the Scotch of Scotland to him. p. 146. his Ant-Assembly and their Commission, not ple Testimony of that Charch, preand actings) but for three Reasons, favor of the persecuted Puritan Miwhich are discuss'd in the Papers of nisters of England, with Remarks the Committee of Estates and the As- upon it p. 147, 148. The Loyalty sembly's Commission. from p. 227, of those who sign'd the Millenary top. 238. They did not excom- Petition p. 149, 150. A Remarkable municate the Duke. An Account Vindication of the Loyalty of Disof what Censures they appointed on senters in a Book Entitul'd a Rethat Occasion and why. p. 238,239. moval of certain Imputations laid upon HARCOURT Sir Simon, allows the Ministers &c. Never yet Anof the Doctrine of resistance to the sweet, p. 150. The reasons of his Supreme Magistrate in cases of ex- Spleen against the Puritans after his Accession to the Crown of England, HENRY Prince, son to King James collected from Coke, Burnet &c. And 1. his Character; and favor to the improved to their Advantage.from p, 151 to p; 154. The Loyalty of HOADLY Mr, proves the Doct- the Presbyterians in Ireland during rine of Passive Obedience to be con- his Reign. A short History of their trary to the Law of Nature, theRe- first Settlement in that Kingdom,& veal'd Will of God, and the Princi- of their strengthening the Protestant ples of the late Happy Revolution p: & British Interest there, some memorable instances of it collected from HOLLIS Denzil, and other mem- Mr Adnir's Manuscript History and bers of Parliament 'profecuted and from Mr Livingston's and Mr Blair's Dddd.

Lives.

Lives in Manuscript. from p. 159, sive-Obedience p. 15.

to p, 168

JAMES II. King, his promoting of Popery and flavery and Barbarous cerning the wholfom Severities of Q. Sanguinary Laws against Presbyteri- Elizabeth's Reign from p. 141, to p ans. Their Embracing of his Indul- :144. gence justify'd. Their Addresses to him compared with those of the Flattery. From p. 385, to p. 393.

and limite d; vindicated from the to p. 354. imputation of Disloyalty; asserted Centuries, by the Council of Antioch, Reign from p. 195. to p. 224. by the General Council of Constantinople, and by Hosius and by Chrysostom, LONG Thomas, his scurrilous by the Convocation of Ireland, by Resections on the Dissenters p. 48. Arch Rishop Grindal, and by Arch- the Character of his Book. p. 119. to the State sufficiently guarded a- Christian Loyaltv, p. 21. gainst by the Concessions of Presbyterians to the Civil Magistrate, and Mare of the Legislature, nor office notwithstanding p. 279. in the CivilMagistracy, p. 50. which of it. p. 53, 54. Nor to the Power p. 406, to p. 509. of making Peace and War, from p. 65, to p. 68.

JOHNSON Mr, argues against Pa,

KING Sr Peter, his Speech con-

LAWS made against Presbyte-High-Church, and vindicated from rians in King Charles 2's Reign no Argumensof their Dillovalty. Three INHERENT Powerof the Church, Remarks upon these Laws largely inclaim'd by Presbyserians, explain'd, sisted upon and prov'd, from p.305

LIBERTY and Property of the by the Christians in the three first Subject violated in K. Charles L'E

LOAN an Illegal Tax ibid.

bishop Ther, and by some of the LOYALTY. the true Notion of most Eminent English Resormers and it from p. 3, to p. 19 itallows Sub-Martys; by Bishop Burnet, Doctor jects a Liberty to complain of their Potter &c. With Remarks upon Grievances p. 19, 20. and to be of a thewhole from p. 27, to p. 50. The different Religion from their Prince. danger of Inherent Church-Power p. 20, 21. a Description of true

MANWARING impeach'd for by this Principle of theirs viz. That his Sermon for the Loan, and found their Clergy ought not to have any guilty p. 205. preferr'd by the Court

MARRIAGE. The Validity of is justified from Bishop Burnet p.51. Marriage solemniz'd by Presbyte-42. The Inherent Power has no rians, and a Plea for Liberty of Con-Pretension to the Civil Jurisdiction science to such as scruple the Office of the Magistrate nor to deprive him of Matrimony in the Liturgy, from

MARY

Henry 8. Overturns the Reformation Bishop by King Charles. 1. p. 207. manyof the English Exiles werePresbyterians p. 94.

who lay open the Vices and ill Go- to p. 94. vernment of bad Princes; improv'd as an Apology for some Freedoms us'd in this Book p. 95, 96.

MAICH The Spanish, the Articles of it, all in favor of Popery, King Charles's Oath Confirming these articles, his Letter to the Pope James. p, 18 Concerning it. The Addresses of Parliaments against it, from p. 1743 to p. 178. The French Match, and the articles of it, p. 178.

MEMBERS of parliament demanded by King Charles 1. To be tryed for high Treason, with a company of armed men p. 220-

MILITIA demanded by the long Parliament to beput into such hands they quote many Precedents, p. 220 477.

Clergy from p. 399, to p. 404.

MON SAGUE, an enemy to the

MARY Queen, daughter to King Liberties of his Country, made a

NONCONFORMISTS in King MARY King William's Queen, Edward 6's time Numerous, the same her Character and Endeavors for the in Principles with those in Later Union of Protestants p.394 hervin- times, much favor'd by the King dication of Impartial Historians and his Chief Ministers, from p. 82

OATH ex officio refused by the Puritansa nd why p. 139,

OFFICE for the 5th of November implies the Blessing of God for the Relistance made to the late King

ORMOND the Marquis of, a favorable Construction put upon his making a Peace with the Irish anno 48, notwithstanding of thelllegality of it. p. 275

OXFORD the Bp. of, refutes the Doctrine of Non-relistance from p.

11, to p. 15.

PARLIAMENT met in Aprile as they might confide in for which 1640, p.209, and entring on the Grievances of the Nation, disolved An Objection against the Presby- p. 211. The long Parliament's Unaterians of Ireland for their not en- nimity as to the Greivances of the Nalisting in the Militia upon the Pre- tionappears by the Votes of both Houtender's attempt to invade Scotland ses pass'dnemineContradicente, &by the anno 1708, Answer'd; divers false Speeches of those who stuck closest Accusations of 'em upon that Ac- to the King's side in the War, such count refuted, from p. 466, to p. as Mr Hyde, Mr Waller, Lord Digby, Lord Faulkland, Mr Bagsbaw &c. trom MODERATION.divers Remark- p. 212 to p. 219 There were not able Instances of it in the Church ten Members of it Presbyterian at of Scotland towards the Episcopal- the breaking out of the Civil War p. 224, The long Parliament turn'd into

Dddd &

he FNDEX.

into a Rump and the Presbyterian Assembly of Scotland in 1642, 1643; Members excluded before they cou'd and 1645, vindicated from D. 243

PASQUILS on Queen Elizabeths

On the Puritans p. 138.

PENSION granted to Presbyterian Ministers in the North of dinary cases were always imply'd Ireland by King Charles 2. The occasion of it. It proves their Loyal-Iwer'd, from p. 452, to p. 554.

in K. Charles 2's Reign chiefly prowas contriv'd to stifle the Popish Plot 152, 153. and to bring in a Popish Successor. PRESBYTERIES, the Managefrom p. 325, to p. 353.

the Management of it, and some account of their Proceedings p. 126, Remarks upon it, from p. 200, to h27. p. 205. Petitions of Presbyterians in . PRINCIPLES' of Presbyter ians appoint Judges to ery King Charles 1, Charge of Disloyalty, and other reflections, from p. 225, to p. 227.

PHIPS Sr'Constantine, owns the Government not justly chargeable GeneralDochine of Non-Resistance to admit of Exceptions, and that the Revolution and all such Extraor-

21 Exceptions p. 16, 17.

PRESBYTERIAN Government: ty, from p. 383. to p. 385, her Ma- consistent with all the Rights of Prinjesty's Royal Pension to 'em not ces, from p. 49, to p. 68. my Lord misapply'd; objections against it an- Inchiquin and my Lord of Airds did: both declare for having it Establish-PERSECUTION of Presbyterians ed in the North of Ireland in July, 1649. p. 409. a great advantageand. moted by Papists and Popish Coun- a strong Barrier to Civil Liberty: cils, and peevish dividing Protest- this prov'd by the Author of the ants and temporizing Favorites. It account of the Proceedings of the Parweaken'd the Protestant-Interest, liament of Scotland May 6. 1703. p.

And for these reasons was still op-ment and Conduct of Presbyteries. pos'd by every Parliament in that and Synods, Loyal and peaceable. Reign, who made voies and brought Pleas for a Connivance and Toin Bills against it; But in vain, for leration of 'em, from p. 489; to p. the Court deteated all. All this 5.00. Presbytery at Bangor videDeprov'd from the best Authorities, claration. English Presbytery (a Book so Entitul'd, giving the main O-PETITION of Right, another pinions of Presbyterians in Ergland. Magna Charta of England inserted at proves the Loyalty of their Princilarge. When framed; and upon ples. p. 25, a Presbytery at Wands-what Occasion. The History of worth in Surrey; anno 1572. Some the North of Ireland to the General natively productive of Loyalty. An

SCCORDS:

Account of 'em from their Public-Confef-Writings. Clear'd from many gross Massrepresentations, from p. 1, to p. 69.

Non contormists: Remarks upon it. from p.

105, to p, 108.

PUCKERING his Speech against the Puritans a breach of the Privileges of Parliament p, 109:his Calumnies against 'em' refuted p, 115 1165.

PURITANS, The Petition of the house of Commons to the house of Lords, in their favor anno 1587. The Artifices of Whitgift and his Partyto obstruct it, The Debite of thehouse of Lords upon it, all from Fuller. Remarks upon the whole, showing their Loyalty, Learning and Orthodoxy, from p. 109. to P. 115.

PURITANISM English, (abooks o Entituled) proves the Loyalty of the principles of the Purisans p. 24, 25.

QUESTIONS answer'dupon oath by Mr Stone, anno 15 91. to the Examiner for the star-Chamber concerning the Progress of the disciplinarians in their Presbyteries and Synods. from p, 132, to p. 135. Questions proposed by the Mayor of Drogbeda and Dean Cox anno 1708 to Mr. Fleming, with his answers from 12,514. to 2,518.

REMONSTRANCE of the House of Commons concerning the State of the Kingdom, expressing the Miseries ofit. anno 1627. r. 205. The King understanding it sends for 'em to the House of Lords, and ends the Selfion with an angry Speech, p, 206. Remonstrances of the Presbyterians in all the Three Kingdoms against the Mutther of King Charles 1. from p 241, 10 p. 247, REN 1. The Presby terians in Irelandvinisthey refus'd to pay the Landlord's Rent. of the City of Dublin and of Carrickfrom p, 415, to p. 419. RESIDENCE. fions of Faith and their most Authentic the Debates about the Residence and Non-Residence of the Clergy, and about Plurality of Benefices in the House of Lords annot 587. PRIVY-COUNCIL's Letter to the Whitgift and his Party petition the Queen Archbishop of Canterbury and Bishop of for stopping the Reformation of these Abu-London September 20, 1584. in favor of the les. All these compared with Bishop Burner's Judicious Censure of Non Residencies and Pluralities as Scandalous. from p. 111. top, 115. RESISTANCE to Magistrates. The lawfulnels thereof in cales of extreme Necessity afferted by many Parliaments in England, and not only by the most Celebrated Divines but also by whole Confocations of the Church of England A Summary of the chief arguments for it from Quotation: out of severeal learn'd speeches, Books, and papers, improved for defending the late happy Revolution, her Maj-sty's Title and the Hanover Succession, from p. 3. to p. 19. RESTORATION of K. Charlet! 2. promoted by the Pr sbyterians in the three kingdoms. Proofs of it in Scotland from P. 303. to p. 304 and in England from p.305, to position and in Ireland ibid. and from po-284. to p. 303. RUDY ARD St. Injemin. his famous Speech in Patliament anno 1640, condemning the Severities used against Non-Conformists as impious, and tending to Pope-Ty, p. 190. 191. RYE-HOUSE-Plot fallely charged upon Presbyterians: Contriv'd! by the papifts, to cover their ownplot. Their Intrigues; and the unjust Suffrings of the brave and Noble Lord Russel, and others. from p. 355, to p. 366.

SACHEVEREL Dr, his Council gave up the Destrine of Non-Resistance p. 15. 16) The issue of his tryal p. 19. SACRA-MENTAL-TEST. The Behavior of the. Moderate Churchmen to the Presbyterians. in Corporations, after the Commencement: of it in heland from p. 463., to p. 465... The Address of the Presbytreiens with dicated from an Aspeifion cast upon'em, as relation to it anno 1708, and address. fergus, and the fair Managements of the Difleaters with respect to the said addresses

Vindicated: